MONTREAL STRIKE IN HANDS OF DULUTH MAN

He Says the Trouble Has Only Just Begun.

The Situation In New York Has Not Improved.

Montreal, May 8.—The conference with Sir William Mulock, postmaster general and head of the department of labor, held with the gentlemen representing the shipping interests last night has not as yet borne any visible fruit. He does not find time to meet the longshoremen's committee, and the conference was postponed until today. Sir William made certain proposals to the shipping men, which will be considered by them today.

J. G. O'Neil, of Duluth, who is conducting the longshoremen's strike, as the representative of the International union, today denied a statement attributed to Raymond P. Fontaine, minister of marine and fisheries, that he, O'Neil, had informed him that so far as he was concerned, the strike was over and they were ready to give in. Instead of the strike being practically over, O'Neil declared today it had only just begun and that the men would stick to it till they obtained their rights.

Cincinnati, May 8.—All the linemen, foremen, inspectors and conduit men of the local Bell Telephone company struck today for an increase in wages. The manager of the company, Bayard Kilgour, declined to treat with a committee of the union to which the men belonged, but said he would treat with the men individually, as employes, and would pay wages corresponding to the scale in such cities and towns. This answer was unsatisfactory. The manager says no embarrassment has followed from the strike, and that the places of the strikers are being filled with other men.

San Francisco, May 8.—Tonight all of the boilermakers of the Southern Pacific company west of El Paso and Ogden and south of Portland will quit work out of sympathy with the members of the International union, who have been having trouble for the past six months with the Union Pacific. The number of men involved is about 420. The union machinists of the Union Pacific have joined the boilermakers. The Southern Pacific machinists have not taken any action looking to a sympathetic movement.

New York, May 8.—There was no change in the situation of the strike of the 15,000 excavators and rockmen today. The president said the subway men might submit the question of hours to arbitration, but they would not accept anything less than $2 a day. Work was also at a standstill on most of the big buildings as the result of the refusal of the lumbermen and brick dealers to send out material until the teamsters have modified their demands.

The lockout of the lumber dealers and building material men against the United Building Material drivers was more complete than ever today, according to the dealers. They also said that the yardmen who started a sympathetic strike and closed the five lumberyards in New York last week, returned to work today, ready to pile lumber.

Barton, Ohio, May 8.—Five hundred men employed at two mines of the Youghiogheny & Ohio Coal company struck today because two of the men were discharged. Officials of the miners and owners of the mines have been called to the scene.

Buffalo, May 8.—The strike of journeymen tailors for an increase of wages which has been in progress in this city for nine months was declared off today, unconditionally.

Glasgow, May 8.—The council of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers has notified the Clyde strikers that strike pay will not be allowed them, as the strike was declared contrary to the instructions of the council.

LIGHT WIND PREVENTS

Another Brush Between the Reliance and the Columbia.

Breeze Was Very Fickle and a Race Was Impossible.

Glencove, L. I., May 8.—Both of the cup yachts, the Reliance and the Columbia, left their moorings shortly after 10 a. m. today, the Reliance from New Rochelle and the Columbia from Glencove. The Reliance got a gentle wind from the southeast and slowly started off to the eastward, evidently bound for Bristol to get a new suit of sails, and to be refitted. The Columbia lay becalmed for more than a half hour at Glencove and was then towed off into the sound to get in company with the Reliance. It was evidently the purpose of Columbia to have a brush with the new boat today and sail in company with her to Bristol.

The Columbia's tender left when she was a mile astern of the new boat. Both were nearly becalmed at 11:15 a. m.

The Reliance later got a lighter air from the southeast and went off to the eastward, about at a seven knot clip. The breeze was steady with the Reliance but for three-quarters of an hour, during which the Columbia had sailed about five miles, Capt. Miller was unable to catch a breeze and the Reliance drew steadily away from the Columbia. At noon the Columbia put back into Glencove. The Reliance kept on to the eastward.

FIRE AT ELKHART, IND.

Elkhart, Ind., May 8.—The plant of the Consolidated Paper and Bag company was destroyed by fire today. The loss is about $75,000, with $20,000 insurance.

RAILROAD MEN

Of Victoria Ordered to Withdraw From Trades Hall.

Applies to Men Employed on the State Roads.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 8.—All the state-owned railroads of Victoria may be tied up tonight because of a curious dispute between the government and the railroad employes regarding the right of the latter to affiliate themselves with the Victoria Trades' hall, the headquarters of trades unions in this colony. The employes of the railroads are practically civil servants, and the government claims that in case of a strike in other trades affiliated with the Trades' hall the railroad men would be obliged to strike in sympathy, and therefore the government has notified the railroad men that unless they withdraw from the Trades' hall before May 17 they will be dismissed. The Engineers' association replied that unless the government withdraws its notification before 5 o'clock this evening they will strike at midnight and leave their locomotives wherever they happen to be. The government has guaranteed double wages for two months to non-strikers, and has notified the men that they will lose their pensions if they strike. About 11,000 railroad men are involved in the dispute.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 9 (Saturday.)—The railroad strike commenced at midnight. Demonstrations previously occurred in front of the newspaper offices and troops were sent to patrol the streets. Otherwise the city is quiet.

IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Centerville, Iowa, May 8.—Judge E. A. Roberts, of Ottumwa, has held the Temple amendment, so called, to be unconstitutional, declaring that its effect is to enable a person to recover damages twice for the same injury. The decision was rendered in the case of an employe of the Burlington railroad, who, after accepting the benefits of the Burlington Voluntary Relief association, had sued the company for damages.

RUSSIA ACTS AS IF PREPARING FOR WAR

Reoccupies New Chwang With Large Forces.

Is Constructing Forts at the Mouth of Liao.

Pekin, May 8.—The Russians, it is announced have reoccupied New Chwang with a large force and have also put garrisons in the forts at the mouth of Liao river. They are further reported to be making extensive warlike preparations.

The Russians are reported to be constructing forts on the hill near Liao Yung, commanding the road between there and the Yalu river and they have arranged to have a large quantity of provisions delivered at New Chwang.

A dispatch from an official at New Chwang says indications point strongly to these active preparations being intended to guard against operations against the Russians in Manchuria.

London, May 8.—The announcement from Pekin that the Russians have "reoccupied" New Chwang must not be understood as implying that they ever fully evacuated the place. The news is taken here to mean that the town has been reoccupied by the force, the withdrawal of which was announced in April, when the Russians said that all the troops, except the men necessary for the police guard had been removed.

The Russian proceedings at New Chwang are attributed here to China's refusal to comply with the demands which Russia recently submitted.

The Chinese ambassador here, in an interview, is quoted as saying he has not received official information of the Russian action at New Chwang. If true, he added, it means that Russia will eventually occupy the whole province, and though China is not prepared for war, she will probably resent any attempt to do this.

Yokohama, May 8.—There are persistent reports in circulation regarding the movements of Russian troops along the Yalu river. Detachments have entered Korea, ostensibly to protect the Russian timber concessionaires, and a large body of Russian troops is reported to be approaching Wiju, Korea. The Japanese government is protesting against these actions.

Tokio, April 21, via Victoria, B. C., May 8.—The Japanese government, after having communicated with St. Petersburg, has become satisfied that Russia intends to carry out the evacuation of Manchuria. In the Russo-Japan agreement of April 8, 1898, the Russian government guaranteed withdrawal of its troops by now (April 8, 1903), from the northeastern portion of Moukden province (as far as the Lian river), and Kirin province, and therefore the Chinese territory along the Yalu and Tiepen rivers ought to be restored by Russia. Yet it is admitted that there have been many contradicting orders, confusion and indecision recently among the Russian troops in the two provinces and the actual withdrawal has been somewhat delayed. It is nevertheless probable that Russia will complete the evacuation to the letter of agreement, judging by the tone of replies in official inquiries.

WAS TIRED OF LIFE

Veteran Letter Carrier of St. Paul Commits Suicide.

Had Been In the Service Twenty-Seven Years.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alex W. Lilley, a mail carrier, committed suicide this morning by hanging himself in the basement of the house. Lilley had been sick for several months and was despondent. Early this morning he arose and the family heard him moving about the house. He went into the cellar, and when he did not return the family went in search of him. They found his body hanging from a beam by a shawlstrap, which he had knotted about his neck. A block upon which he had been standing was lying near by. Lilley was 48 years old and had been in the employe of the postoffice for the past twenty-seven years.

Lilley was one of the veterans of the postoffice carrier force. He entered the service in 1876 and was considered one of the best carriers in the service.

UNLAWFUL RESTRAINT

Of Trade Alleged In Suit Against Machinery Trust.

Boston, May 8.—A suit for $1,000,000 damages has been brought by Harry Cilley, of this city, against the United Shoe Machinery company in the United States circuit court.

The plaintiff says he has been engaged in the business of manufacturing shoe machinery in which he has invested about $300,000, the principal part of that amount consisting in domestic and foreign patents. He sues under section 2, chapter 647, of the act of 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies." He asserts that the defendant has attempted to monopolize a part of the trade or commerce in shoe machinery, and has wrongfully obtained control of the market for its sale to the exclusion of himself. His business, he declares, has been destroyed and his property rendered useless.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Des Moines, May 8.—Ed Puckett, aged 24, a Des Moines horse trader, was arrested here today for the murder of Aleck Youker, a traveling horse trader, who died early today from the effects of a fist blow inflicted yesterday.

MOORED ON FRIDAY.

Gourock, Scotland, May 8.—The weather today was well suited for racing, but the Shamrock III remained at her moorings, her owner and skipper probably being influenced by the recollection that the cup challenger met with a disaster on a Friday.

CREED REVISION SEEMS ASSURED

New York, May 8.—Presbyterian creed revision appears to be near at hand, after a prolonged and at times acrimonious struggle within and without the ranks of that church says the Herald. It has been learned that 227 of the 235 Presbyteries of the Presbyterian church in America voted solidly for creed revision, as based on the eleven overtures sent down by last year's general assembly. This vote was telegraphed to several leading Presbyterians in this city by the stated clerk of the general assembly. At the meeting of the general assembly to be held in Los Angeles, Cal., this month, it is believed th elast obstacle to creed revision will have been overcome and the demands of the great majority of Presbyterians granted. With this ratification of the decision of several Presbyteries it is hoped by leading churchmen that the Presbyterian church may resme its old time force in the country.

LIVED ON PEA SOUP TWELVE DAYS

San Juan, P. R., May 8.—The American schooner James Slater, of Port Jefferson, Long Island, thirty days out from Savana-La Mar with logwood for New York put in here yesterday, having been driven back from off Cape Hatteras, April 2. The crew was been subsisting on pea soup for twelve days and were very weak. The steward, William Holcomb, of Charleston, S. C., was in a comatose condition. The men had been working at the pumps at regular intervals for a month.

NOW THE PRICE OF BUNS GOES UP

Chicago, May 8.—The Master Bakers' association last night decided on an advance of 25 per cent to the wholesale trade and 20 per cent to the retail dealers in the price of buns, rolls, cakes, cookies and crullers. By this action, which is to take effect immediately, the price of the smaller bakery goods is raised from 8 to 10 cents a dozen wholesale, and from 10 to 12 cents retail. It is claimed that the increase is made necessary by the advanced prices for flour, lard and butter.

JEALOUS PHYSICIANS BOUND TO CAUSE LORENZ TROUBLE

It Seems Evident That a Concerted Attack Will Be Made on the Bloodless Methods of the Austrian Savant at Washington Meeting.

New York, May 8.—Following the criticisms of Professor Adolf Lorenz' bloodless method of reducing congenital hip dislocation at the convention of the American Medical association in session this week at New Orleans, a concerted attack upon the Austrian savant seems scheduled for the sixth triennial congress of the American physicians and surgeons, which is to be held next week at Washington, says the Herald.

The program, as sent out to the members, are abstracts from several papers in which the purpose to discuss the bloodless method is indicated. The publication of intimations that physicians had found that paralysis had followed what is now termed the Lorenz bloodless operation for reducing hip dislocations is stirring up the defenders of and those not in acord with the Lorenz method and it seems probable that the resentment felt by many American practioners over the fetching of the Austrian specialist to this country to perform his operation upon little Lolita Armour for a fee of $30,000 and expenses of himself and an assistant, will be made evident.

Dr. H. W. Shaffer, the treasurer of the coming convention at Washington, says: "It is a pity that there should be any question about the good that Professor Lorenz' trip did. All of his patients have benefited by the severer methods shown to be feasible by Professor Lorenz, despite temporary paralysis occasionally resulting. All the cases fell under my personal observation did well. About the death of one patient in Philadelphia, I do not understand that this untoward result was due to Professor Lorenz' operation."

CZOLGOSZ'S BROTHER JAILED DURING PRESIDENT'S VISIT

Los Angeles, May 8.—John Czolgosz, brother of the anarchist who killed President McKinley, is still in confinement. After his arrest Czolgosz agreed that it might be to his own interest to remain at the station until after the president had left the city, but expressed a wish that as little publicity as possible be given the matter. The captain of detectives agreed to this and the man was given comfortable quarters in the city prison. He will be released Saturday.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 8.—Acting under instructions from the secret service bureau at Washington yesterday the police arrested a man who is suspected of being one of the four brothers of Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley.

Great secrecy is maintained about the arrest and practically no information has been given out concerning the man. No charge has been lodged against him, the police simply detaining the man on suspicion until after the president shall have left Los Angeles. It is said Czolgosz has been living here for some time, employed in a local factory.

His actions have been, it is said, not out of the ordinary and no complaint has been made against him other than his relationship to the assassin of President McKinley.

Cleveland, May 8.—In connection with the arrest of a man, supposed to be a brother of the assassin of President McKinley, in Los Angeles last night, an effort was made to learn from the father of the Czolgosz boys of their whereabouts, but repeated calls at the family home failed to elicit any response.

A PEANUT COMBINE IS PERFECTED

Cincinnati, May 8.—The Confectioners' Review today says: The Michigan Underwriting company, of Detroit, has completed a combine of the peanut industries and that of the American Edible Nut company will soon be incorporated in New Jersey with $1,250,000 of 7 per cent preferred and $2,750,000 of common stock, and that it will absorb the eighteen plants near Norfolk, Va., where the general offices will be located. The yearly output within eighty miles of Norfolk is 5,000,000 bushels. The incorporators are Adolph Wehrman and W. E. Weatherly, Detroit; F. H. Helmer, Jackson; George E. Hardy, Grand Rapids; John Ryan, Bad Axe, and John M. Early and H. S. Griggs, Chicago.

SAILORS ARE SHOT AT LONG RANGE

San Francisco, May 8.—Ensign Charles Huff and Boatswain's Mate McNamara of the crew of the cruiser Boston were wounded by being struck by stray bullets from the cruiser Marblehead, while the crew of the latter vessel were engaged in sub-calibre target practice. The crew was engaged at this practice, while the Marblehead was lying on Magdalena bay. About four hundred yards from her was the Boston with her men likewise engaged. It was not thought that the bullets would carry as far as the Boston and no danger was anticipated until there came a signal from her to cease firing in her direction. Ensign Huff was wounded in one of his arms, the boatswain's mate received a severe scalp wound.

SCATTERED HUNDRED DOLLAR BILLS

New York, May 8.—With a handful of $100 bills a sneak thief, who slipped his hand into the cash bag of a bookmaker at the Morris Park race track and seized the largest and best tempting notes contained therein, was chased across the crowded betting ring by his victim. In the chase the thief cast aside the money, which was picked up by spectators and later claimed for their owner by another bookmaker who witnessed the occurrence. A man said to be the thief was taken in custody by detectives and locked up with a complaint of grand larceny against him. The prisoner denied the theft. Of the money stolen, $900 all in one hundred-dollar bills, was recovered but $200 was lost.

A DOUBLE HANGING AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, May 8.—Henry Wilson and Sampson Gray, negroes, were hanged in the jail yard today for murder. This is the first double hanging here since Maxwell, who murdered Archer Preller, and another murderer were executed Aug. 10, 1888. It was also the first private execution in the history of St. Louis, a few officials and newspaper men being the only persons present. Gray was condemned to death for killing another negro for money. Wilson was convicted for them urder of Thomas Mooney, a levee saloonkeeper, whom he attempted to hold up.

Rev. Dr. Walser.

The Late Miss Agatha Reichlin.

The murder of Miss Agatha Reichlin, at Lorain, Ohio, is now a complete mystery. Rev. Frederick Walser, who was at first taken into custody, having been released, the police have nothing to work on but the theory that Miss Reichlin was killed by burglars who entered the home of her brother, Rev. Charles Reichlin, pastor of St. Joseph's parish.

ALLEGED FORGER DIED SUDDENLY

Boston, May 8.—It is disclosed that Edward M. Thayer, of Newton, and a mining broker in this city, who was arrested April 27 on the charge of forging several mortgages and mortgage notes, died very suddenly four days later at the Hotel Lenox, in this city. The forgeries, it is claimed, amounted to several thousands of dollars, and at the time of his death Thayer was out on bail pending an investigation. An autopsy showed no signs of suicide. It is claimed that Thayer used fraudulent mortgages as collateral for loans, and the police say he admitted forging the signatures, after being taken into custody. Thayer carried nearly half a million dollars' worth of life insurance, although not quite 30 years old. Mr. Thayer came to Newton from Minnesota while very young, and his father, who died several years ago, left him considerable property. It is known, however, that Thayer made a number of unfortunate ventures in the stock market, and he lost very heavily quite recently in copper stocks.

EXPECTS EXTRAORDINARY EVENTS.

Panama, May 8.—Notwithstanding the persistent denials of the Nicaraguan government that the revolution in that republic is making progress, advices received here show that it is gaining ground. An American who has arrived here from Central America says the Nicaraguan revolutionists are receiving help from the other republics, and a member of the Nicaraguan junta here says he expects extraordinary events will occur in Nicaragua next week, which, he adds, will assure the success of the revolution.

San Salvador, Salvador, May 8.—Adolph Altamirano, the Nicaraguan minister to Salvador, claims that the Nicaraguan revolution is nearly suppressed. He adds that the government steamer Bonce De Julio recently engaged the revolutionary steamer Victoria on Lake Nicaragua, causing the latter serious damage, but the Victoria, being the faster, escaped. The Nicaraguan revolutionary steamer Noventi-Tres is ashore in Moyogalpa bay, Lake Nicaragua.

PARROT SAVES ITS OWNER'S LIFE

Washington, N. J., May 8.—Attracted by cries of "murder," "help," "come quick," neighbors of George B. Andrews, of this place, ran to his home to find out the cause. They knew the cries were made by his parrot, but they had never heard it scream so loud before. Andrews lay on the floor unconscious, bleeding from a great gash in his neck. He had been repairing the ceiling and had fallen from a step ladder, striking a stove. A physician took six stitches to close the wound, and said that in a few minutes Andrews would have been dead. Andrews is a civil war veteran and some time ago he applied for admission to the Soldiers' home. On being informed he would be accepted, he wrote the authorities asking if he would be permitted to bring his parrot. Their answer being in the negative, he decided not to go.

A CAR LOAD LOT

Pineapples From Cuba, the First Big Shipment Received Here.

Strawberries Are Coming Freely In Car Load Lots —Butter Lower.

The first carload lot of pineapples ever received in Duluth arrived in the city yesterday consigned to the Fitzsimmons-Derrig company. They came direct from Cuba by way of New York.

Pineapples are plentiful this season and the price moderately low. They are now selling at $3.25 per crate.

"The receipt of the first carload lot of pineapples is a notable landmark in the produce trade of Duluth," said Mr. Sleeper, of the Fitzsimmons-Derrig company. "The demand in Duluth has increased sufficiently during the past year to warrant such a step. It means a considerable saving in freight, and places Duluth on a level with the direct importers. Hitherto the shipments to Duluth have been local from Chicago and other large cities."

Strawberries are coming in very freely. Carload lots are being received by the different commission houses nearly every day, and the price has dropped to $3 per crate of 24 quart boxes. The berries are still coming from Tennessee.

The season for apples is drawing to a close and the price has jumped to $4.50 and $5 per barrel.

Butter is weaker and the price of creamery has now dropped to 24 cents per pound. Grass butter has commenced to come in, although the shipments are as yet very small.

Eggs are firm at 15 and 16 cents per dozen.

Hothouse cucumbers have dropped to $1.25 per dozen.

The dealers report an active week's trading, both the ranges and the city dealers buying freely.

The poultry market is firm, with no change in prices.

Meats are weaker this week and there has been a drop in the prices of all but pork and beef. Mutton is selling at 10 cents, lamb at 12 and good veal at 7½ to 8½. Pure lard has taken another drop and is selling at 9½ cents.

The dealers report a very busy week.

LOOKS LIKE MURDERER

Is Principal Evidence Against Italian Arrested In Boston.

Medford, Mass., May 7.—The man arrested in Boston last night suspected of having killed Miss Nellie C. Sturtevant here two hours before while attempting to rob her father, James H. Sturtevant, was brought here early today. He gave his name as Camasso Lourbreid. He is an Italian and cannot speak English. Another arrest was made in connection with the crime, a stranger having been taken into custody here this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Sturtevant, who were prostrated by the shock of the murder, were under medical care today. The only evidence disclosed thus far against the men in custody is that both answer the description of the person who killed Miss Sturtevant.

HAVE NOT RETURNED.

Subway Strikers Are Waiting For More Information.

New York, May 7.—Instead of returning to work in the subway today, the members of the Rockmens and Excavators' union carried into effect a decision reached at a meeting last night to get further information before returning to work.

In addition to the subway men, there are 15,000 Italians employed by contractors throughout the city, who are also on strike and it is the opposition to these strikers to the subway men settling their differences before the troubles of the whole body of striking Italians are settled, that has kept the subway workers in doubt as to what to do.

GOSSLER TO RETIRE.

Prussian War Minister Will Leave the Ministry.

Berlin, May 7.—It is announced that Gen. Von Gossler, who for seven years has been Prussian war minister, will retire after three months leave of absence. It has been reported and denied several times recently that Gen. Von Gossler must leave the ministry because he was unable to repel the passionate Socialist attacks in the reichstag on the army administration. The general's reply to Herr Bebel's denunciation two months ago of non-commissioned officers' brutalities was regarded by the government as being singularly ineffectual, and it was perceived that the ministry must have as war minister, an energetic parliamentary hand in the reichstag. On Gen. Von Gossler's behalf it is expected that two wounds which he received during the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-1871 trouble him with increasing years and that the emperor permits him to take a long leave of absence.

HAS GONE TO NEW PASTURES

Theobaldi, the Violinist, Leaves the Twin Cities Suddenly.

St. Paul, May 7.—The Dispatch says: When it was announced on Monday evening at the People's church that Ole Theobaldi, violinist, was ill, everybody believed it, and, after a brief period of the kind of regret one is apt to feel over a virtuoso who plays compositions for one string, the audience accepted with equanimity the situation and the readings by Curtis G. Morse. But there was something worse even than a "Devil's Dream" behind the announcement.

The violinist had run away.

The instincts that assail a virtuoso had prompted him not only to depart suddenly and silently, but to omit the payment of monetary obligations amounting to $700. His manager was left in the lurch to the tune of this sum. With great cleverness, the violinist planned his departure. He had his baggage removed from his rooms in Minneapolis on Sunday morning, when they could not be attached. After refusing a number of times to see his manager, who is a Minneapolis man, the violinist slipped quietly away, and by Monday evening was on a Chicago train.

Theobaldi has made Minneapolis his headquarters since he arrived in America in January. His farewell concerts in St. Paul and Minneapolis were to have been given respectively on Monday evening and last night. His obligations in Minneapolis had been growing, and, in order to secure his $10,000 violin, and his other baggage from seizure, Mr. Theobaldi checked them to St. Paul, and thence to Chicago. From Chicago the runaway virtuoso telegraphed information of his pretended illness to the People's church in this city, signing the message "Dr. March."

It has been ascertained that his trunks have been forwarded to New York, and the artist is believed to have accompanied them.

HINDOO SEER TO RUN A PAPER

He Has a Cinch on the Getting of Information.

Stansberry, Mo., May 8.—The Stansberry Sentinel, F. A. Welmer's well-known Democratic publication, has been sold to J. B. Babboo, a native of British India. The Sentinel will hereafter be nonpartisan.

F. A. Welmer, the retiring proprietor, has been prominent in Gentry County newspaper circles and state politics for the last twenty years. He served two terms as representative of Gentry County in the state legislature and has been a formidable candidate for state senator a number of terms. He established the first newspaper published in Stansberry.

Babboo, who calls himself the "Hindoo Seer," came to Stansberry a short time ago. He is a palmist, astrologer, occult scientist, general mystic and all-round prestidigitator. He declares he was born in the shadow of the great East Indian Temple at Calcutta, and reared and schooled among the adepts of the Mystic Brotherhood of Seers of India, and that he has the secrets of the past, present and future at his command. He also says he is a mining expert, and that it was through his occult knowledge and personal efforts that the mines of the Klondike, Cripple Creek, Virginia City, Butte, Mont., and Johannesburg, South Africa, were developed. He is a member of the Mystic Brotherhood, the members of which, he says, live to be from 150 to 175 years old.

Gentry County now has the distinction of having the only Hindoo editor in the state. While country newspaper chiefs are recruited from almost all vocations, this is the first instance known of a Hindoo occultist forsaking the mystic wand for the pencil.

It is not yet known whether astrological charts will be given free to subscribers who pay in advance, or whether occult readings will be given on press days. It also remains to be seen whether Brahma, Vishna and Shiva can work reform in the traditional printer's devil.

In speaking of the new management a Gentry County newspaper man said: "Babboo certainly has a cinch on the paper business. With his powers as a seer no deadbeat can ever get it on him; news items can be put in type weeks ahead during dull days and the customer's printing can be ready for delivery before the customer calls to leave the order. Even if he should get a delinquent on his list he will live long enough to make the great-grandchildren pay the debt."

SCIENTIST HILPRECHT

Taken Ill In the Orient, Made Love By Cable.

Philadelphia, Penn., May 8.—The story of Prof. Herman V. Helprecht's courtship of Mrs. W. H. H. Robinson, whom he married last week, was told by himself. It was largely a romance of cable messages, sent to this city from Constantinople, after the professor had been taken ill there, in consequence of his exhausting experience lecturing in Germany during the winter:

"I received many invitations to lecture," said the professor, "which I could not decline. Then came Delitzsch's attack upon my archeological conclusions in connection with the Nippur discoveries, and the consequent controversy. The strain nearly broke me down, as I found when I had reached Constantinople, where I went to obtain the permission of the Turkish government for our next Philadelphian expedition to Nippur.

"While I was in Constantinople I was too ill to write to my friends here. My acquaintance with Mrs. Robinson had only begun in the previous September, on board ship, while we were crossing the ocean. But it was love at first sight. We have much in common. She is devoted to music, which is one of my great passions, and is an accomplished linguist. She is the most cultured woman I have ever met. Our marriage was to have taken place earlier, but that was prevented by my illness. When I could not write I cabled form Constantinople to Mrs. Robinson, and it was arranged that I was to return to Philadelphia and we were to be married as soon afterwards as possible.

"We shall go to Europe early this summer and will pass some weeks there before I start for Nippur. I hardly think that I will take Mrs. Hilprecht with me on the expedition. I do not think it proper to subject her to the discomfort and danger to which a woman might be exposed under such circumstances."

IS NEARLY ALL IN

Vote of the Great Northern Employes Is Nearly Completed.

The Vote May Be In and Counted By Sunday.

The vote of the employes of the Great Northern on the strike question is practically finished.

A. B. Garretson, who is in charge of the polling, announced last night that the vote might be all in and counted Sunday morning.

It is expected he will be in Superior this evening or tomorrow to wind up the business of this division and of the vote of the whole system.

The committee which was appointed a week or ten days ago to poll the men at Superior completed its work, and circulars have been issued by the road asking the men to reconsider their action, which infers that the railway company has discovered the result was a decision in favor of the strike.

Whether a second poll will be taken or not is not known, nor can any information be secured regarding it.

The presence of Mr. Garretson will determine whether the men will turn in the vote as made or have a second poll.

The Great Northern company is bringing men into points where division connections are made, it is said, and will be ready to operate at a moment's notice if the order to the men for a strike is issued on Monday, when the result of the vote will be turned over to General Manager F. E. Ward of the road.

Excitement is running high among railroad men on the eve of the counting of the vote on the system of the Great Northern. No word as to how the voting has been on certain divisions is being announced, though the railway officials seem to have authoritative information regarding these things. The officials are keeping as still about it as the men.

It has been twenty-five years of smooth working for the employes of the Great Northern, and in that time there have been but three strikes. The men claim there is general disaffection all over the system, and that many who are dissatisfied, exclusive of the double-header proposition, will vote for extra concessions or a strike.

A strike on the Great Northern at this time would mean a compilcation of almost limitless extent, and the railroad men are fixing things so that operations may continue, even though the men now employed walk out.

GET AN ADVANCE.

Northern Pacific Truckmen Raised $5 a Month.

The forty truck men employed at the Northern Pacific freight house have been granted an increase of $5 a month, from $45 to $50.

The committee representing the workmen, who have been negotiating with the railway people for the past ten days and received no direct answer, made a demand yesterday afternoon for some information.

There was none at hand, and they remained away from work until 3 o'clock, when the headquarters at St. Paul were wired, and upon promise that the matter would be adjusted at once, the men returned to work.

Last night the announcement that the increase would be given was received and the men went to work this morning at 7 o'clock as usual.

INCREASE GRANTED.

St. Paul, May 8.—A New Richmond, Wis., special to the Dispatch says the increase of pa ydemanded by the striking section men of the Wisconsin Central company has been granted. The company gives them more than they asked for and the men will hereafter draw the $1.50 per day, which they asked for, and full time Sundays, which they did not ask for or expect.

The Northern Pacific Railway company has filed an answer in the personal injury action brought against it by George Hasty, denying that it operated the logging train on which the plaintiff was standing when he received his injuries on Rice's Point. EGYPTIANS COME

Six In a Party of Immigrants That Reaches Duluth.

Carry Huge Bundles on Their Heads, Following Their Custom.

Carrying immense bundles of clothing and household effects on their heads, according to the custom of their country, six natives of Egypt descended from the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic train at the Union depot this morning.

The party consisted of a father, mother and four small children, who arrived in New York four days ago, coming direct from Cairo, Egypt. They could not speak a word of English and their plans for the future could not be learned. When questioned they merely turned their puzzled gaze on the questioner and shook their heads.

The six Egyptians were members of a party of over 200 immigrants of all nationalities, who arrived this morning by the same train. Three coaches were loaded with the homeseekers. The party is the largest which has arrived in Duluth this season and one of the largest in the history of the city.

E. A. Lindgren, immigration agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, has received word from Liverpool saying that the outgoing vessels cannot accommodate the crowds of emigrants who are seeking passage and that several thousand are held up in that city awaiting an opportunity to gain accommodation on one of the steamers.

The party that arrived this morning came from Montreal and New York. About ten countries were represented by the party that arrived this morning, including Norway, Sweden, Finland, Russia, Egypt, Ireland, Germany, France and England.

THE SIGNS ARE COMING DOWN

Employment Agents on Michigan Street Removing the Boards.

The movement for improving the appearance of Michigan street has started. Today all the yellow, blue and red signs that have been used by the various employment agencies on the rear of the Spalding block disappeared and hereafter will be found tacked up on the inside of the offices. The employment agents have been accustomed for years past to plaster the front of their offices with the big, bright-colored cards, notifying the men looking for work where they could find it, and many times it has been almost impossible to distinguish any part of the building other than the windows because of the number of signs.

Some time ago the management of the Spalding property notified lessees that they must remove objectionable cards and posters, and this request has been carried out and the fronts of the offices have been repainted. The employment agents claim that the idea of having the signs inside the offices instead of plastered along the front of the buildings is a good one, not only because the sidewalks will be kept clear of men and the appearance of the street improved, but because the new method of advertising work inside the building will bring the men into the office, where on previous occasions they would simply read the signs outside and go away.

It is believed that the matter of removing outside placards will be taken up with the owners of other property along Michigan street, and they will be induced to require their tenants to pull down all glaring employment signs.

MESSAGE BY LA FOLLETE

Urges the Legislature to Action on Freight Tariffs.

Madison, Wis., May 8.—Governor LaFollette today sent another message to the legislature on the subject of feright rates. The message results from revealations made in connection with the opening of coal bids yesterday. All of the coal dealers inserted provisions making th eprices subject to increases in freight rates. Such a reservation was never made before and the governor says it proves conclusively that the railroad companies had prepared for action in apprehension of legislation increasing their taxes. He takes it as conclusive that the roads informed the shippers to make contracts subject to increased rates and says the necessity for the legislature to take action is imperative so as to prevent the roads from increasing tariffs to offset increase in their tax.

The new mortgage bill taxing interest in real estate but exempting mortgages of corporations which pay a tax on capital stock or a license on gross earnings was ordered to engrossment in the assembly. In the senate the bill prohibiting the sale, importation, etc., of cigarettes was reported for passage. The assembly also ordered to engrossment the bill giving the attorney general, railroad commission and bank examiner power to examine the books of the railroad companies.

NEW TRIAL FOR BLIND PIGGERS

The Prosecuting Attorney Talked Too Much to the Jury.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a decision handed down this morning by Justice C. M. Start, of the supreme court, the judgment of the lower court is reversed and a new trial granted Joseph Stoffels, of St. Paul, convicted of running a blind pig at the state fair grounds and sentenced to sixty days in the workhouse therefor.

The cast will be re-tried because the prosecuting attorney criticised Stoffels before the jury during the progress of the trial.

Herbert C. Gallehugh, of Minneapolis, who murdered a cook in that city, must serve out his sentence in Stillwater prison. The state supreme court rendered a decision in the case this morning refusing to grant a new trial on the appeal. The supreme court affirmed the decision of the St. Louis county court in the case of Thomas C. Coffin against William Craig, appellant.

HUSK WEAVING REVIVED.

The craze for Raffia weaving has suggested all sorts of odd materials which can be utilized by clever fingers in basgetry or mats, says the Brooklyn Eagle. One young woman of this borough has revived the old husk braiding, through which her rural ancestors were provided with door mats, made by the hands of the busy housewives of long ago.

The husks are braided in three strands fresh husks being canstantly joined on the braid, when they are needed, the splicing being done by bradding the end of the new husks into the strand. The mat is formed by sewing the long strand, when done, into an oval or round mat, taking coarse thread and a large needle to sew it with.

The young woman in question proposes next summer, when husks are abundant, to select and dry the most perfect ones, and weave them into mats to hang up behind divans, or to form a decorative background for Indian pottery, strings of pipes or small casts.

TOO LUCKY AT POKER.

"No, I'm not going to be married to a Gates avenue girl on Thanksgiving," replied a young society man, when the case was put to him the other day, says the Brooklyn Eagle. "I did fall in love with a sweet young thing on that street, and after I had called on her once or twice her father asked me to play two-handed poker. The result was that he scooped me out of half my salary every week for three or four weeks and kept me from making love to his daughter. Thinking he had too soft a thing of it, I went to an old gambler and paid him $5 to show me a trick or two. The next time I played with my prospective father-in-law I walloped him out of $6 and three nights later I gathered in $12 of his shekels. Then he rose up and said:

"Young man, avaunt! I like your looks, and no doubt you would make my daughter happy, but I'll be hanged if I want a son-in-law who holds an ace full every time I hold three tens."

BASEBALL SEASON

Fans to Get First Line on League Team Saturday.

Police Have Organized an All Star Team For Slaughter.

The baseball enthusiasts will get their first line on the Duluth team tomorrow afternoon in the game with the Central High school.

It should be a fairly fast performance and well worth the journey to Oneota park to see. Cummings, the crack high school pitcher, is showing splendid form this season and the school players are depending on his arm to hold the league men to a small score and give them a chance to win.

Manager Van Praagh will probably send in Gehring, Dodge and Booth for three innings each, thus giving all the twirlers an opportunity to get the kinks out of their arms.

The line-up will be as follows:

Duluth.		High School.
Leonard	Catcher	Potter
Gehring	Pitcher	Cummings
Dodge	Pitcher
Booth	Pitcher
Price	First base	Crammer
McCoy	Second base	Winters
Blair	Shortstop	Scobie
Shinokek	Third base	Sommers
Hori	Left field	Clayton
Lambert	Center field	Arsneau
Lagger	Right field	St. Clair

The undefeated Universal Millers will play the Superior Northern league team Sunday afternoon and expect to continue the winning streak. The game will be played at the West Superior Driving park and it is expected that a big crowd of rooters will go across the bay to help out the Millers. The line-up is given out as follows:

Millers.		Superior.
Lewis	Catcher	Keefe
Lowe	Pitcher	Davis
Beckman	First base	Hall
Olson	Second base	Cartwright
Bouska	Shortstop	Wirfs
Salvoy	Third base	Durnall
Combs	Center field	Fester
Nacey	Right field	Smith

All other amateur ball teams might as well go away back and jump off.

The police have organized an all-"star" bunch and will shortly issue a challenge calculated to arrest the attention of every player in the city.

Nothing but mystery has been given out as to the personnel of the team, but headquarters' gossip has it that Detective Terry, a native of an island romantically situated in the northwest section of Ireland, will do the twirling. The island is entirely surrounded by fluid, which chemists have been unable to name. When a mere child Terry developed his arm pitching driftwood ashore while bathing in the pellucid depths that laved the shores of his ancestral home. Little did he then dream that he would some day pitch for a ball team representing the Duluth police department.

Other police officers disguised in baseball uniforms will be stationed at frequent intervals around the diamond to pinch any opponent that tries to steal a base or any opposing player that acts suspiciously when headed for the home plate.

Keokuk won the series from Fargo, defeating the Dakota men in the final fast game by a score of 1 to 0.

Grand Forks has secured a new outfielder from Galveston. His name is Thompson, and is said to be strong with the stick.

Crookston returned from the Wisconsin training trip today and will play a series of home games from now on.

Skopec, with whom the Duluth management was thinking of negotiating, has signed for the season with the Spaldings of Chicago.

The West Superior league team defeated the West Superior high school by a score of 20 to 2 in six innings yesterday.

Receipts at Helena Assay Office Eclipse Records.

Helena, Mont., May 8.—The receipts of the United States assay office in Helena were the largest on record for last month since the establishment of the office. The receipts amounted to $296,390, a gain of more than $70,000, when compared with the preceding April. The receipts were confined principally to gold, of which Montana mines produced $172,365, as compared with $103,312 for the corresponding month last year. The remainder came from Washington, Idaho, Nevada and British Columbia. Fergus county shows a wonderful increase in gold production.

GRAVE NOT ROBBED

David Shesgren's Fears Happily Prove to Be Unfounded.

Singular Circumstance Which Gave Rise to Them.

David Shesgren, proprietor of the Lion drug store at 2002 West Superior street has just returned from Minneapolis, where he went to investigate what he thought was a case of grave robbing, by which the grave of his brother-in-law had been despoiled.

Last week he received from Minneapolis a coffin plate, with the name of his brother-in-law on it, which had been found in a small lake within the city limits of Minneapolis.

Mr. Shesgreen immediately left for Minneapolis to investigate the matter. When he called on the undertaker who had charge of the funeral of his brother-in-law he found that the name plate was one which was made by the undertaker and thrown away, the name having been spelt wrong. The plate had been thrown aside and when the work room was cleaned was thrown with some other rubbish into the lake.

This happened nearly four years ago, as the funeral took place in August, 1899.

The plate was picked up about a year ago by a Minneapolis man. He endeavored to find the relatives of the man whose name appeared on the plate, but was unable to do so until this spring, when he happened to meet an aunt of Mr. Shesgreen, residing in Minneapolis. He turned the name plate over to her and forwerded it to Duluth.

Mr. Shesgreen was much relieved to find the grave of his sister's husband undisturbed. He had feared that the grave had been robbed and the coffin thrown in the lake.

PAYNE IS REBUKED

Called Down By Tulloch For His Ungentlemanly Remarks.

Washington, May 8.—The feature of yesterday's developments in the postoffice investigation was a letter from Seymour W. Tulloch, for many years treasurer of the Washington postoffice to Postmaster General Payne, in reply to the latter's request for any information in his possession.

Mr. Tulloch might have to sustain his published statements, charging irregularities in the postoffice department and the Washington city postoffice some years ago.

Mr. Tulloch's letter, which was mailed to the postmaster general yesterday afternoon, takes exception to personal comments of Mr. Payne, and refrains from giving any facts bearing on the investigation, suggesting that the officials, to whom Mr. Payne has already written, have all the necessary information if they choose to give it. After thus refusing to give any information, under these conditions, Mr. Tulloch said last night that he is ready to substantiate anything he has said, and he waits to hear from the replies from the persons to whom the postmaster general has written before going into details. Mr. Tulloch's letter says:

"Washington, May 7.—The Hon. H. C. Payne, Postmaster General, Washington, D. C.:

"Sir—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 5th instant, referring to statements said to have been made by me reflecting upon certain individuals, and which appeared in the Washington Post.

"According to accounts published throughout the daily press, it would appear that the postmaster general, during a public interview with reference to the article in question, and in the progress of articles in leading newspapers of the country, referred to me as a 'mere wind bag,' as 'one who should make good his hot air, or being publicly branded as a calumniator, a slanderer and a liar.' Such language at such a time was apparently unnecessary and certainly unsignified.

"It is also publicly stated that you have addressed letters to former Postmaster General C. E. Smith, Fourth Assistant Postmaster Bristow, B. J. Tracewell, comptroller of the treasury, and John A. Merill, postmaster at Washington, D. C., requesting them to inform you as to the truth of the statements contained in the interview, as published. If the gentlemen in question will reply and tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, they cannot, I believe, but fully substantiate the statements made and anything further from me is unnecessary. Considering, however, the language attributed to the postmaster general, I would consider it a favor to be furnished with copies of the replies received in response to this request. Meanwhile, I remain, very respectfully,

WAS WELL WATERED.

Allegation Made Against Union Traction Company Stock.

Chicago, May 8.—Legal proceedings will soon be begun with a view to enforcing a stockholders' liability of $20,000,000 against the promoters of the Union Traction company, and the original subscribers to its capital stock.

This statement was made by one of the most prominent corporation attorneys in the city, who is preparing for and West Chicago street car companies an opinion regarding the liability of the influential stockholders of the North Elkins-Widener-Yerkes coterie for the debts contracted by the Union Traction company. After an exhaustive research the attorney in question has informed his clients that the men who subscribed for the preferred stock of the Union Traction company, and who were given its common stock to the amount of $20,000,000 can be made to pay every dollar of the latter amount to discharge the indebtedness contracted by the traction company in favor of the component railways.

In the proposed proceedings it is charged that the receivership suit was the master move in one of the most sensational financial games ever played in connection with corporate properties. In short, it will be asserted that the Union Traction company was thrown into the hands of a receiver in the pursuit of a game wherein the stake was $52,000,000. This sum is made up of the $32,000,000 alleged water, representing the capitalization of the Union Traction company, and the $20,000,000 liability which the promotors of that company know exist against them.

DENIED BY WELLS.

Victoria, B. C., May 8.—W. C. Wells, commissioner of lands and works, when examined by the commission inquiring into the scandal regarding the South Kootenay land grants, denied the charges of W. W. Taylor of his effort to obtain personal gain in the matter.

JUDGE M'PHERSON

Alleged to Have Had Promise From McKinley.

Des Mines, Iowa, May 8.—President Roosevelt is asked to carry out another promise made by President McKinley. The supporters of Judge Smith McPherson, of the Southern Iowa district, asked Roosevelt to appoint him to the Eighth circuit judgeship to succeed Judge Caldwell, of Arkansas, whose resignation becomes effective in a few months. Mr. McPherson was a member of congress when McKinley appointed him to the district judgeship. It is now claimed McPherson only consented to resign from congress and accept the district judgeship upon being definitely assured of a circuit judgeship in the end.

THE CONVICTION OF AMES.

Those who closely followed the testimony given at the trial of Dr. A. A. Ames, former mayor of Minneapolis, on a charge of accepting a bribe of $500, will not be surprised by the verdict of guilty found by the jury after twenty-four hours' deliberation. That the evidence was carefully weighed by the jury and the accused given the benefit of every doubt that arose where there was a conflict of testimony is shown by the length of time taken by the jurymen, and by their repeated requests for instructions from the court on disputed points during their discussion of the case. Undoubtedly the verdict was a severe shock to Dr. Ames and his friends, because they appeared to be extremely confident of his acquittal of the serious charge. An appeal will be taken to the supreme court, and as the counsel for the defense took many exceptions to the rulings of the court during the progress of the trial they have many points upon which to base their appeal. In view of former decisions, it is hardly probable, however, that the verdict will be upset.

Undoubtedly there is much sympathy for Dr. Ames in many quarters, and many of his friends believe that he was the dupe of corrupt political associates and was innocent of any personal wrongdoing, yet the testimony produced by the state was so strong as to leave no doubt he had a guilty knowledge of the system of "graft" that prevailed in Minneapolis and of the corruption in the police department of that city of which he was the responsible head. While there may be considerable sympathy for the gray-haired old doctor who now stands before the yawning doors of the state prison, it cannot be forgotten that the disgrace which has visited him in his old age is the direct result of a public and private career of moral rottenness. If he was of unsound mind and has for a long time been mentally weak, as his attorneys claim, there can be no doubt as to the cause of of mental unsoundness. His condition was the result of his own acts, and he must suffer the consequences.

SOME NAVAL BLUNDERS.

In examining the battleship Maine, since the defects were found in the decks which hold the recoil of the guns, the experts for the government have discovered that the machinery on the ship is 330 tons overweight, which is a big item when every ton of material which went into the craft had been closely figured. This is not a new discovery, as it has been found before in several craft built for Uncle Sam, showing a persistency on the part of the builders to disregard the specifications governing the construction of the naval vessels. In some cases this overweight has been found sufficient to destroy the proper proportion of weights and to throw off in some degree the original time of the ships. In the case of the Maine the craft draws six or seven inches more than was calculated when the plans were drawn. The Maine has not yet been finally accepted, although she has had her preliminary trial which was satisfactory in every way, save for the low position in the water due to the excess tonnage in the machinery compartments. Chief Constructor Bowles has called the attention of Secretary Moody to this matter, and has urged that the department hold the contractors liable for any penalty provided for excess of weights in construction. In the case of machinery this amounts to $500 a ton, which would cause the Cramps to lose something like $16,500 from the contract price for the Maine. Admiral Bowles points out the necessity for requiring contractors to stick closely to the letter of their agreements, adding that the adjustment of weights in a battleship is such a delicate matter that the addition of a few tons here and there is enough to throw the original calculations out of kilter and seriously interfere with the harmonious workings of the vessel.

The Cramps allege that Admiral Melville, chief of the bureau of steam engineering, is responsible for the excess weight of machinery in the Maine. They say that after the contract was signed the bureau made a number of changes in the specifications, which made it impossible to keep the tonnage within specified lines. It would be well to call a halt on the builders if they are the responsible people, and a few fines would not come amiss. If it is the bureau officers who are responsible as alleged by the Cramps, set them to building mudscows and put someone on warships that knows his business. The navy is growing too expensive to admit of blunders.

THE EFFECT ON THE PUBLIC.

There seems to be a widespread belief that the controversy between the Great Northern railway and the committees representing its conductors and trainmen will result in a strike. If this impression is correct, it is cause for deep regret that such a serious step is to be taken. It is a serious matter not only as it concerns the railway company and its employes, but as it affects the general public. Indeed, a strike, if it should occur, would be more damaging to the employes and the public than it would be to the road itself, and it is surprising that the conductors and trainmen do not see that their own best interests demand the avoidance of such a serious disturbance of the harmonious relations which have existed—especially when the point at issue is of such trivial importance to them.

The railroad company has offered to grant an increase of 12 to 15 per cent in the wages to its men, and it is said it is now paying as high wages as are paid on any other road. The only point of disagreement is in relation to double-headers, which the company declines to yield as a matter of principle pertaining to the management of its business. The object of the men's demand is, apparently, to force the company to reduce the size of its trains so that no train shall be long enough to require a helping engine whatever the grade to be encountered. It was the increased size of trains due to the money spent on larger power and low grades, which enabled the Great Northern last year to reduce merchandise rates to the merchants and grain rates to the farmers, and, not only that, but enabled the company to increase the pay of the very conductors and brakemen whose votes are being asked in order to organize a strike that will put an end to these economies.

The interests of Minnesota and Dakota merchants and farmers in lower freight rates are deserving of consideration by the trainmen, but from a selfish point of view they should hesitate to vote an end to the system of railroad economy which is the source of increase in wages. The public has a vital interest in this controversy, not only because the demands of the men, if granted, would delay a further reduction of freight rates, but because a strike would inflict much suffering and inconvenience upon the communities along the Great Northern system. It can hardly be expected that the public will extend its sympathy to those who precipitate a strike of this character.

THE EVOLUTION OF MAN.

Students of evolution, that is, the highest kind of evolution, that of mankind from the animal, will be particularly interested in the theories advanced by Dr. I. L. Wortman of Yale university. It must be admitted that the theory of evolution is becoming more universally accepted year by year and even if one does not believe in it, the deductions of its advocates are interesting, if not convincing. It is only in a modified sense that Dr. Wortman accepts the theory that Southern Europe or Asia was the cradle of the human race, and he expresses the opinion that man was evolved from the higher types of apes that had been forced down to Southern Europe and Asia by the advance from Northern latitudes of a glacial ice-sheet, and being trapped in their new habitat were forced to exert themselves, and exercise mental skill and foresight to prevent their extinction. Most of them perished, but "the fittest" survived, and became particularly the parents of the human race.

Dr. Wortman thinks the evolution of the man from the ape involves a sudden change in our ape-ancestors' environment as a particular cause of the exercise of those hitherto dormant faculties which began to differentiate them from the brutes. This change he finds in the shifting of climate that occurred during the ice age, when the advancing glacial sheet carried the tropics south from the Arctic circle. He has found fossils showing that the origin of the higher forms of plant and animal life was in the extreme North, and that the Arctic zone was once climatically like our torrid zone. When this climatic change occurred—extending through many ages—living things were forced to retreat southward. Fossils of monkeys, for instance, have been found in Wyoming. The monkeys and their cousins which crossed the Western hemisphere finally passed out of Mexico, along the isthmus and into South America—following the tropical climate. Those that traversed Europe found no isthmus to cross, and either had to perish or rustle to live under conditions requiring more effort and intelligence—hence their development into men. But how then was North America peopled, since the apes and monkeys had not remained here? Probably by immigrants from Asia before the oceans had cut Bering strait, and while Asia and America were joined by an isthmus.

The theory, whether accepted or not, furnishes food for study. It is a fascinating subject and probably the day will come when much more light will be thrown upon it.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

C. A. Ruprecht, who represents one of the big north shore lumber companies, and who stops at the St. Louis when in town, engaged a little study of human nature and at the same time had lots of fun the day before yesterday.

He and a friend were talking about various gold brick schemes that have been worked in this and other vicinities for many years past, and it was his contention that the majority of the uneducated and careless would not separate from their money, even when they saw they were getting something or nothing.

So they changed some money into half dollars and started out.

The first subject was a long-whiskered individual in the lobby of the St. Louis hotel. Mr. Ruprecht approached him and said:

"Excuse me, sir," shaking a handful of half dollars, "but I have some excellent silver money here and I am anxious to dispose of half dollar pieces for 10 cents apiece."

The old gentleman looked at the money and shifted uneasily from one foot to the other.

"Now, I am not giving these away. I can't afford it, but I'll sell you one for 10 cents and if you like it you can have a lot more at the same figure. Now, come on. Ten cents isn't much and you can afford to take a chance."

"I have all the money I want," said the old man.

"But here is something for nothing."

"Go away, I want to be where you ain't."

"Won't you give 10 cents for a half dollar?"

"What you're trying to do is to have me arrested," said the old man edging away.

"Why, not at all. We're in the charity business, and you look as if you needed a little velvet. Here take this for nothing and come in and buy a drink, and if you can spend it give us 10 cents out of the change."

The old man shook his head, and his eyes lit up with the fire of youth as he said:

"Now you fellows get away from me. I don't want to talk to you, and you can't bunco me. Go away."

The crowd dispersed and the experimenters started on. They went into the Bowery district. They stopped men on the streets and on the corners, but none would listen to the alluring offer.

At one corner they stopped and started to gather a crowd and cry their wares like a fakir.

A big policeman came and asked to see their license. They had none, and argued that they weren't vending anything, but were simply asking for 10 cents change for a half dollar.

The copper said: "Gwan, and git out o' here."

He added that there must be some shenanigan about it, because nobody was fool enough to give away money.

As they walked along by the Union depot they heard a fakir on another corner surrounded by a group of listeners. He was tying a rope around his neck with many knots, and the crowd stood awe-stricken.

So they got near him and tried to sell half dollars for 10 cents, but the crowd wanted to see what happened to the rope.

In a nasal twang the fakir was shouting:

"I will remove this rope from my neck without untying the knots, pulling it over my head or cutting it, but before we do the trick we want to show you a few little articles I have in the satchel here, which no man should be without. I will sell you $25 worth for 25 cents and show you the rope trick—"

"Say, here's half a dollar for 10 cents," said Mr. Ruprecht.

"Here's your 10 cents," said the fakir, and he took the half without looking at it and threw it in with the rest of his money.

"I first take this Persian silk handkerchief, and in it I place one of these 14k gold wedding rings—" he sung along.

The crowd gaped and thought the scene was a put up job, and the experimenters went back to the hotel. They are convinced that a man has to be possessed of the characteristics of a fakir to be able to sell even a silver dollar for a paltry penny.

That Stranger.

At the board of trade I met him;
In a trade I'd ne'er forget him—
He was dry. So was I.
Thought him most a charming fellow,
With his voice so soft and mellow.
Didn't see the streak of yellow
In his eye; did't I.

While we sat around and chatted—
I sat round the while he chatted—
Yes I did; great big kid.
Slapped my back this way and t'other.
Shook first one hand, then the other;
Said he loved me as a brother
Then and there; did for fair.

* * * * * *

Well, we played from dusk to sun-up.
And by that time I was done up—
Every red. Broke me dead.
He was most an awful smoker
And a hypnotizing joker,
But he knew the game of poker;
Yes he did; 'deed he did.

THE BABY.

Where did you come from, baby dear?
Out of the everywhere into the here.

Where did you get your eyes so blue?
Out of the sky as I came through.

What makes the light in them sparkle and spin?

Where did you get that little tear?
I found it waiting when I got here.

What makes your forehead so smooth and high?
A soft hand stroked it as I went by.

What makes your cheek like a warm, white rose?
Something better than anyone knows.

Whence that three-cornered smile of bliss?
Three angels gave me at once a kiss.

Where did you get that pearly ear?
God spoke and it came out to hear.

Where did you get those arms and hands?
Love made itself into hooks and bands.

Feet, whence did you come, you darling things?
From the same box as the cherubs' wings.

How did they all just come to you?
God thought about me and so I grew.

But how did you come to us, you dear?
God thought of you, and so I am here.

THOUGHTS BY PEASE.

Anoka Union (Rep.): The Union would fall all over itself to see a battle royal between Bob Dunn and Sam Van Sant for the governorship next year, because big Bob would wipe the ground with little Sam.

The same old story. If "Pudge" Heffelfinger does not accept—and he has declined—the position of civil service commissioner, J. Adam Bede has a Duluth man already picked out for the plum. Will Duluth ever get enough? The devil at our elbow whispers "Not until the place is wiped off the earth!"

The Union would rejoice exceedingly to see Geo. Thompson, of the St. Paul Dispatch, selected as the member of the national Republican committee from Minnesota. Here is a man who has done splendid service for the Republican party at all times, seasons and occasions, and he is entitled to this acknowledgement.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Most people think it is creditable to talk grand opera when they are thinking baseball.

To make a satisfactory husband to a woman a man's temper should be as pliable and elastic as her garter.

Very few women deceive a husband without making themselves believe it is for his own good that they do it.

You can always tell when a woman is thinking hard by the way she will begin to talk about something.

It makes a woman almost as indignant to catch her husband telling her a lie as she gets when he catches her telling him one.

Matter of Sound.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: Jimpson Weed was a newcomer in the city, and Chinese laundrymen were "yellow primroses" to him. But he knew that every Chinaman was called John.

So, when he had deposited a bundle of soiled collars and cuffs at the Mongolian laundry, which flourished in the vicinity of his boarding house, he indulged in a conversational impulse by remarking:

"Say, can I have them clothes by Chewsday, John? Your name's John, ain't it?"

"You lie," replied the celestial, with the customary placid smile.

The retort brought a blow from Jimpson Weed. The blow brought some Chinese repartee, delivered with a flatiron. Then came more blows, more flatirons, more Chinamen, terrific general engagement—and the police.

As Jimpson Weed was ushered into the patrol wagon, together with a bunch of disordered pigtails, what was left of his eyes permitted him a glimpse of the inscription over his adversary's place of business.

The sign read: "Yu Li. Heap cheap."

Mrs. Green's Retort.

Philadelphia Ledger: Hetty Green, of New York, had a way of taking care of her own, even in her youth. A Vermont neighbor tells that while she was living on her New England farm she had for a neighbor a particularly unneighborly old bachelor. One day, while the threshers were at work on her wheat crop, the winnowing fan broke and she sent over in great haste to borrow her neighbor's machine.

"Certainly," was the reply, "Mrs. Green may use the fan, but I make it a rule never to allow my implements to be taken from my farm. The machine is in the barn, and she may bring her grain there to be winnowed," an offer it was manifestly impossible to accept.

Mrs. Green had not forgotten the implied refusal when the old bachelor sent his hired man over one morning to borrow her side saddle for the use of a visiting relative.

"I shall be only too glad to favor him," was the word sent back by the astute Mrs. Green, "but I never allow anything I own to be carried off the farm. My saddle is hanging across a beam in the barn loft. Tell Mr. Browne to send his aunt over. She may ride there as long as she likes.

Sparks For Vaudeville.

New York Times: Some of the jokes perpetrated by a band of minstrels deserve to be preserved for posterity. As for example:

"Mr. Interlocutor, can you tell me the difference between a stovepipe and a Dutchman?"

"No, Mr. Bones; what is the difference?"

"One is a hollow cylinder; the other is a silly Hollander."

At this point Fritz Williams and De Wolf Hopper promptly fainted and heroice measures were necessary to revive them for the next round.

"Why is the English stage like a forest?"

"Well, Mr. Tambo, why is the English stage like a forest?"

"Because it has trees; Beerbohm and Hawtree."

Shortly after this the curtain was rung down on the minstrel first part and a riot was thus averted.

You Can Gamble on That.

Minneapolis Times: Two men were shot and killed at You Bet, Cal., Friday night. The name of the town would seem to indicate that there might be something doing there now and then.

Handy Things to Play With.

San Francisco Call: A number of islands never charted on any map have been found in the southern part of the Philippine archipelago, and, of course, they count as part of our possessions. It is said they are valuable but it may be their chief value will be that of affording positions for civil officials who may be sent down to take charge of them. In fact, further explorations in the archipelago may bring to light such a number of uncharted isles that it will be possible for Uncle Sam to console applicants who fail to get an office by giving them an island to play with.

CALLED DOWN BY A WOMAN

Court Clerk and Sheriff Taught Lesson In Selecting Jury.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 7.—Republican county officials in this county have been taught a wholesome lesson by a woman official. Mrs. L. W. Dodson was elected county recorder and the other day she was called in with the clerk and sheriff to engage in the task of drawing the jury venire for the courts. It so happened that a custom had arisen in the drawing of juries of throwing out arbitrarily the names of those talesmen who had been returned by the election judges who might be classed as professional jurors. The county officers had long been in the habit of doing this just as a means of expediting business, because some of the names that invariably get into the box are of men who are utterly worthless as talesmen. But Mrs. Dodson recalled the strict letter of the law and when the officers went to throwing out the names indiscriminately she called for an explanation. It was forthcoming, but not satisfactory and she withdrew from the jury drawing. She consulted a lawyer and found she was right. She laid the matter before the judges of the district court, and the sheriff and clerk were promptly called down from the bench, and given notice that even though the professional jurors have cumbered the talesmen lists the jurors must be drawn in strict accordance with law. And now the men who hold county offices are keeping very still about it.

CHICAGO SALOON ROBBED.

Chicago, May 7.—Three men, armed with revolvers, held up the saloon of William Manion last night while a half dozen patrons were drinking at the bar. They secured $500 in negotiable checks, a watch chain and $100 from the proprietor. Hidden behind the bar was a cigar box containing $1000, which the thieves overlooked.

Twenty Years of Vile Catarrh.—Chas. O. Brown, journalist, of Duluth, Minn., writes: "I have been a sufferer from throat and nasal catarrh for over twenty years, during which time my head has been stopped up and my condition truly miserable. Within fifteen minutes after using Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder I obtained relief. Three bottles have almost, if not entirely, cured me." Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.—26.

CONVICTED AMES

Jury Found Him Guilty After Twenty-Four Hours.

The Verdict Was a Severe Shock to Former Mayor.

Minneapolis, May 8.—Albert Alonzo Ames, once mayor of Minneapolis, has been found guilty of accepting a bribe of $600 while chief executive of this city.

After being out twenty-four hours, held up by a disagreement that was the result of a few minds holding out against the majority opinion, the jury in the case returned to Judge Elliott's court, and, after being polled, returned their verdict of guilty late yesterday afternoon.

The interest in the trial was manifested by the fact that there was quite a gathering of people present to hear the verdict. They had come into court early and waited about to hear what the result would be. The keen interest was shown by the silence in the room while the verdict was being read by the clerk.

The usual motions were made for a stay and an arrest of execution of judgment, and now will come the long fight on appeal.

The case has broken every expectation as to the shortness of time taken to try it. Before the trial few would venture an opinion that it would take less than two weeks to select the jury. And yet inside of two weeks the jury had been selected and the case finished. It is safe to say that inside of two weeks the case will be disposed of so far as the present trial is concerned.

Through all the trial Dr. Ames has borne up well, and to all appearance he has not seemed better at any time than he was during the summing up of the case by the counsel.

The defendant was on hand early yesterday morning, with his wife, and all the attorneys in the case were in attendance. The doctor's paleness, which was clearly shown, was caused by the night of anxiety which he spent, being unable to sleep. He chatted affably with the reporters and the attorneys, however, and expressed confidence in the outcome. Mrs. Ames looked decidedly tired out, and the worry lines were plainly visible.

There was a rustle of excitement when the bailiff at 10 o'clock came into Judge Elliott's chambers and handed him a note. The jury was then sent for, and the crowd expected a verdict, but it did not come.

The jury had asked that certain questions be answered, and these questions formed the basis for quite an extended discussion in the judge's chambers as to the proper way to answer them without doing an injustice to the defendant.

Evidently Lawyer Nye's long harangue regarding payment of the $50 to the Harris woman found fruitful ground, for the jury wanted to know about that with other matters. The three questions put to the court were:

1. Was there any evidence to show that Gardner collected any graft before Dr. Ames left for his hunting trip?

2. Where and from whom did the police, aside from Norback, get their orders to report to Gardner at Ames' medical office?

3. When Ames received the $600 from Gardner, did he know that it was graft money?

After the jury had taken their seats, Judge Elliott replied to the first question that the matter of any money paid previously was not in the case.

Relative to the second question, the court instructed that the evidence of Sinclair was that the orders came from headquarters.

To the third question the reply was that the jury should assume from all the evidence the fact as to whether the doctor knew the money paid was graft money. It was not necessary that Gardner tell him so at that time or that he should make a statement to that effect.

The jury retired with this information, and for two hours Dr. Ames paced the hallway, smoking big black cigars. Mrs. Ames waited in the reception room. The verdict of the jury came as a severe shock to both the defendant and his wife.

Mayor Ames was given his freedom late last evening, his bond of $21,000 continuing and covering all purposes. He was taken immediately to his home, where he refused to see anyone, friends or reporters. The shock to the old gray-haired man, who hoped for acquittal, was too great, and his attending physicians have ordered him to bed and seclusion.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 8.—Because their parents had planned to send them to distant and different colleges, Maurice Fogg and Miss Hope Peters, of this city, ran away to Omaha and were married. Both are among the popular young people here and their escapade has created a sensation in the suburb of Morningside, where they live. The groom is 22 and the bride 18. The latter was to have been sent to Washington, D. C., to school, and Mr. Fogg was to have gone to Cornell university.

PASSED BY ASSEMBLY.

Madison, Wis., May 8.—The assembly last night, under suspension of the rules, passed the new Wisconsin grain inspection bill. The vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the bill, being 71 to 6. It will probably again meet defeat in the senate.

ST. LOUIS MUST SHOW

Hotel and Carriage Rates Will Be Reasonable.

Denver, Col., May 8.—Plans for the Colorado exhibit at the World's fair are being held in abeyance pending the reply of the mayor of St. Louis and President Francis to a communication forwarded to them by the state's World's fair committee, asking if reasonable hotel and carriage rates will be enforced by an ordinance during the fair, and if ample electric and steam transportation will be provided between the city and the fair grounds. If the answers are not satisfactory to the commission, Colorado will not erect a building or furnish an exhibit at the coming exposition, the commission being disgusted with its treatment at the dedication.

A PRISONER PUZZLES

The Authorities In Texas By His Many Enterprises.

Depopulated Texas County of Its Negro Labor Force.

Houston, Texas, May 8.—J. J. Sikes, who appealed to President Roosevelt for armed protection against the whites of the South, has been arrested and is in jail here, charged with impersonating a United States bank examiner.

As superintendent of his own agricultural experimental station at Fairview, Texas, immigration agent for the negroes, and, he says, sworn to a secret duty that puts him high in the service of the executive of the government, Sikes has attracted no end of notoriety.

He is also in the tobacco business and his methods are not only unique, but original. Both state and federal officers are working on his case and have been baffled.

Sikes' first exploit that brought him into repute was through his dealing with the negroes of Colorado county, Texas. Opening up an office in Eagle Lake he secured the service of as many as 200 blacks residing thereabout. At a small cost to them individually, he shipped them north to Arkansas in such numbers as to seriously interfere with the labor conditions in Colorado county.

He was threatened, but stood his ground. Finally, he says, his life was put in jeopardy, and he appealed to the county authorities. They refused assistance. The state executive was appealed to and did not act. Then he wired to the president of the United States, but Mr. Roosevelt did not act. Then Sikes went to Eagle Lake, secured his negroes and sent them off to Arkansas.

From Eagle Lake Sikes went to Conroe. There, according to his story, he met a widow. Her husband had been a saloonkeeper, with not a very prosperous business. He was attracted to her. She said that all of her property had been lost and the cavalier rose to the occasion. He examined into the business arrangements, and asserts that he discovered that a mortgage had been foreclosed by a national bank six months before it was due. Going to the bank he presented a card on which was written:

"J. J. Sikes, Washington, D. C."

The authorities say that he introduced himself as a national bank examiner, and demanded that the matter with the widow be immediately arranged. The bank officials were doubtful and set out to investigate. While they were at work, Sikes set himself to another proposition.

It was to haul and ship to New York plain Texas tobacco labeled and tagged from Havana.

"I have all sorts of friends on the New York exchange," he explained. "I wanted to fool them, and in that way demonstrate that Conroe tobacco is as good as any the trust is sending out."

It is said that a number of bales were disposed of, but the sequel never came. The United States authorities swooped down upon the shipper for impersonating a bank examiner. He was arrested and held under a bond of $1000.

The officers are investigating another matter in connection with exploits of J. J. Sikes. It is alleged that he started on a journey with a farmer from Conroe. He was acting as an agent and was to locate the agriculturist in another state.

At Longview the farmer dropped completely out of sight and has not yet been found. He started from home with $500.

"I know where that man is now and could produce him if I wanted to," says Sikes. "He and I, in company with another gentleman, are associated in a hard and fast secret organization and we are working now. I would as soon have my head cut off as tell you more about it. It is the tobacco trust we are fighting, and they are fighting us. Furthermore, we are sworn to dry the weeping eyes of widows, protect the oppressed and alleviate the sorrows of the weak."

"Why do you not get out of jail if you have so many influential friends?" he was asked.

"I do not want to get out. It is my part of the business to remain right here and wait."

Sikes is about 50 years old, writes well and speaks with force and decision. He shows no sign of insanity, and his manner is easy, betraying some contact with the world.

It is said that his plan of shipping Texas tobacco to New York and repacking it as though from Havana, is being followed extensively.

"They can't tell the difference," he declares.

IS SANE BUT ECCENTRIC

Aged Patient at Bellevue Working on Perpetual Motion.

New York, May 7.—Authorities at Bellevue hospital have a patient who thinks he is the discovered of perpetual motion. He is Adolph Schapp, 60 years old, of No. 346 Fifty-fourth street, who is in the hospital being treated for rheumatism. The janitress of the house where he lived told Miss Hopkins, of the Charity Organization Society, that she had seen a machine which the old man had been working on for twenty years, and added that she saw it running around the room that the inventor occupied.

Thirty-seven years ago Schapp came here from Austria. After he had been here seventeen years he got the idea that he could make a machine that would "go on forever."

After he had worked on it for five years Schapp's wife left him. The old man then took a room down town, and in seclusion hammered and tinkered on the machine that he firmly believes will revolutionize motive power. The janitress noticed that for the past three weeks the old man subsisted solely on crackers and water. Last Friday she pushed open the door and jumped back in affright at the sight of a mysterious-looking arrangement of cog wheels and spindles that was traveling around the room at a rapid rate.

The old man's eyes, that had been lighted up with interest while watching the evolutions of the machinery, took on an angry look at the sight of the intruder, and he hastily picked up the machine and locked it in a closet.

The woman saw that the old man was very weak from lack of nourishment, and notified Miss Hopkins, who investigated the case.

Schapp was taken to Bellevue hospital. Dr. Parker said he was sane, but a little eccentric. As the old man was ill from lack of food, and also was suffering from rheumatism, he was placed in one of the medical wards for treatment.

As soon as he recovers he will be placed in the almshouse, he having consented to go there as long as his beloved machine may go with him. He says that a few extra wheels and springs will complete the invention which so many have tried to succeed in, but failed.

SPOTTER SENT HOME.

Was a Member Of Loyal Lodge OF Brooklyn.

Milwaukee, May 7.—Secretary Douglas Wilson of the International Machinists' convention stated today that a man named Siegal a member of Loyal lodge, Brooklyn, N. Y., has been hired by the National Metal Trades association to attend the convention with a view to attempting to aid in the disruption of the order. Siegel, Mr. Wilson says, was sent home and will be tried by the Brooklyn lodge. It was also stated that four other spotters were in the convention today, two being from Chicago and two from farther West. As yet the disturbing element has done no harm. The work of the convention is confined to revision of the constitution.

THE PASZKOWSKI MURDER.

Chicago, May 7.—As a result of investigations by the police it was today decided to charge John Wiltrax with the murder of Paul Paszkowski, and to name Mrs. Wiltrax as accessory, in having guilty knowledge of the deed. The son, Julius, who was at first suspected of having been implicated in the crime, is charged with being an accessory on the same grounds as his mother.

HIS LIFE SAVED BY TAGAL GIRL

Lieut. Gordon Will Reward Maiden With American Education.

Pittsfield, Mo., May 8.—A pretty little romance, whose present chapter is the placing of a bright-eyed Filipino girl in an American home to be educated, is being discussed here with great interest by the villagers.

Sylva Dolz, the half-grown daughter of a Tagal chieftain, is handsome and full of bounding life, with the piercing eyes of her countrymen, the vivacity of a Spanish girl and the fascinating ways of Orientals. She is to be educated in this country, as a reward for saving the life of Lieut. Charles F. Gordon, of the Twenty-seventh United States infantry, and she will live at the home of his mother, in this village.

It was just outside Malaban that the Twenty-seventh had a severe encounter with the Tagalogs, and Lieut. Gordon was severely wounded. A blow from a sword in the hands of one of the Filipinos rendered him unconscious. He was left on the field for dead, but when he came to a little Filipino girl was bathing his head with water from a gourd. She gave him some whisky to drink, and then had him removed to the camp of the Tagalogs.

Lieut. Gordon was held prisoner for several weeks, and during that time the girl—Sylva Dolz—became very much attached to him. Eventually the lieutenant was rescued and a number of Tagals taken captive. Among them was Sylva and her father.

Their friendship continued and when Lieut. Gordon talked of returning to America Sylva was inconsolable. It was finally arranged that she should accompany him, and they arrived in Pittsfield, at the home of Lieut. Gordon's mother, only a few days ago.

Sylva is very much interested in the strange country, and the ways of Americans. She takes aptly to her surroundings, and it is believed that her education will be an easy task.

Lieut. Gordon has joined his wife and son in Pontiac, Mich., where he has engaged in business before the war.

PRESTON IS TO GO

Resigns Secretaryship of Commercial Club, Effective May 15.

Will Devote His Attention to His Private Interests.

Secretary A. L. Preston of the Commercial club has tendered his resignation and it was accepted at a meeting of the board of directors of the club last evening. His successor has not yet been named, and it is likely to be several days before the board appoints a new secretary. The position is a very responsible one, as the secretary is practically the manager of the internal affairs of the club, and the amount of work entailed is considerable.

Mr. Preston's resignation will go into effect by May 15, and by that time his successor will have been appointed and installed in office. It is expected that there will be a number of applicants for the position as soon as it is generally known that a vacancy exists.

Mr. Preston was the first secretary of the Commercial club of Duluth, and during his term the club has grown rapidly until it now has an enrolled membership of 1072, and is considered one of the strong commercial organizations of the country.

Mr. Preston intends to devote his attention to private interests, of which he has many, including the Duluth Purchasing agency, interests in the Duluth Baseball club of the Northern league, the Duluth Carnival and Amusement company and the Zenith Bowling alleys. By profession he is an auditor and expert accountant and has been connected with the auditing department of some of the large corporations of the country.

THEY ASK FOR ARBITRATION

Striking Linemen of Bell Company Would Submit Difference.

Striking Bell telephone linemen last evening voted favorably on a proposition to submit the differences between themselves and the company to a disinterested board of arbitration.

The men are seeking an 8-hour day at $2.75, the same wage paid for the 9-hour working day during the past year.

The committee of workingmen appointed to present the arbitration plan to the company officers consists of G. A. Lindsey, M. Ennis, M. Redmond, William Runkle and Bert Gibbs.

Manager Mauseau of the Bell telephone company declines to discuss the arbitration idea, but the indications are that there will be a settlement along the lines indicated before very long.

PENALTY IS DEATH

Colored Letter Carrier Warned Not to Carry Route.

Postoffice Department Has Another Indianola Case on Hand.

Washington, May 8.—The postoffice department was notified officially yesterday that John C. Allgood, a colored rural free delivery letter carrier while making his regular trip near Gallatin, Tenn., was stopped by men armed and masked and that he and his colored sub-carrier were warned not to continue in the service under penalty of death.

Postmaster General Payne has suspended service on the route pending investigation and if the reports to hand are confirmed summary action will be taken. The incident may become a second Indianola case. The news of the affair reached the postmaster general in a telegram from Postmaster H. S. Swaney, at Gallatin, Tenn.:

"Carrier Allgood, while making a trip today held up by masked men. Ordered not to make another trip. Advise."

The next dispatch came from W. E. Conger, the special agent in charge of the rural free delivery service with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., as follows:

"Rural carrier No. 1, colored, Gallatin, Tenn., in an interview with me tonight advised that he was stopped on route today by armed masked men and his life threatened if he continued in service. Threat also applies to colored substitute carrier. Warned not to divulge cause of his removal, but to assign other reasons. No time allowed to await upon appointment of successor. Believing it serious he will not serve route tomorrow unless assurances are given him that no violence will be committed. Please advise me what instructions will be issued in circumstances. Seriousness greatly appreciated."

This rural free delivery carrier was put into the service March 15. There were five applicants under the civil service rules for appointment as carrier. The men passing highest were all colored. Under the civil service rules the postmaster general says there is no option with the department but to appoint the person who stands highest on the list. Therefore Allen F. Dillard was appointed. He resigned about three weeks ago and on the 26th of last month the civil service board confirmed the second man on the list, John F. Allgood, colored.

Postmaster General Payne telegraphed Mr. Conger as follows:

"Investigate fully case of John F. Allgood, rural free delivery carrier, who was stopped by armed masked men yesterday and his life threatened if he continued in the service and report. In the meantime service on route will be suspended until you report on the facts received."

Postmaster General Payne later said that if the facts were as represented one or two courses would be open, namely, to abolish the route, and leave the people there without service, or send soldiers to the scene to protect the carrier in the performance of his duty. Mr. Payne said the former course was the more probable. He called attention to the civil service status of the carriers, and said the carriers were secured through the civil service commission, their appointment therefore not being optional with the department. The postmaster general said the penalties for such offenses were covered by Sections 3694 and 3995 of the revised statutes. The former reads as follows:

"Every person who wilfully or maliciously assaults any letter carrier who is in uniform on his route while engaged in the discharge of his duties as a letter carrier and any person who aids or assists therein shall for every such offense be punishable by a fine of not less than $100 and not more than $1000 and by imprisonment for not less than a year and not more than three years."

The other section provides that "any person who shall knowingly or wilfully obstruct or retard the passage of mail carriers shall for every such offense be punishable by a fine of not more than $100."

It is pointed out that the differences between these penalties hinges upon the wearing of the uniform and also that the word "assault" within the meaning of the law contemplates just such an offense as that reported.

Black's Suit For Libel Is Settled Out of Court.

Houghton—The case of Rev. John Back vs. Herman Aho, for libel, was settled out of court. Back paying the costs. Back is pastor of the Finnish Lutheran church of Hancock and sued for $10,000 damages for alleged defamation of his character by Aho about a year and a half ago. Aho wrote a long article to a Finnish temperance paper, published in the East, that has a large circulation in the copper country, accusing the pastor of drinking wine at a wedding and not following what he preached along temperance lines.

Adolph Schulte, of Calumet, is the first fisherman to be caught, convicted and fined for a violation of the Bolton bill, passed recently by the state legislature, which provides that trout less than seven inches in length may not be caught. Game Warden Vivian found Schulte fishing in the Tamarack dam, seized the trout which were less than seven inches long, and took the offender before a justice, who imposed a fine of $5 and costs.

Mrs. Bridget Mahar, of Hurontown, who was shot recently by John H. Molesworth, the suicide, is still suffering from the wound. Recovery is slow, and the great shock to a woman of her advanced years may possibly result fatally.

Bessemer—Louis Spiro, a merchant, was acquitted of a charge of obstructing the streets. The decision affects other merchants.

A. H. Ralph, member of the state tax commission, has been looking up assessment and tax matters in this county for a week. The entire commission may come later in the month.

Sault Ste. Marie—The Calumet and Hecla Copper Mining company's big sawmill at Shelldrake, Chippewa county, has gone into commission for the season, logging having been prosecuted all winter to supply it with timber.

Hancock—Additional cases of smallpox continue to develop. Mrs. Larry Carrigan and two children, of Ripley, were discovered to be suffering from an attack of the disease and were removed to the detention hospital.

Marquette—Peter White, of this city, has offered to present a portrait of Don M. Dickinson, of Detroit, to the county of Dickinson, which was named in honor of the former postmaster general.

Give the children Rocky Mountain Tea this month, makes them strong, makes them eat, sleep and grow. Good for the whole family. A spring tonic that makes sick people well. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

VALUABLE AMMUNITION

Thrown Into Sea By Admiral Coghlan's Orders.

Washington, May 8—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has under consideration a report of a naval board showing that good smokeless powder and shells, valued in the neighborhood of $40,000, were thrown overboard from the flagship Olympia by order of Rear Admiral Coghlan, under the impression that they had so deteriorated as to become dangerous.

The report indicates that the action of Admiral Coghlan was legal, authority having been given for the destruction of ammunition found to be defective, but in view of the finding of the board that the material thrown overboard was good, the navy department will make a full inquiry into the case.

The bureau of ordnance would not believe that the powder was defective, and insisted on a fuller investigation. Two experts in explosives, appointed by the department to make a thorough chemical test of the alleged defective powder, report that all the requirements of the naval regulations in regard to the condemnation of defective ammunition were complied with by Admiral Coghlan, but they maintained that the statement made to the admiral as to the faulty condition of the powder was erroneous.

PRICES ARE HIGH

In England as Well as In the United States.

Prospects For the Present Year a Little More Hopeful.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—It appears that high prices are quite as much the rule in England as in the United States at the present time. Professor Sauerbeck's annual statement, "Prices of Commodities," published in the Journal of the British Royal Statistical society for March 31, 1903, just received by the treasury bureau of statistics, shows high prices in food stuffs, in iron, and in textiles during the year 1902. The statement begins with a series of "index number" tables, showing index prices for groups of articles from 1883 to 1902. The index number for the group designated "vegetable food" stands at 63 for the year 1902, against 60 in 1899 and 55 in 1896 that for "animal food" stands at 87 in 1902, against 77 in 1898 and 75 in 1896; that for "minerals" stands at 82 in 1902, against 70 in 1898 and 62 in 1895 that for "textiles" stands at 64 in 1902, against 51 in 1898 and 52 in 1895, and the index number for the group designated "sundry materials" stands at 71 in 1902, against 63 in 1898 and 62 in 1895. Commenting upon these figures, the statement says: "Meat was dear during the greater part of the year, and beef ruled in June and July higher than at any time since 1883. * * * Scotch pig iron rose from 49s per ton to 58s 4d in September, and dropped to 53s 2d at the end of the year. * * * Flax was higher in the summer, but lost the advance later on. Jute was dearer in the second half of the year; fine wool advanced 25-50 per cent. Silk ruled also higher. Tallow, palm oil and nitrate were dearer."

Commenting upon commercial conditions, the report says: "The exports from the United Kingdom were somewhat larger, which was principally due to the American demand for iron and some other commodities, and to the greater exports to South Africa. The shipments, on the other hand, to India, Australasia, Japan and Argentina were smaller. In Germany, Austria and Russia the depression continued throughout the year, and France was affected by a coal strike in the last quarter. The corn crops of the world were large, and the supply of some other commodities, particularly sugar, coffee and cotton was very heavy."

Commenting upon conditions in the United States, the report says: "The United States have again occupied an exceptional position. If a year ago fears were expressed that the state of affairs there were not free from danger, it must now be admitted that they were premature, as the marvelous prosperity has continued unabated to the present day. American securities had another boom and though a reaction followed, the last prices still occupy a high level. It is estimated that the iron production of the states reached the enormous total of 17,000,000 tons and even this was insufficient for the requirements."

Commenting upon the prospects for 1903, the report says: "The prospects for the present year are, if anything, a little more hopeful. Adverse points in this country are still high taxation, undigested government loans and high prices of meat, but the corn crops of the world were plentiful, the development in South Africa will, no doubt, be important, the condition in Australia is improving, and it is not improbable that the trade to the East and also to the Argentine Republic will also increase. In Germany the period of liquidation seems to be coming to an end, and a reaction of confidence may be near at hand, but the recovery after the serious depression will naturally be a slow one. Much will depend upon the United States. Continued activity will benefit Europe as well, while a sudden break would cause a stoppage of American demand and perhaps a flood of American products into Europe."

A BELIEVER IN MISSIONARIES

Are Doing Excellent Work In China, Says Stratton.

San Francisco, May 8.—Frederick Stratton, collector for the port, returned from a tour of the Orient today.

Mr. Stratton, in discussing his trip, said: "The Boxer movement in China has been greatly exaggerated, although the dissatisfaction certainly exists and may break out any moment.

"The use of American products, as well as exports to the United States are both on the increase, but our commerce is being largely carried both ways on foreign bottoms.

"I went out opposed to the missionary movement in China, at least I had no sympathy with it. I, however, have been converted by what I have seen. America leads all others in philanthropic and religious work in the Orient and the results, while slow, are, in my opinion, sure, and the foundation is being splendidly laid. Commercially speaking the missionaries are the advance agents for American commercial enterprises. I return a very strong advocate of Chinese exclusion. The Chinese, if granted the right to enter, would speedily displace the skilled American mechanic.

"In the Philippines business is depressed and times are hard. The monetary system has been uncertain, the rinderpest has destroyed nearly all the beasts of burden and for two years there has been considerable drought. American commercial enterprise, I think, demands the admission of Chinese in the Philippine Islands."

AT WEST DULUTH

At a meeting held last evening the officials of St. James Catholic church decided to complete the new church building, the foundation of which was laid last summer.

The new building will be built adjoining the present church. The present church building has been found insufficient for the needs of the congregation, which has increased largely during the past year or two under the care of Rev. John Feehely, the pastor. The new building will be considerably larger and more modern than the old building. The total cost will be about $10,000.

It is the plan of the officials to commence building as soon as the arrangements can be completed, and it is hoped to have the new church ready for occupation before winter.

POSTPONES DECISION.

Mrs. G. Delborn was arraigned before Judge Stone yesterday on a charge of defamation of character, brought by Mrs. Balwin, of West Duluth, on behalf of her daughter. It is claimed by the plaintiff that Mrs. Delborn used terms derogatory to the character and fair name of the plaintiff's daughter in the presence of witnesses.

Mrs. Delborn denied the allegations of the complaining witness in a very forceful manner.

The case was postponed by Justice Stone, as it seemed to be the desire of the two parties in the case to come to terms, and it is likely that the matter will be settled out of court.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

The meeting of the W. C. T. U., held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Noxon, of Fifty-first avenue, was well attended. Rev. Harry Knowles made a short address on the subject under discussion, "The Ballot for Home Protection." His address was much appreciated by the ladies and he was warmly applauded at the close of his remarks.

After the discussion refreshments were served and a short social session occupied the remainder of the afternoon.

THE STAGE.

Al H. Wilson made a distinct hit at the Lyceum last evening in "A Prince of Tatters." He spoke truly when he said that he had rarely ever seen an audience so small show so much enthusiasm—a rather sarcastic reference to the patronage given his production, it is true, but complimentary to those present, nevertheless. Mr. Wilson's pleasing singing is the feature of the entertainment and his many songs were every one encored. He sings with much feeling and tenderness and in the yodel songs is especially effective. But Mr. Wilson is a clever and engaging actor as well and his part in the play which he is presenting this season is an attractive one. "A Prince of Tatters" is of the romantic order and while not especially strong or standing out conspicuously among the best of that class it has a pleasing story, stirring situations and word play and some romantic lovemaking.

The support averages well throughout, George Riddell as the English governor of New York in 1700, Mark Price as Lord Gray, and J. J. Fitzsimmons as the governor's son being especially good. Miss Kate Beneteau makes a pleasing heroine and Miss Fanny Bloodgood is a comical and strenuous Dutch maiden.

The play will be presented again this evening.

A complete full-sized vestibule train, containing numerous passengers, starting from the center of the stage, going directly away from, but keeping in full view of the audience, growing smaller and smaller, till it becomes a mere speck in the distance then vanishes altogether, only to reappear as it rounds a curve apparently many miles away where it crosses a trestle over a deep mountain ravine, which trestle is blown to atoms by a terrific explosion an instant after the train with its cargo of human freight, has passed over to safety, is only one of the many sensational scenic surprises, in Lincoln J. Carter's new play "The Darkest Hour" which will have its first appearance in this city tomorrow afternoon at the Lyceum, appearing again in the evening.

A somewhat singular fact is that Duluth has never had presented in its theaters "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," that much-talked of Pinero play which Signora Duse, Mrs. Kendall, Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Olga Nethersole have had in the repertoires. The omission is to be filled by Miss Rose Coghlan, one of the most gifted of American actresses, who will present this famous play at the Lyceum next Monday evening.

The Ferris Comedians presented "Uncle Tom's Cabin" last evening to the largest house of the week. The performance was of a higher class than that given this story by the many traveling companies. It has more dramatic situations and dialogue, containing beside the usual bits of the story, many new characters and new dialogue.

The cast as played by the Ferris company is an exceedingly large one, there being twenty-eight speaking parts and many others. The entire company deserve praise for such a smooth performance for a first night, and with but a few minor exceptions did exceedingly well in their respective roles. Special mention should be made of Gus. Forbes' George Harris; William A. Lang as the lawyer, Marks; Will White as Simon Legree; Harry Langdon in the immortal character of Uncle Tom; Mona Carrington as Eliza; Lillian O'Neil as Casa; little Genevieve Twedt as Eva and last but not least, the Topsy of Emily Batlo was very clever.

The settings of the play were a feature of the performance, especially the second and last acts and add greatly to the otherwise very pleasing and satisfactory presentation of this play.

The specialties of Lane and Lane were very clever and demanded repeated encores. Bandy and Wilson appeared in another good dancing act.

The advance sale for the balance of this week is very good.

ENORMOUS WAREHOUSE

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific railway has petitioned the city council for the vacation of four cross streets, two alleys an da part of Fifth street adjoining the company's main freight yards. On this land it is proposed to erect a freight warehouse covering four city blocks, with eleven yard tracks and on four other adjoining blocks belonging to the railroad will be erected factories and warehouses.

GRANTED A DIVORCE

From Husband Because He Smoked Cigarettes.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 8.—One of the most remarkable cases in the marital annals of the state is that of Ida Elizabeth Marsh, of this city, aged 17. Judge Howe granted her a divorce from her husband because she alleged he smoked twenty-five cigarettes a day. In fact, according to her petition, the young man arose at night and smoked, and was frequently in a dazed condition because of his excessive indulgence in the "coffin nails." However, this did not deter Ida Elizabeth from marrying her divorced husband's brother, the ceremony being performed Wednesday evening.

CRITICIZES PRINCES.

Moves They Be Deprived of Army Command.

Stockholm, May 8.—In the Swedish rigsdag a Democratic deputy, Mr. Hedin, caused a sensation by offering a resolution declaring that no prince of the royal house be permitted to hold command in the army and that those princes now holding commands be deprived of their ranks. He said they were frauds and humbugs because their advance is too rapid for them to properly learn the science of war. The resolution was finally rejected, 123 nays to 90 ayes.

WILLSTAND TRIAL

Oscar Londeen Indicted For Manslaughter In Second Degree.

Other Indictments Have Been Found For Various Offenses.

Oscar Londeen, who shot and killed Mrs. Matson, during a charivare party on Garfield avenue one night over a month ago, must stand trial on the charge of manslaughter in the second degree.

An indictment for that offense was returned against him by the grand jury this morning. Since his arrest Londeen has been out of jail on bonds furnished by relatives and friends. He will be arraigned this afternoon.

Londeen claims that the shooting was entirely accidental and that he went to the party with his rifle solely for the purpose of helping in the celebration. He fired several shots in the air, and says that the shot which went through the side of the house and struck Mrs. Matson was an accidental one, the gun going off prematurely.

David Frankfort, a Bowery clerk, is indicted on the charge of swindling. The information against him is that some days ago he inveigled one Andersen into trading watches and during the transaction switched a "phony" watch on the latter that was worthless. Frankfort is out on bail, but will appear for arraignment this afternoon.

Alex Morgues, a young Englishman with a cockney accent, is indicted for wilfully and maliciously destroying property. Morgues had been imprisoned in the county jail on the charge of vagrancy, and at the expiration of his sentence he claimed he had no friends or money, and wanted to become an inmate of the jail again. To accomplish this he threw a brick through the plate-glass window of Farrell & Turnbull.

Morgues claims that he is the person that wrote a series of blackmailing letters to prominent persons in England some time ago. He expressed a willingness to return to England and stand trial, but the English authorities never came after him.

John Ahla is also indicted for maliciously destroying property valued at more than $2. The information against Ahla is that he destroyed two plate glass windows in a building belonging to Andrew Sandstrom, at Virginia, April 19. Ahla and Morgues will be arraigned this afternoon.

Two indictments, each charging grand larceny in the first degree, have been returned against Charles Clarke, former agent and clerk of the village of Hibbing. Clarke was arrested out West some weeks ago, the charge being that he absconded with funds which he collected and which belonged to the village. Clarke is accused of appropriating $600 on July 2, 1902, and $1250.75 on Jan. 5, 1903. Clarke's arraignment will take place this afternoon.

The grand jury is investigating the cases of the striking flour handlers, who were arrested on the charge of interfering with the traffic of the Northern Pacific Railway company. Another report is expected in court tomorrow morning.

SHE STOLE A DRESS.

Katherine Winner Is Fined For Taking One.

Katherine Winner, who does not look the part, was the disturbing performer in the municipal court today.

She was on trial for stealing a perfectly lovely creation of gray-green-pink-black crepe de chine with a singularly rich and beautiful garniture of large clusters of applique and rare tayknord lace, all of the value of $2.50.

When the court found her guilty and imposed a fine of $12 and costs, she walked melodramatically about the court room proclaiming her innocence, addressing the court and prosecuting attorney as "my dear," and created quite a scene.

The fine was paid and the court ordered her to return the dress to its owner as soon as possible.

STUPENDOUS PURCHASE

Arnold Constable & Co.'s Surplus Stock Spring Dress Goods.

4836½ yds Fashion's Finest Fabrics on Sale at 78c yd.

The biggest—the best—the most timely—the most important deal (in every way) ever made by the big store!

Almost five thousand yards (to be exact, just 4836½ yards) of Arnold Constable & Co.'s choicest spring dress goods were bought at a price so low that we can sell your their $1, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2, $2.25, and $2.50 dress goods at 78c yd.

There is very little of the $1 and $1.25 goods—there is quite a lot of the $2, $2.25 and $2.50 goods—and it will positively average better than $1.50 the yard—and yet we place it all on sale at one price—

SEVENTY-EIGHT CENTS THE YARD!

78c THE YARD.

It is a master stroke of merchandising—even our own brilliant bargain giving of the past is completely eclipsed by this great offer. Several times in years gone-by we have bought in Arnold Constable & Co.'s surplus stocks—and everyone will remember the matchless bargains we gave on those occassions — but the present collection surpasses our previous offers in every way. There are no more stylish goods on the market than these—you well know their regular price—and think of buying them at 78c the yard. Arnold Constable & Co., of Broadway, Fifth Avenue, and Nineteenth Street, New York, are famous the length and breadth of the land and known throughout all Europe and Asia as importers and distributors of high class merchandise. They make preparations six months ahead of the season. The last of April found them with a big lot of stylish imported spring and summer dress goods which they had to unload before May 1st when their fall business really began—and they sought a quick cash outlet for their entire cut stock.

Eastern houses couldn't buy—spring dress goods business had been backward —and suddenly hot weather came and people aren't anxious to buy even Arnold Constable's fine dress good in sweltering hot weather.

But we had enjoyed a magnificent dress goods business this spring— we were in the market for a big lot of goods if the styles were choice and the price right — because this Lake Superior climate of ours is unique—one dare not wear fine cotton goods except on bright, calm, sunny days. We looked at the lot carefully. First, we said "no"—then again looked at them admiringly. The styles were rich and exclusive—the qualities superb—and we knew we wanted them,but the quantity was enormous. There wasn't much of any one piece or style, mind you, for it was their "cut stock"—maybe ione pattern, sometimes two or three patterns—so one needn't fear "commonness" in choosing here. Finally we made a cash offer so low that we scarcely dared hope to get the lot—Arnold Constable & Co. hesitated, but ultimately gave us the goods at our own price.

That is the simple story of a tremendous transaction which will startle the trade throughout the entire Northwest.

In order to illustrate the actual value of the goods in the lot, we mention the following high-class, high-price fabrics all of which are on sale at 78c the yard.

78c for stylish new dress goods, regularly selling up to $2.00 and $2.50 the yard 78c

ETAMINES	CANVAS CLOTHS	HOMESPUNS
ZIBOLINES	HEATHER CLOTHS	DANISH CLOTHS
LONDON CORDS	English WORSTEDS	SCOTCH SUITINGS
CREPE ARMURES	POPELINS	PRUNELLA CLOTHS
MELROSE CLOTHS	WHIPCORDS	MIXED PANAMAS

These latter are not on the tables—but are shown separately. Ask to see them.

78c for fine & fashionable fabrics which regularly sell everywhere up to $2.00 and $2.50 the yard 78c

FRENCH VOILES	FANCY CHECKED	ROXBURY STRIPES
ENGLISH NATTE	ETAMENES	NIB MISTRALS

SATIN SOLEILS	NOVELTIES	ENGLISH
CAMEL HAIRS	BONTONNE	TAILOR CLOTHS
BASKET CLOTHS	ETAMENES	BLACK AND WHITE NOVELTIES

The list of fabrics is the honor roll of the season's fabrics—everything which should be here, is here—nothing is here, which should be missing.

The widths range 42 to 54 inches—with most of them averaging 46 inches or more.

CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS

General Work of Conference Is Discussed By Sections.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8.—The National Conference of Charities and Corrections this morning was separated into sections for the discussion of various phases of the general work of the conference. The topics were "Juvenile Delinquents," "State Supervision of Charities and Correction," and "Disease and Dependence, Housing and Sanitary Inspection."

In the afternoon other section meetings were held, the subjects being "The Juvenile Court," "The Treatment of Criminals, Including Probation of Adults, Parole and Pardon," "Needy Families in Their Homes, Including Legal Aid."

Among the speakers today were Professor D. C. Brown, of Irvington, Ind.; Rutherford H. Platt, of Columbus, Ohio; George R. Canfield, of New York; C. M. Hubbard, of Cincinnati; Judge Julius B. Meyer, New York; Judge Benjamin B. Lindsay, Denver; Judge Richard H. Uthill, Chicago, and Rev. Samuel J. Barrows, of New York.

A VICIOUS SYSTEM.

Reputable Clothiers Do Not Indulge In Discount System.

The deceptive practice of giving discounts to favored individuals, which prevails in some clothing stores, is regarded by many merchants as an evil to all concerned, and in most cases it is likely to prove so. M. S. Burrows, of the Great Eastern, is one that cuts out everything along this line, disapproving of the practice from all standpoints. The goods are marked at the price at which they should be sold, in fairness to dealer and customer, as soon as they enter the store. This custom makes a saving of 15 to 25 per cent over the systems in stores where there are different prices for different people.

Very often men who employ labor, or who are in a position that seems likely to give them the opportunity of throwing business, are given a discount of 10 or 20 per cent on anything they purchase. This looks good to the favored one, who imagines he is getting a better deal than anybody else and is saving money. As a matter of fact, in most cases, one of two things is true; either the prices are put up in anticipation of being discounted, or the less-favored customers pay the difference. If prices are purposely marked high with the idea of having them discounted, usually the price after the discount is removed is higher than is charged in such a store as the Great Eastern. Somebody has to stand this discount, and if it is not entirely fictitious, the unfavored customers, naturally enough, will be compelled to stand the cut by an addition to the price they pay.

Bad blood and indigestion are deadly enemies to good health. Burdock Blood Bitters destroys them.

CONDEMNS THE SUB-TREASURY

Eckels Says Its Nothing But Enlarged Safety Deposit Box.

Chicago, May 8.—James H. Eckles, former controller of the currency, advocated an asset currency and the abolition of the sub-treasury system in an address before the students of Northwestern university last night.

"Instead of the government keeping its revenues in a bank created upon business principles," he said, "the sub-treasury system has been created, which is simply an enlarged safety deposit box, where the revenues of the government remain in idleness except when disbursed through congressional appropriations or by the secretary of the treasury through bond purchases. The sub-treasury takes from the channels of trade that which is essential to the proper conduct of trade and commerce."

KOHLSAAT A KNIGHT.

Stockholm, May 8.—King Oscar has conferred knighthood of the Royal Order of Vasa on Commissioner C. W. Kohlsaat, in recognition of his work in connection with the St. Louis exposition. Accompanying the decoration was a letter from Foreign Minister Lagerheim, congratulating Mr. Kohlsaat on the well deserved mark of the king's appreciation of his service.

QUICK ARREST.

J. A. Gulledge, of Verbena, Ala., was twice in the hospital from a severe case of piles causing 24 tumors. After doctoring and all remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly arrested further inflammation and cured him. It conquers aches and kills pain. 25c at all druggists.

ROBBERY THE MOTIVE

In the Lorain Tragedy, Think the Police.

Lorain, Ohio, May 8.—The theory that robbery was the motive that led the midnight assassin to the home of the Reichlins was the first one advanced after the discovery of the murder. It is the first one to which those who are following this deep mystery turn now that the Walser theory has been thoroughly exploded. The police are now working upon this basis. In a safe in the living-room of St. Joseph's parish-house, Rev. Father Reichlin kept the parish plate. This may well have tempted an experienced crook also to crack a strong box and undeterred by thoughts of sacrilege, desperate enough to do violence if disturbed at his work or murder if need be to escape.

All Father Walser said he saw was a man of oversize wearing a small mustache and a slouch hat. He had no time for close observation as the stranger left the door at once.

MURPHY IS A CZAR

The New Leader of Tammany Is In Absolute Control.

Positive Proof That the Reign of Croker Is Over.

Chicago, May 8.—William E. Curtis in a New York special to the Record-Herald says:

Last Friday night after the general committee of the Tammany society had adopted a new set of rules which places absolute authority over the organization—such as no one ever exercised before—in the hands of Charles F. Murphy, "whispering Larry" Delmour, the captain of Croker's "old guard" remarked in an undertone: "The chief he ain't never comin' back no more."

"What d'ell yer giving us?" inquired a bystander.

"They wouldn't a done it; they wouldn't never have dared to do it, if there was any chance of the Old Man comin' back—and he can't come now," continued "Whispering Larry" sadly.

It is true. Croker's day is done. His reign is over. He is a back number. His friends in the Tammany society have been "run down" hard. Almost without exception the men who were forced out of the organization by him have been called back and elevated to positions of honor and power. The new committees which were announced Friday night by Charles F. Murphy, the new leader, contain few of the names of Croker's faithful adherents, and many of those who have not acted with Tammany since Croker came into power. It is almost entirely a new list. It is composed largely of strangers to the "boys" who hang around Tammany Hall, and Croker wouldn't shake hands with or even recognize half of them.

And furthermore the new rules adopted at the same meeting make it impossible for Croker's friends to recover control of the organization, because if objection is offered to the choice of any district for the executive committee the other members of that committee may turn it down and select a more agreeable person as a substitute. Thus the executive committee is given power to perpetuate itself; the principle of home rule which is the foundation of Democracy has been abolished; the political districts into which New York is divided have no longer the right to select their own representatives in the controlling committee of Tammany and the authority of the autocrat has been made absolute. An actual autocracy existed under Croker; it has existed practically for many years ever since the time of John Kelly, but never before has it been formally declared and written into the regulations of the society; nor was it done this time without objection. The new rules were adopted by the general committee by only five majority.

Not a bit of it. The chairman of the executive committee, Charley F. Murphy, absolutely controls the funds. Under the new rules he appoints the treasurer—and has just selected his next door neighbor and most intimate personal friend—who reports to him alone, and makes assessments and disburses money upon his sole authority. No member of the executive committee, the member of the Tammany society, has the right to question the acts or the authority of the chairman of the executive committee and the latter can exclude from that committee any member who is offensive to him. He is responsible to nobody. Never in any American political organization has power been centralized to such a degree.

The action of the central committee is, of course, a great personal triumph for Mr. Murphy. It is an expression of confidence in his integrity and ability such as has been bestowed seldom by any organization upon its leader. His self-confidence and courage are demonstrated by the easy manner with which he accepted this power and responsibility. His skill and influence were displayed by the easy manner in which he acquired it and from this time on Charles F. Murphy becomes a very important factor, not only in the politics of Tammany, but in the nation. Yet he is practically unknown outside of Tammany, of which he has been an active member from the time he was able to carry a torch in a political procession.

SUGGESTIONS OF CARNEGIE

Concerning Profit-Sharing Will Be Considered By Steel Trust.

New York, May 8.—George Perkins, of the banking firm of Morgan & Co., and author of the profit-sharing scheme adopted by the United States Steel corporation, which was considered in Andrew Carnegie's speech to the British iron masters in London, is quoted as saying:

"I do not know which to appreciate the greater, Mr. Carnegie's commendation of the scheme of sharing profits with the employes, or his criticism of it. Mr. Carnegie is the highest authority on that subject and his remarks are as complimentary to the workmen as to us.

"What Mr. Carnegie says about the faults of the present arrangement under which we are working will be very carefully considered by our committee having the new system in charge. The plan, as it now exists, I think it is generally understood, is purely a tentative one. We have not said that we were satisfied with its details, for we are not. We are watching for places where improvements will be possible, and are grateful to Mr. Carnegie for the suggestions and recommendations he has made.

"We concur fully with what Mr. Carnegie says concerning the necessity of protecting the workman shareholders. We will do everything we can to further the project and to make it more attractive and secure."

WOMAN AT HEAD

Of Bloodthirsty Gang of Paris Murderers and Burglars.

Had Two Hundred Criminals Under Her Absolute Direction.

Paris, May 8.—The head of the Paris Murderers and Burglars' trust has just been discovered, and turns out to be a woman, Mme. the Baroness de Gordoue, 21 years old, a veritable Pierpont Morgan in respect to keenness, daring, broadness of view and management of persons and things.

Ten days ago an old miser lost 75,000 francs in government bonds by an annoymous midnight visitor. As he had the numbers, the papers were quickly found in a bankers' office. The man of money laughed in the police lieutenant's face.

"Stolen? Impossible! I bought these bonds from one of our most esteemed and highly connected customers.

"Her name? Why, of course, Mme. the Baroness de Gordoue, Folie St-Clol palace, Rue Reuilly."

Clol palace used to be the home of one of Marie Antoinette's favorites, and the rent amounts to more than 20,000 francs per annum. Still, the lieutenant had his doubts, and decided to pursue the bird, no matter how precious the cage and how beautiful the plumage. The neighbors hardly knew her ladyship, as she was seldom seen on foot, and had so far refrained from calling—probably because she thought herself above Rue Reuilly folks.

"Does she receive many visitors?"

Never in daytime, as far as had been observed, but at night the great dining-room, where the ill-fated queen used to feast, and the grand salons that attracted the elite of gamblers before the revolution were brilliantly lit up, and carriages arrived as late as 4 o'clock in the morning.

An hour after midnight the lieutenant let himself and twenty policemen into the palace by means of skeleton keys. The vestibule was pitch dark, but sound of voices and clatter of glasses and porcelain indicated that there was high revelry on the floor above. Following the sounds, the officers reached a double door, and without ado entered, revolvers in hand. They saw an opulently set table, lit up by ancient silver candlesticks, empty champagne bottles in plenty, and around the festive board nine men in evening dress, who were at once recognized as persons who had occasionally had their pictures taken by the police.

The other male guests were a workingman's blouse and shabby hat, while on the back of his chair hung a discarded false beard. There were also two women, dressed in style fit for a 100 franc box at the grand opera, only more decollete. While each of the police agents covered his man, the officer stepped up to the woman at the head of the table and, with a polite bow, asked:

"The Baroness de Gourdoue, I believe?"

"Correct"—this in a loud voice, and in an undertone: "Send away your men and everything will be satisfactorily explained and—arranged."

Instead of answer the lieutenant put his hand on the madam's naked shoulder and pronounced her under arrest, but at that moment a man, carrying a revolver, broke from a closet: "Your life if you hurt madam." The slugger was quickly overpowered and soon the whole gang writhed on the floor, bound hand and foot and properly gagged.

Next the men of the law inspected the palace. A sumptuous house, priceless bibelots, pictures and statuary of great living and classic artists on the walls. There were three salons, a cardroom with a complete outfit of gamblers' paraphernalia, and a dozen or more bedrooms. The floors, walls and ceilings of one of the latter were mirror-lined and a royal crown with the legend: "Here slept my queen," surmounted its bed of gilded cedar wood.

In the rear of the third floor the police came across a complete hospital operating table, iron bedsteads, stretchers, bath, etc., and a stock of medicines, disinfectants, surgical instruments, and bandages, linens and plasters for dressing wounds. There were two patients, a young woman with a stiletto wound in her breast and a noted crook suffering from a shot in the leg. The rooms of the floor and the attic above were used for storage purposes. Here was the most complete "fence" imaginable; silks, curios, articles of precious metals, among the latter a gold altar service, but recently stolen from one of the oldest churches in Paris.

The lieutenant was indiscreet enough to search the godlen bed for the secret lockers and found one containing the baroness' memorandum book with a long record of past burglaries and murders, also a few affairs of that sort planned for the near future.

They have a third degree examination in Paris, as well as in the United States, and the French authorities deny it no less indignantly than their colleagues in New York and Chicago. At any rate, the lieutenant succeeded in obtaining from madame the baroness the following admissions:

Age 21, real name Marie Therese Gourden, nobility of her own creation; began her career as maid to a famous actress; became a woman of pleasure and fell in with some of the great rogues of the day, swindlers, gamblers, later on with burglars and murderers. Attained great sway over these men by reason of her beauty and resourceful mind, whereupon a number of them proposed, of their own accord, that she establish herself as leader of the elite of the Paris criminal classes.

With money gained in robbing a banking house on the Champs Elysees, the ancient palace in a secluded street was leased for a term of years and fitted up with business paraphernalia; telephone and telegraph—an expert cracksman tended to the wires—lazerette, depot of arms, poisons, explosives, trap doors, secret vaults, storerooms, accommodations for dozens of persons.

At the same time madam established connections with highly respectable banking and business houses, where she visited in her carriage daily, depositing, selling and exchanging the moneys, bonds and other articles brought in by her associates.

She likewise kept track of events in society by seeking the acquaintance of persons of culture and occasionally received these friends in her suite of rooms at a fashionable hotel, while the hotelkeepers were given to understand that she was an aristocrat, living somewhere in the suburbs.

The baroness boasted—and the criminals arrested in her house corroborated the fact—that she kept her associates well in leash, directing their movements and exacting a commission of 25 per cent from the gross proceeds of the burglary, theft, swindling operation or murder planned, advocated or merely countenanced by her, for no crook duirst operate on his own account. No free lancing.

The police found in a secret drawer a list of over 200 professional and occasional criminals, with their addresses and special qualifications, as "not averse to blood," "the ladies' pet," "good for purposes of revenge," etc.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

To Try Residents of McIntosh County For Murder.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Ellendale.—Two murder trials will come on at the term of court to commence here on June 2d. Both cases are from McIntosh county, one being the case of the state against Gottlieb Schaffer, John Nagel, Frederick Benslinger, Peter Reidlinger and Andreas Schlabotz, charged with the killing of Christoph Rotz at Ashley, and the other against Carl Schoop, charged with stabbing and killing a companion. Four slander cases from that county will also be tried here—Emma J. Nelson vs. Paul Kretschmar, W. A. Linn, Christ Becker and Christ Albright, prominent county officials. M. P. Axtell, former sheriff, has another suit brought against the county for the recovery of fees. Judge Lauder giving a judgment in his favor for $114.50, with costs from July 26, 1898. The $50 reward claimed by Axtell was not allowed.

Wahpeton.—The state camp meeting of the M. W. A. was held in this city, fifty delegates of the fifty-six being present. A warm fight took place over the election of delegates to the meeting of the head camp at Indianapolis June 15. The principal officers elected for the ensuing year were: State consul, J. J. Wamberg; clerk, T. H. Faus. It was voted to hold the next meeting at Devils Lake in May next year. The delegates to the head camp are George Robbins, Grand Forks; A. T. Tanton, Lakota; M. M. Forman, Abercrombie; Alf White, Dickinson; C. Bohler Cavalier; N. O. Johnson, Cando; S. Messinger, Bowbells; M. Sinclair, Jamestown. The meeting was addressed by Senator McCumber, who paid a tribute to the order. The delegates declared for a readjustment of rates.

Velva—A United States deputy marshal form Washington, D. C., arrived yesterday for the purpose of arresting a Russian named Theodore Balabon. The charge against him is that of murder. He was taken east chained to an officer.

Dickinson—Citizens voted to issue bonds to the amount of $15,000 to build an addition to the graded school.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Elk Point—In the $10,000 suit of Leonore C. Shook vs. A. O. Ringerud, both of this city, in the Woodbury county, Iowa, court, in which the plaintiff alleges serious damages from defendant's vicious horse, affidavits and a motion for continuance have been filed by the defense. It is alleged that Dr. J. C. Rhoden, now on a visit to Madrid, Spain, will testify on his return that he made a thorough investigation of the alleged injuries claimed to have been received by the plaintiff, and that he failed to find any fracture of the head. The court is asked to continue the case until the return of Dr. Rhoden.

The News, at Beresford, this county, has been sold to Professor George W. Kephart and C. W. Johnson. Professor Kephart is principal of the high school and Mr. Johnson is a practical printer. Its politics will remain Republican.

Miss Lena Harter died of heart disease after only a few hours' illness. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon in the M. E. church.

The sum of $120 was abstracted from the safe of Daniel Sharp, jeweler. The safe was unlocked and the theft occurred during the moment in which he stepped into the postoffice a few feet away. No clue.

Bonesteel—At the city election the following were elected: Trustees, first ward, Henry Foster; second, J. T. Gonghen; third, S. F. Lucas; marshal, Herman Lewis; treasurer, F. L. Crosby; clerk and assessor, W. Griffin; police judge, F. W. Ratlimaa. The citizens elected all but the trustee in the first ward, marshal and clerk, who were on the people's ticket.

Avon—Now that it has been decided that liquor cannot be sold in Geddes, Wagner and other towns on the ceded portion of the Yankton Indian reservation, it is expected the saloon men of those places will strive to engage in the business here. Avon has four saloons, and every effort will be made to prevent others being started.

RIDES IN AN AUTOMOBILE

New York Postmaster Bought One With Department Funds.

Washington, May 8.—A $3600 automobile for the postmaster of New York city, bought and maintained out of the postal funds, and said to be chiefly used for private convenience, is an item brought to the attention of the department. As word comes here, this vehicle, with the latest improvements, was allowed about a year ago by George W. Beavers, until lately superintendent of division salaries and allowances.

A question has arisen in connection with the pending investigation whether this was a proper expenditure, but it is doubtful if anything can now be done about it. Asked about the "red devil" yesterday the New York postmaster said it was used to carry money from the postoffice to the sub-treasury.

This New York experience has had much to do with the determination of Postmaster General Payne to investigate all first-class postoffices in the country.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

THE CONGRESS OF MOTHERS

Continues Its Discussions On Education of the Child.

Detroit, May 7.—At today's session of the National Congress of Mothers, Mrs. D. O. Mears, of Albany, N. Y., led a conference on "Moral and Religious Education of Children." She spoke of the great necessity for fathers and mothers guarding their conversation at the evening meal. This is the time, she said, when nothing but the best of the day's proceedings should be discussed. All petty annoyances should be eliminated and nothing but the bright side of life be discussed.

Miss Mary Hutcheson, of Columbus, O., presented the necessity of parents studying the child and then training it according to its temperament.

David A. Maxwell, of Windsor, Ont., discussed the child from a physiological standpoint, and traced the young life from its embryo state to manhood.

Mrs. Mabel Conkling, of New York, urged training the son along the same lines of purity as the daughter, remembering that the heart of the baby boy is just as pure as the heart of the baby daughter. Other speakers were Miss Laura Browning, Professor Frederick, Dr. Lee S. McCallister, Rev. Jeremiah Boynton and Dr. Herman P. De Forest, of Detroit.

WOULD SELL PROPERTY

Because There Is Not Enough Capital Stock.

Greenwich, Conn., May 7.—Mrs. Genevieve Pents, who was appointed conservator for the personal estate of her husband, Alfred Pents, the wall paper manufacturer, by the Greenwich probate court in January last, after her husband went insane, has applied to the Greenwich court for permission to sell her husband's property. Mrs. Pents sets forth that she is in possession of the assets of her husband, among them 5000 shares of the stock in the Alfred Pents company in New York, and a promissory note of the said corporation. She says that the business is solvent, but its actual assets are far less than the capital stock, and that there is not sufficient working capital to protect it against competition, and heavy losses are threatened. Mrs. Pents states that she has negotiated for the sale of 88 per cent of the stock and the balance due on the note. The purchaser is named as the Henry Bosch company of Chicago, and the price is in excess of $180,000.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free. Regular sizes 50c, $1.00.

THE GOLD STANDARD

One Cause of American Failure In the Philippines.

New York, May 7.—Perceval Landon, in the second of his series of letters from Manila on "The American Failure in the Philippines," printed in the Daily Mail today, argues, according to a London dispatch to the World, that the difficulties of the situation were considerably increased by the capture of Aguinaldo.

"Little importance need be attached," he asserts, "to the recent exposure by Gen. Miles that a certain number of Americans disgraced themselves by acts of abominable cruelty. It is no more of a slur upon the American army than the records of the Newgate calendar are upon the inhabitants of London. Throughout the war individual American soldiers have played the game well and fairly, and it is no discredit to him that it is not yet carried to a successful close."

In enumerating the cause of the unsatisfactory condition, Mr. Landon mentions the introducing of the gold standard, which has disorganized business, and the prohibition of Chinese labor.

A Good Beginning

If the blood is in good condition at the beginning of the warm season, you are prepared to resist disease and are not apt to be troubled with boils, pimples, blackheads and blotches, or the itching and burning skin eruptions that make one's life a veritable torment and misery.

Now is the time to begin the work of cleansing and building up the blood and strengthening the weak places in your constitution. During the cold winter months we are compelled to live indoors and breathe the impure air of badly ventilated rooms and offices. We over-work and over-eat, and get too little out-door exercise, and our systems become clogged with impurities and the blood a hot-bed of germs and humors of every kind, and warm weather is sure to brig a reaction, and the poisonous matter in the blood and system will break out in boils and pustules or scaly eruptions and red, disfiguring bumps and pimples. Make a good beginning this season by taking a course of S. S. S. in time; it will not only purify your blood and destroy the germs and poisons, but promote healthy action of the Liver and Kidneys and give you a good appetite at a time when you need it most.

S. S. S. improves the digestion and tones up the Stomach, and you are not continually haunted by the fear of indigestion every time you eat, or troubled with dizziness, nervousness and sleeplessness. There is no reason to dread the coming of warm weather if you have your system well fortified and the blood in a normal, healthy condition. It is the polluted, sluggish blood that invites disease germs, microbes and poisons of every kind and bring on a long train of spring and summer ailments, break down the constitution, and produce weakness, lassitude, and other debilitating disorders.

Eczema, Acne, Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and other irritating skin troubles are sure to make their appearance unless the humors and poisons are antidoted and the thin, acid blood made rich and strong before the coming of warm weather.

SSS

A course of S. S. S. now would be a safe precaution and a good beginning and enable you to pass in comfort through the hot, sultry months and escape the diseases common to spring and summer. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and is recognized as the best blood purifier and the most invigorating and pleasant of all tonics. Write for our book on "The Blood and Its Diseases."

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

HORRIBLY AFFLICTED WITH BOILS.

I had a horrible attack of boils that broke out all over my body and from which I could get no possible relief until I began taking your medicine, and from my experience I can safely say S. S. S. is the best blood purifier in the world.

Mrs. M. P. SMYTHERS, Wytheville, Va.

THE BEST TONIC AND APPETIZER.

While living in Sherman, Tex., I became a victim of impure, watery blood. I ran down in appetite and energy; was scarcely able to get about and had to stop off and rest occasionally. I took S. S. S. and began to improve at once, and after a thorough course became strong and well.

I think S. S. S. the best medicine I ever used as an appetizer and general tonic. J. G. SCOTT, 311 Railroad street, Rome, Ga.

MYSTERY IS INVOLVED

In a Contest Over a Big Estate at Los Angeles.

Was Hill a Dr. Jekyll or Was He a Mr. Hyde?

Los Angeles, Cal., May 8.—One of the most remarkable will contests in the history of litigation in California is about to begin in the superior court of Los Angeles.

It involves the United States secret service, a mysterious fortune of $142,000 in greenbacks, a young actress, a prominent Boston family, a counterfeiters' gang and an old miser who died in Los Angeles in May, 1902, and whose eccentricity is the cause of all the trouble.

Charles Hill is the name by which the old man was known in life. Soon after his death, at the age of 89 years, in the Good Samaritan hospital, it was discovered by the public administrator that instead of being poor, as well as infirm and deaf, Charles Hill had $142,000 in greenbacks stowed away in a safety deposit box.

No will was found among Charles Hill's effects, and it was supposed, after many weeks had elapsed, and no substantial claims had been established against the estate that the money, after lying idle for seven years, would revert to the commonwealth, as the law ordains.

Last August, however, sufficient importance was attached to the claims of Salem D. Charles and his relatives in Boston and New England to justify the authorities in the opinion that they were the lawful heirs of the dead miser, whose real name, it is claimed, was Salem Charles.

Nevertheless, in the following November, Mrs. Gertrude Driggs, a business woman of 82 Wall street, New York, came forward with a will which she declared was dictated by Charles Hill in 1888, and in which he leaves all his property to her daughter, Grace Gertrude Driggs, an actress.

Mrs. Driggs also offers in evidence a photograph of her daughter on the back of which are the words, "Grace, my heir." These words, Mrs. Driggs claims, were written by Hill.

Now the most remarkable feature in connection with the contest of this will, which begins May 12 in Judge Wilbur's court, is the disparity in character and reputation given the dead man by these contending factions.

Thus, the Charles of Boston calm to have abundant proof that old Salem Charles was one of nature's noblemen. Quiet, conservative, peaceful, honest, lawabiding, he made his fortune, they affirm, in legitimate business transactions.

On the other hand, Mrs. Driggs says old man Hill was a member of one of the most notorious gangs of counterfeiters with which the United States secret service ever had to deal, and that he made his money, literally, by making.

Last December Mrs. Driggs was required to make a lengthy statement in open court regarding her daughter's claim to the Hill fortune, and this, in brief, is the remarkable story she related:

"My name is Gertrude Driggs. I am 52 years of age and came to this country from Germany with my parents and a brother and sister when I was only 5 or 6 years old. Until I was 24 or thereabouts I lived in Dayton, O.

"In 1873 I married Nelson Driggs, who is now dead. We had four children, of which only two, Florence and Grace Gertrude Driggs, are now living.

"Shortly after our marriage we went to live at Rockford, Ill., and then to Mineowa, Minn. There were half a dozen men who were on intimate terms with my husband. They all had their headquarters in a mysterious house on the outskirts of Mineowa. I was never allowed to enter his house, and did not know until long afterward that it was a counterfeiter's den.

"Among the members of this gang were Charles Hill, Jim Guyon, Nelson Driggs, George Mannering and my brother.

"Afterward we all moved to Centralia, Ill., where the new den was raided and my rusband was convicted and sent to Joliet for fifteen years. Mr. Hill escaped, but my brother and one or two other men were captured, along with my husband. During most of the time Mr. Driggs was in prison Mr. Hill sent me money to live on from various places in Texas and California.

"In 1884 my husband was released and we established a roadhouse near Dayton, O. This was raided in 1889 by United States detectives from Washington and Cincinnati, upon learning that Guyon and Hill were there. Guyon escaped, after standing off fifteen men and shooting one of the officers to death. Mr. Hill also got away. That raid netted the United States government $280,000 in 10-dollar greenbacks.

"Grace was born at this wayside inn —Jan. 13, 1888. Mr. Hill had been with us for two or three weeks prior to her birth, and promised me that if it was a boy and he could have the naming of it he would make a will in its favor.

"Although a girl came instead of a boy, Mr. Hill said he would still stand by his promise and dictated the will to me. I wrote it with a lead pencil, propped up in bed, and the signing of Mr. Hill was witnessed by Nelson Driggs and George Manning.

Ten or twelve years later I placed this will in a safety deposit box in the Masonic Temple, Chicago. Last July, when I read in a New York paper an account of Charles Hill's death in Los Angeles, I secured all necessary affidavits and hastened to Chicago, where I opened the safety deposit box, in the presence of the guard and Mrs. Newcomer, who was formely the wife of George Manning. There was the will, and Mrs. Manning recognized the handwriting of George Manning, and, of course, I recognized my own and my husband's handwriting instantly."

This will is now filed away between two pieces of glass, as one of the chief exhibits in the case. It is scrawled on a piece of paper torn from an old ledger, and looks old and worn. It reads as follows:

"I, Charles Hill, make this my last will and testament, and I hereby make Grace Gertrude Driggs my sole heir at law, and I bequeath to her all of my real estate, moneys and personal effects I leave at my death, and I appoint Mother Gertrude Driggs my executrix without bond. Signed, this 14th day of January, in the year of our Lord 1888.

CHARLES HILL.

ENLIVENED BY JEROME

Amusing the Spectators at Gambling Trial In Gotham.

New York, May 7.—Incidents of interest came with rapidity in the trial of "Lou" Betts, charged with maintaining a gambling house in West Thirty-fourth street. District Attorney Jerome, dissatisfied with the progress of the case, took a personal interest in it, and in his own office announced that things were being done and left undone in a manner that would bear investigation. During the intermission for luncheon Mr. Jerome amused the spectators in the court room by spinning the ivory ball in the roulette wheel, which had been captured in a raid made on the gambling house in West Thirty-fourth street. Members of the jury made imaginary wagers and were inoculated into the mysteries of the game. The district attorney displayed an expert knowledge of roulette.

Through the court room it was whispered that perjury was being committed, and the district attorney intimated he was far from satisfied with the answers of some witnesses. Mr. Jerome once so far forgot himself as to refer to one of the witnesses for the defense as a member of a "breed of pups." For this he apologized to the court and to the witness.

George B. Hammond, chief of the force of county detectives, illustrated with the apparatus in court how roulette and faro are played. With roulette he had little trouble, but as soon as he mixed himself in the intricacies of faro, back in the court room were a score of professional gamblers who were shocked though amused by his ignorance.

It has been reported to Mr. Jerome that Betts said: "If the district attorney comes after me I'll throw him off the Brooklyn bridge." This threat is said to have been made in the presence of a professional billiard player, whom the process servers have been seeking for two days.

MORGAN IS BEATEN

In His Project to Monopolize the Shipping Trade.

Rival Lines Are Doing More Business Than Ever.

New York, May 8.—J. P. Morgan's one failure, his first really great failure, is the shipping trust.

The aim was Titanic—the control of an ocean. How far it fell short of it the stock ticker and the sudden crystallization of expert opinion have demonstrated this last week.

Its stock begging in the street at 30 and its officers finding it necessary to deny that it is to be reorganized, that is the week's commentary on the status of the great Morgan shipping trust.

One claim which the experts now regard as impossible of fulfillment is the widely predicted saving of $12,000,000 a year in running expenses. Shipping men who ought to know say that instead of this big saving, the expenses will be fully as high as ever, for all the officers and separate corporate identities have been preserved just as before. Ships are being run just as before, except the Leyland line runs express ship a day idea has been abandoned, and the trust is being operated just from Boston instead of New York; the one as so many lines might be, the Morgan idea of one harmonious management having been a distinct disappointment.

The German lines not in the trust are getting the cream of the business. To effect the promised economies serious talk of reducing the sailings of the trust's ships is being indulged in. Such a step would not be a surprise in shipping circles. How else the savings so widely heralded are to be brought about no one knows.

In spite of the preliminary talk about it as a combine controlling the business of the Atlantic, men who know say that it really controls not even half of the tonnage of merely the great ocean lines, to leave the great fleets of tramps out of the accounting.

Mr. Morgan's original idea was to control the Atlantic as he controls the steel output and the railway business now in his grasp. The plan failed from the start because he was unable to secure the great German lines, with the fastest and biggest ships that cross the ocean, and the great Cunard line also.

Of the lines he did get the White Star was the only one that was a big money maker. The American line had never paid, and the others that the financier collected for the so-called trust were not of the rank of the White Star, or any of the three great lines that Mr. Morgan was unable to get.

As a result, experts say that the combine is at present a dismal mockery of what Mr. Morgan intended it should be. Instead of the combine reigning supreme on the Atlantic, its European terminal is practically restricted to England. The German and the French lines carry American exports to German and French ports just as they did before.

In this respect the expectation that the big railroad lines controlled by Mr. Morgan would throw their business to his ships has proved a bitter disappointment. The port-carrying trade is distributed practically as it was before.

"The ocean was too big for the old man," is the laconic verdict of Wall street.

From the first an impression prevailed in Wall street that the trust was the most overcapitalized of all the Morgan productions. This impression was not advertised from the housetops, for in Wall street men do not wantonly trifle with things manned by the great Morgan, but it had its effect on the investments in the stock. The sale of the stock has practically amounted to nothing in this country. With the exception of a batch of the bonds, reported to be $5,000,000, taken by George W. Perkins, Mr. Morgan's business partner, for the New York Life, the purchase of the bonds has been almost exclusively confined to England.

The preferred and common stock has been offered on the curb the past few weeks with scarcely any results, except to demonstrate that nobody is anxious to buy it. No sales could be recorded at as low a figure as 30 during the week. The first sales of the stock, soon after it was launched on the market, were at 75. Only 10 was bid for the common during the week.

Financiers and shipping men are looking forward with a querulous eye to the first of July, when the first dividend is to be paid.

How a dividend will be possible is something many of them cannot figure out. It sounds incredible, but Wall street believes that for once Mr. Morgan was hypnotized when he undertook to make himself monarch of the Atlantic. Credit for this feat is given to Clement A. Griscom, one of the ablest of the present day business men, who was head of the International Navigation company.

That it was Mr. Griscom who first put the mighty idea into Mr. Morgan's head and encouraged it until it developed into the present combine is the inside history of the concern.

EX-MAYOR BUNKOED.

Stranger Secures His Endorsement to a Draft.

Aurora, Ill., May 7.—Former Mayor Theodore Howard, of Aurora, was bunkoed a few days ago by a stranger, who asked for help in the way of endorsement of a draft for $87. The man worked his scheme by presenting a letter which contained a flattering testimonial as to the good work he had done among the lodges of the A. O. U. W. Enclosed were two drafts, one for $65 and one for $85. The man, who gave his name as Vallejo, asked Mr. Howard to endorse the drafts, which he did. Word was received through the Anchor and Shield, the official organ of the order, warning people against this man. A letter has also been issued by a detective agency offering a reward of $100 for his arrest.

STUDIES IN ACTS

THE PLOT AGAINST PAUL

International Sunday School Lesson For May 10, 1903.

Acts 23:12-22. "And when it was day, the Jews banded together, and bound themselves under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul. And they were more than forty which made this conspiracy. And they came to the chief priests and the elders and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse to taste nothing until we have killed Paul. Now therefore do ye with the council signify to the chief captain that he bring him down unto you, as though ye would judge of his case more exactly: and we, or ever he come near, are ready to slay him. But Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait, and he came and entered into the castle and told Paul. And Paul called unto him one of the centurions and said, Bring this young man unto the chief captain: for he hath something to tell him. So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and saith, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and asked me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath something to say to thee. And the chief captain took him by the hand, and going aside asked him privately, What is that thou hast to tell me? And he said, The Jews have agreed to ask thee to bring Paul tomorrow unto the council, as though thou wouldst inquire somewhat more exactly concerning him. Do not thou therefore yield unto them, for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which have bound themselves under a curse neither to eat nor to drink till they have slain him: and now they are ready, looking for the promise from thee. So the chief captain let the young man go, charging him, Tell no man that thou has signified these things to me."

Golden text: "The Lord stood by him and said, Be of good cheer." Acts 23:11.

PAUL BEFORE THE SANHEDRIN

The commandant of the Roman barracks in the tower of Antonia had been unable to wrest from the excited Jewish mob any charge against Paul—a babel of uncertain cries was the only response he got to his query. By the next day the clamor had died away, and Lysias hoped to get a sober accusation against Paul from the rulers of the Jews. He had them called together in the "booths" which had then been lately set apart for the Sanhedrin's use in place of the famous hall in the court of the priests, into which latter place Lysias could not have entered on account of its sacredness. He brought Paul down from his place of confinement and asked the Sanhedrin why he had been so roughly treated, expecting to get some criminal charge against him. So it happened that Paul was tried before the Sanhedrin much as Jesus had been tried, only in Jesus' case the Jews were trying to formulate some plausible charge before they took their spotless prisoner to Pilate, while in Paul's case Lysias had already snatched him from the Jews to protect him, and was now inquiring to see if there was any reason why he should be detained in custody.

We may suppose that Paul's trial on this occasion was opened with proper respect for the usual forms of procedure. But Paul soon seized an opportunity to launch out into a spontaneous speech to the Sanhedrin, whose members he addressed as "brethren." He had once been a member of that very body, which fact no doubt widened the breach between him and it. Perhaps there were some men still sitting in its councils who had joined in Saul's plans for the extermination of the Christian church. If so, they were probably more uncompromising than any others in denouncing his apostasy. But he could look them all in the face and say candidly, "I have lived before God in all good conscience until this day."

That statement must have galled those pious frauds, his judges, terribly. They were playing the part of the good conscience, only their consciences were on the other side, and they took Paul's declaration of good conscience as equal to a charge against themselves. It was for that reason that Ananias ordered that Paul be smitten on the mouth as a rebuke for his supposed affront to the dignity of the court. But Paul was certain of the righteousness of his position. The reply he made savors of Christ's denunciation against the scribes and pharisees. He did not realize that he was speaking against the high priest, and he apologized for having done so, quoting from Edodus 22:28 the law, "Thou shalt not speak evil of a ruler of thy people."

Paul's courage was doubtless sustained by the promises of Christ, which bore the instruction that, when disciples were brought before magistrates to be tried for their faithfulness to their Lord, they should not worry about what to say, for, said he, "it shall be given you in that hour what ye shall speak. For it is not ye that speak, but the spirit of your Father that speaketh in you."

Shall we say that Paul's appeal to the prejudices of the opposing parties in the Sanhedrin was inspired by the Holy Ghost? It was made not with the expectation that it would lead to an immediate decision of the question at issue, but merely to gain time by causing dissension among his accusers. The outcome of the delay thus effected was the saving of Paul's life and the opening of the series of events that led him to Rome, where he fulfilled his longcherished dream of preaching the gospel in the Imperial city. Judged by the outcome, then, the stroke may well have been directed by the Holy Ghost. In fact, however, it seems to have been little more than a clever trick, which was wise in its cleverness, and whose resulting confusion was overruled by the Spirit to the furtherance of the kingdom of God. On the night following, the Lord stood by Paul and said, Be of good cheer, acknowledging the service he had rendered in Jerusalem, and giving him orders to bear witness in Rome also. This encouragement was from the same Lord who had so often exhorted his disciples not to be afraid; who had said to Paul in Corinth: "I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to harm thee;" who two years later would stand by Paul amid a great storm at sea with the good cheer: "Fear not, Paul; thou must stand before Caesar."

THE PLOT TO KILL.

The success of Paul's device exasperated the Jews still more. They thought they had him fast; but while they were squabbling among themselves Lysias took him out of their power. The next day the emissaries of a band of conspirators against Paul's life presented their scheme to the Sanhedrin and secured its co-operation. The ruse was this: The Sanhedrin was to request Lysias to bring Paul down that they might investigate his case more carefully; while Paul was passing to the Sanhedrin's chamber, some one was to fall upon and kill him.

There were over forty sworn men in this conspiracy, besides others who were aiding and abetting them. Their oath was to abstain from food and drink until their dire purpose was accomplished (1 Samuel 14:24). It was not the first time the Jews had plotted to kill Paul. At Damascus he was let down from the city wall in a basket in order that he might escape the wicked plot of his fellow countrymen. On his first visit to Jerusalem, after his conversion, a plot was laid to kill him, but was frustrated by his Christian brethren, who hurriedly sent him down to Caesarea. Even in far away Greece the Jews pursued him relentlessly. He had no place where he could lay his head with assurance that he was free from the malicious attacks of the Jews.

The Sanhedrin was in a terrible state of moral degradation or it would never have entered into this nefarious scheme to commit murder. Think of it! In this story the Romans stand for order and moral justice; while the Jews are exponents of crime and murder! And there were many such schemes laid and even executed by the Jews of those times. Josephus narrates a similar conspiracy to assassinate Herod. Philo, the Jewish allegorical writer, justified the assassination of apostates from the faith in the following language: "It is highly proper that all who have a zeal for virtue should have a right to punish with their own hands, without delay, those who are guilty of this crime; not carrying them before a court of judicature, or the council, or in short before any magistrate, but they should indulge the abhorrence of evil, the love of God, which they entertain, by inflicting immediate punishment on such impious apostates, regarding themselves for the time as all things, senators, judges, praetors, sergeants, accusers, witnesses, the laws, the people; so that, hindered by nothing, they may without fear, and with all promptitude, espouse the cause of piety." Added to such abhorrent teaching was the fact that under rabbinical regulations it was easy to secure absolution from such an oath as the forty men took.

There is a modern counterpart to this teaching of Philo in the Russian laws against apostasy which, however, are executed by the state. The following is a quotation from sections 184, 187 and 188 of the Russian penal code: "All persons who leave the orthodox church for the church of any other Christian denomination shall be turned over to the spiritual authorities for admonition and instruction, and shall then be dealt with in accordance with ecclesiastical rules. Until they shall return to orthodoxy, their minor children shall be taken in charge by the government, in order that they may not become perverted, and their lands, if occupied by orthodox Christians, shall be put under guardianship and they shall not be permitted to live thereupon." "For inducing an orthodox Christian to become a member of any other Christian church, the guilty one shall be deprived of all special, personal and acquired rights, and shall be exiled to Siberia, or imprisoned at hard labor for a period of from one year to a year and a half." "For persuading or inducing an orthodox Christian to adopt the Jewish or any other non-Christian faith, the guilty one should be deprived of all civil right and sent into penal servitude for a period of from eight to ten years."

Paul's position was a very lonely one so far as human comfort was concerned. When Peter was in prison in the first days of the church's trials the church met and spent the evening in prayer for him. He knew of this spiritual fellowship and was comforted by it. But for Paul the local church offered no prayers: it encouraging his detractors and was in sympathy with the movement Paul had been fighting, that of holding the Christian church subject to the ceremonial law of Moses.

There are a great many things in life that are worse than loneliness. One of these is to be with a crowd in the wrong. How much better to make sure that God is on one's side by doing right than to court the favor of men at the expense of a good conscience. It is far better to be a lone mariner on a trackless sea with a consciousness of God's nearness and approval than to be in a busy street with a haunting dread that some sin will meet one at every corner. Men ought not to seek to be alone all the time; but society, too much indulged, breeds weakness of character. Solitary meditation begets depth and quality of soul as nothing else can. The man who goes from a season of quiet communion with God to his daily task goes panoplied with the armor of heaven to fight the battles of earth. The mythological being whose strength failed him unless he touched the earth was the exact picture in reverse of the Christian who cannot even live unless he habitually bathes his soul in the pure ether and radiance of heaven.

QUICK EXECUTIVE ACTION.

Paul had a young nephew whose cool promptness and courage prevented his assassination. The lad heard of the plot to kill Paul. It was too open a secret, too many people knew it, to keep a knowledge of it from Paul if there was anyone friendly enough to risk the trouble of telling him. If the church had not been so much against him, he would have been better protected by the Christian brethren. A divided church is always a weak church, incapable of resisting the attacks of the enemy.

Nothing could appear simpler than the lad's report of the plot first to Paul and then to Lysias, who believed it immediately. He had seen too much of such pusillanimity among the Jews to doubt the boy's story. His action was quick and effective. He didn't even give the Sanhedrin a chance to request that Paul be sent down to them, but ordered an escort and sent Paul away toward Caesarea that very night. Four hundred foot soldiers and seventy mounted troops went to guard Paul as far as Antipatris, which was over half the distance. At that point the foot soldiers returned back to Jerusalem, the mounted troops going on to Caesarea with the prisoner. The larger body was needed only long enough to be sure that Paul was safely beyond the ambuscade of the conspirators. The swifter traveling troops were sufficient to guard against the attacks of the bandits.

Lysias sent a letter to Felix, the governor, at Caesarea, telling briefly the story of Paul's apprehension, exonerating him of any charge worthy of death or bonds, and laying all the disturbance to some difference between Paul and the other Jews at Jerusalem over questions of Jewish law which he did not profess to undertand. In some respects the action of Lysias is similar to Pilate's treatment of Jesus. But Lysias had a sufficient reason for sending Paul to Felix in the necessity of protecting Paul and of preventing a riot and bloodshed in Jerusalem.

Paul was not getting troubled by the affair. He had learned to bear hardships patiently. He was a good soldier of the cross and was ever ready to fight the battles of his faith. He did not falter because of opposition. He always felt that the forces in him and behind him were more than any that could possibly advance against him. "The Lord is on our side"; may ever be the Christian's battle cry of victory.

HIGH KING IN COD LIVER OIL

A. Frank Richardson of New York Controls World's Market.

New York, May 7.—A. Frank Richardson, a local advertising agent, is a general of industry in a new field of endeavor. Mr. Richardson controls practically the world's supply of cod liver oil. As a medium of speculation petroleum isn't in it with cod liver oil, and Mr. Richardson's profits are of a size calculated to make John D. Rockefeller's hair fall out again—this time from envy.

For instance, Mr. Richardson some time ago bought 1000 barrels of cod liver oil at $28 a barrel, the market price. Three months later, when it was discovered that there would be an enormous shrinkage in this year's supply of the product, Mr. Richardson was offered $90,000 for those 1000 barrels, or $62,000 more than he had paid for them.

The offer was declined, and there were those who said that Mr. Richardson was foolish not to have accepted such a tremendous profit on his investment. But he was wiser than his critics knew. He not only held on to what he had, but his agents were busy gathering in the surplus product of other years, until now he is in control of the visible supply, and the market price of cod liver oil has advanced to the undreamed of figure of $131 a barrel.

If Mr. Richardson cared to dispose of that original 1000 barrels he could do so today at a profit of $100,000 on an investment of $28,000.

POE'S MANUSCRIPT.

"The Bells" Sold at Auction For $2100.

Philadelphia, May 7.—The original manuscript of Edgar Allan Poe's "The Bells," has been sold at auction here for $2100. It was part of the Harold Pierce library.

The manuscript is a little scorched. It consists of slips of blue paper pasted together and originally formed a strip eight inches wide and thirty-seven and one-half inches long, but it has been divided into three more or less equal parts. It lacks the last fourteen lines of the completed poem, but it is believed that they never formed part of this sheet.

"I remember well when I first used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, nearly 60 years ago. I was thin, pale, weak, tired all the time, no appetite, could not play as the other boys did.

"Since then I have taken it many times, especially when overworked, tired out, or nervously depressed. Now, all my children and their children use it. As a medicine for the whole family it has no equal.

"I long ago learned the first great rule of health—keep the bowels regular—so I am never without Ayer's Pills." J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

EDWARDS AND BURKE INDICTED

Grand Jury Finds Bills Against Big Mitt Men.

Indictments were returned by the grand jury yesterday against Edward Burke, Charles Howard and William Edwards, the Minneapolis "big mitt" men. All three are charged with swindling. Charles Howard has already been convicted of forgery in connection with the alleged swindling game and is serving time at Stillwater. Edward Burke was arrested when he returned from Minneapolis as a witness in Howard's case and has been held at the county jail ever since to await the action of the grand jury. Edwards is the only one of the three men not in custody, his whereabouts being unknown although the authorities have been on the watch for him several months.

The information against the men is that they swindled Joseph Benning, a country boy out of $8 in a fake poker game at the Merchants hotel in this city. Howard gave Benning a forged check to keep him still until he could see his confederates and get the boy's money back, but Benning tried to get the check cashed, when it was found to be bogus and Howard was arrested.

REFUSES A DIVORCE.

Josephine Miner Fails to Get Separation From Husband.

Judge Dibell, yesterday afternoon refused the petition of Josephine Miner for a decree of divorce from Ernest Miner. The defendant was present in court and contested the action. The plaintiff testified that the defendant treated her cruelly, accused her of infidelity and even threatened her life. The defendant introduced evidence for the purpose of disproving the allegations.

The divorce actions of Sleamay Demo against Leo Demo and Ealeanor Chamberlain against Charles Chamberlain, were heard in part. The case of Eleanor Swanson against Theodore Swanson was stricken from the calendar.

Following are the cases on trial:

Monday—8, 12, 17, 19, 20, 21, 23, 27, 28, 29, and 31.

Tuesday—33, 34, 35, 37, 43, 45 and 46.

Foundation Repaired.

Dr. J. A. Rene, health commissioner for the city of West Superior, has brought the matter of securing better sanitary conditions before the council of that city in such a way that immediate steps will be taken to clean up. Dr. Rene said the city would have to be cleaned at once or great danger would be threatened to the health of the inhabitants. He urged the council not to stand on technicalities or put the matter off longer as delay would be dangerous. The council appointed a committee to prepare a resolution ordering the necessary cleaning at once.

WANTS CLEANER CITY.

Superior's Health Officer Agitating the Matter.

The Northwestern Coal company has completed important repairs to its plant on St. Louis bay. The immense weight of the Brown hoist and machinery caused the foundation, which were too light to show signs of giving away in parts and repair work was carried on all last winter. A new hoisting rigging has been added which will permit of the unloading of steamers very rapidly, the machinery being operated by electricity. The unloading machinery is said to work faster than on any other coal dock in the country.

Several Western Union Boys Apply For Their Old Places.

A number of messenger boys that went out on a strike for higher wages ten days ago, went back to the Western Union yesterday at the old wage.

There are still a number of the boys that maintain the strike is still on, but they are getting scarcer each day. Manager Humes gave each boy a private lecture as he took them back yesterday and the boys say that he has been very fair with them throughout.

DEDICATED TO DEAD

Once More After Many Vicissitudes Is Milton Townsite.

Many Years of Vain Effort to Reclaim Weird Spot.

Alton, Ill., May 8.—The town of Milton, three miles from here, has again become a graveyard. Zephenlah B. Job, who owned the site, has donated it to a cemetery association and thus the old Indian burial ground becomes what the red men intended it should be.

Even when the mound builders were in Southern Illinois, Milton hill was a burying ground, and centuries later when the red men pitched their tepees on the banks of the rolling Mississippi, it was the resting place of the braves and chiefs whose spirits had departed for the "happy hunting ground." When the pale-faced pioneers came from the East, it was a spot venerated by the Indians in story and legend.

The immigrant of later years was not awed by the Indian tales. He was attracted by the beauties of the promontory overlooking Woods river, where it flowed down into the Mississippi, and a road was built through the old burying grounds, a bridge was thrown across the stream and a small settlement grew there.

Tales were told of travelers, even later than in the frontier days, who were never seen after stopping at the hill after starting through the long, covered bridge over Woods river. There was an illicit still there which the revenue officers did not dare attack. Gangs of horse thieves made their headquarters in the neighborhood and many a pursuer from Kentucky never came back over the hill.

With the advent of the railroad Milton hill was no longer comfortable for the outlaws. No others had the hardihood to settle in their abandoned homes.

The houses and taverns decayed and fell into ruins. Even crops of wheat and corn, it was declared, refused to flourish there. Indian relic hunters dug into the graves for arrow heads and trophies. Persons from the surrounding country drove across the country at night in fear and trembling. A sixty-acre spot in the center of the hill finally came into possession of Zephenlah B. Job.

Not more than ten years ago all Alton was agog over the story of a ghost that was said to make the night hideous with its mourning wails on Milton hill. For miles in either direction, declared the superstitious, its cries could be heard, and travelers told how they had lashed their horses into foam to escape from the doleful sounds which kept ringing in their ears. Each account was more terrible than the preceding, and even the most skeptical came to the conclusion that one of its old-time tragedies was nightly being re-enacted on Milton hill.

Finally, so persistent had become the ghost story that hunting parties were organized in Alton. The territory was stalked by the hunters in parties of threes and fours. The hunters declared they heard mournful cries, first from one side, then from another.

On one of these midnight ghost hunts a young calf was shot. A ghost hunter had fired a shot at random in the direction of the uncanny noise. There was an unusually loud bleat, and then silence. The next morning the calf was found dead in the ravine whence the ghostly cries had previously been heard. They were never heard again on Milton hill, and a few scoffers in Alton now assert that the wails never had supernatural origin.

Though the ghost cries ceased, the nature of Milton hill did not change. One stormy night last autumn a wagon load of colored persons were driving back to Alton from a barn party. The night was dark, and the road could be seen only by the fitful flashes of lightning.

"Just as we passed the place where 'Lead' Pete was killed there come a flash of lightning, and there, galivanting alongside of us, was a horse without any head. Its head was cut off just behind its ears, and blood was running down its black neck," declared Luke Holcomb, who was one of the party.

"You imagined you saw a headless horse, didn't you, Luke?" a man asked skeptically.

"Indeed we didn't, for old Mose Taylor and Aunt Betsy Brown an' everyone else in the wagon saw the horse," he replied solemnly, "and we just whipped up our old plug, but when the lightning flashed the black ghost-horse was there everytime. When we crossed the bridge into Alton he stopped, but my horse, Pete, was so tired he couldn't walk for two days."

Once there was a covered bridge crossing Woods river, and on the shore opposite the old Indian burying ground stood a road-house. Travelers told uncanny tales of apparitions they had met in the bridge, and other persons told of travelers who had been seen leaving the road-house and entering the bridge, but had never appeared at the opposite side. One night, years ago, John Montgomery, a brother-in-law of Zephenlah Job, stopped at the road-house. He was returning to his home in Alton, and made no attempt to deny that he was well supplied with money. Before he prepared to continue toward Alton, the man who had been sitting at the supper table left the house. Montgomery a moment later showed a new revolver he had purchased. The women left with him at the supper table begged that he remain at the town. When he refused they urged him not to pass through the covered bridge.

He started through the bridge. One of the women, unknown to him, timorously followed. As he reached the center of the bridge, where not a ray of light penetrated, a white figure rose suddenly in front of the horse's head. The animal reared in fright, and Montgomery shot at the apparition. It dropped and the horse dashed over it, and out of the bridge.

As soon as he could control the frightened animal, he turned and rode back into the bridge. Where the meeting had occurred there was a dark object on a background of white. Dismounting and striking a light he found the woman who a few minutes before had begged him not to go to Alton lying unconscious across the body of her dying husband. The bullet had killed the "ghost" and his blood was coloring the white sheet, which had signaled death for the last time.

Years later, down over this same covered bridge, Zephenlah R. Job clattered in an open wagon with three handcuffed prisoners as companions. An infuriated mob was in close pursuit, but he eluded it and turned his prisoners over to the authorities in Alton. A German peddler had been murdered and three men were arrested in Edwardsville. A rope was stretched across the court house square, and Sheriff Job threatened to shoot the first man who stepped across to lay hand on the prisoners. Nels Montgomery, his brother-in-law, was pushed forward to cross the line.

"If you step over I'll shoot you, Nels!" shouted the determined man, and Montgomery retreated.

In later years horse thieves passed over the same route. Concealed in the hills, the illicit still existed in arrogant defiance of the authorities. A few miles from the notorious house at the bridge's end was another roadhouse, the "Three-Mile house." Its walls still bear witness to the bloody carouses of the rough settlers of the vicinity.

With such a history Milton hill cannot escape from its past, and though the dare-devils who once lived around it have long since passed away the memory of them remains. Zephenlah B. Job, 87 years old, knows every story, legendary or historical, clustering about the weird spot. To him it seems destined by nature for a burial place, and for this purpose he has again dedicated it after so many years of vain effort to reclaim it.

INSPECTED THE CANAL

Commission's Sub-Committee Has Returned From the Isthmus.

New York, May 8.—Rear Admiral J. G. Walker, Gen. P. G. Haines and Professor William H. Burr, composing the sub-committee on the Panama canal commission, arrived today on the steamer Alliance from Colon. The committee went over the line of the canal and inspected the work.

Maj. Black of the engineering corps remained at the isthmus with a company of engineers to complete the preliminary work of the canal route. The commission sailed from here about a month ago.

Rear Admiral Walker, on his arrival today, said:

"Our visit to the isthmus was for inspection only. We looked over the work that has been and is being done and everything appeared to be going on satisfactorily. I, of course, cannot say much about our visit and its results until we have made our report to the general committee in Washington."

PANIC CAUSED

By Attempt to Blow Up a Powder Magazine.

Constantinople, May 8.—The attempt made Wednesday by a band of Bulgarians to blow up a powder magazine at Monastir caused a panic in that town. The shops and bazaars were instantly closed. It is believed the attack was made with the view of provoking reprisals. The military authorities, however, cordoned the Mohammedan quarter and prevented the Mussulmens from getting on. All the consulates were furnished with guards. The attacking party, which was surprised by Turkish troops, ultimately fled after a number of men had been killed or wounded.

COMMISSION IS IGNORED

Railroads Will Raise Rates on Coal From Duluth.

St. Paul, May 8.—The Minneapolis and St. Louis and Northern Pacific railways have decided to ignore the state railroad and warehouse commission in its attempt to enforce a joint rate on hard coal from Duluth to New Ulm and other points in Southern Minnesota. The roads have notified the commission that they will abolish the present joint rate and establish one more to their liking after June 1. They maintain that the rate as fixed by the commission is too low to allow the many profit on the traffic. The announcement of their decision came as a surprise to the commission as they have been sustained in their contention by a decision of the United States supreme court. They will take immediate steps, through the attorney general, to compel the roads to maintain the present rate. The New Ulm rate has been in force since 1899.

When first it was ordered the Minneapolis & St. Louis refused to accept it, and mandamus proceedings were begun to compel it to do so. The state courts decided in favor of the commission, and on appeal the United States supreme court reaffirmed this decision.

OLD AND NEW WAY.

Hyomei the Latest Scientific Discovery For the Cure of Catarrh.

The discovery of Hyomei has wrought a wonderful change in the treatment of catarrh.

Prior to three years ago the medicines ordinarily employed in the cure of this disease were nauseating drugs and worthless tonics. In some instances they benefited, but the improvement was not lasting.

With Hyomei you take into the air passages of the throat and head a balsamic air that goes to the minutest cells, effectually killing all germs and microbes of catarrh. It enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood, and restores health to the whole system. Many astonishing testimonials have been received from those who have been cured by Hyomei.

N. G. Durham, 23 Wellington street, Boston, Mass., writes: "I have suffered from catarrh for a number of years. I tried Hyomei and found it the only cure for that disease I ever used."

Perhaps the strongest evidence that can be given to doubters is the fact that S. F. Boyce has so much faith in Hyomei that he sells every package under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Now is the time to begin the use of Hyomei.

TWELVE MEN LOST LIVES

Canadian Pacific Wreck Near Port Arthur Was Serious.

Port Arthur Ont., May 8.—One of the worst accidents in the history of railroading in the West occurred yesterday on the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway near Dexter station, fifty-two miles east of this place. Twelve men imprisoned in the wreckage of a derailed work train were either killed outright or burned to death. Eight others were frightfully burned and a number of them will die. The men were asleep when the train left the track. The dead:

FREDERICK FLUKE, Ivon Hudeau.
MARK CAURIEO.
F. BYSTRON.
A. WATIN.
L. LARSON.
F. MONKMAN.
C. DANGTUNK.
G. LUNDMARK.
A. JOHNSON.
T. ERICCSON.
A. KENDLO.

The injured: Joe Dupont, E. E. Yard, J. Gagnan, B. Kimball, J. Jacobson, J. Noolin, S. R. Welch, James M. Reid, of Port Arthur and Winnipeg.

The train was running at high speed when it was derailed, presumably by the breaking of an axle.

Every car left the track and plunged down an embankment into the ditch. The men who were killed were asleep in what is known as the "boarding" car, which was attached to the rear of the train. There were thirty men in the car. It was crushed like an egg shell, killing some of the men outright and pinning others under the wreckage so that they could not extricate themselves. Fire added its horror to the scene, the splintered woodwork of the car being ignited by an overturned stove.

The men who escaped injury at once set to work to liberate the imprisoned workmen, but they were driven back time and again by the flames which spread rapidly. It looked for a time as though every man in the wrecked car would perish.

One of the imprisoned men succeeded in extricating himself unaided and smashing a window crawled out under the wreckage. He reported that several others, some of them badly injured, were lying near the window. The rescuers went to work with a will and succeded in getting ten or twelve men through the shattered windows. The flames meanwhile were growing fiercer and the men finally were driven from the work of rescue by the intense heat. The injured were sent to the Fort William hospital.

DIED BROKEN HEARTED.

His Only Son Would Not Help Him.

New York, May 8.—Penniless and in absolute want Col. Asa Philip Stanford, brother of the late multi-millionaire, Leland Stanford, of California, died of a broken heart at his home yesterday, according to his widow, his only son having failed to aid him in his distress. His widow says that the last of his fortune was lost in speculation with Dr. Richard Flower.

When his brother, Leland Stanford, died he left him $100,000, of which Col. Stanford used $80,000 in paying debts he had contracted while operating in Wall street. The remaining $20,000 he lent to his only living son, Jerome, who went to San Francisco.

About the middle of April he drew on his son Jerome in San Francisco for $100 to tide him over. Only a short while ago the draft was returned to the bank unhonored. It was some months before Col. Stanford realized what had happened. Mrs. Stanford said he was simply heartbroken.

A STARTLING TEST.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at all druggists.

TO INCREASE STOCK.

Canadian Pacific Railway to Raise Its Capital.

New York, May 8.—It is probable the Canadian Pacific will increase its common stock from $85,000,000 to $100,000,000, giving stockholders a right to subscribe for the new stock on terms which will net them a fair profit. The new money probably will be applied to building extensions and it is likely there will also be an issue of securities to finance the steamship deal. The issue of new stock with rights is expected to determine the dividend and it is now stated that any increase in the rate next fall is unlikely. Stockholders will be given some rights in connection with the new stock issue, but such other securities as may be issued will in all probability be old on terms more favorable to the company than if all the money were to be raised through the sale of 5 per cent common stock. At par the rights on $15,000,000 would be regarded as a fairly handsome privilege.

The directors will meet some time this month and the meeting will be very important as the policy of the company on the frontier is to be decided as well as the question of dividends, and this matter of financing. It may be stated that in Canadian Pacific circles here the opinion prevails that the company will use its debenture stock as far as possible to finance the new lines, and that bonds will be issued to be cured on the steamships purchased.

BOOM IS STARTED

For Cannon of Illinois For Vice President.

Washington, May 8.—A somewhat sensational story is going the rounds in Washington political circles to the effect that Congressman Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois may be asked to accept the Republican nomination for vice president. The story created a great deal of talk. The information obtained credits Mr. Cannon's staunch friends and henchmen in Illinois with promoting the movement to secure the vice presidential nomination for him.

Leading Republican politicians here cannot make up their minds that Mr. Cannon is in a mood to accept the vice presidential nomination and they do not know why any one who professes to be friendly to him should insist upon naming him in this connection. In the house the speakership, which office Mr. Cannon is to hold, is a place of great power and influence in shaping legislation, while in the senate the vice president has no authority whatever.

SMALLPOX SCARE

Hibbing Reports Are That Epidemic Is Exaggerated.

Health Officer Rood Says There Is But Eight Cases.

An official statement on the smallpox situation at Hibbing by Dr. D. C. Rood, who is in charge there, sent at 12:10 o'clock this noon, would tend to show that reports have been somewhat exaggerated.

Dr. Rood, in his message this noon to the offices of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, said that the epidemic is largely scare, and that there are at present but eight cases of smallpox in Hibbing.

Some precautions are being taken, however, among which are:

The prohibiting of an opera troupe to show at the opera house last evening, and the cancelling of all dates for theatrical companies for some time to come; the fumigation of all passenger trains running in and out of the city, a precaution for the safety of the traveling public. General Manager McGonagle announces; and the quarantine of certain buildings in the city.

Dr. Rood says in his dispatch:

"There are eight cases of smallpox, six of which are light, the two others being severe. Three unvaccinated persons are being held in quarantine."

The two cases are probably of the malignant form of smallpox, which caused the scare.

"The whole situation is," said Dr. Rood, "largely scare. There is no danger of anyone coming into Hibbing contracting the disease now, and there have been no new cases. The reports have been largely exaggerated, for we have the epidemic under control now and are keeping it confined to quarantined buildings."

There were rumors around Duluth this morning to the effect that the mining officials were getting their families out of the city, and that many were coming to Duluth. The hotel registers did not show an influx of members of the families of mining men of that city at noon today.

Telephonic conversations with residents of Hibbing this morning disclosed that there was a great deal of the "scare" among residents there, and one mining man telephoned a relative here that he was exceedingly anxious about his family and hardly knew what to do.

There is little danger of the city being quarantined, though it is said the state board of health has been appealed to and will probably send Dr. Bracken or some physician of the department here shortly to make an investigation of the conditions.

There are a large number of traveling men in Duluth who refuse to make their range trips on account of the reports of the disease.

That the fact that newspapers do not seem to be able to get figures and facts regarding the situation there would tend to show that something was being secreted from the outside public.

"If I knew just what the exact situation was," said one this noon, "I would just as leave go up there, but I don't want to take chances on being tied up by a quarantine. If residents of a place where smallpox broke out, weren't so foolish, the injury in a business way would be a minimum.

"I heard about the epidemic at St. Paul Monday, and there it was said that the people were fleeing by the dozens to get out of the place. Up here I find that no one seems to know a thing about what the situation is and I'll wait."

"The reports appear to me to be mostly scare," said Mr. McGonagle, of the Missabe road, this noon, "and the report of Dr. Rood is official. We have been fumigating our cars and will continue to do so, because it is a precaution that would prevent any spread if infected persons rode in the cars, which does not seem probable, under the circumstances. But we will aid the authorities in every way if they believe that they have the disease under control and desire precautionary assistance."

GET JUDGMENT.

H. F. Flick and Others Win Mortgage Foreclosure.

Judge Dibell has filed a decision in district court in the case of Henry F. Fleck et al against Frank G. Stevens, R. L. Mahon, as trustee of the estate of Charles Schiller, bankrupt, and others. The court rules that the plaintiff is entitled to judgment against the defendants; that there is due on a note, coupons and mortgage described in the complaint, $6864 with interest at 8 per cent from Oct. 20, 1894, on $416 from Oct. 20, 1895, on $416 from Oct. 20, 1896, and on $5616 from Oct. 20, 1897. The ruling also holds that the premises described in the complaint must be sold to satisfy the amounts adjudged to be due, and in case the proceeds are not enough to cover the judgment, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment against the defendants, F. G. Stevens and W. F. Quayle, for such deficiency. All the defendants are foreclosed from right or interest in the property except in the right of redemption.

A Flurry In Wheat

By Henry Munsing.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

When pretty Dorothy Strang induced her father to take her to the metropolis she had no idea of making a great sensation in the business world. Indeed, she had no idea of making a sensation of any kind, her main though being to see all the wonderful sights of the great city, go to as many theaters and operas as she could induce "papa" to take her to, do as much shopping as he would pay for and return home with some new hats and gowns that would paralyze the feminine portion of the town with envy and the masculine with admiration.

If anybody had suggested that this petite and vivacious damsel of 18 would break the most scientifically conceived wheat corner ever planned on the board, send the oldest and wisest of the bulls and bears scurrying for cover and make and unmake scores of fortunes, the suggestion would have been received with derision—and by nobody more skeptically than the little lady herself. But this is just what happened and it happened despite the fact that Miss Dorothy had no more idea regarding the wheat market or what transpired on the board of trade than her pet canary and could no more have grasped the idea significance of puts and calls than she could have translated ancient Arabic.

Jerome Strang was a successful merchant and a shrewd business man. With all his hard-headed business sense he dearly loved a speculation, and it was whispered among his business associates that he frequently took a flyer in grains or stocks—and it was also whispered that he generally won.

On the occasion of his visit to the metropolis when Dorothy broke the wheat corner, truth to tell, he made the trip almost solely for the purpose of participating in that same corner, although he gave it out most solemnly in his family and to his business associates that he was making the trip to buy goods.

On the second day after their arrival he announced that a business associate to whom he had mentioned the fact that his daughter was with him, had invited them to attend the theater with him.

"Oh, how horrid," pouted Dorothy, disturbed by visions of thin-lipped old gentlemen with gray side-whiskers who talk perenially of business conditions, the tariff and the money market, or of fat-faced, bald-headed salesmen with huge mustaches and much jewelry, who would tell funny stories and patronize her.

"I think you will like him," replied her father. "He's young and handsome and a very well-informed and entertaining gentleman. At any rate it is exceedingly courteous in him to invite us and we must show him that we appreciate it."

Now, if Herbert Hollister had not put himself out, much against his inclination, to do a courteous act to a customer who had become a powerful factor in the great wheat deal he was engineering, and who promised to be a most valuable ally in the future deals, he never would have met Miss Dorothy, his wheat deal would not have been smashed to smithereens—and several other things would not have happened which did happen.

Hollister was one of the coming men on the board. Indeed he had already "come" and although well inside the thirties had engineered some very clever deals of a minor sort in which he had trimmed up the oldest and wisest of the traders and had besides been a considerable factor in some of the big deals of the past few years. His quick eye, ready judgment and lightning execution had won the respect and admiration of the "street," and it was freely predicted that he would become a multi-millionaire. Already he had acquired a very substantial fortune.

With great affairs in his head it is small wonder that he groaned inwardly at the prospect of an entire evening with a provincial maiden, probably of doubtful beauty and charms and equipped beyond doubt to converse only upon the most commonplace affairs. An evening alone with the father would have promised substantial results, as Hollister had discovered the sound sense and far-seeing vision of Jerome Strang.

With these uncomplimentary views of each other and with mutual apprehensions of boredom did Hollister and Dorothy meet. The meeting was a shock to both. Hollister beheld the most graceful and piquant vision he had ever beheld—a jaunty little piece of femininity with all the freshness of girlhood, and country girlhood at that, and at the same time all the budding promise of a glorious womanhood; a figure beyond criticism surmounted by a face as finely chiseled as that of a Greek goddess. But the eyes were what riveted his attention—the eyes and the mouth. Her eyes were as black as night and their depths were unfathomed, while the lips were cupid's own—and over all and through all was that sauciness or rather vitality which always drives men crazy.

On her part she confronted the most distinguished appearing gentleman she had ever met. Tall, straight and elegant of form, his clear cut features and fresh complexion were admirably set off by the touch of gray in hair and mustache which, while not suggesting age, gave pronounced dignity and character to the tout ensemble. He was attired in the height of fashion and carried himself with the quiet ease of a gentleman and a man of the world.

The evening was a revelation to Dorothy—from the luxurious enjoyment of the box at the theater to the perfect supper afterward. Also did it contain a new sensation to Hollister. The result was several similar evenings. In fact Hollister quite attached himself to the Strangs and found it not a bore at all to assist Jerome Strang to entertain his fascinating daughter.

One evening—fatal evening.—he suggested that Dorothy might be interested in the antics of the bulls and bears, and it was arranged that her father should bring her the next day to his office from whence he would accompany them to the board and explain it all to the young woman. So on the following morning the girl found herself in Hollister's private office. Of a sudden Strang discovered that he had forgotten to deliver a message to a firm downstairs and charged on with the assurance that he would return in a few moments. A moment later Hollister was summoned to the long distance 'phone and Dorothy found herself in entire possession of the office. She seated herself at Hollister's desk. A messenger boy came tearing in and slammed down an open message.

"Want an answer right away," he snorted.

She glanced at the message while trying to frame a sentence to convey the idea that Hollister would be back presently. It was open and she could not full to read the sententious sentence: "Will you sell 100,000 bushels of May wheat?"

In an instant the oft-repeated axiom of her father regarding business came to her: "It's always easy to buy goods; the trick is to sell them." She would show Hollister that she knew something of business. Anyway, had he not laughingly told her that she was in charge during his absence?

Reaching for a pad of paper she wrote: "Sell all you can," and signed Hollister's name to it.

He came back presently and began to rafle her in his teasing way.

"Well, anyway I made a big deal for you while you were out," she said.

"And I owe you a commission, I suppose," he returned gallantly. "Well, what is it?"

A trifle peaked she shoved the message received to him.

"I answered it," she said proudly.

"You did?" he said. "And what did you say?"—still chaffing.

"Oh, I said to sell all they could," she said proudly, tapping the desk with a letter opener.

He glanced at her smiling, then thoughtfully.

"Joking aside, Miss Strang, did you answer the message?"

"Certainly," she replied. "Papa always told us that it was easy enough to buy, but the trick was to sell, and the boy said he had to have an answer right away, so I just thought I would clinch the deal. Is my hat on straight, Mr. Hollister?"

But he was already out of the door grabbing his hat on the run.

"Funny," she thought. Presently her father came in and she related the circumstance to him, complaing at Hollister's abrupt exit. Jerome Strang turned fairly green as he grasped the significance of it all.

"Come, let's go to the board," was all he said, and he hustled her to the elevator and to the gallery of the great market of trade. The scene was something fierce even to old members. To Dorothy it was pandemonium let loose. And there amongthe crazy, shouting lunatics, was Hollister, hair disheveled and hand in air shouting louder than anybody.

"Mercy, what makes them act like that?" asked Dorothy, putting her fingers in her ears.

"Principally you," replied her father gravely.

After a time Hollister came to them. In answer to Strang's questioning look he said quietly: "I guess we have saved ourselves, but five minutes later would have wiped us out. The message has been shown to everybody and the slump had begun. All I could do was to sell faster than anybody. A lot of them suspected a trick and covered, so I figure we will come out about even—but it was a close shave and the deal is off. No corner can obtain now."

They went back to the office. Strang had some business with the bookkeeper and again Dorothy was left alone with Hollister in the private office. She felt the strained atmosphere.

"Tell me, Mr. Hollister, did I do anything bad?" she demanded.

"Well," he said, smiling a far away smile, "you broke the strongest corner in wheat that has happened in ten years and lost something like $1,000,000 for a clique of which your father and I are allied."

"Oh, I'm so sorry," she said. "I didn't mean to."

"I am the principal loser," he said sternly, watching her closely. "I was in charge of the deal and the slip came from my office. There is only one way you can pay the damage."

"Dear me," she replied dismayed and ready to cry, "how is that?"

"By giving me—yourself," he said softly.

PROFESSORS IN COLLEGES

Discuss Relationship of College to Professional School.

Chicago, May 8.—College professors from all parts of the country were in attendance today at the opening session of the conference called by the Northwestern university to discuss the subject of the relationship of the college to the professional school. President Edmund J. James, of the Northwestern university, welcomed the delegates, after which an introductory paper entitled "The Present Situation," was read by Professor Abraham Van Eps Young, of the Northwestern university. President Edward D. Eaton, of Beloit college; President M. P. Dowling, of Creighton university, and President George Chase, of Bates college, presented papers on the topic. "Has the college a field peculiar to itself, not covered by the technical schools or by the demands of preparation for the professional school?"

A discussion of the papers followed, those participating being President William F. King, Cornell college; President Thomas McClelland, Knox college, Rev. J. H. Thomas, late president of Oxford college.

After luncheon the question of reducing the college course from four to three or even two years and making a corresponding reduction in the amount of work required, was taken up. President George E. Merrill, of Colgate university, led in the discussion and was followed by President Merrifield, of the university of North Dakota, and President Charles Needham, of Columbian university.

ROCKEFELLER IS DEFENDED

Chancellor Andrews Says Enemies Are Slandering Him.

Chicago, May 8.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Lincoln, Neb., says: In an address before the students of the university of Nebraska, Chancellor E. Benjamin Andrews has referred to a proposed gift of John D. Rockefeller and defended the latter. "The Standard Oil trust has not offered any money to anybody," the chancellor said. "The gift," he declared, "was offered by John D. Rockefeller, who had drawn but a small part of his wealth from the Standard Oil company, the remainder being drawn from railroads, mines and other enterprises."

"Rockefeller came up from the ranks," he continued, "and I have occasion to know that many of those who have inherited their wealth are using every means of vituperation against Mr. Rockefeller, including even the newspapers."

WHEAT IS HIGHER

Market Advances In Spite of Armour's Reported Withdrawal.

Flax Has a Sharp Advance but Loses Much of It.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 8.—The wheat market was something of a surprise this morning for it was supposed that the general sentiment that Armour had slipped out of the July would bring a further decline in that option. Contrary to that expectation, however, the market advanced. Minneapolis was the strongest market, leading the advance. St. Louis was sending out some bearish reports on wheat condition, but the Modern Miller was not especially dubious as to the crop outlook, reporting a poor condition in Missouri but fairly satisfactory elsewhere. The cables were comparatively steady in all markets except Paris, where there was a decline of ½c to 1½c. Liverpool was ½d higher to ½d lower, Antwerp and Berlin unchanged, and Budapest ½c higher. There was some export demand. New York reporting 20 loads worked for shipment to the other side. In the Duluth market a few loads were worked, but the demand was not brisk. Argentine shipments for the week were 2,568,000 bushels, against 2,416,000 bushels last week and 612,000 bushels last year. The shipments from January 1 to date have been 32,136,000 bushels, while in the same period a year ago they were only 13,352,000 bushels. Primary receipts of wheat were 267,000 bushels; last year 248,000 bushels. Shipments were 445,000 bushels; last year, 349,000 bushels. Clearances were 160,000 bushels. Argentine shipments this week were 1,336,000 bushels, against 734,000 bushels last week and 504,000 bushels last year.

The total Argentine shipments from January 1 to date have been 3,360,000 bushels, against 3,588,000 bushels in the same period last year.

Trading in wheat was fairly active on the Duluth board July opened unchanged at 76⅝c and sold at 76⅞c at 9:45. It receded to 76¾c a few moments later and then sold at 77c at 11c. After that it fluctuated between 77c and 76¾c, and finally closed at 77c, an advance for the day of ⅛c and an advance of ¼c in Chicago the May option advanced ⅛c and July ⅜@⅝c. In Minneapolis May was up ⅛c and July ⅝c. In New York the advance in May was ⅛@⅝c and in July ⅝c.

Cash prices continued at May price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2. Business was very dull and sales were practically nothing.

Flax was again very strong today, until shortly before the close when a considerable part of the gain was lost. July sold ⅝c up to $1.16⅝, and then fell back and closed at $1.16¼. May closed ½c up. Argentine flax shipments were 616,000 bushels, against 781,000 bushels last week and 92,000 bushels last year.

There was an advance of ½c in oats to arrive and on track.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive No. 1 hard 79¾c; No. 1 northern 77¾c; No. 2 northern 76¾; May No. 1 hard 79¾c; No. 1 northern 77¾c; July 77c; September 76¾c. Flax in store $1.15¼; to arrive $1.15¼, on track $1.15¼; May, $1.15¼; July $1.16¼; Sept. $1.17¼; Oct. $1.17; November $1.15¼. Oats to arrive, on track 34c; May 33½c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Firm, Considerable Fluctuating Following.

Chicago, May 8.—Wheat opened firm on relatively steady cables, the market at Liverpool showing but little response to the decline here yesterday and July was a shade to 3-16@⅜c higher at 71⅝c to 71¾c. Selling by scalpers on the advance influenced by the better weather conditions soon caused a reaction and July sold off to 71⅛c but commission house buying brought about a rally later and the loss was then regained, July advancing to 72@72⅛c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 81 cars, which, with local receipts of 34 cars, two of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 115 cars, against 155 cars last week and 304 cars a year ago.

The market developed strength as the session advanced, the bear side of the local demand throughout the day. The strength at Minneapolis was also a supporting factor. Closing prices were at the top notch of the day, July being up 5-16@⅜ at 72⅛c and May 1c higher at 76½c.

There was a good local demand for corn at the start on higher cables and opening prices were firm, July being a shade to ⅛c higher at 41½@41⅝c to 41⅝c, and with offerings rather light the market became stronger, July advancing to 45c during the first half hour of trading. Local receipts were 228 cars, ten of contract grade.

Firmness continued during the remainder of the day, July closing ⅝c higher at 44⅝c.

Trading in oats was light with some selling by scalpers on the improved weather and a smaller cash demand. Opening prices were steady with July unchanged at 31⅞c but the firmness in other grains made itself felt in this pit and a firmer tone developed, July selling up to 32½c. Local receipts were 118 cars.

Provisions opened practically where they left off last night and there was little change in prices during the early part of the session. Trading was dull and featureless. July pork opened unchanged, at $17.15, July lard was shade higher at $9.15, and ribs unchanged at $9.37½.

Close: Wheat, May 76¾@c; July 72⅝c; September 70@⅞c. Corn—May, 44@44⅛c; July 44⅜c; September 44⅝@⅝c. Oats—May 33¼c; July 32⅛@⅜c; September 29⅝c. Pork—May $18.50; July $17.15; Sept. $16.65. Lard—May $8.90; July $9.00; Sept. $9.12½. Ribs—May $9.30; July $9.35; Sept. 9.30. Rye May 49⅝c; July 49¾c. Flax—Cash N. W. $1.15; S. W. $1.11; May, $1.11; July $1.14. Timothy—May $3.50; Clover—May $12.50. Barley—Cash 42@56. Cash wheat 2 red 78@½c; 3 red 76@76½c; 2 hard winter 76@74c; 3 hard winter 76@74c; 1 northern spring 80c; 2 northern spring, 76@80c; 3 spring 72@79c. Corn—2, 44@46c; 3, 43¾@44c. Oats—2, 32; 3, 31.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The tone of the market was strong. Locally it is something of a surprise in view of the accepted theory that Armour sold from five to seven millions July wheat yesterday. If this is true the market has digested it very quickly and it is not apparent while the buyers were. In any event there was very little selling pressure today after the first hour. Cables showed steadiness and the cash business so far as reported is no better than fair. There are some scattered reports of shipping up wheat in Kansas but it lacks confirmation. No change in crop advices from Europe except that the weather has improved in France. The statistical position is bunish to the extent of light stocks. It still looks to us like a good scalping market and we would buy wheat on sharp breaks for moderate profits. Estimated cars 65.

Corn—Market here was again firm but rather quiet. Shippers were after No. 2 corn and bidding ½c over May. The continued cool weather prevents any very bearish feeling although the planting is probably going on about as usual. In some places it is interfered with by too much rain. Until the outlook for the next crop is better assured we do not look for any great selling pressure. Estimated cars 230.

Oats—Market is moderately active and firm. The continued cool tendency of the weather is the most active influence. Shipping demand was perhaps a little better and there was considerable covering of May shorts but on the whole the cash situation continues a quiet one. So far as July and September are concerned, it seems largely a weather may. Estimated cars 125.

Modern Miller: Returns from correspondents covering the principal winter wheat states of the central region in reply to a special inquiry regarding the condition of winter wheat and the extent damage by unfavorable weather fly or frost indicate that in Illinois and Missouri the crop is the poorest. The plant has deteriorated greatly in both of these states, especially in the southern sections and claims of damage from 5 to 33 per cent are made to the cold wet spring is the unfavorable change generally ascribed though in Illinois the Hessian fly is claimed to have worked injury. Reports from Ohio and Indiana generally show excellent conditions and there are few claims of damage. South of the Ohio river conditions are good. Kansas reports slight deterioration through dry cold weather but no frost in the morning. In the southwest territories and in Texas the crop suffered from drought but later rains have been beneficial. Improvement is noted in Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

Chicago Record-Herald: Wheat traders advised their houses yesterday that they thought Armour had sold 5,000,000 bushels of wheat during the day. The market was suggestive of the one in January, when the Armour people decided to get out of a hole in May. On that January day the Armour selling a good deal exceeded 5,000,000 bushels on some, though it reached 10,000,000 bushels. Yesterday's experience was almost as notorious. The first sign of something out of the ordinary was selling on a quick sale by all the so-called St. Louis houses. It was learned here that the orders did not come from there. There was no other proof that the selling was by Armour than the volume of it. It was not easy to think any one who would put some millions of wheat on the market with Armour holding his line.

Rycroft of Chicago: Our Liverpool agent wires the weather there and on continent is generally favorable and crop reports are somewhat better. The prospects are for an average crop in the United Kingdom but below an average in France and Germany. The balance of the continent will probably have average crops provided weather keeps favorable.

Chicago: The following letter is from M. T. Russell, our agent at Des Moines, Iowa: "Last Monday morning a special car went out from here on the Rock Island road carrying officials of the road and representatives of all line houses here. I spent yesterday with them. They went North to the state line, Northwest and West. They went out on an investigating tour to get the bottom facts in regard to crop conditions in Iowa on that line of road. On the return trip last night the unanimous verdict was that the acreage of oats is an average of the last five years, and the condition at the present time of the growing crop is all that could be asked and as perfect as can be. Farmers anticipating poor seed, sewed an unusual amount, the consequence is there never was a better stand. Plowing and planting are in full blast in every section of the state visited. Corn planters running in nearly every field. With good weather from now on, the 28th day of the month will find all the corn planted in Iowa with from five to ten per cent increase in acreage over last year. Farmers have been unusually careful in selecting seed and with seasonable weather anticipate no trouble in regard to its germinating."

McQuilliston, of Chicago: Some of the wise bears covering their short wheat this morning from 71½@⅝c up to 72c because they think Armour is now in a position, if the opportunity presents itself, to take on as much July wheat as the crowd would sell him around these prices, as the yellow-wagon bull is undoubtedly short a big line of September wheat, and that will be a pretty good hedge for any July wheat he would care to buy. At present I do not think the bull manipulator is long any July wheat, but they are certainly in a position to take a jag of this option should the bears get very gay.

STRENGTH SHOWN

In Stocks Towards Close and Rally on Short Covering.

Talk of Lower Pig Iron Prices Weakened Steel Shares.

New York, May 8.—Opening prices of stocks showed very small changes from last night and trading was very light. The majority was on the side of gains. St. Louis & San Francisco, however, dropped a point, owing to disappointment over the failure to make the expected official announcement of the deal with Rock Island. Rock Island hardened a shade. National Railroad of Mexico preferred was up 3¾.

Continued selling of Rock Island and St. Louis & San Francisco had a dampening effect on the market and prices eased off slightly. Rock Island lost nearly a point and St. Louis & San Francisco, 2¾. Prices elsewhere returned to yesterday's closing level or shade below but there was no pressure of consequence in the general market. Pere Marquette, National Railroad of Mexico, Realty preferred, Metropolitan securities and International Power declined a point each.

The market was exceedingly dull and sluggish and prices hung slightly below last night. Louisville, Tennessee Coal and Pressed Steel Car preferred declined a point and Colorado Fuel 1¾. St. Louis & San Francisco and Rock Island became steady with sympathetic effect on the market. Bonds were easier at noon.

Prices did not vary to any perceptible extent from the noon level, and the market was virtually stagnant. Northwestern declined 2¾c. The drift of prices became distinctly downward and some of the prominent stocks verged on one point losses. Trade is still of no importance and weak also. North American losing 3¾ in all. Grass Twin 3, and Wheeling & Lake Erie first and second preferred, Chicago & Alton preferred, and Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic between 1 and 2.

National Railroad of Mexico preferred rose rapidly 3¾ over last night, the common and United States Rubber a point. Delaware & Hudson and Copper, 1½ and United States Rubber preferred 1¾. Westinghouse Electric dropped 7, and rallied 7. St. Louis & San Francisco rallied a point. The late market stiffened all around on covering by room shorts. The close was dull and firm.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: In answer to inquiries about Southern Pacific will say no manipulation appears at present. Mr. Keene is long over 100,000 shares, which averages probably 55, and I believe he intends to hold same indefinitely as an investment. On the other hand ex-members of the pool are also long of at least 100,000 shares and any substantial advance would bring out a good deal of this stock. Therefore, it is unlikely that any attempt will be made to put up the price very far until the ex-pool members get tired and let go. I believe Harriman interests are prepared to take all that is offered around or below 55, so neither is there much decline likely. In my judgment the stock is good for a long pull but not for quick action. If we are in the early stages of a bull market stocks acted just right yesterday. Weak Thursday afternoon is quite according to program and on the same theory purchases are in order Friday morning usually about 11:30. If the market is going up prices should not go so low as on Tuesday, April 28. The present reaction should be about half of the advance from last Tuesday week's low and Wednesday last's high. I confess to being unable to feel very much bullish in the face of present dullness, although indications certainly point to gradually rising prices. There seems to be considerable pressure on Atchison. Probably you had best leave that stock alone for a time.

Paine, Webber & Co., Chicago Chronicle says: "The March earnings of the Soo line make a very good showing particularly in the matter of gross earnings. This item shows an increase of 25 per cent, while the net shows 8 per cent. The increase in gross was due to the movement of sellers towards the Canadian northwest. For the nine months the road shows an increase of 18 per cent in gross and 9 per cent for net."

• • •

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: There seems to be an active bear party getting to work again. They are using the rumor that the Atchison will issue bonds as a basis for an attack on that stock. If this is true that company will issue bonds, it will be extremely badly taken at this time.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: A bear drive is the cause to which observant brokers ascribe yesterday's set-back in prices, talk of gold exports and the backward season being the motives of sellers. There is a feeling in conservative circles, however, that the market acts well and naturally that while the reaction may go further, stocks are a purchase. The short interest is increasing, strong interests are buying on a scale down, money is easy and railroad earnings are increasing tremendously. This combination of favorable influences is counted on by advocates of the long side to more than counteract such adverse factors as the drop in United States Shipbuilding, delay in farm work and politics. The selling of Atchison is attributed to professional speculators, but it is considered significant that 5000 were dealt in around 80. The influence is that the Berwynd crowd is taking the stocks sold by bear traders. Despite the cold weather there is confidence in the crop outcome in Atchison territory and as a consequence Kansas farmers are expected to have another money-making year. This argument of good crops and high prices for them is the one most advanced in favor, not only of Atchison, but of Missouri Pacific and Rhode Island, moreover it is reported that these systems will make strong statements of net earnings for April. In the industrial list Copper is expected to be a bull card. The buying of this stock is attributed to Standard Oil and Lewishon interests and is based on earnings and the favorable outlook for an increase in dividends before the end of the year. There is a theory that Copper stock on a 4 per cent basis would sell above 80 and that should the directors decide to increase the dividend rate it would reach that price long before they take action.

New York to Coe Commission company: The Tennessee Coal & Iron company's surplus for the current quarter is expected to be a record-breaker. It is placed at $1,000,000 against $600,000 in the previous quarter. The opinion prevails that it cannot be long before the question of common stock dividend will be raised for discussion.

Sternberger to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Disappointment over the absence of outside interest caused the raid yesterday and as all the adverse rumors have proven false the result today should be higher prices an I a little more activity. It has been noticed for some time accumulation going on in both Readings, Delaware and Hudson and Amalgamated and on this account it is but natural to look for still higher prices in these shares. Bull tips are heard on Rock Island. The old story of re-adjustment of leather company's finances is again revived and a renewal of speculative buying is predicted.

New York to Coe Commission Company: James Campbell, of St. Louis, one of the group of capitalists that has owned control of the St. Louis and Santa Fe railway for a little time, is quoted as saying that the agreement between the Rock Island and 'Frisco for control of latter by the former has been signed. It is reported that the members of the 'Frisco pool will receive for their common stock five Rock Island collateral trust bonds at $90 and $60, income stock Rock Island, which would figure out $87 a share for 'Frisco common stock. The deal as closed it is understood does not involve the payment of any cash by the Rock Island.

Clark, Dodge & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is very much mixed and rather weak with most of the trading confined to the room. Amalgamated Copper was a strong feature on heavy buying by the inside pool. Missouri Pacific well bought on all recessions. The market is very limited, but the selling is of a poor character.

• • •

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was heavy again in the early trading being sold by traders on further talk of an Atchison bond issue. Most of the selling was for the short account and practically no long stock came out. Toward the close the tone became strong and there was a rally on short covering. Some of the steel stocks were weak on talk of lower prices for pig iron. Indications pointed to a fairly good bank statement for tomorrow. Traders were buying showed in Missouri Pacific.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: There is pool buying in the Mexican issues and Coppers are being bid up. The rest of the list dull and unchanged. There was some selling of Southern Pacific on poor statements. Trade is still in doubt as to the benefits, if any, in the Rock Island and 'Frisco deal. On the whole the market is bare of news and bare of buying orders. We think they should be sold on the swells.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was very dull and transactions light. In the middle of the day there was some profit-taking and prices sagged off, but before the close they braced up and became steady and inclined to advance. There was no news of any sort and it was a regular midsummer market.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Coppers were the active features of both markets. Amalgamated Copper advanced a point on heavy transactions and there was improved demand for several local coppers. The metal market was reported firmer and London quotations were higher. Feeling here is decidedly bullish and we shall not be surprised to see prices work considerably higher. The general market was dull and featureless.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 8.—The cotton market opened steady with prices unchanged to 9 points higher. The advance was on old crop positions and was entirely due to speculative reasons, consumers not being able to follow the market. The new crop months maintained a weak relation to the earlier positions on better climatic conditions in the central belt. Prices on the opening call, May cotton sold up to $11.01, having closed at 10.86 yesterday, thus making another new high record while July sold at 10.22 and August at 9.85. Later there was a decline of 5@10 points on the more active positions, with the new crop months quite neglected.

Cotton futures closed quiet and steady: May, 10.93; June, 10.21; July, 10.15; August, 9.82; Setember, 9.06; October, 8.73; November, 8.64; December, 8.65; January, 8.66.

Great Lake Dredge Company and Chicago Tugmen Disagree.

Steamers Monteagle and Turret Chief In Lake Ontario.

Trouble has arisen between the tugmen in the employ of the Chicago and Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company and as a result some of the most prominent labor leaders on the great lakes have been drawn into the dispute.

The trouble has arisen over the employment of three tugmen at Toledo.

In the agreement signed at Cleveland two months ago the tugmen were granted two firemen on dredge tugs at Chicago, South Chicago and Cleveland. At other ports one fireman is to be employed.

The Chicago company employed three men on each of its tugs at Toledo last year, but this year discharged one of the firemen from each of its tugs. The discharged men are demanding reinstatement.

In an effort to settle the dispute Daniel J. Keefe, president of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers union, Grand President McCarle of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association and Grand President Archie Vailquet of the Tug, Fire and Linemen's Protective association recently met with the executive board of the Tug and Dredge Owners' Protective association at Toledo.

The session lasted four hours, at the conclusion of which it was decided to leave the matter to arbitration.

GRAIN FREIGHTS EASY.

Chicago, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain freights were easy today, with few agents with boats on their hands to be provided for. Rates were steady at 1½ cents for wheat, with vesselmen securing that rate on corn for handy boats.

TWO STEAMERS ASHORE.

Kingston, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Monteagle, while coming into the harbor went aground on what is known as Carruthers shoal, near Swift's wharf. The steamer has wheat from Chicago for the Montreal Transportation company. The cargo is being lightered.

The steamer Turret Chief with 110,000 bushels of wheat from Fort William for the Montreal Transportation company, is ashore at Four Mile point.

HELD UP FOR DAMAGES.

Port Colbourne, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer James Kisk, Jr., was stopped in the Welland canal today for damages done to a barge and scow while coming down the canal last Saturday. A bond of $1,000 was given by the owner, and the steamer was allowed to proceed.

DREDGE MOVEMENTS.

The tonnage measurement papers of the new dredge Columbia which was recently launched at Cleveland have been filed with the local marine customs office. The papers show that the Columbia has a total length of 124.5 feet, has 40 feet beam and is 8.7 feet in depth. Her gross tonnage is 552 and her net tonnage 392.

The Columbia was built by the Duluth Dredge and Dock company, and is one of the most powerful dredges in the world.

Striking Superior Molders Must Work, Says National Officer.

Much Interest Over His Possible Action In Duluth.

John Campbell, fourth vice president of the iron molders' national organization, has been at the head of the lakes several days investigating the strike of the molders in Duluth and West Superior.

Over in West Superior the molders recently went on a strike for a nine-hour day and it is reported today that the national organization has ordered the strikers back to work, claiming that the strike was declared and put in effect without the sanction of the head office of the organization.

This action adds much interest to Mr. Campbell's visit to Duluth, and all interested are anxious to see if the national officers will order the Duluth molders back to work at the Clyde.

The consensus of opinion is that the local men will not be ordered back, as the grounds on which the strike was declared are different from those in West Superior, despite the fact that the members of the union quit work without authority from their international headquarters' office.

In Duluth the Clyde molders went on a strike because the superintendent of the shop put in non-union machinists to replace the union machinists that struck for a 9-hour day about April 1.

Since the molders went out non-union molders have been brought from other cities, and it is claimed that the national organization will not seek to compel the local men to return to work with non-union men.

There is a report current that the Clyde management will offer to take back all the union molders, paying them the wage of an 11-hour day for ten hours of actual work, but this report is not confirmed.

SUCCESSFUL AIR SHIP.

Jebandy Bros' Dirigible Craft Makes a Trip.

Paris, May 8.—The airship constructed for the Jebaundy Brothers made a highly successful trip today under Pilot Juchmes and Engineer Levy. The start was made at 9 a. m. from St. Marin during a light rain and with a brisk wind blowing. The dirigible craft passed over a number of suburban towns. At Nantes she made a circle around the cathedral spire and left that town, going diagonally against the wind. The airship was put through a series of evolutions and answered her helm and maintained to the perfect satisfaction of all interested in her. She then returned to her point of departure, where she descended without accident. The distance covered was thirty-seven kilos in one hour, three minutes against Santos Dumont's record of the Deutsche prize of 11½ knots in thirty minutes.

TWO GONE WRONG.

One Lieutenant Dismissed Another to Be Courtmartialed.

Washington, May 8.—Secretary of War Root has accepted the resignation of First Lieut. Charles Faulkner, of the Eighth infantry, endorsing his action "for the good of the service." Faulkner, while serving in Alaska, was charged with misappropriating funds belonging to enlisted men and also with being short in his accounts. The money losses were made good by the young man's father, ex-Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia. Lenieney was shown because of the good record of the officer in the Philippines. The secretary has ordered a court-martial to try Lieut. J. F. McCarthy, of the Nineteenth infantry, who is charged with duplicating his pay accounts and who tendered his resignation. Faulkner received a commission in the regular army during the Spanish war. McCarthy is under arrest at Fort Leavenworth.

Arthur Whitewell, brother of the missing man, says if he is not heard from soon, a large reward will be offered by information as to his whereabouts. He thinks his brother's absence may be due to temporary aberration or foul play.

GOLD STANDARD.

Is Recommended For the Straits Settlement.

Singapore, Straits Settlements, May 8.—The currency commission in its report declares that a gold standard for the Straits Settlements is practicable and recommends the introducing gradually of a special Straits Settlements dollar of the same weight and fineness as the British dollar and circulating currently with the British and Mexican dollars. The report prohibits the export of the new dollar and prohibits temporarily the import of Mexican and British dollars until enough new dollars are in circulation to suffice for the business of this colony and the Malay states. The scheme proposes to ultimately demonetize the Mexican and British dollars and then follow the course adopted by the government of India.

WILMOT FIRED.

No Longer Manager Of Minneapolis Baseball Team.

Minneapolis, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Wilmot is no longer captain, manager and left fielder of the Minneapolis baseball team. Neither he nor the management will talk, but the long losing streak of the team is supposed to be responsible for the change. No successor has yet been named.

Two Evening Calls.

The fire department was called out twice last evening. An unoccupied house belonging to E. F. Burg at 215 West Third street was destroyed at a loss estimated between $500 and $700. The house was being refinished preparatory to occupancy by Fred G. Bradbury, who was to take possession today. The blaze was started in some manner unknown in the basement.

The second call was to the home of C. H. Munger at Twenty-third avenue East and First street. The fire was a small one, however, and was under control before the department got there.

MAY BE IN MINNEAPOLIS.

That Opinion Prevails as to a Missing Girl.

Friends and relatives of Miss Elizabeth Shearer, a popular Park Point girl, who has been missing for the past two weeks, are of the opinion that she is visiting in Minneapolis.

Sometime ago she expressed a desire to go to the city but was prevailed upon not to leave Duluth. Friends from here moved there about the time Miss Shearer left and the prevailing opinion is that she accompanied them.

A report is current that the missing girl may have committed suicide, but those that knew her best say there cannot be the slightest foundation for such a theory. Miss Shearer is about 22 years of age and well known here, especially on Park Point.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shearer, of 8? South Lake avenue.

SHAVES ONLY CRIPPLES.

On Munroe street there is a colored barber who makes a specialty of shaving men who are maimed or whose faces are scarred. Every day dozens of cripples hobble around to the shop where he works, and if he happens to be busy they wait patiently until their turn comes, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"I've made a specialty out of this thing for the last three years," said the barber the other day. "It was never my intention to attend to cripples. The trade just came to me, and when I saw I had a good thing I cultivated it.

"I came up here from Arkansas, and at my first shop where I found a place I didn't make enough to even give me policy money. One day while I was brooding over my woes a man without any legs came shuffling into the shop. The other barbers turned their backs to him, but I leaned over and gave him a pleasant smile.

"He told me he wanted to get his face fixed up, and I lifted him into my chair. Well, sir, before that fellow left the shop he had told me all of his troubles and incidentally had been given a shave, a hair cut, a face massage and a shampoo. He seemed to take a great fancy to me, because I sympathized with him.

"'I used to be in the railroad business,' he ald. 'But one day while I was out in the freight yards an engine ran over me and cut off both legs. The company pensioned me for life, and now I don't have anything to worry about. What I don't like, though, is the way the barbers treat me. Because I'm a cripple and don't wear good clothes they think I'm a beggar.'

"That fellow gave me a 25-cent tip as he left the shop, and promised to come around again the next day. In about an hour a one-legged man came into the shop. He made his way over to me and asked me if I had attended to a legless chap a little while before. I told him I had, and he began climbing into my chair. He was good for a shave and a hair cut, with some hair tonlee on the side.

"While I was working on him he told me the legless man, who was a friend of his, had told him about me. He said he knew a lot of crippled people and that he was going to send them around.

"That was the beginning of a big trade for me. Fellows without arms or legs, and some with half their faces missing, began trailing into the shop, and they all picked me out. I saw that I had a chance to build up a good thing and I nursed it. Now I make between $5 and $6 a day, and I don't have time to shave any one but cripples."

IN LAND OF FLOWERS

The President Is the Guest of California Cities.

Los Angeles and Pasadena Vie In Warmth of Welcome.

Los Angeles, May 8.—President Roosevelt made his entrance into Los Angeles at 11 o'clock this morning. The enthusiastic welcome that has greeted him at each stopping place within the boundary of California, reached a climax when the special train drew into La Grande station. Los Angeles was dressed in her best.

The presidential train left Riverside this morning at an early hour, thousands turning out to bid the president good bye. On the way over the Santa Fe, a half hour's stop was made at Clearmont, where the president spoke to the students of Pomona college, the president of which, John D. Gates, is an old-time friend of Mr. Roosevelt. From Clearmont the train ran through the picturesque San Gabriel valley to Pasadena, where a stop of two hours was made.

In Pasadena, famous for its beautiful homes, all the business houses and residences on the route over which the president was driven, displayed American flags and bunting. On the way to the Wilson high school, where the president dellvered a short speech, he passed under a floral archway which extended for two blocks on Marengo avenue. The front of the arch was a solid mass of flowers from base to top with festoons of vari-colored roses draped across from curb to curb. Baskets of flowers on smilax-twined poles extended from the windows of the high school buildings and solid banks of roses covered the walls of the facade. After the address at the high school President Roosevelt and party took carriages for a drive through the city. The route took them down the famous Orange Grove avenue, the street of millionaires. A brief stop was made at the home of Mrs. Garfield, the widow of the late President J. A. Garfield, with whom the president chatted pleasantly for a few moments.

Continuing the drive, the party went to Raymond Hill, from which point the president gained a splendid view of the fertile San Gabriel valley.

Promptly at 12:30 the party boarded a train at Raymond station and left for Los Angeles. When the train pulled in at La Grande station, Los Angeles, thousands of people blocked the streets on either side. Former members of the Rough Rider regiment, a detachment of troop D, N. G. C., and "Teddy's terrors," a politico club of prominent Los Angeles business men, wearing the Rough Rider uniform, formed on each side of the platform and kept the crowds back. The president entered the carriage with Governor Pardee, Secretary Moody and Private Secretary Loeb, and, preceded and followed by a platoon of mounted police and troop D, N. G. C., was driven directly to the Westminster hotel, at corner of Fourth and Main streets, where luncheon was served.

From the station to the hotel the crowds gathered for a glimpse of the chief executive and to give voice to their pent-up enthusiasm in continuous cheers, which the president smilingly acknowledged. Extraordinary police precautions had been made to guard the safety of the president during his stay in Los Angeles. Secret service men surrounded him and made a way for him through the crowd at the station and when he alighted from his carriage at the Westminster hotel.

In addition to the vigilance of the secret service men, the Los Angeles police force adopted some stringent measures against the encroachment of the crowd. Westminster hotel, the temporary stopping place of the presidential party, was surrounded by a cordon of police and plain clothes officers. A rope was drawn around the hotel and none except those holding passes were admitted.

The annual fiesta de las flores, the chief feature of which is the elaborate floral parade, was arranged this year to coincide with the visit of the president. Unusual efforts have been made by the fiesta committee to make this feature of the celebration particularly attractive as a sort of expression of the floral wealth of California.

FLANAGAN DISMISSED.

St. Louis, May 8.—Judge Ryan in the circuit court today dismissed the charge of contempt of court brought against John Flanagan, a grand jury witness, who had refused to answer a question regarding legislative boodling, holding there must be further evidence connecting the offense with St. Louis before Flanagan could be compelled to answer here.

MAKING SUNSHINE.

It Is Often Found In Pure Food.

The improper selection of food drives many a healthy person into the depths of despairing illness. Indeed, most sickness comes from the wrong food and just so surely as that is the case right food will make the sun shine once more.

An old veteran of Newburyport, Mass., says: "In October, 1900, I was taken sick and went to bed, losing 47 pounds in about 60 days. I had doctor after doctor but all food hurt me so I had to almost live on magnesia and soda. All solid food distressed me so water would run out of my mouth in little streams.

"I had terrible night sweats and my doctor finally said I had consumption and must die. My good wife gave up all hope. We were at Old Orchard, Me., at that time and my wife saw some Grape-Nuts in a grocery there. She bought some and persuaded me to try it. I had no faith in it, but took it to please her. To my surprise it did not distress me as all other food had done and before I had taken the fifth package I was well on the mend.

"The pains left my head; my mind became clearer: I gained weight rapidly. I went back to my work again and now after six weeks' use of the food I am better and stronger than ever before in my life. Grape-Nuts surely saved my life and made me a strong, hearty man, 15 pounds heavier than before I was taken sick.

"Both my good wife and I are willing to make affidavit to the truth of this." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

VALUATION OF PEARLS.

As the savage decks himself out in barbaric ornaments and tattooes his body until gradually becoming more civilized, he discards his gaudy trappings, so with nations, the newer country is apt to lean to show and spectacular effect, while the older civilization finds beauty in subdued coloring and less conspicuous ornamentation. In nothing is advancement of a nation more shown than in style of jewelry and ornament which it adopts, and among all the different precious stones none better illustrates this than the pearl, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

No person who has not a refined taste can give to this lustrous piece of nature its true place among the beautiful gems. Nor is it refinement alone that enables one to fully appreciate its beauties; one must have also a certain culture in the lore of precious gems.

The most important pearl fisheries are in the Indian Ocean; others are in the Gulf of California and the Caribbean Sea. Pearls taken from different localities vary, each locality having its marked characteristics. Many people who have but a slight knowledge of this gem believe pearls found in the fresh water rivers of our own country to be of inferior quality. This is not necessarily true, as the value of a pearl depends upon three things: First, its form, which in order of value must be round, pear shaped or exactly oval; second, its lustre or orient, as it is called by experts, and, third, the purity of its color, any yellow or gray tinge greatly reducing its value. Pearls of decided color, however, are more rare, and, with all other requirements in proportion, are of much more value than the pure white ones. Black pearls are by far the most valuable. These come in order, pink, yellow and brown, but the colors must e decided.

It is of course understood that the outer surface or skin must be perfectly smooth, without spot, wrinkle, bubble or indention. A rough or irregularly found pearl is known as a baroque. A pearl should have the suggestion of transparency and must have the peculiar "orient" or luster, without which even pearls of the finest form, color and size have but little value. The orient in the pearl corresponds exactly to the brilliancy in the diamond—lacking it there is no charm.

Pearls are steadily advancing in price they cost now more than three times as much as they did ten years ago, the cause being that the demand is so great the fisheries are practically exhausted, both those of the deep sea and fresh water rivers. In our own Western States, Wisconsin especially, many of the farmers have given up tilling the soil and have become oystermen, dragging the river beds till scarcely a pearl bearing oyster remains. The deep sea fisheries are also in the same state of depletion and as only one out of every fifty pearls taken is fit to use one can readily see the demand is by far in excess of the supply.

Fully illustrating the fact that fresh water pearls can be of as fine a quality as those gathered from the deep sea, one taken from a Wisconsin river sold during the past year for $20,000. No gems are found without much delving and this most perfect of all gems, this single one which the lapidary's art cannot improve, nature has hidden most deeply, as if to guard from sacrilegious hands.

The Beltran Blood

By Martha M. Williams.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Corinna, I am ashamed of you! Wretched girl! You disgrace the Beltran blood," Mrs. Beltran said, angrily, to her step-daughter, who sat at ease in the chimney corner, devouring a very thick slice of bread puddled liberally all over with toasted cheese. Mrs. Beltran had married her cousin, the squire, a year after Corinna's mother died. Thus she was doubly a Beltran, and inordinately proud of the name and blood.

"Indeed! I think I'm more than a credit to it," Corinna retorted, standing up as she swallowed her last morsel. She was tall and 20—uncommonly tall, well-muscled, perfectly poised, a fine type of wholesomely athletic young womanhood. "I can drive farther and straighter than any other girl on the links," she went on. "Beat almost anybody at tennis, and when I condescend to ping-pong make my partners a very pretty spectacle."

"But your appetites!" Mrs. Beltran protested. "It is worse than plebian—positively vulgar! And you will eat, no matter who is seeing you. Mrs. Payson-Wynne positively glowered at you yesterday, when you ate enough for three at her garden party."

"Yes, I promised Neddy Caylus I'd try to eat the worth of his money—Mrs. Payson-Wynne held him up highwayman fashion, and made him buy half a dozen tickets—after all he had given her," Corinna said, smiling. "I couldn't help saying to myself half the time I was there helping her: 'Charity! Charity! What very nasty little, mean things are done in your name!'"

"Edmund Caylus needs to be taught his place. He ought to regard it as a great privilege to be permitted to help in anything his superiors undertake," Mrs. Beltran said, loftily. "He must remember what he is—only a common working farmer—and that by contributing to the poor through our help, he was enabled for quite two hours to mix with real ladies and gentlemen—although I must say, as I told Mrs. Payson-Wynne at the last, the crowd was fearfully mixed."

"Before we talk further of Neddy let me tell you something," Corinna said. "I am going to marry him—when I am 21. I'd do it next week—only I know you would make all the trouble in the world for me. But once I am my own mistress, you can do nothing worse than be hateful."

"Marry him! May I ask what is the reason for your—ex-traordinary choice?" Mrs. Beltran asked, in a voice of concentrated scorn and anger. Corinna looked straight in her eyes, laughed a little, and answered: "Really, Cousin Maria, I believe I pitched on Ned because he is so well able to feed me properly—and so entirely willing to do it. I've had five years of genteel starvation—ever since father died you have spent on show and society the money that ought to have gone for comfort. And I'm tired to death of it."

"Are you through speaking?" Mrs. Beltran almost hissed. Corinna nodded, gayly. Her stepmother half shut her eyes, and brought her teeth together with a click, but almost instantly unclosed them and said:

"Portunately—for the family and womanhood—I have something to say about all this. Your poor father doubtless foresaw these low tendencies—that was why, in his will, he gave me absolute parental control over you—until you are 25. I shall at once send you away—to your Grandmother Beltran. Go to your room, and begin packing immediately."

"Don't be a fool, Cousin Marie—that is, any farther than you can help it," Corinna said, coolly. "I shall not begin packing. I shall not even go to Grandmamma Beltran. Instead I shall stay dutifully at home—if you will but let me. Otherwise, I shall go straight to Ned, and ask him to marry me at once."

"Do. It will enable me to send him where his presumption deserves—behind prison bars," Mrs. Beltran said, biting her lips. "Fortunately he cannot pick up his bit of farmland and take it outside the state—to live, he must live on it, and while he stays here, under our laws, he will be guilty of abduction, if he harbors you for even an hour—against my will. More than that, there can be no lawful marriage without my consent, until you are of full age. Now—will you be reasonable?"

"Perfectly so," Corinna answered, her hands clinching as she spoke. "Do you also be reasonable. You are forever harping on the Beltran blood. Therefore you should know it better. I would indeed be unworthy of it, if I permitted myself to be hectored and browbeaten out of my heart's choice. Luckily I love Ned with my whole heart—if I did not, you might force me to marry him simply to prove my right to my own way. I will marry him—nobody else—if I have to wait until we are both grayheaded—"

"Dear! Dear! That would be a calamity!" Ned said, stepping through the door. "I've been knocking ten minutes, planned. Mrs. Beltran gave him a withso ventured at last to come in," he explained. Mrs. Beltran gave him a withering glance. Corinna one full of love and trust. "I couldn't help hearing all two having it out," he went on. "Now, see here, Mrs. Beltran, tell me, flatfooted, what you object to in me?"

"Your low birth! Your ignorance! Your Boorishness!" Why, I have actually seen you plowing!" Mrs. Beltran flung at him, her face livid. "All the dead and gone Beltrans would turn in their graves at the bare thought of your alliance with their blood!"

"Think so?" Ned said, his eyes twinkling. "How odd, when I have more Beltran blood than either yourself or Corinna."

"You—you lie! You must be beside yourself!" Mrs. Beltran snapped. Ned was fumbling in his pocket. Slowly, carefully, he took out a parchment, unfolded it and held it before the foaming woman, saying: "Look there! The first Beltran this side the water, he whom they call Sir John, had a handsome sister, who married—Edmund Cayley, and is my ever-so-many-times great-grandmother. And, here, and here," touching various cabalistic marks on the parchment, "see where later Cayleys married into Beltran stock. The last of the Beltran brides was—my grandmother, although as she had been adopted by her mother's sister, she was married under another name. Yes, she gave me this parchment. You'll find it authentic, search as you may. Along with the family tree she gave me $50,000—money that she has been saving ever since my mother was born. I have never cared a great lot for money, or pedigree—have been content to know my forefathers were honest men, who feared God, loved their own wives, paid their debts and fought for their country. But I will do almost anything to get Corinna peaceably—even to setting up a coat-of-arms."

"My dear Cousin Beltran, let me congratulate you!" Mrs. Beltran said, affably, holding out her hand. Two minutes with the parchment had shown her she had no standing beside this pedigree. Then there was the money, which ill-natured folk said she loved even better than blood. "I am more than delighted to find you so fit a person for Corinna," she went on, silkenly. "I'm sure you yourself, now that you are one of us, appreciate my solicitude as to my daughter's establishment. Of course you may have her—with my blessing. I will even do all I can to make your wedding an occasion beyond anything Mrs. Payson-Wynne—"

"Oh, Ned!" Corinna burst in, irreverently. "I'm so glad I can hardly see you. For awhile it seemed I'd have to fling you over my shoulder and run away with you—and that would not have been nice."

"It would have been characteristic, and I shouldn't have greatly minded," Ned said, with a twinkle.

Corinna pouted. "Characteristic? How?"

"Of the Beltran blood," Ned answered, hugging her tight. "It takes what it chooses, whatever may stand in the way."

SILK AND LACE CURTAINS.

Now is the time, more than ever, when the window draperies need to be looked over and possibly replaced with lighter summer curtains, says the Brooklyn Eagle. New designs in these are plentiful, whether the requirements be the simplest net or muslin curtain or the most elaborate of ornamental hangings. An attractive summer curtain is of white or cream-colored net edged with a broad ruffle, which is headed and bordered with renaissance lace. A new design, in the popular Swiss applique, is the trellis and rosebud pattern, which, like another having a graceful medallion and wreath pattern, has everything to recommend it on the score of good taste. Some of the Swiss curtains are simply bordered with the ribbon bow design, which is so pretty for bedrooms, while others have beautiful "all-over" patterns. In some of the applique curtains spotted net is used as a background, the designs adapted to it having a charming Brussels lace effect. Another variety of curtain which could not well be improved upon where a light, delicate drapery is required, is of the needle-run Saxon lace, worked with dainty floral design. The Marie Antoinette curtains, with their true lover's knots and other pretty devices in lace braid, and embroidery upon net, are a style which always finds favor, especially in these days, with their penchant for Louis XV and Louis XVI; and then there are the soft muslin curtains, tambour worked or embroidered, which may be draped so artistically. For cottage bedrooms the printed muslin curtains are effective where some particular color scheme is desired. Some of this spring's new designs show white grounds sprinkled with big bunches of flowers such as nature never saw—blue roses or pink violets. In sash curtains a charming variety, dubbed the "brisebise," is made of net lawn, linen or of silk and renaissance lace. The panel curtain is another style of adaptable sash curtain, the design being appliqued on net in the center of the curtain, which can then be cut to fit the window.

A PROGRESSIVE LUNCHEON.

A progressive luncheon is not only very entertaining, but may be made particularly pretty when arranged after the fashion of an affair given not long ago by an ingenious hostess, says the Brooklyn Eagle. When the guests came in they drew a flower from a large bowl in the hall and took their places at the table decorated with that flower. The blossoms were white violets, hyacinths and gardenias, roses of every hue, poinsettias and geraniums. The progression was decided by each guest drawing small ribbons attached to the centerpiece, the strip bearing a gold monogram indicating the "progressor," who moved during the courses.

RUSSIA WITHDRAWS FROM THE LIAO FORTS

It Seems That Their Occupation Was But Temporary.

Official Circles at Pekin Are Very Much Mystified.

Russia Reiterates That She Will Protect American Interests.

Pekin, May 9.—The official at New Chwang who sent yesterday's news of Russia's alleged action at New Chwang and elsewhere in Manchuria telegraphs today that the occupation of the forts at the mouth of the Liao river was temporarily, and that the Russians have now withdrawn. Official circles at Pekin are mystified. Their subordinates at New Chwang have not reported the reoccupation of that place, hence there is a disposition to question the correctness of the information, although the author of yesterday's story is considered to be one of the ablest and best informed foreigners in China.

Paris, May 9.—Commenting on the Manchurian situation, the officials here say the French ambassador at St. Petersburg has had an interview on the subject with Foreign Minister Lamsdorff, which brought out a repetition of the statement that Russia had given positive assurances to the United States that there would be no interruption of the open door policy in Manchuria, and also the assertion that the mission of Gen. Kuropatkin, the Russian war minister to Manchuria, was pacific.

The view held here is that Russia's assurances fully protect the United States' commercial interests. The reoccupation of New Chwang by Russian troops is claimed to be a wholly political issue between Russia, Great Britain and Japan, and as not involving American commerce or any other American interest.

Washington, May 9.—Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, had a long interview with Secretary Hay at the state department today. He manifested deep concern over the Manchurian situation, but declared taht the legation was without official advices, in the absence of which he did not care to discuss the matter. There is an intimation that Japan is disappointed at the character of the support she has received from the other powers up to this time in her efforts to stop Russia's alleged aggression. Upon leaving the state department the minister took occasion to single out the following statement published this morning:

"It is pointed out that Russia employed a saving clause in the promise to withdraw from Manchuria, the language being 'provided, however, that the action of other powers shall not stand in the way,' and the further statement that 'Russia, it is understood now, contends that this proviso was violated by Japan when she mobilized her fleet and otherwise showed signs of military preparation which was construed as a menace to Russia."

Commenting upon the latter statement, he said: "Such a contention, if made, is unwarranted."

Mr. Takahira added that there has been nothing in the movement of the Japanese navy that could be construed as a menace to Russia. "The movement of Japan's warships," said the minister, "are simply incidental to our spring maneuvers, and are as devoid of present significance as were your naval maneuvers in the Caribbean last winter."

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, said today: "When the whole truth it known it will be found that Russia has not violated a single pledge to any nation, nor does she intend to so. Moreover, whatever steps have been taken in Manchuria are only in self-defense."

The count called in person at the department of state about noon to talk over the Manchurian situation with Secretary Hay, and it is supposed he conveyed assurances on the same lines to the secretary.

There appear to be no official developments in the matter today, beyond the calls of the Japanese and Russian representatives. The state department is earnestly striving to learn the facts, in regard to which there seems to be much doubt. Strong disparities in the statements as to what has taken place in Manchuria come from different quarters, and the assignment of differing motives for the Russian and Japanese movements make it difficult for the state department to shape a course. The indications are that action will be deferred until the department is sure of the facts.

STRIKE BREAKER SHOT.

Italian Who Returned to Work Is Hurt.

Vineland, N. J., May 9.—An Italian, Frank Cappela, aged about 25, engaged in a fight at Mintola. He once belonged to the striking glass blowers, but afterwards went back to work. He was met by a number of pickets about a mile from the factory and a fight ensued in which Cappela was shot. The pickets declare Cappela made the first attack, firing several shots at them.

Several of the pickets were arrested and are held as witnesses. A later report says another man was shot, but was able to limp away to the woods.

QUARANTINE AGAINST CATTLE.

London, May 9.—The board of agriculture has prohibited the importing into Great Britain of animals from Argentina and Uruguay on and after May 12, owing to existence of foot and mouth disease in those republics.

CUBA IS DELAYING TREATY IN RETALIATION TO UNITED STATE

Leaders Hold That as Long as Congress Has Retarded Reciprocity, That Cuba Has Nothing to Lose By Delaying Action on the Treaties.

Havana, May 9.—The disposition to delay action on the pending treaties, coupled with the fact that the senate foreign relation committee still shows no indication of reporting the coaling and naval stations agreement, made Feb. 15 between President Roosevelt and President Palma, is causing increasing doubt as to whether all or any of the matters will be disposed before the close of the present session of congress. Congress is likely to adjourn within six weeks. The next session will begin in November, simultaneously with the special reciprocity convention of the United States. President Palma is anxious to conclude all treaties as early as possible, but he takes occasion to consult with senators and representatives at all stages, with the result that numerous objections and pretexts for delay are made. No real question is pending in connection with either of the treaties. The placing of the Platt amendment into the form of a treaty is Cuba's own proposition, made with the purpose of taking the Platt requirements out of the constitution and out of politics. The treaty conceding the Isle of Pines to Cuba causes no objection here. The only treaty in which there is room for discussion is that for carrying out the agreement of the president's reference to the leasing of coaling and naval stations, which is strictly in accordance with the Platt amendment. Some persons who favor delay hold that Cuba is not bound to yield the concessions required by the Platt amendment unless the United States grants reciprocity. This contention is based upon the allegation that President McKinley definitely promised reciprocity. It is also held that since the United States is retarding reciprocity, Cuba has equal reason to retard other matters. Others assume that the amount of lands described in the naval and coaling agreement is unwarrantedly large. The leaders generally, although disinclined to discuss the matter, appear to agree that there is no necessity for haste; that whatever Cuba gains will be through a waiting policy. Some senators and representatives who, as members of the constitutional convention opposed the Platt amendment, say that it would be inconsistent to vote for the amendment now.

Another potent reason for delay is found in the fact that the elections for half of the members of congress and all municipal officers are to be held in December, and politicians are not inclined to speak in favor of carrying out the provisions of the Platt amendment during the campaign, and especially as it is anticipated that the house as well as the senate will be required to act in authorizing the leasing of lands to a foreign government. President Palma's influence is generally supposed to be strong enough if determindely exercised to carry these matters through the house as well as the senate.

WILL BE A FIGHT TO FINISH WITH HARVESTER EMPLOYES

Peace Negotiations Were Broken Off By the Refusal Of Strikers' Demands And Strike Will Continue Until One Side Is Defeated.

Chicago, May 9.—Peace negotiations between the Deering Harvester company and its striking employes have been broken off and the fight is to continue until one side is defeated.

Early last week President W. G. Schardt, of the Chicago federation of labor, succeeded in arranging a conference between the labor leaders who are in charge of the strike and the representatives of the harvester company. At this meeting the demands of the employes were presented. The answer of the company has just been received. It is a refusal of the men's demands and will cause an immediate revival of the strike on the part of every union involved.

The men asked for a general nine hour day, 20 per cent increase in wages, and recognition of their unions. The girls asked for a wage increase, better hours, and improved sanitary conditions. All demanded the reinstatement of men alleged to have been discharged for joining labor unions. The counter proposition of the firm was a practical refusal to consider the demands of the men.

AN EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

Denver, May 9.—The News today prints an interview with Daniel M. Ransdell, sergeant-at-arms of the United States senate, to the effect that an extra session of congress will be called about Nov. 9. Mr. Ransdell and family are spending several weeks in Colorado for the benefit of their son's health. Mr. Ransdell is quoted as follows: "President Roosevelt notified me through Secretary Loeb last week at St. Louis that I could prepare to receive the senators immediately, or as soon as possible after election day. To Secretary Bennett of the senate President Roosevelt made the direct statement that congress would be summoned just as soon as the fall elections were out of the way."

"What will the call provide shall be taken up?" was asked.

"The reciprocity treaty with Cuba."

"Will the Philippine tariff reduction measure be resurrected for consideration.

"I think it will, as soon as the Cuban business is disposed of."

AMERICANS CAN STAND MOST COLD

New York, May 9.—If Anthony Fiala, the leader of Ziegler's Polar expedition, reaches the North Pole, he will plant there a small American flag bearing the emblem of the Young Men's Christian association, which was presented to him at a dinner given for him by his friends in the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. If the Pole is not found, the emblem will be thrown to the breeze at the furthermost point reached.

Responding to complimentary addresses, Mr. Fiala said: "The members of my expedition will be all Americans. I have talked with many men who have been in the north and they all believe that Americans can stand more cold and hardship than men of any other nation in the world. I think I have made no mistake in my selection.

"We had many hardships during the last expedition and the men comprising it did not receive the credit they should have received in spite of some misunderstanding. I do not know whether I shall reach the North Pole or not, but I am going to try."

NORTHWESTERN CLAIMS MUCH LAND

Milwaukee, May 9.—The Chicago & Northwestern Railway company has served notice on the city that it claims possession of all the land along the lake shore east of its tracks for a distance of a mile. The company goes to the length of declaring that the waterworks pumping station on the ground known as McKinley or Flushing Tunnel park, is only there by sufferance and that the land belongs to the company. The claim of the railroad company may seriously affect the work of the proposed lake shore drive.

WILL APPEAR AGAINST MURDERER

Middlesboro, Ky., May 9.—Several Breathitt county refugees are in this section and gave a description of the terrible state of affairs in the mountain country. They say that reporters are not allowed to send full reports of the situation. One, who was forced to flee from Jackson, says that he was near when James B. Marcum was killed and knows the man who did the deed, and says that he will return to Jackson at the proper time and appear against him. This man refused to let his name be published, because he has numerous relatives in Breathitt, and he says that the publication of his name would endanger their lives.

A MOSQUE BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE

Vienna, May 9.—A mosque at Kinprlul in which 200 Moslems had assembled, according to a dispatch to Die Ziat from Sofia, was blown up with dynamite May 2. The worshipers were buried in the ruins. The perpetrator of the outrage, a man named Popow, committed suicide by shooting. A paper found in one of his pockets described him as a member of the "Macedonian knights of death."

WENT FAR AHEAD

Shamrock III Again Demonstrates Superiority Over Shamrock I.

Beat Her Over Fourteen Minutes In Eighteen Miles.

Gourock, Scotland, May 9.—The two Shamrocks were sent off this morning over a racing course of forty miles, starting from Gourock, round Marks at Powder buoy, Hunter's quay and Skelmarlie. The wind blew about eight knots and was strengthening. The start, which was informal, took place at 10:30. Both yachts carried club topsails. The Shamrock I led, wide to windward of the cup challenger and ahead. Before a mile was covered, however, the challenger had worked to windward and had drawn level with the older boat. Capt. Wringe then eased the Shamrock III with the object of giving the boats an even start on the long run to leeward from Powder buoy, which was turned as follows: Shamrock III, 10:42:45; Shamrock I, 10:42:53.

Spinnakers were then set and the Shamrocks started down the channel to Skelmorlie, the challenger opening away steadily. Once fairly set going, the Shamrock III ran away from her opponent in great shape and they passed Gourock as follows: Shamrock III, 10:59:30; Shamrock I, 11:00:50.

The old boat brought up a better wind and was closer off Bullwood. There the wind drew southerly, spinnakers were taken in and the boats fetched down on the port tack.

After passing Lunderstone bay the yachts squared away for Rothesay bay, and it was soon evident that the plans of the morning had been changed. The boats were not racing but were merely sail-stretching.

On the return journey the old boat took the windward berth and had a decided lead, but abreast of Loch Long the challenger sailed through the Shamrock I's lee and was thirteen seconds ahead off Gourock pier.

During a series of informal spins, the Shamrock III was, apparently, able to take the lead whenever Capt. Wringe desired. Off Greenock the Shamrock I had half a minute lead, but the challenger passed her in a little over a mile. The challenger's gearing stretched during the trials.

The challenger at the close of Shamrock I by 14 minutes 6 seconds over about eighteen miles.

OPERATION ON ESKIMO

Lad Brought Down By Peary Treated For Throat Trouble.

New York, May 9.—Mene Peary Wallace, the young Eskimo boy brought by Peary from the ice fields north of Greenland, four years ago, has undergone his first surgical operation.

This little fellow, who is 12 years old, suffered from enlarged glands of his neck which threatened to be attended by serious complications. The operation was performed in the Fordham hospital, from which he soon will be discharged cured, the doctors there say.

B. B. Wallace, of the museum of natural history, adopted the boy, who has become thoroughly Americanized. He was one of four Eskimos brought to this country by Mr. Peary. Three of them died within a short time after their arrival from consumption. A week ago it was decided that the boy would have to submit to an operation. The lad looked forward to the operation without fear, and the surgeons say it is largely due to his splendid courage that his recovery is so complete.

The boy was named after Lieut. Peary and Mr. Wallace.

GOULD'S VALET LOSES AWARD

Appellate Court Reverses Verdict of $5000 For Him.

New York, May 9.—The appellate division of the supreme court has reversed the award by a lower court to Frank D. Mowbray, former valet of Howard Gould, of $5000 for injuries sustained by Mowbray through the premature explosion of a signal rocket on Mr. Gould's yacht Hildegarde several years ago. One of Mowbray's eyes was torn out and he was injured in the chest.

In the original suit Mowbray swears he had protested against the firing of the signals, as they were imperfect, and that Mr. Gould had ordered him to do his duty or lose his job.

He said that after the accident, employment at $1000 a year for life had been promised to him, and that this promise had not been kept. Thereupon he brought suit to recover $25,000 damages.

In 1900 a jury brought in a verdict of $5000 in Mowbray's favor after a trial of sensational character. The defendant at once appealed from the verdict.

Howard Gould's defense was that Mowbray was dismissed for drunkenness. As to the accident which resulted in the loss of the man's eye and other injuries, he disclaimed all responsibility, and said no order had been given to set the rockets off.

RESULT OF OUTBREAK.

Constantinople, May 9.—Thirteen Christians were killed and nineteen were wounded and three Mussulmans were killed during the recent outbreak at Monastir. In an encounter between imperial troops and a force of insurgents in the neighborhood of Saparl May 6, eleven Bulgarians were killed and seventy-four were made prisoners.

THE BALKAN TROUBLE AFFECTING GERMANY

It Is Preventing Many Operations on Large Scale.

Postponement of Collision Until Fall Would Help Matters.

German Officials Consider the Situation to Be Serious.

Berlin, May 9.—The German government regards the Turko-Bulgarian situation as being grave, but responsible officials say that if a collision can be staved off through the summer, more sober counsels can get a hearing in the winter when military action is impossible.

Regarding the mutual recrimination of Turkey and Bulgaria in imputing belicose purposes, the officials here say Turkey certainly cannot wish for war because she is unable to bear the expense and knows beforehand that the powers would not permit territorial expansion as a result of victory. It is also believed that Bulgaria, while showing a deplorably weak attitude policy, namely the acquisition of part of Macedonia. The powers know that the partition of Macedonia in favor of Bulgaria would cause Greece, Servia and other countries to rise claims for Turkish territory. Hence the powers towards the revolutionary elements does not desire war.

The powers have made representations at Sofia, emphasizing the impossibility of allowing Bulgaria to realize the fundamental aim of its are unitedly determined not to permit any change in the status quo. On the other hand the reforms in Macedonia, which have, unfortunately, been suspended through the outbreak of violence at Salonica, must be carried out, and Austria-Hungary and Russia, which are immediately concerned, will see through their consuls that they are carried out.

It is understood that the powers in their representations at Sofia reproaching the Bulgarian cabinet with showing weakness towards the revolutionists, pointed out the necessity for a more energetic attitude.

In addition to the communications made to the government at Sofia, the powers have made representations at Constantinople which have convinced Turkey of the hoplessness of derlving any territorial or pecuniary advantage from attacking Bulgaria.

Nevertheless, danger lies in the fact that the Turkish and Bulgarian troops are facing each other on the frontier and in proximity to it, rendering a more or less accidental collision possible, which could easily grow into uncontrollable dimensions. The situation, therefore, is having a depressing effect upon the German boerses and is preventing any operations on a large scale.

HAVEMEYER CHALLENGES UNION TO DEBATE STRIKE QUESTION

Offers to Defray All Expenses Excepting For Speakers, and Says a Refusal to Accept Will Be an Acknowledgement of Weakness.

New York, May 9.—John C. Havemeyer, in an open letter published in the newspapers of Yonkers, issues a challenge to the trades' unions in which he offers to engage a public hall and defray all expenses, excepting for the speakers, and makes one condition—that the union agree to confine their speeches to answering questions to be furnished by him in advace. He asserts that a refusal to accept his offer will be an acknowledgment of weakness on the part of the men. In his letter Mr. Havemeyer says to the trades' unions:

"Has it ever ocurred to you that the ability or skill to do any kind of work comes from God and is a trust of which we are bound to make good use? To what extent has any man the right to cease from work and thus cease to use the gift, and has he the right, by persuasion or force, to keep other men from exercising this gift, even if he is unwilling to use it himself? If through idleness men are refusing to use the talent which God gave them, they are certainly fighting Him, and are engaged in a hopeless contest.

"If a man assaults me, steals my pocketbook or takes other property and is convicted, he is sent to prison. How far does the morality of such acts differ from that man who designedly compels me to lose money, which is practically what the thief does. And is it not just as immoral to keep a lot of men from working and thus cause great loss to other people and prevent them from earning money needed for the support of their families?

"I believe the time is not far distant when the courts will so decide, for the world cannot afford to have its peace, comfort and prosperity interfered with so seriously by the suffering and demoralization practiced. In conclusion, I hereby extend an invitation to the trades' unions of Yonkers to discuss this question. The object will be to prevent a waste of time by irrelevant and excitable appeals and to secure a clear and full statement of the grounds upon which the action of the trades union is based.

THE FOREIGNERS IN PEKIN ARE FREE FROM MOLESTATION

According to the Correspondent of the Associated Press, the Stories of a Massacre of Foreigners By the Chinese, Have No Foundation.

San Francisco, May 9.—The Pekin correspondent of the Associated Press, writing under date of April 6, says that the alarming stories emanating from certain quarters, to the effect that a massacre of foreigners by Chinese is contemplated are untrue.

The correspondent writes that the reverse of this picture exists in Pekin. Never since the legation was established here have foreigners gone about their capital and the surrounding country so free from molestation and insult.

The toleration is inspired by the knowledge of the foreigners' power to hold his ground.

Whatever attacks upon foreigners might be made, all evidence tends to show that they would be against the will of the court. So far as the safety of Pekin and Tien Tsin is concerned, Viceroy Klan Shi Ki controls a large and effective force of soldiers. His disposition has been proven by the promptness with which he ferreted out the occasional feeble attempts to revive the Boxer propaganda in this province and punish the agitators, cutting off their heads for merely starting anti-foreign gossip. However, important influences are present to increase Chinese hatred of Europeans. One is the inevitable friction between the natives and soldiers of foreign garrisons, and the oppressions soldiers inflict upon the people who are helpless to resist. Another, perhaps the most important, certainly the most widespread, is the growing animosity against the Chinese Christians by their compatriots, who were compelled to pay indemnities for the losses suffered by the Christians during the reign of Boxerism.

The only insurrection which has reached serious proportions recently is that in Kwang Si. It started more as a labor riot than a political demonstration, from the desperation of an unpaid and hungry army, robbed by its officers. Crop failures have re-enforced it; it has been in force for a year, and is giving the government great uneasiness, but has been confined to parts of two provinces and does not promise to become a national movement.

GRAND DUKE HAD TO APOLOGIZE

St Petersburg, May 9.—Finance Minister Witte personally handed his resignation to the czar May 1, but withdrew it before nightfall. His resignation followed a peremptory letter from Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, demanding increased appropriations for the latter's new department of commercial marine. M. Witte informed the czar that he would be unable to administer the finances if grand dukes were permitted to give orders. The czar urged him to reconsider his determination, but M. Witte complied only after the grand duke had written him a letter of apology.

SUCCESS OF LOAN UNPRECEDENTED

London, May 9.—Subscriptions to the Transvaal loan closed at 11 o'clock this morning. The success of the Transvaal loan was unprecedented, both as regards the aggregate subscribed and the number of applications. It is said that the individual subscriptions for $500 and under were alone sufficient to cover the loan. Estimates of the aggregate subscribed range from $6,000,000,000 to $7,500,000,000. The Rothschilds applied for $450,000,000; Panmure & Gordon for $250,000; the Credit Lyonnais for $200,000,000; the Dresdener bank for $150,000,000, and the Deutsche bank for $125,000,000. No large individual American applications are reported. The amount of money tied up makes the money market very stiff, but early allotments and the return of checks are expected to relieve the market.

RIOT OCCURS AT BELLEVILLE, ILLL.

Chicago, May 9.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Belleville, Ill., says: Sheriff G. W. Thompson and a force of deputies were called to the Nigger Hollow mine of the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad company, seven miles north of here, last night, to quell a riot which was started over the discharge of Engineer John Frye, and his fireman, Thomas Hughes, for alleged incompetency. The company placed two men in charge of the engine. The men refused to board the train or go to work, and a riot quickly followed. Several men were badly injured. John Gundlach, one of the owners of the railroad, was shot by Oliver Gibson, a former fireman at the mine, and is reported to be fatally injured. Gibson and several other rioters were arrested.

THE THEATER WAS SAVED

Grand Opera House at St. Paul Was on Fire.

St. Paul, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Grand Opera house, Sixth and St. Peter streets, was saved from destruction by fire by brilliant work on the part of the fire department today. Tangled electric wires at the top of the building caused a blaze in a store room which was filled with old scenery. The fire had gained a good headway, when smoke pouring from the upper windows in the front of the theater attracted the attention of Joseph Crawley, the engineer of the building.

He sent in an alarm and the response of the department was immediate. The damage was confined to the room in which the fire started, and is estimated at $400. The theater proper was not damaged in any way.

JESSIE IS GUILTY.

Topeka, May 9.—The supreme court today affirmed the decision of the lower court in the case against Jessie Morrison. Jessie Morrison was declared guilty of killing Mrs. Olin Castle, three years ago, at the Castle home in Eldorado. The decision means twenty years' imprisonment.

TAMPERED WITH RAILS

Melbourne Strikers Cause the Derailing of Several Engines.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 9.—Railroad strike reports, which are coming in show that the railroad lines have been tampered with, causing the derailing of engines. A strong force of police is held in readiness for eventualities. The street car service has been greatly augmented.

A splendid reception was given to Premier Irvine at the mayor's luncheon today. Mr. Irvine said the government had left nothing undone to avert a calamity and come what might, the community would never allow the control of the property to pass into the hands of a section of the people.

FRESHMEN SUSPENDED

Class at Syracuse Cut Up All Kinds of Pranks.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 9.—Chancellor Day of the Syracuse university today suspended the entire freshman class for acts committed by some of its members last night when the class numerals were painted over college buildings. Dynamite was exploded throughout the night; sidewalks ripped up and other depredations to property in the neighborhood were committed. The suspension is to continue, the chancellor says, "until all traces of last night's rowdyism are removed." Today the freshmen are busily at work repairing and settling.

SECOND MAN WHO ROBS BELMONT.

New York, May 9.—A man who describes himself as George Reynolds, an Englishman, was arrested today as a result of a robbery of silverware and jewelry valued at $10,000, and some private papers from August Belmont. All the stolen property was recovered. Reynolds came to this country a week ago and got employment as second man at Mr. Belmont's country home at Hempstead, L. I. Reynolds was arrested in a pawn shop and the property was found in a bag in a saloon nearby.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

MOOTED QUESTIONS SETTLED BY SENIORS

Important Problems, Social and Otherwise, Come Before the Dignified Graduates—Great Interest In the Ball Game With Northern League Team.

High school seniors have had a decisive week of it.

The questions of whether or not the girls should wear flowers on commencement evening; whether or not the class should give the annual ball; whether or not the boys would carry out their plans for a stag party; whether or not the girls liked the idea of that stag party, and whether or not the masculine division cared about the opinion of the girls on that subject, have all been solved.

At a meeting Thursday it was settled that the girls should wear no flowers but that the stage should be prettily decorated. At a class meeting a motion to give the senior ball was passed by a good majority, but was later rescinded. A motion for another spread for the class stood, however, so that the organization will give one more social function before it quits the high school.

The action with regard to the ball by the class confirmed the young men in their determination to give a stag party. For a time the girls were envious, but their sadness was cleared away by a rumor that the wife of one of the members of the faculty was to take up the cause of the young women and offer them her home to enjoy themselves in for the evening on which the young men gave their stag party. Both will probably occur on May 16.

The girls are planning for a good time and they will try to make their affair as successful as that which the boys attempt.

The freshmen give a spread on May 22.

THE BASEBALL TEAM.

Playing Northern League Team at Oneota Park Today.

Baseball men are out at Oneota park this afternoon crossing bats with the Duluth league team and thereby opening both their own and the professional aggregation's season of games.

Today's game has been looked forward to with great interest by all of the students, who wished to see their team compared with a first class professional aggregation. Cummings, has the confidence of all of the boys in the school and some of them are so enthusiastic over his work in the box that they believe him able to equal any professional in the country.

While he is not that, he is one of the best school pitchers that has ever grown up in this neck of the woods, and he has a great future ahead of him in amateur sports. Without him pitching and Potter behind the bat, the high school team would have about half the strength it now has.

The fielders are playing a better game than high school fielders have done for some time, and this year's team is up to the standard, if it is not better, than any bunch the red and white have put on the war path during the last five or six years.

Every nerve is being strained to make a good showing against the professional team this afternoon. There are to be three different pitchers in the game for the league men, according to announcements, and the students have been afraid they would not be able to find the ball under those circumstances. They are confident of holding their adversaries down to a small score, however.

Manager Van Praagh's kindness in playing the high school, the exhibition to help replenish the high school treasury, is deeply appreciated by all of the students, and he has made some hundreds of friends and supporters by his generous action.

Next week when the Duluth league team is in Stillwater the Duluth high school men will play Cloquet here. The local men have owed the school from the lumber town a game for a long time and they are to pay it back next week. The Cloquet boys will play Duluth in Cloquet at some later date.

Cloquet has a strong high school team and the game will be interesting. The team has made an excellent showing in a couple of games played with the Blaine high school of Superior.

On May 23 there will be no baseball game because of the track preliminaries, on the 30th the team will go to Brainerd and the season will be closed with a game at Cloquet on June 6 probably.

The freshmen have organized a baseball team, with Earl Arsenal as manager and Frank Crassweller as captain, to meet the sophomores. The game will take place in a month or so. No definite date has been set as yet.

The freshmen have met defeat in all of their efforts to humiliate the class above them, and this is their last expedient. They have a good team, however, and the sophomores will have to work to save their scalps.

Both teams have indulged in considerable practice already and they will be ready to put up a hard struggle.

THE FIELD DAY.

Preliminary Contest In Track Athletic on May 23.

Preparations have been made to hold the annual preliminary field day of the high school track men on May 23. The men have been doing considerable work to get in condition, and they will be in trim to do some good stunts when that comes off.

The usual lists of events which has been on the program for the athletes during the last few years will be pulled off. The runners are the most numerous of the track men who are out to compete, and they will probably make a showing that will be somewhere near the record of the local school.

No track records have been broken at the high school since two years ago, when several of the old ones were outdone by the strong bunch of athletes who were then in the school. Most of the old men have gone, and last year the new ones were not up to their standard. There has been much improvement among those who are proficient in track athletics during the last year, and the records this time will probably more nearly approach the old ones.

Definite arrangements for the meet with Cloquet and the Nelson-Dewey high school have not been completed. They probably will be in a few days, and then the track men can plan definitely on their prospects for the present season.

Those who have been trying to build up a strong team this year have been handicapped by the lack of support in the school. There have been so many other interests to divide the attention of the students that the track team has been neglected. Many of the men who are to try for places in the list of track honors are also connected with the athletic carnival which the students will give on May 15, and they have found it hard to find time to prepare for both events.

Every effort will be made to bring the track sports prominently before the students and make the field day this year as successful as those of the past when the high school men had very good sport and considerable revenue for the Athletic association out of the annual event.

SOPHOMORES VICTORS.

Two Win Out In the Declamatory Contest.

Two members of the high school sophomore class won over competitors from all classes in last evening's declamatory contest at the high school Assembly hall. Miss Florence Aiken won the gold medal in the girl's department for her redition of "The Soul of the Violin," and Stanley Strand, with his reading of "The Unknown Rider," was successful among the masculine contestants.

The contest was the most successful of its kind ever held in the high school. All the contestants were very well drilled an dthe order of the work was above that of any such affair that has been held at the high school for some years.

The decision for Strand was unanimous. The judges were somewhat at a loss to know which of the young women to select, however. Miss Margaret Denfeld, '04, so closely pressed Miss Aiken, '05, in the excellence of her work that the vote was split.

S. T. Harrison, E. F. Alford, Homer C. Fulton, Mrs. Dunlop, Mrs. W. R. Bagley and Miss Margaret McGiffert acted as judges.

Harry McMartin, '03, gave some very pleasing piano solos at different points on the program and Miss Frances Woodbridge, '01, sang delightfully.

When the sophomores found that two of their number had been successful in winning over the entire school, they went wild and in spite of the fact that Principal Smith desired to keep class spirit out of the contest, their enthusiasm leaped over the the bounds and class yells, cheers for their champions and other vociferous rejoicing rent the air.

PROMISES MUCH SUCCESS.

Athletic Entertainment Taking on Much Interest.

The students have taken hold of the Athletic association entertainment which will be given next Friday so well that the affair will be a big success unquestionably.

It is an athletic carnival in which many new stunts will be shown the public. Some have never been seen before in Duluth, and none were ever executed by the high school students here before. Pyramids and other maneuvers will be executed.

During the last week a very large number of boys have been at work in the old gymnasium each evening, and the work done has been very satisfactory.

It is hoped that with the money which will be obtained from the entertainment and the ball game which is being played with the league team this afternoon, the big debt which the association acquired last fall can be paid off.

Dispatches from Montreal announcing that Gordon O'Neil, of Duluth, had given up the fight of the Canadian longshoremen, which he had been directing as an officer of the international organization, added much to the joy of living during the past few days. The idea that Gordon O'Neil would give up a strike is considered one of the best jokes on record. That is not his nature, and now that these reports have been freely circulated, it is doubtful if the Longshoremen's international could call him off.

Another amusing report is that the "strike at the Clyde" has been called off. Members of the Machinists' and Moulders' unions stated today that the Clyde was still under the ban. Only about four men that originally went out are without employment, and it is announced that the fight is still on.

The members of the Cooks and Waiters' union are feeling extremely good over the winning of the strike for higher wages. It lasted but a few days and was won on all points without so much as a picket system. The walters get $1 a week more and the cooks $2.

Extensive preparations are under way for the annual convention of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor at Little Falls, beginning June 8. Duluth will be largely represented and during the coming week many local unions will choose their delegates.

Secretary McEwen, of the State Federation, says that every indication points to a record-breaking convention and he also says that the Theatrical Stage Employes of this city was the first union in the city to name a delegate. Walter Johnson will represent the stage employes.

Efforts are being made to induce the Bethel association to decline to board the non-union machinists and moulders employed in the Clyde works on Lake avenue. A committee from the Federated Trades' assembly will take the matter up with the Bethel managers immediately.

Charles Carlson, of the Typographical union, will leave tomorrow for Mount Clemens, Mich., for his health.

The linemen of the Bell Telephone company are still out for an eight-hour day and the electricians say that the management of the company declines to arbitrate.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Frequency of Small Strikes Is Disturbing Business Somewhat.

New York, May 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Unrest in the ranks of labor has increased rather than abated since May 1, when difficulties of this sort usually culminate. No single struggle of great magnitude is in progress, but the frequency of small strikes is disturbing, and in the aggregate a large force is idle, while important industrial undertakings are checked.

Good reports are received from footwear factories, shipments from Boston for the year thus far surpassing all records, and clothing makers receive duplications of spring orders in addition to getting out fall samples. Prices of commodities declined slightly during April, Dun's index number falling from $99,267 to $98,561. A year ago the highest point of recent years was touched at $102,289. Railway earnings in April were 13.4 per cent larger than in last year and 28.7 per cent above 1901.

Cancellation of orders where deliveries failed to be made according to contract and new business at lower quotations indicate a tendency toward more normal conditions in pig iron. This is highly desirable, and gives assurance that present activity in iron and steel may be maintained. Pending contracts for about 50,000 tons of structural material have been closed and other orders are only postponed by uncertainty regarding the labor situation. Railway requirements appear to have no limit, and the proposed extensions will consume large quantities of steel. Billets are one of the scarce articles at present, even imports being arranged with difficulty. Implement manufacturers are surpassing all records in their purchases of merchant steel, machine shops are working at full capacity, and there is a brisk demand for pipes and tubes. All leading machinery markets report satisfactory conditions. Trade in hardware is of good volume, orders assuring activity for some time, and new business still coming forward freely, especially at the South.

Textile manufacturers at the East have not improved their position during the past week. Jobbers are buying only small quantities, exercising a discrimination that indicates dull markets elsewhere, and salesmen are being withdrawn from the road.

With large print mills closed, there is no activity in print cloths, nor is the movement of brown sheetings and drills of any account. Abnormal prices for raw cotton might be expected to stimulate inquiry for goods, but the only effect is to prevent sellers from making concessions. Higher figures are expected next week at the official opening of the season in carpets. More woolen mills have closed, and the market is featureless, but the new wool clip is firmly held. A steadier tone is noted in silks, owing to reports that productions will be curtailed.

Trade is rather quiet in leather, both as to sole and upper, with prices steady, although heavyweight stocks have accumulated. Chicago packer hides are dull at recent advances.

Failures this week, 175 in the United States against 218 last year, and 2 in Canada compared with 24 a year ago.

WOMEN SAY OF PE-RU-NA:

"I am Healthy and Happy Once More."

Miss Hettie Grace, 254 W. Forty-Sixth St., N. Y., writes:

"Peruna has changed me from a fretful, irritable, nervous woman into a healthy and happy one. Nothing seems to worry and to fret me any more. Since early womanhood I suffered with bearing down pains and nervousness. I was thin and worried but Peruna restored me. Those who knew me before cannot understand the change, but I can sum it all up in the blessed word Peruna."

A Heart to Heart Talk With Women by Dr. S. B. Hartman, M. D.

IF ALL the sick mothers, invalid daughters and diseased sisters in this broad land would take the following ladies' simple and direct testimony to heart and do as they have done, no pen could describe the benefit that would follow.

There are so many women, especially married women, who drag themselves wearily around from year to year without any particular disease, and yet miserable beyond description.

They ache and tremble and throb, growing more nervous, tired and debilitated every day.

For this class of sufferers Peruna is the most perfect remedy in existence. It relieves, it soothes, it quiets, it strengthens, and no tired, overworked woman in the land should be without Peruna in the house for a single day.

Those women who desire to consult Dr. Hartman may do so in all confidence. He has an experience of over fifty years in the treatment of women's diseases and gives his advice entirely gratis. Thousands of women have been cured by correspondence.

Dr. Hartman has written a book especially for this class of women. It is entitled, "Health and Beauty," and will be sent free upon application. It gives invaluable advice for the maid and matron.

A Letter from Minnesota.

Mrs. Pauline Winters Hausen, 211 29th Ave., West, Duluth, Minn., writes: "I want to say a good word for Peruna, as it has cured me of severe female trouble combined with nervousness. For two years I used remedies without lasting benefit. Four bottles of Peruna cured me entirely. I feel better than I ever did before, which I owe to Dr. Harman and Peruna. Dr. Hartman has answered every letter that I sent him free, and does for everyone who applies to him."—Mrs. Pauline Winters Hausen.

A Letter from Mrs. Senator Warren.

The following letter from the wife of late Governor and now U. S. Senator F. E. Warren of Wyoming was received by The Peruna Medicine Co.:

Washington, D. C.,
1818 Wyoming St.

To The Peruna Medicine Co.:

Gentlemen: In the sacred cause of humanity I wish to bear testimony to the great efficacy of your valuable medicine, Peruna. I am never without it, either in my home or in my travels. It is truly a great triumph of scientific medicine. I am constantly troubled with colds, cough, etc., but thanks to your good medicine, Peruna, I always find a prompt cure. I have recommended it to my friends, every one of whom reported most enthusiastically of its good work.

"Notably one gentleman in my home, Cheyenne, who had tried many medicines under different physicians and had given up hope and his business. After taking a portion of the second bottle he was enabled to walk a mile at a time and has now resumed his business. I believe no medicine ever brought before the public has effected so many permanent cures as Peruna."—Mrs. F. E. Warren.

A Letter from Missouri.

Mrs. Martha Frederick, Cole Camp, Mo., writes:

"I feel it my duty to write and tell you of the good your Peruna has done me. I was subject to female weakness. For six years I suffered more or less. We have consulted various doctors who gave me relief, but no cure.

"I have suffered a great deal, and my husband had very large bills to pay. In my despair I decided to try Peruna, and the first bottle taken according to directions gave me relief.

"I have had no back set since then. Since we have used Peruna a doctor has seldom been in our house.

"It would take a book if I were to tell all the good that Peruna has done in our family.

A Letter from Ohio.

Mrs. Mary J. Houston, 218 Washington Ave., Columbus, O., writes:

"It is through the mercies of God and your Peruna that I have been cured. I have been a constant sufferer from bowel and stomach trouble for the last five years. Last winter I was better, then took worse. I sent for a doctor, and requested him to tell me what was the matter. He told me I had bowel consumption. I then consulted with six physicians, and at this time was almost dead. I took three kinds of patent medicine but without any relief.

"The minister at West Jefferson called to see me and seemed to think I had but little longer to live. I was then sent home to Columbus. When my cousin advised me to use Peruna, I said: 'If Dr. Hartman can cure me he can raise the dead.' I think he can for I am cured; can eat fruit or anything I want. This I have not been able to do for years. I am also cured of heart trouble, which I had for twelve years. I began taking Peruna the 18th of last August, and have taken five and a half bottles. I am perfectly cured and feel as though I were only nineteen. I only weighed eighty-four pounds, and now I weigh 133. My case was catarrh of the bowels, and I hope that any who are suffering with the same will give Peruna a trial. Thanks to Dr. Hartman, as I would have been in my grave had it not been for Peruna."—Mary J. Houston.

A Letter from New Jersey.

Mrs. Sarah Frye, 204 Sylvan Ave., West Asbury Park, N. J., writes:

"I have not words to express my gratitude for the wonderful cure that Peruna has done for me. It is a God-send to all suffering women.

"Peruna has done wonderful work for me. I was sick over half of my life with systemic catarrh. I want this letter published far and wide as I was a great sufferer, but today I feel as well as anybody can feel. Nearly all my life I have spent nearly all I could make and scrape for doctors, but none of them did me any good, but since I started on your Peruna, one year ago, I have at last found relief.

"I had begun to think that I was not going to get well, but thank God I am all well today. I hope and pray you may live long to help others as you have helped me.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

"Instead of being a walking drugstore I am growing fat and doing well. I will never be without Peruna and Manalin."

CARNEGIE PRESIDES

At Dinner of Iron and Steel Institute.

London, May 9.—Andrew Carnegie presided at the annual dinner of the Iron and Steel institute last night at the Hotel Cecil. Prime Minister Balfour was seated at the right and the duke of Devonshire at the left hand of the chairman. The 550 guests present included Ambassador Choate, Secretary White, Lord Alverstone, Sir Henry Fowler, Sir Henry Campbell-Banerman, John Morley and James Bryce.

Seldom has a citizen of a foreign country been the center of a more brilliant gathering. Mr. Carnegie struck a happy note at the outset when he toasted King Edward as "the greatest of ambassadors and the greatest harmoniling force," and kept Premier Balfour in a merry mood with his American anecdotes. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman made an amusing speech in which he chaffed Mr. Carnegie with having his heart in Scotland, although he had temporarily assumed foreign citizenship.

THOUSANDS COMING

United Commercial Travelers Convention In June at Duluth.

Five Thousand Visitors Expected—Great Demonstration Planned.

The tenth annual convention of the United Commercial Travelers of America of the jurisdiction of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana will be held in Duluth Friday and Saturday, June 12 and 13.

It is expected that it will bring nearly 5000 people to the city, and elaborate preparations are being made to give them a good time and to make the affair the most successful convention ever held in this city.

It is not yet known just how many delegates will be here to attend the sessions of the grand council of the order, but it is expected that from 2500 to 3000 members of the order, including delegates and visitors, will be here, and as the railroads have given excellent rates, it is fully expected that outsiders enough will take advantage of them to bring the total up to 5000.

Burt Holcomb, C. W. Sutton and W. H. Wilson are the members of the general committee on arrangements. The arrangements are in good hands, therefore, and this committee is being assisted by a long list of sub-committees acting under their direction.

The visitors will begin arriving on the evening of Thursday, June 11, and from that time to the close of the convention on Saturday no pains will be spared to give every stranger within the city's gates the time of his life.

The opening exercises will be held in the Armory on Friday morning, and in the afternoon there will be a variety of affairs. The grand council will be in session and there will be a ball game and other sports, the exact nature of which has not yet been arranged. The visiting women will be given a reception at the Commercial club during the afternoon, and in the evening the Armory will again be the center of attraction, when a grand ball will be given. The decorations of the hall will be handsome and elaborate, and the plans for this are ample enough to promise that the Armory will be something in the nature of a dream. Flaaten's full band will provide music early, and later it will turn into an orchestra to give music for the dance. There will be twenty-five or thirty pieces.

Saturday morning the grand council will finish its work, and during the forenoon, about 2 o'clock, there will be an industrial parade, in which all of the local jobbers and wholesalers will take part. The retail grocers will be represented by a handsome float, and there will be three prizes for the best-looking turn-outs. The local council, 250 strong, is going to be provided with neat and natty uniforms, consisting of white duck trousers, blue coat and belt. Every member is expected to provide himself with a uniform and turn-out to give the parade a proper finish. All of the visiting members will be provided with caps and badges.

Saturday, after the parade, there will be a boat ride, and in the evening there will be a concert, either at the Armory or at the high school.

The business men along Superior street will have a chance to turn in and help the local traveling men in their efforts to make this the biggest convention ever held here, and to show the visitors something of what Duluth can do along that line. Arrangements have been made so the local stores will have an ample supply of bunting, and the merchants along the street will be asked to decorate with the national colors and withthe colors of the order—purple, white and gold.

The arch at Fifth avenue west will be lighted up and it will bear the device, in glittering incandescents of "Welcome, U. T. C." The headquarters of the order will probably be at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street.

The arrangements are not yet complete, but they are being rapidly whipped into shape, and the outlook is that the convention will be a great success.

TAKEN IN BATTLE

THE THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF CAPTAIN WESTBROOK.

For a Year After His Capture He Was Moved From One Prison to Another and Was Finally Exchanged.

A Confederate force under the command of Brigadier-General John A. McAusland had attacked, on July 3rd, 1864, a blockhouse ten miles west of Martinsburg, W. Va. Captain N. S. Westbrook with the remnants of Companies B and F of the 135th Ohio Volunteers, made a gallant defense, but when a six-gun battery was brought to bear upon his position, further resistance became a useless sacrifice of life. For a year after his surrender, Capt. Westbrook, who now lives at Ripley, Ill., was confined in Southern prisons. In telling his experience, he says:

"They took me from one place to another till I had been in nearly all the prisons of the Confederacy and, by the time I was exchanged at Annapolis in the spring of 1865 I was reduced to a physical wreck. The exposure caused sciatic rheumatism which became chronic and did not leave me until thirty years afterwad, when I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and was cured.

"The disease affected my entire system. In addition to the agonies of the rheumatism I had indigestion in its worst form, together with kidney trouble and heart failure. I was getting thoroughly used up."

"How did you come to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?" was asked.

"A neighbor of mine, James M. Stout, was cured of rheumatism by this remedy when he was so bad that he could not straighten up. So I thought what cured him would cure me. And I was right."

Rheumatism is a disease of the blood. External applications may afford temporary relief, but to cure the disease it is necessary to treat it through the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People go directly to the seat of the disorder, purifying and enriching the blood by elliminating poisonous elements and renewing health-giving forces. They are a positive specific not only for rheumatism, but for all diseases arising from poor blood or wasted nerves. They are sold at fifty cents a box, or six boxes for two dollars and a half, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

HAS CLOSE CALL

Ferry Estelle Has Narrow Escape From Serious Accident.

Misses Revolving Propeller of Steamer by Narrow Margin.

The ferry boat Estelle narrowly escaped serious accident on one of the trips between Lake avenue and Park Point early last evening.

Passengers on deck say the stern of the ferry only missed the wheel of the steamer Buffalo by a hair-raising margin of two feet and there was much excitment among those on board.

The Buffalo, of the Western Transit line—one of the largest package freight steamers on the lakes—docking on the west side of the Lake avenue slip, as the Estelle cast loose from the north side and proceeded to swing around preparatory to making her regular trip across the canal.

It was evidently the intention of the captain of the ferry to swing around behind the stern of the big freighter, but the Buffalo slowed down and was barely creeping into the dock with her propeller churning up the water to hold her back.

It seemed for a moment as if the stem of the Estelle would hit the swiftly revolving blades of the larger boat and several passengers prepared to jump when the water was churned up on the Estelle's deck.

A danger whistle was blown and the Buffalo shot ahead as the ferry passed in behind her with scarcely a two-foot margin. It is estimated that there were twenty-five passengers on deck and as many more in the cabin. Those inside were not aware of their danger until it was all over.

It is not likely that any person would have been drowned had the collision occurred, as the Estelle was at all times within easy distance of the dock, and the Duluth-Superior ferry Belle hove to when her captain saw the danger, and would have been in a position to have taken care of those failing to reach the dock side.

An old-time vessel man who saw the whole affair from the dock of the Belle says that in thirty or more years' experience on the likes he never saw a closer shave without more serious consequences.

Dr. Mitchell, the Healer,

He Has Proven to the Satisfaction of the Surrounding Country That His Cures Are Genuine.

Disease Yields Readily To His Magnetic Power

We are now in the beginning of an era when disease will have no more terrors for anyone. In the past five years Dr. Mitchell has treated hundreds of cases where the patient had given up all hope of being well, their cases being pronounced incurable by all other methods. Old cases of paralysis and rheumatism, deafness, blindness, heart, stomach and lung troubles, and all other diseases. He has yet to find a single one that will not yield readily to his treatment.

This confident statement was made to a reporter yesterday. Of his work he has to say: "I know that I have a treatment that will reach disease which medicine will not. My treatment stands on its merits and will bear the closest investigation. Anyone who desires can get proof of my healing power. I have treated case after case of kidney trouble, neuralgia, removed troublesome growths, cured hundreds of cases of female complaint, treated deformity of all kinds, even after the sufferer had given up I hope."

Dr. Mitchell's treatment is nature's remedy. It purifies the blood and regulates the circulation. It builds up the nerves, the muscles and the entire organism. The treatment imparts a vital force to the patient by sending a natural circulation of the blood into all parts of the body. It is in no manner experimental. His treatment in every way is a scientific system. All are invited to call and find out what can be done to bring you to perfect health. After a careful diagnosis of your condition, if it is found that your case cannot be cured Dr. Mitchell will frankly tell you so. It does not make any difference what others say of your disease. Dr. Mitchell's treatment cures where all others fail. We would strongly urge every sufferer from bodily ailments to see what this great healer can do for them. Those who cannot call should write for information. Read a few unsolicited testimonials:

Miss C. Draper, La Crosse, Wis., says: "I was paralyzed on one side and my general health was in a desperate condition. I had tried many doctors without getting relief. I was discouraged and had given up all hope of being well until I started treating with Dr. Mitchell. His treatment worked wonders for me. I am now well and recommend his treatment to all sufferers."

Mrs. Eklund, of 125 57th Ave., West Duluth, says: "I recommend Dr. Mitchell's treatment to all my friends. I went to Dr. Mitchell as a last resort, could hardly walk. My husband and friends thought there was no help for me. I had a large tumor or cyst. I was too weak to be operated upon. I commenced gaining the first treatment and I now weigh more than I ever did. I sent six of my friends there and they are all getting better and are delighted with his method. My husband and I will be pleased to substantiate this statement."

The case of Mr. S. T. Baker, 618 Baxter Ave., West Superior, whose daughter was cured of deafness and his wife also being cured of a bad case of womb trouble and whose case had been pronounced incurable by many physicians has attracted much attention to Dr. Mitchell's work.

Mrs. Anton Peterson, 617 23rd Ave. west, cured of rheumatism and paralysis, which had caused him a great deal of suffering. His daughter was also cured of St. Vitus dance. Mrs. Lautve, of Grand Forks, N. D., cured of kidney and stomach trouble. Bained thirty pounds in three months. While in the city stopped at 125 north 56th ave., West Duluth. Mrs. Edwin Taft, from the Range, cured of goitre and general dropsy. Mrs. Taft lived in a wheel chair for six months. Sufferers who could not raise their arms, sufferers who could not move their limbs, have found quick and permanent relief under Dr. Mitchell's treatment.

VIEWS MEET WITH FAVOR

Canadian Comments on an Interview With M. S. Burrows.

The views of M. S. Burrows, of this city, on the trade outlook, which were recently published in The Evening Herald, have attracted widespread attention in Eastern Canada, among newspapers there.

The Ottawa Free Press, one of the influential and conservative papers of that province, treated the matter editorially and with praise, and the Toronto Globe also devoted much space to the review of the situation. The Utica Saturday Globe (Canadian edition), published the matter and also a fine half-tone cut of Mr. Burrows in connection, under a Smith Falls date line.

The Ottawa Free Press, in its comment, gives the following biography:

"M. S. Burrows is a son of James Burrows, Esq., who located in the township of Beckwith, with his father, a British officer, in 1816. In 1816 he accompanied the duke of Richmond on his trip as governor general of Canada through the country when he died. Mr. Burrows managed the arrangements for the transportation of the duke's remains to the old country, where they were shipped.

"James Burrows was one of the first councillors elected in Beckwith township, after the family compact, and held the position for a life time. He sat for eight years in the county council at Perth, and was a captain of militia. He was owner of 900 acres of land in Lanark and Carleton, and was instrumental in opening and developing of the country in an early day.

"M. S. Burrows is now a prominent business man of Duluth. He has met with splendid success across the border, and reflects credit on Canadian manhood. He comes of historic family, and many friends will be glad to hear of the prominence he has achieved."

COMMERCIAL GETS A SIGN

Has Handsome One of the Electrically Illuminated Style.

The Commercial club is the latest of Superior street institutions to come in line with an illuminated sign. The sign was put up this afternoon and will be lighted up this evening. It will form an important adjunct to the club facilities as strangers in the city will hereafter be able to find the club rooms without difficulty or much inquiry.

Letters have been received from a number of other commercial organizations in the country, extending courtesies to the members of the Duluth club. Among the latest posted are the following: Commercial club, of Omaha, Neb.; Commercial club, of Fairhaven, Wash.; Commercial club, of Albuquerque, N. M.; Tacoma chamber of commerce and board of trade; board of trade, Mankato, Minn.; Deadwood Commercial club, of South Dakota; Dallas Commercial club, of Texas; Merchants' club, of San Francisco, and Northfield Commercial club, of Minnesota.

The list of exchanges now contains the names of nearly fifty of the prominent clubs in this country and new ones are being continually added.

THE JULY CARNIVAL.

Arrangements For the Big Affair Are Progressing.

A meeting of the Duluth Carnival and Amusement company was to be held at the Commercial club rooms this afternoon, after 4 o'clock. At this meeting there will be reports submitted from various committees having in charge the big midsummer carnival that is to be held at the new ball grounds in this city, beginning July 6. Contracts have already been closed with some of the largest traveling amusement aggregations, and more attractions will be arranged for later.

The promotors of the enterprise are ten of the prominent business men of Duluth, and the intention is to make the carnival one of the biggest affairs of the kind ever held in the Northwest. Liberal advertising will make it known in every town, city and hamlet in this part of the country, and excursions will be run into the city from every direction. It is expected that the event will bring thousands of visitors here in July.

Advertising in The Herald is no experiment. Readers follow every announcement.

IMPOSTERS AT WORK.

Soliciting Aid For St. Luke's Hospital Without Authority.

Two well dressed women have been soliciting aid for St. Luke's hospital, and the police have been asked to apprehend them because their work is unauthorized, and the hospital people believe they are working a fraudulent game. The first the hospital authorities knew of it was when Frederick Knowlton, a grocer at Fourth avenue East, telephoned in the fact that he had given the women 50 cents. He suspected that it was not all right, and his suspicions were confirmed when he called up the hospital. Dr. Ryan, president of the hospital association, told the police to look out for the women, as the hospital does not solicit funds in this manner, and he believed the women were getting the money for their own use.

Ball Club Officers.

At a meeting of the Duluth Baseball club of the Northern league today, some changes were made in the personnel of officers. M. J. Bryan is president; L. Van Fraagh, first vice president and manager; C. A. Stone, second vice president; Albert L. Preston, secretary, and A. W. Kuehnow, treasurer. Work on the new club grounds began today. The promoters of the enterprise are receiving great encouragement in the matter of cash subscriptions and have received some generous donations from local lumber concerns in material.

HEAVILY INVOLVED.

A Failure Impending.

Improper feeding brings on disease. The use of coffee, for instance, is almost certain to cause organic ills. The whole system of health becomes involved and the physical failure known as collapse is always impending. No financial trouble can cause half the suffering that follows disease and most disease comes from what we eat and drink.

It is no guess work, but solid, scientific fact that coffee hurts about nine of every ten that drink it. It attacks the vital organs directly, and indirectly its ill results are frequently seen in the remotest corners of the body. All the while serious organic diseases may be growing that will be hard to cure and the coffee drinker is subject to such suffering as headaches, biliousness, flatulence, insomnia, nervousness and a hundred and one other ills.

"Once upon a time, as they say in fairy tales, when I was controlled by the coffee fiend," writes a lady of St. John, Canada, "life was a weary burden to me on acount of the wretched headaches, utter weariness of both mind and body and general biliousness, all due as I afterwards found out to the use of coffee. Acting upon an old friend's advice I quit coffee and drank Postum and presto, in a week, I was transformed into a different being.

"In a month I was gifted with bounding energy in place of my former lassitude and a general uprising of my formerly dormant ambitions was plainly evident. I benefited so greatly that I constituted myself a missionary among my friends to spread the truth about Postum and I can tell you of many of my friends who have used it with wonderful good results."

Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Don't go into health bankruptcy. Look into the scientific points of Postum vs. Coffee.

BIG BANQUET OF MACCABEES

Will Take Place at the McKay Next Thursday.

The Knights of the Maccabees of Duluth, West Duluth, West Superior and the iron ranges will participate next Thursday evening in what is expected to be the largest banquet ever given by that order in this section. It will be at the McKay hotel, and 300 covers will be laid. Governor S. R. Van Sant, who is a Maccabee, is expected to be present and to speak on "Fraternities in Minnesota." An effort is being made to have Supreme Commander D. P. Markey, of Port Huron, Mich., here for the occasion. He has not yet accepted, but the local Maccabees hope that he will. Officers from the supreme tents and the state commandry will be present. Speeches will be made by Toastmaster George R. Layhourn, Mayor Hugo, State Commander J. N. Chellew, George A. Mallory, of West Duluth, George S. Raper, of Two Harbors, and C. H. Crownhart, of Superior. Tents as far away as Ashland, Wis., and Winona, Minn., are expected to be represented. The committee in charge of the banquet consists of F. C. Freer, W. A. Putnam, J. B. Jellneau, Theodore King and Max Stein.

BIG BUSINESS IS LOOKED FOR Much Inquiry With Reference to Sailing of North West.

The 1903 season of summer excursions on the steamer North West of the Northern Steamship company, promises to be a valuable thing for Duluth.

"We are receiving letters on every mail from the most prominent people of the large cities of the Northwest and West," said Northern Passenger Agent Kitchell, of the Great Northern offices today. "They come in packages and all are inquiring about the time of departure and arrivals of the boat when the season opens.

"It appears from here as if the first trip down would be made with every possible accommodation taken.

"There isn't the slightest doubt but that the boat will be loaded on every trip after that, and by people of a great deal of prominence in the western country. The letters we are receiving are all from people of that sort."

The season of the Northern Steamship company's boats opens June 20 and the first boat will come into Duluth June 22. It will leave for Buffalo that evening.

No docks have been selected as yet for the landing of the North West, and no negotiations are pending in Duluth, at present, for dock concessions.

TO DISSOLVE PARTNERSHIP

Hugh Steele of King & Steele Petitions Court For Accounting.

Hugh Steele has begun an action in district court against George R. King, asking that the partnership of King & Steele be dissolved and that an accounting be taken of all dealings and transactions between the parties, and that the amount which the plaintiff is entitled to be ascertained and adjudged. The court is petitioned to appoint a receiver to take charge of the firm's affairs until a settlement is effected.

The complaint alleges that the partnership was formed in 1896 between the plaintiff and the defendant for a general contracting business; that the agreement was that each should share equally in the profits and losses, and that the partnership should be dissolved at the instance of either party.

It is alleged by the plaintiff that since the commencement of the copartnership the defendant has wrongfully and without the consent of the plaintiff applied large amounts of money, receipts and profits of the business to his own use, and by reason of this has become indebted to the plaintiff and has impeded and injured the business of the firm. Plaintiff claims that he has requested defendant to pay over the moneys received by him, but that he has refused and neglected so to do. H. B. Fryberger represents the plaintiff.

FIRST HAIL STORM.

St. Paul, May 9.—A Fergus Falls, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The first hail storm of the season occurred at Carlisle, this country, last night, and covered the ground to the depth of nearly two inches. The rain storm was almost a cloudburst.

OFFICERS IMPLICATED.

Washington, May 9.—The officers who were implicated in irregular transactions in commissary supplies at Skagway, Alaska, and whose court martial has been ordered, are Major Charles A. Booth, Seventeenth Infantry, now at Vancouver Washington, and Captain F. L. Knudsen, Eighth Infantry, now at Fort St. Michael, Alaska. Other officers have been implicated and may be ordered before a court martial.

LIGHT AMOUNT OF BUILDING

Z. T. Mullin of Washing-ing, Comments on That Feature In Duluth.

Z. T. Mullin, of Washington, D. C., a large owner of Duluth property, is in the city for a short stay. At other times Mr. Mullin has spent some weeks here, but on this occasion his visit will be limited to less than a week. He takes a great interest in Duluth and watches its affairs very closely.

Mr. Mullin has just visited Winnipeg and found that city growing at a very lively rate and branching out in building, business and general prosperity.

"Do you know," said he, "that one coming into Duluth receives a much stronger first impression than upon going into a city like Winnipeg. Here the first things one sees are your harbor, your great shipping docks, your immense railroad yards, and he hears the heavy whistles of the boats, the whole impressing him at once with the idea that here is a commercial and business center of importance."

Mr. Mullin is surprised to find so little building of houses for rent when the demand is so keen as represented by the rental agents. "It is astonishing to me that you have none of the large flat buildings such as are so popular in most all of the large cities. When properly built and managed they generally pay from 12 to 15 per cent, I believe. In Winnipeg they are just completing some, although I do not think they are quite what they ought to be."

Mr. Mullin owns a large amount of property on East Superior street, between Third and Eighth avenues East. He signed the petition for the pavement of the street but has expressed no preference as to material, beyond a natural desire to have the cost as low as possible consistent with getting a good pavement. He suggests, however, that the tar macadam pavement ought to have a good trial; that its wearing qualities may be thoroughly tested, and thinks it might be a good idea to see a piece of it put down on East Superior street for that purpose.

THOUSANDS ON STRIKE

Many Brick and Tile Makers Have Quit Work.

Pittsburg, May 9.—Ten thousand members of the National Association of Brick and Tile Makers of America struck today, and before evening, it is said, the 25,000 members of the union in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia will be out.

The cause of the strike is the alleged discrimination of the Harbison-Walker Refractories company against union workmen.

Some of the men did not report for duty this morning and others went out at noon. Word has been sent to all the locals in the three states, and by evening it is expected to be general.

The Harbison-Walker officials say they will issue a statement this evening.

HASKINS MAY NOT RETURN.

Havana, May 9.—Colonel William Haskins, commanding the American troops in Cuba, sailed for New York today on the Ward liner Moro Castle, on leave of absence, to attend the wedding at Watersenee, to attend the wedding at Waterford, Conn., of his daughter, to Major Gaston, of the First cavalry.

It is considered questionable whether Col. Haskins will return to Cuba in view of his long service here and the contemplated withdrawal of a portion of the American troops.

THE FUND CLOSED

Dr. Eklund Concludes the Collection of Famine Fund.

Amount Contributed By St. Louis County Exceeds $3,000.

With Tower yet to hear from, St. Louis county has contributed $5013.70 for the relief of famine sufferers of Scandinavian.

The subscription list is now closed, and Dr. Eklund, who has had charge of the relief work in this county, has made his final report with the exception of the contributions from Tower.

The report is as follows:

Duluth	$2209 10
Virginia	368 60
Hibbing	163 45
Biwabik	68 15
McKinley	67 50
Ely	62 50
Pond du Lac	28 25
Chisholm	27 75
Alborn	9 50
Sparta	8 90
	$3013 70

It was originally considered that if St. Louis contributed $2500 to the relief fund this county would be doing well, but this mark was easily surpassed. Dr. Eklund, in closing up his work, issues the following statement to the public:

Having reached the desired amount in the famine fund I take this occasion to thank you all most earnestly for the aid you have given me in procuring this fund, and the prompt and generous gifts so many have given. Had I been able to spare the time to make a personal canvass undoubtedly much more could have been accomplished, but being unable to do so, I have depended entirely on the generosity of the people, after calling their attention to the famine districts through the press. I am especially thankful to the press for the aid they have given me in the work. Respectfully,

J. J. EKLUND.

CALIFORNIANS NEED LABOR

W. H. Murray, Representing Fruit Growers, Is In Duluth.

W. H. Murray, of San Francisco, representing the California Fruit Grower and the California Promotion committee, is in the city and will be at the McKay hotel for several days. He is in this section heralding the advantages of California as a place to live, and after his stay here he will go on to Milwaukee, Chicago and over the Erie system into the New England states, returning through the country traversed by the Baltimore & Ohio.

"California is the land of opportunity," said Mr. Murray this morning, "and it is my mission to let the people of the East know something about it. There is work for everybody there, for California really needs people to handle its growing fruit and other industries.

"I can imagine how a young man without much of any means can get a vacation in California, just as well as the rich man. During the picking season there is always work there, and a young man could go out and make the expenses of his trip picking fruit.

"There is a scarcity of labor there, and there has been for some time, due to the growt.. of the fruit industry and to the Chinese exclusion act. This is the cause of a change in the labor conditions of California, little noted in the East, but far-reaching indeed. There was a time when the Chinese were to California what the negroes are to the South. They were the house help and the orchard help of the state. But it is no longer a case of 'the Chinese must go'—they are practically gone. We do not ask people to go to California to compete with so-called cheap labor. The farm and orchard owners of California have awakened to the absolute necessity of depending upon the same class of workers that has made Eastern farmers successful, and none others. The work of irrigation is growing and demands help.

"California has 100,837,520 acres of land, of which only 40,970,268 acres have been used enough to be assessed. There is plenty of valuable land left. There are over 16,000,000 acres of redwood, spruce, pine, fir and cedar timber, so no lumberman needs be out of employment.

"Wages are good. Fruit-picking brings $1 to $2.50 a day, according to skill. Domestic help is in great demand at $20 to $30 a month.

"Taking all these things into consideration, together with the marvelous climate, it strikes me that California is a pretty good place to go to.

"You have a great country here, also. After living in California for thirty years it is a great surprise to me to find the wonderful manner in which the Northwest has developed. You have a wonderful city here, also, with a pregnant future."

The California Promotion committee, which Mr. Murray represents, is composed of representatives of the commercial organizations of San Francisco and the state of California.

MEN'S MALADIES CURED

I made up my mind soon after graduating from college that no one man was great enough to master the entire field of medicine and surgery. Many physicians have tried to do this, but they have met with results usually disappointing to themselves and often disastrous to their patients. For this reason I determined early in my professional career to confine my practice strictly to a single line of disease, and to originating and perfecting cures for them. I therefore treat only what I am absolutely certain that I can positively cure to stay cured.

Varicocele, Stricture, Contagious Blood Poison, Nervo-Sexual Debility, Rupture, Kidney and Urinary Diseases and all reflex complications and associate diseases and weaknesses of men. To these maladies alone the best years of my life have been earnestly devoted, and on them all my facilities are concentrated. Our consultation and operating rooms are thoroughly equipped with every scientific apparatus, instrument and device essential to the most modern methods of practice, and our references, both professional and financial, are claiming the best citizens of this vicinity, who have been cured by us and made happy. I want every afflicted man to freely and fully investigate our treatment. My education, my experience, my conscience condemn all kinds of quackery. I treat each case separately, closely watching it and carefully following its symptoms with remedies verified through every stage. The diseases that constitute my specialty are more fully commented upon below and are well worth the careful perusal of all men in need of medical attention.

THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED, MOST SUCCESSFUL AND RELIABLE SPECIALIST IN DISEASES OF MEN AS MEDICAL DIPLOMAS, LICENSES AND NEWSPAPER RECORDS WILL SHOW.

Varicocele.

Whatever may be the cause of varicocele, its injurious effect is well known. It depresses the mind, weakens the body, racks the nervous system and ultimately leads to a complete loss of sexual power. If you are a victim of this dire disease, come to our office and let us explain to you our process of treating it. You will then not wonder why we have positively cured hundreds of cases of varicocele during the past twelve months. Under our treatment the patient improves from the very beginning. All pain instantly ceases. Soreness and swelling quickly subside. The pools of stagnant blood are forced from the dilated veins, which rapidly resume their normal size, strength and soundness. All indications of disease and weakness vanish completely, and in their stead comes the pride, the power, and the pleasures of perfect health and restored manhood.

Stricture.

It matters not how long you have suffered from stricture, nor how many different doctors have disappointed you. We will cure you just as certainly as you come to us for treatment. We will not do it by cutting or dilating. Our treatment is new, entirely original with us, and perfectly painless. It completely dissolves the stricture from the urinary passage. It stops every unnatural discharge, allays all inflammation, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses the bladder and kidneys, invigorates the sexual organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

Nervo-Sexual Debility.

Men, many of you are now reaping the results of your former folly. Your manhood is failing and will soon be lost unless you do something for yourself. There is no time to lose. Impotency, like all sexual diseases, is never on the standstill; either you must master it or it will master you, and fill your future with misery and indescribable woe. We have treated so many cases of this kind that we are as familiar with them as you are with the very daylight. Once cured by us, you will never again be bothered with emissions, prematureness, small, weak organs, nervousness, failing memory, loss of ambition or other symptoms which rob you of your manhood and absolutely unfit you for study, business, pleasure or marriage. Our treatment for weak men will correct all these evils and restore you to what nature intended—a hale, hearty, happy man, with physical, mental and sexual powers complete.

Contagious Blood Poison

On account of its frightful hideousness, contagious blood poison is commonly called the king of veneral diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself either in form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper color spots on the face or the body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous-like decay of the flesh and bone. If you have any of these familiar symptoms you are cordially invited to consult us immediately. If we find your fears are unfounded, we will quickly unburden your mind. But if your constitution is infected with syphilitic virus, we will tell you frankly and show you how to get rid of it. Our special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of my life work and is endorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious remedies of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign any symptom of Blood Poison disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared for the duties and pleasures of life.

Associate Diseases.

In curing an ailment of any kind we never fail to remove all reflex complications of associate diseases. If the case is Varicocele, the weakness caused by it disappears. If it is Structure, and has developed into Prostatic, Bladder or Kidney affections, the injured organs are all restored to perfectly healthy conditions. If it is Contagious Blood Poison, any and all Skin, Blood and Bone diseases arising from the taint are entirely and perfectly eliminated from the system. If it is Impotency, the many distressing symptoms following in its train and indicating a premature decline of physical, mental and sexual power are totally removed and rapidly replaced by the youthful energy of robust manhood. Hence all resulting ill and reflex complications which may be properly termed associate diseases, and which, in fact, are often more serious than the original ailment that gives rise to them all, we say, disappear completely and forever with the cure of the main malady.

Correspondence.

One personal visit is preferred, but if it is impossible or inconvenient for you to call at our office, write a full and unreserved history of your case, plainly stating your symptoms. We make no charge for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promise.

By our special treatment we are making many wonderful cures in diseases of the Kidneys, Rheumatism, Paralysis, Piles, etc. Private Diseases, Syphilitic Blood Poison, Stricture, Varicocele, Nervo-Sexual Debility, Rupture, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, and all Allied and Associate Diseases of Men.

STRIKE IS NOT OFF

Clyde Iron Works Molders Have Not Returned to Work.

Duluth Telephone Company Puts On Non-Union Men.

Officers of the Molders' union deny the report published this morning that the strike at the Clyde Iron works had been called off.

The union claims that the strike is still on, and that while it does not now have the sanction of the executive committee of their national organization, it will have soon.

They also deny the statement in this morning's paper that the Clyde molders went out on a strike in sympathy with the molders that recently struck for a 9-hour day at West Superior. The Clyde men struck when non-union machinists were brought from Cheyenne and elsewhere to replace the Duluth machinists that went on a strike for a 9-hour day.

Recently Vice President Campbell of the molders' international organization came here from Cincinnati to investigate the strike situation at the head of the lakes. Subsequently orders were issued for the West Superior strikers to return to work, but that order did not apply to Duluth, as has been stated.

Mr. Campbell and W. J. Connors, a local representative of the molders, however, called on Manager Luster of the Clyde works and said that if the Clyde would discharge all non-union molders now employed there, the union men would go back to work pending an investigation and probable settlement of the trouble with the machinists and molders. It is claimed that the committee was informed that such a proposition could not be considered, but it was intimated that the union men might be taken back as individuals if they applied. This was regarded as a frank statement that the union would not be recognized.

Vice President Campbell did not issue any orders after this conference, but started back to Cincinnati, where he will make a full report to the molders' executive committee, and it is said that an official strike affecting the Clyde works may be ordered.

Another strike that is creating a great deal of discussion is that of the Duluth Telephone company linemen, who are out seeking an 8-hour day.

The linemen have offered to arbitrate and were informed by the telephone company officers that they did not see how arbitration could be possible, as the union was not recognized by the company and the telephone people considered that they were dealing entirely with individuals and not an organization.

That ended peace negotiations, and this morning the telephone company put a picked crew of non-union linemen to work in the places of the strikers.

A committee from the Electrical Workers' union has taken the matter up with the Federated Trades' assembly and the strikers say they will make a strenuous fight.

Why Pay as Much

for an inferior beer?

Schlitz beer costs twice what common beer costs in the brewing. One-half pays for the product; the other half for its purity.

One-half is spent in cleanliness, in filtering even the air that touches it, in filtering the beer, in sterilizing every bottle. And it pays the cost of aging the beer for months before we deliver it.

If you ask for Schlitz you get purity and age, you pay no more than beer costs without them.

MINING LEASE FILED.

Longyear Company Gives One To Incas Company.

A mining lease executed from the Longyear Mesaba Land and Iron company to the Incas Iron company, dated March 17, has been filed with the county register of deeds. The property involved is the north half of the southeast quarter of section 4-58-15. The lease gives the purchaser the right to explore the property, remove all timber but pine, that may be required for the construction of buildings. The lessees are to pay a 25-cent royalty on every ton of ore mined, the minimum amount of royalties to amount to at least $15,000 a year. The lease runs twenty years from April 1, 1903. The Incas company recently transferred its interest in the lease of the LaBelle Iron company at an advanced royalty of 10 cents per ton.

Duluth lodge No. 133, B. P. O. E., is fortunate in securing the services of the gifted lecturer, Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, who will lecture at the Lyceum theater on the evening of May 27 on "A Tour in Ireland." Mr. Mooney is a native of Ireland and is a graduate of Trinity college, Dublin. He is a patriot and paints a most hopeful picture of Ireland's future, which at the present time looks brighter than for centuries. He is also possessed of rare powers of description which enable him to portray faithfully the famous beauty spots with which the island abounds. The lecture is elaborately illustrated with stereopticon views, and in commenting on it the Tacoma Ledger says: "Rev. R. J. Mooney is one of the most eloquent lecturers in the Northwest. His lecture on Ireland was an intellectual treat; the pictures were very fine. On the whole, it will rank with the very best illustrated lectures we have ever heard."

TEACHING HOW TO PROPOSE

Novel Course In Love Making at Michigan University.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 9.—The university of Michigan has added a new course to its curriculum, one that may best be styled a course in love making. Professor Trueblood is the inventor of the novel scheme and his course, which has been hitherto shunned as one of the "toughest" at the university, now seems likely to become the most popular on the campus.

Ever since the spring vacation expired Professor Trueblood has been trying different methods of exciting interest in his class, in order to reduce the ranks of the absentees. Early this week he hit upon a successful plan and now the many visitors who attend his classes are the spectators of thrilling love stories. Fifty times a day Professor Trueblood is forced to kneel before some maiden and show his pupils the right way to declare their devotion to their sweethearts.

"Put more life into your plea," he says; "why, you don't show a trace of passion."

Then the awe-inspired student watches his professor show how he used to do it, and then gets down again to rave and entreat the subject to be his alone. A budding orator takes his place before a blushing maid, and no matter how smoothly the pair may have progressed in private, the professor finds some fault with the public demonstration.

"No, kneel on both knees—now hold her hand, it impresses her more—so," and the old professor again kneels and goes through it all over again.

First steps up the bashful student who simpers, blushes and stammers while he talks.

"Please, miss," he will say, "I love you dearly; will you marry me?" For it is ten to one that he has enjoyed himself so much laughing at his predecessors that he has failed to observe even what Professor Trueblood considers the proper form.

"O, my," the professor breaks out. "The little you know about this business is astonishing."

"Now, you wouldn't accept him if he couldn't do better than that, would you, Miss ——?

"Look, now, I'm tired of your not paying closer attention. Get on your knees, gracefully; like this, you see. Reach over and grasp her hand with both of yours—both, mind; then make your proposal, but make it as a man, not as if you didn't half mean it. Raise your voice. Speak with passion. If your subject doesn't suit I will give you another. I did think men ought to be taught to propose, but I didn't know they were all as ignorant as you seem to be."

Again the poor professor is obliged to get down on his sore knees and pour out another plea for the maiden's hand. Then, at the end of the hour, the class passes out, only to make room for more of the orators, who must be shown.

Professor Trueblood thinks he has to do more than his share of the work, but in spite of that he thinks he will be well repaid if he is able to smooth the road to success for many of his pupils.

"I don't think it is fair for him to make the boys in the class do all the work," said one student. "I wish he would make the girls try it once in a while."

Professor Trueblood addresses few remarks of correction to the girls in their parts. He says he really doesn't know the best way for them to do. They must learn by the experience he is giving them.

COOKING INDIANS

As Shown By the Discovery Of Earthenware Vessels.

Nothing Found That Suggests Intercourse With The Whites.

Cambridge, Mass., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the aboriginal Indians of North America did considerable cooking in their time has been made evident by the discovery in various parts of the United States of earthenware vessels apparently adapted to no other purpose. These vessels, ordinarily called salt-pans by the archaeologist because their chief purpose seemed at first to have been the evaporation of salt from the salt springs near which the Indians established so many of their villages, are North American pottery. The largest one ever found has recently come into the possession of the Peabody museum at Harvard. It measures some thirty-one inches in diameter by eleven inches deep. In appearance, therefore, it is very much like a big, shallow punch bowl. It was discovered not long ago by an archaeological expedition under the joint auspices of the Peabody museum and the university of California and is an important part of the instructive spoil taken from what is now a farm near the meeting of the little Merrimac and the big Mississippi rivers, in Jefferson county, Missouri—once the site of a small Indian village.

This big salt-pan, in which the Indians not only evaporated salt from the water of salt licks, which still exist in the immediate vicinity, but probably cooked their elk meat or venison, is only one of a goodly number of similar but smaller utensils found in the same locality. The larger pans were all sunk in the clay bottom upon which the encampment had rested and were therefore as permanent as any modern stove or oven. The difference was that fire instead of being built under or against the oven was built under or against the oven was built under or in the shape of heated brought to it in the shape of heated stones, some of which, still showing evidence of the many heatings to which the Indians had subjected them, still remained in the salt-pans recovered by the Harvard and California archaeologists.

Near the "salt-pans" or native cooking apparatus still remained portions of the ancient fireplaces in which the stones had been heated, together with the bones of several different kinds of animals which formed part of the Indian bill of fare of about 200 years ago. These remains included elk, beaver, deer, fox and turkey, but there were no traces of the buffalo, although buffalo remains are often found among the relics of the Indians who once roamed the more Western prairies. How these aboriginal American villagers prepared their meat, beyond their method of heating their earthenware pans, is as much a mystery as were pans, is as much a mystery as how they transported the red hot stones from the fireplaces to the cooking pans.

The big salt-pan and its smaller companion pieces of aboriginal kitchen and dining room economy were naturally not the only evidence of early Indian life found in the old village so long hidden under the plowed furrows of modern agriculture. The excavation, not yet fully completed, has already revealed a cemetery as well as a village, the cemetery differing from most of the Indian burial places already found and opened in various parts of the United States in that it was very much smaller than was usually the case. Although occasional isolated graves have been discovered, the experience of previous archaeological investigations would have led naturally to the expectation of finding either a very small group of graves, each containing one skeleton or several skeletons, or a very large one embracing hundreds of burials. In this case only twenty-seven graves were discovered, although this number represented the burial of several times as many Indians. In the graves, which were probably not earlier than the seventeenth century, were found many smaller specimens of pottery, chiefly earthenware bowls, in which the friends and relatives of the departed warriors had placed what they considered would be food enough to last them during their journey to the happy hunting grounds—one bowl in some cases having evidently been considered sufficient for two warriors, while in other cases a single warrior, perhaps a very hungry one during his lifetime, had been supplied with several. These bowls, in interesting contrast with a somewhat similar custom that existed among the European nations of antiquity, in which the buried food vessels were almost always broken in pieces before burial, were nearly all unbroken. Like the larger cooking pans they were made of clay—in many cases, perhaps, the clay taken from the banks of the small creek that still connects the site of the village with the Mississippi river, about one and a half miles distant—mixed with finely-broken-up shells and modeled by hand. But whether the Indians actually made their pottery is one of the debated questions of archaeology, and it has been argued, especially in the cases of the larger and more difficult cooking pans, that it may have been an inheritance from more civilized ancestors.

The bowls, whether inherited or made by the owners by some now unknown process, were very common and were found abundantly in the old village. With them were also many of the shells that archaeology supposes once served the Indian as spoons, all of them chipped in such fashion as to lead to the belief that they were once furnished with handles. With these culinary articles were found many of the stone implements with which the earlier Americans roughly fashioned their arrow-heads, chipped places in their spoon shells for the insertion of handles, or performed other primitive manual operations. Other shells, perforated and doubtless used as jewelry to adorn long ago "braves" for their places at the council fire, were found in the village, some of which were identified as having come from the little nearby creek, while others came from the Mississippi river, and a very few from as far away as the gulf of Mexico.

One of the interesting things about the excavations as so far conducted is that nothing has been found that suggests intercourse with the whites—such, for example, as beads of European manufacture or the little silver crosses frequently found in regions penetrated by the early Jesuit missionaries or by the equally adventurous early French traders. It is known historically that the French were operating lead mines not so very far from the site of the village early in the eighteenth century, and the village, therefore, undoubtedly antedates this period. In fact, the whole region belongs to various degrees of the past, for it contains, near the site of these recent explorations, the famous mastodon bed from which was excavated one of the first mastodon skeletons ever dug up in America. Northeast of the village, moreover, is the great Cahokia mound, the largest survival of the Mound Builders, although it has not yet had the good fortune that has befallen the many other similar monuments of prehistoric America that have been preserved from impending utilitarian destruction by being made state or national parks.

NO RESTRAINT OF TRADE

Merger of Northern Roads Has Enormously Expanded Trade.

New York Times: The Northern Pacific Railway company and the Great Northern Railway company both have Eastern termini on the great lakes, with Western termini on Puget Sound. The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, which was joined to these two roads in the great system by the creation of the Northern Securities company, operates a network of lines exentending westward from Chicago through Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. According to information given in the Financial Chronicle of Feb. 7, the gross earnings of the entire Pennsylvania railroad system showed in 1902 an increase of 10 7-10 per cent, as compared with 1901; the New York Central system, an increase of 2 2-10 per cent; the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific systems, an increase of 5 6-10 per cent, while the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, constituting the Northern Securities system, showed an increase of 14 2-10 per cent.

Advocates of the enforcement of the anti-trust law in all its rigor might conclude that this remarkable increase in earnings is due to exorbitant charges. If the charges of this system of railroads have been exorbitant, then of course, they have restrained trade. Has trade really been restrained in that part of the Union traversed by these great railroads? The question is answered by the figures showing the growth of commerce in the Pacific ports.

In 1895 the exports from Puget Sound amounted to $5,406,722 and the imports to $2,222,390. In 1902 the exports were $34,686,023, an increase of over 600 per cent, while the imports in 1902 were $12,722,755, an increase of over 500 per cent. In addition to these, imports to the value of $7,824,219 were entered in bond in 1902 for transportation to the interior.

In the year 1901 for the first time Puget Sound tonnage, entered and cleared, surpassed that of San Francisco. In 1896 2,734,629 bushels of wheat were exported from Puget Sound and 17,031,613 from San Francisco. In 1902 Puget Sound wheat exports were 15,854,145 bushels, against 16,017,169 bushels from San Francisco. The wheat flour exports of Puget Sound last year exceeded those of San Francisco. In 1902 there were 1,134,147,226 feet of lumber sent out of the state of Washington—almost twice as much as was sent out in 1899. More than five billion shingles were shipped by rail from that great lumber growing state in 1902. Lumber exports from Puget Sound have fallen off in the last few years owing to the fact that very extensive building opuerations in the region of the Sound have made a home market for the lumber, but that is not exactly restraint of trade. The total foreign trade of Seattle for 1902 was $23,280,525. This is about eighteen times the volume of foreign trade for the year 1896. In addition to the foreign trade, domestic receipts and shipments—that is, from and to coastwise and Sound ports—reached a value of $49,067,307.

The total foreign trade of Puget Sound increased from $5,861,699 in 1892 to $47,578,624 in 1902, a gain of $41,718,525. The foreign trade of Puget Sound therefore increased 711 8-10 per cent in ten years.

Candid men will, perhaps, conclude from this showing that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads, though combined under one ownership, have not imposed extortionate charges. Manifestly they have not restrained trade. On the contrary, they have enormously expanded trade. The country they traverse is as yet sparsely settled, and its productiveness has only begun to be developed. The two railroads could not live on local traffic. Consequently James J. Hill has formed and is pursuing that broad-minded and far-seeing policy proclaimed by him last year, and developing a great highway of commerce from the cotton fields of the South and the whole heart of this continent to the far East. With this aim he has caused to be built the great steamships which are to bear across the Pacific the cargoes of our products delivered by the railroads at Puget Sound. Operated under a common policy and with a common purpose the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern would be able to help on the expansion of our Pacific foreign trade more effectively than they could do if they were competitors continually trying to get away each other's business. Equipment cannot be bettered, nor can new mileage be built out of the losses of rate cutting. The monthly statements of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system show very important economies since that road was acquired by the Northern Pacific.

It is plain that the Northern Securities company was organized in violation of law. The United States circuit court says so, and has ordered the corporation to be dissolved. But the court was very careful to say that it had not considered at all the question whether the formation of this holding company had really operated in restraint of trade; the fact that the Northern Securities company possessed the power to restrain trade, whether it chose to use it or not, was a violation of the anti-trust act.

It appears, therefore, that the "public policy" of breaking up combinations having the power to restrain trade may be found to be in conflict with the public policy of increasing and expanding our domestic and foreign trade. Is it not absurd for a nation fully grown up to make such awkward and clumsy use of its legislative powers as to do itself a real injury in its efforts to erect safeguards against a fictitious evil? An amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law of such a nature as to require the courts to ascertain whether oppressive and injurious acts had been committed, acts which really do restrain trade, is clearly indicated and demanded. Restraint of trade, not in the potential, fictitious and ghostly sense of that phrase as it is understood and construed by the courts, but actual restraint of trade, as sensible business men understand it, is a fact, and facts are susceptible of proof. The anti-trust act will be a menace to the country's prosperity until it requires the courts to consider facts and call for proofs.

AN OBNOXIOUS LAW.

Great Britain is practically the only country in the world that prohibits marriage with the deceased wife's sister, and for it, it has become the butt of the civilized world. Once more a bill to legalize the marriage with the deceased wife's sister has passed its second reading in the house of commons, but that will probably be the end of it, for this session at least. For more than fifty years this heckless measure has been buffeted about in parliament. Sometimes it has not been taken seriously by either house. Sometimes it has been passed by the commons, only to be thrown out by the lords. In 1854 the vote in the lords was very close, 120 to 129. King Edward, then prince of Wales, voted for the bill. Two years later the house of lords actually passed the bill, but it went no farther.

It is impossible for outsiders to understand the intensity of feeling which has been concentrated into this long struggle. The number of bereaved husbands seeking marriage with their deceased wives' sisters can at no time, it might be supposed, be very large; at least not large enough to threaten the foundations of the church or of society by the gratification of their desire, but the desire for a repeal of the present law grows every year.

It is hard to understand what all the bother is about. Sometimes the most suitable arrangement possible, especially where there are young children to be thought of, is that the sister of the deceased wife should be installed in her place. The fact that there is no other country in Christendom where such an arrangement is prohibited makes against the British law. In fact, British policy is not consistent with itself, for in most of the British colonies marriages with a deceased wife's sister has been specially legalized, under sanction of the crown, while in other cases such sanction has been refused; and all attempts to make such marriage legally contracted in the colonies legal also in England have failed.

It is true that half a century of effort has been unable to remove this restriction, which is foolish at best, but the advocates of a change are hopeful that it will not be long before they succeed in their endeavors. And succeed they should; the law is one of the most obnoxious on the British statutes and the sooner it is repealed the better.

AGRICULTURE IN ALASKA.

The popular opinion which prevails about Alaska pictures that country as one of snow and ice, precipitous mountains, and a store of gold to be obtained by severe hardships by venturesome prospectors. The thought that crops are planted and grow to successful harvest, rarely enters the mind of the ordinary reader. It is a fact, however, and numerous experiments are being made by the agricultural department to ascertain the best crops which may be produced in that northern country. The annual report of the operations for the year 1901 has been recently published and is replete with valuable information setting forth the advantages of that much depreciated section of the Union. Experiment stations were established at eligible points on the coast westward as far as Cook Inlet, in the Valley of the Yukon; also in the Copper river country. In addition to written reports from each station the pamphlet contains a large number of illustrations setting forth, with the assistance of the camera, what has actually been accomplished in the production of vegetables, grains and fruits. Scenes of hay-making, growing grains and fields of cabbage are not unlike those furnished by the agricultural communities in the Central states, and represent with the accuracy of the camera what is actually being done.

The object of the experiment is, of course, not to make a profit off the labor and enterprise involved in the undertaking, but rather to test the character of crops that will best mature in that climate, and how they can be treated for the best results. Detailed reports accompany the publication in which the experimenters give the result of their efforts at farming. The man in charge of the station at Rampart on the Yukon says: "Fall-seeded rye lived through the winter, came out in the spring healthy and vigorous and produced plump and perfectly matured grain by beginning of August. Barley seeded in the latter part of May matured seed by the middle of August." Concerning the raising of potatoes, the same experimenter says: "A small quantity of seed potatoes grown at Rampart last year was obtained, placed in a shallow box, partly covered with sand and exposed to the light May 1. At the same time a few pounds of outside potatoes were obtained and these were treated in like manner. Both lots were planted May 23. The soil was rather wet and stiff for planting at this time, and the weather continued cold and damp for some time afterward. The first potato leaf showed through the soil on June 16. From that time on, growth was rapid. July 15 stalks from the native seed showed blossoms, while the other variety bloomed July 24. Frost of July 31 killed the stalks to the ground. Native seed had at this date produced potatoes as large as an egg, while outside seed produced only very small potatoes."

The development of agriculture is necessary in a locality where permanent settlement is intended. There is great mineral wealth in Alaska, but to successfully and permanently remove it, agriculture is necessary. The two must work together. Titles may now be acquired to Alaska lands, and it is probable that the attention of the most hardy pioneers may be turned in that direction.

RUSSIA IN MANCHURIA.

From yesterday's dispatches it would seem that Russia is dissatisfied with the answer of China to her recent demands in relation to Manchuria, and proposes to fortify herself to hold what she has, and perhaps reach out for more. The demands of Russia upon China which were refused, were more drastic than supposed, and it is not to be wondered at that the Celestials refused to consider them. The preamble states that Russia and China have been friendly neighbors for more than two centuries. They have a coterminous frontier of 3000 miles. The interference of strangers in these mutually friendly relations would impair them and impede a friendly settlemem of affairs. Therefore, Russia considers it her duty to guard them from alien interference, especially as affecting Manchuria. There Russia has sacrificed thousands of lives and millions of money in order to pacify the country and to restore the Chinese to lawful authority. By right of conquest Russia could annex the country, but she is unwilling to profit by this, and as in 1881 she returned Ili to China and last year the portion between the Great Wall and New Chwang, so now she will restore Mukden and Kirin provinces and New Chwang port provided China gives the following pledges:

1. That no portion of the restored territories will be transferred in any form to another power. If this is evaded, Russia will take the most decisive measures.

2. That the present administration of Mongolia will not be disturbed, because, if it were altered, the people would be disturbed and complications would ensue on the Russian frontier.

3. That China will undertake not to open new treaty ports in Manchuria or permit new consuls without the previous assent of the Russian government.

4. Should China desire to employ foreigners in any branch of her administration, their authority shall not extend to affairs in North China, where Russian interests predominate. There the administration shall be intrusted to Russians only. For example, if China employes mining advisers, their authority shall not extend to mining affairs in Manchuria or Mongolia, for which Russian advisers must be appointed.

5. Russia will retain, own and control the existing telegraph between Port Arthur, New Chwang and Mukden for the whole period of the existence of the Pekin, New Chwang telegraph, of which it is a necessary prolongation.

6. After the restoration of the Chinese administration at New Chwang, the Russo-Chinese bank will continue as at present to be a customs bank.

7. All rights acquired in Manchuria by Russian subjects during the occupation shall remain in force after the evacuation.

Finally, there is a long clause stating that Russia being responsible for health along the railway, required the continuance of the present effective sanitary board, and that, therefore, it is indispensable that the customs commissioner and the customs doctor be Russian. The sanitary board must consist of these two officials, a customs taotai, the consuls, a bacteriologist, a representative of the Russian railway and a taotai to find the requisite funds.

Then it is added that whenever official assent to the foregoing conditions is received, Russia will withdraw from Mukden, Kirin and New Chwang.

China, having refused point blank to consider these demands, Russia is evidently going to get what she can. That there will be trouble seems certain. From present indications the United States, England and Japan will work together in this case and the Bear will soon hear something that will not sound pleasant. As a matter of fact Russia has gone too far and is in need of a calling down from other powers.

THE NATION'S GROWTH.

"The modern census is a decennial snap-shot of the nation," says ex-Governor William R. Merriam in the Century. He presents some statistics which are interesting. Since 1790 the area of the United States has increased from 827,844 to 3,622,933 square miles; the number of counties has increased from 307 to 2867; and the total population has increased from 3,929,214 to 76,303,387, or nineteenfold. There are four states each possessing, in 1900, a population greater than that of the entire nation in 1790, at which time two of the four were an untrodden wilderness. The number of cities with a population of 8000 or over has increased from 6 to 546, and the number with a population of 25,000 or over from 2 to 161. There are now 38 cities having a population exceeding 100,000, and 3 of these have over 1,000,000 each.

In 1900 the record of capital, wages and value of products of manufactures rises to figures almost beyond comprehension. The capital invested was $9,846,628,564; the salaries and wages paid amounted to $2,735,430,848; and the value of products was $13,039,279,566. In agriculture the figures are almost equally impressive. The total value of farms in 1900 was $16,674,690,247, and that of agricultural products in 1899, $4,739,118,732. To gather and collate such stupendous figures, not only with accuracy, but so swiftly that the record of population in 1900 appeared as quickly as did the little report of the first census was a task of the first magnitude. It was, indeed, an evolution.

The kaiser is greatly troubled over the large number of desertions from his army. The soldiers say the desertions are duc to the brutality of the German officers, and that may be true. Officers who will wantonly slay inoffensive civilians on the street, are apt to be brutal to the soldiers.

The Springfield Republican says that if President Roosevelt succeeds himself, Secretary Moody will not remain at the head of the navy department, as he desires to retire from public life and resume his law practice, with a view of making provision for his old age.

If the postoffice business cannot be run on business principles, what would happen if the railroads were operated under government ownership?

The "open door" is there, but the Russian Bear sits in the doorway.

NEW SMALL BANKS.

Reference has been made in these columns once or twice to the large number of new banks that have been springing up all over the United States, under the national banking act of March 14, 1900. Late reports from the comptroller of currency show that these institutions are increasing at present at the rate of about fifty per month, showing that the law has proved to be very popular, at least. The total number of banks organized to date under that act is 1493. Most of them are banks of small capital, located in communities of small population. Nine hundred and ninety of the new banks have a capital of less than $50,000 each. A great many old banking institutions have been reorganized in order to take advantage of the benefits of the act of March 14, 1900, there being 461 of this class. There are 850 banks of primary organization under the new banking act, however.

A large proportion of the small banks are taking out the minimum requirement of circulation, which shows that had the act not been liberal in its provisions it would have tended to shut out a large number of banking organizations. The authorized capital stock of the fifty-one new banks organized last month was $2,700,000, the bonds deposited as security for circulation being $689,000. Of the organizations, thirty-three, with capital of $855,000, were of the class authorized by the act of 1900—that is, with capital of less than $50,000—and eighteen with capital of $1,935,000, were associations with individual capital of $50,000 or over. During this period three state banks, with aggregate capital of $300,000, were converted; eighteen banks, with capital of $670,000, reorganized from state or private banks, closed for the purpose, and thirty, with capital of $1,820,000, were organized anew. The full scope of the new law will be realized from the statement that since its adoption there have been added to the national banking system banks with a total capital of $88,925,500. At the close of business on April 30, the national bank circulation outstanding secured by bonds and by lawful money amounted to $391,151,728, and while there was an increase during April in bonded circulation of over $0,000,000, there was a reduction of $582,000 in circulation secured by deposits of lawful money, making a net increase of $8,632,470.

The principal advantage of the new law is that it allows the establishment of banks with $25,000 capital in small places, whereas if the capital required was larger, it might not prove profitable. As it is, many people are accommodated with banking facilities who would not be otherwise.

FOR THE PUBLIC SAFETY.

It is pleasing to learn that if care and watchfulness counts for anything, the number of steamboat horrors in the excursion business will be reduced to a minimum this year. The inspection department at Washington has issued strict orders to inspectors to make a thorough inspection of all the vessels in their respective districts for the purpose of seeing that they comply with the law regarding the equipment to be carried to insure the safety of passengers. Further than that the inspectors are determined to prevent the overloading of boats. There is a load line on each vessel and it is unlawful for the captain to permit his craft to be so crowded that this line sinks below the water. Many disasters have occurred in the past through the neglect of officers to see that this prohibition is lived up to. Then the law provides that every passenger steamer shall carry a certain number of life preservers, a certain number of lifeboats, a certain number of life rafts, pumps for getting rid of water in the event of leaks. Each vessel is also required to carry a certain number of feet of hose, certain apparatus for protection against fire, and a lot of other paraphernalia for the general protection of passengers. Some of the owners of vessels conform strictly to these requirements, but others do not. Penalties are provided for violations of the law, and it is proposed to enforce these penalties wherever the protection act is not lived up to. The penalties rang from $100 to $500 according to the gravity of the offense. All classes of steamers that carry passengers come under the provisions of this act, as well as American ocean liners.

It is apparent that the new inspector general of the steamboat service is to have a very thorough administration of the steamboat laws. He threw a small-sized bombshell into the midst of owners of vessels a short time ago by announcing that hereafter the full penalty for failure to renew licenses of pilots and marine engineers would be imposed. Many engineers are in the habit of overlooking the requirement that inspection of boilers shall take place every year, but those who fall into this error in the future will be fined $500, the maximum penalty.

It is well known that the enforcement of the laws has been far too lax and the new departure cannot be too highly commended. Everyone who goes out upon the waters will appreciate this and will feel double safe, knowing that the vessels have been made as secure as possible.

An active opponent of Mayor Low's renomination on a fusion ticket in New York has spoken, in the person of Herman Ridder, the president of the German-American reform union of New York, and the manager of the Staats-Zeitung. Mr. Ridder and his following supported Mr. Low's candidacy in 1901, and their dissatisfaction now may prove serious for the mayor.

The Cuban government will issue 7,700,000 stamps in commemoration of the establishment of the republic. It is a business-like scheme, because the stamps will be in demand by philatelists and the government will secure a large revenue therefrom.

Gen. Frank Baldwin's testimony that there can be no future for the Philippines without the introduction of Chinese labor, is simply confirmatory of the statement repeatedly made that the Caucasian plays out in the Philippine climate.

A St. Louis paper erroneously credits to a governor of Texas the remark, "I seen my duty and I done it." The words are those of Uncle Jerry Rusk of Wisconsin, who was secretary of agriculture in President Harrison's cabinet.

And now someone is claiming that "Wearing of the Green" is an old Chinese tune. Perhaps "A Hot Time In the Old Town" is of similar origin.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

New York Sun: He—Are you superstitious?

She—Not a bit.

He—Well, then, I can make a clean breast of it. You are my thirteenth bride.

Chicago Post: "Why do you think the affair is platonic?"

"Because neither has any money and both want it."

Detroit Free Press: He—Well, you were no chicken when I married you.

She—No? Considering what I got I was an early bird of some sort.

Chicago Tribune: "My gracious! dear," said the Chicago bridegroom, "you were awfully nervous during the ceremony."

"Yes, it's my nature," replied the fair Chicago bride. "I suppose I'll be just as nervous the next time."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Do you believe in luck?"

"Sometimes. See that fat woman with the red hat over there?"

"Yes."

"Twenty-two years ago she refused to marry me."

Chicago Post: "He's so foolish," said the one in white.

"Foolish?" returned the one in gray.

"Yes. Why, he wants me to marry him."

"Oh, then he is foolish."

Detroit Free Press: Clara—Does Harry help you with the house cleaning?

Harriet—Well, he hangs the pictures crooked and does the grumbling.

Yonkers Stateman: "What do men do when they get in the legislature, pop?"

"Why, they do corporations, my son."

Somerville Journal: Kate—Is there much difference in their social position?

Nell—Oh, yes. Her father gets a salary, and his father gets wages.

Puck: She—She calls herself M-a-e, but that isn't the way her name appears in the family Bible.

He—Perhaps she doesn't think the family Bible should be accepted literally.

SERMONS IN FLOWERS.

("The flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land."—The Song of Solomon ii, 12.)

The common kind o' flowers! Lord, you made a lot o' them!
I like to stumble on 'em with my eyes, an' catch 'em shine.
An', then, the johnny-jump-ups, noddin' soft when I go by,
An' as blue an' glad an' helpful as the calm midsummer sky.

The blazin' dogwood blossoms! How they flash along the road—
Come a-bloomin' in a minute, till a feller thinks it's snowed!
Lord, the hawtree holds a sermon that is sent direct from you;
An' the bendin' cherry branches, an' the elder bushes, too.

There's the perky dandelion bobbin' up so fresh an' bold,
Till the whole enduring hillside has its polkydots of gold;
An' the blossomin' May apple, hidin' underneath the trees,
Sends a tinglin' sort o' flower till it coaxes out the bees.

The common kind o' flowers! Lord, I guess they like to grow
An' to fill the air with gladness just because you love them so.
Lord, I try to understand them an' my heart beats in accord
When I hend an' whisper to 'em: "For this blessing, thank the Lord!"

The Mouse and the Clock.

Hickory, dickory, dock;
The mouse climbed the cuckoo clock,
The clock ran down
And the mouse was thrown
To the floor with a terrible shock.

Whivery, whavery, whink;
Now whatever do you think—
As the mouse lay there
A maid small and fair
Got up in the dark for a drink.

Doodleum, Daddleum, dunk;
As she stepped from her cozy bunk
Her little white foot
She happened to put
Right on the poor mouse, ker-plunk!

Rittletum, rattletum, reek;
She uttered a horrible shriek,
Sprank back into bed,
Quickly covered her head
And didn't get up for a week.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Captain John R. Wood, of Appleton, Wis., one of the prominent mining men of the Northwest, was at the St. Louis this morning, awaiting the return of his brother, A. P. Wood, of this city, from the Pacific coast, where he went to resuscitate his health.

Captain Wood is an interesting person and has been through the mining game from surface indications to the 12,000 foot level.

He has been through Oregon, Washington and Idaho quite recently, and is of the opinion that the copper deposits in the two former states do not amount to very much.

"There are copper stains in eastern Washington and Oregon," he said, "but the indications do not seem to pan out. In Idaho, across the snake river, there is copper, all right, but the trend seems to peter out when it reaches the Snake river, and on the western side there is nothing.

"The surface conditions do not amount to much, because you see copper is a funny proposition, and a dollar's worth of the stuff might stain a wholeacre of ground.

"There are lots of finds of surface indications, but the copper itself is yet to be discovered in large quantities. Still there is an army of men prospecting in that section; yes all over the Rockies. They are about starting their expeditions now, and thousands are on their way to the wilderness looking for the coveted indications and pockets underneath."

"It's quite natural, when you figure that when a man hits it he has a life job as a mine owner," was suggested.

"Oh, there's no doubt about that," said Captain Wood, "but sometimes that's a mighty short time. Take the man for instance who made the first at Buffalo Hump, Idaho. He lasted just six weeks and his life job was finished. He just simply killed himself with excesses, and in a very short time, too.

"I remember one case of where the finder of valuable minerals did not have a life job, and he's now working up in the mountains at the old trade of prospecting. He was in the rush to Cripple Creek eight or ten years ago.

"He hadn't been in the place very long before he made a find somewhere, and with two partners, agreed to sell out for $150,000. I was present at the hotel the night they made the transfer, and saw this man get his $50,000 in good United States $100s and things.

"He didn't wait until morning. He had some one open up a store and fit him out with new clothes, a hard hat and white shirt, and he started to drink shampagne before the pocket he got his money in began to feel warm.

"The next day he went up to Denver, but was back three days afterwards with a diamond as big as a bull's-eye lantern on his shirt front and another about the same size on his finger. He just swelled around and drank. I don't think he gambled a cent of the wad he received. Then we lost sight of him, as he went up to Denver again.

A month or two later he walked back into camp sick, worn out and discouraged without a cent, and I guess he is working up in the mountains yet.

"That is the way with all of them. They are of the class that can't stand prosperity, and the find they have longed for turns their head and they either kill themselves with the money or give the money away. This man would have been dead if he had owned a few thousand dollars more, but he had just enough. He was a physical wreck, but his money ran out in time to save his life.

"A large number of the men who are prospecting not only in the Rockies, but everywhere else, are of the same general description, and prosperity will cause their death or utter ruin."

Capt. Wood has been in the copper ranges of Michigan for many years and returned just the other day from Utah, where he was looking over some copper mining property. He has faith in the value of Utah copper lands, especially in the district now being developed.

The man with the dyspeptic, wrinkled, face stepped out of the elevator and, wiping his glasses went over to the cigar stand, and looked worried for a few moments.

"Has anything terrible happened to you?" asked the observing young woman, who presides in a capacity termed by the society editor usually as "assisted," with My Lady Nicotine.

"While I was eating an orange this morning," he said between gasps.

"Yes,—" said the maid, breathlessly.

"I swallowed a seed, and—"

"And what?" she asked.

"Will I have appendisbedus?"

In the terrible stillness that followed the rattle and bang of the hurrying ambulance could be heard, as it tore over the resounding pavement, on the way to gather in the prostrate form of the maid.

The Midget's Outing.

Brooklyn Eagle: George Wells, the treasurer of the Orpheum, stood at the ticket window at a time of day when nothing much was doing. Not even the handsome customary policeman was in the vestibule. George was alone with his thoughts.

Suddenly a tiny hand rose above the outer edge of the window shelf and a thin little childish voice piped up from somewhere out of sight:

"Give me two good orchestra seats for tonight."

The treasurer looked at the $20 bill held between the babyish thumb and finger and wondered whether he was awake. Then he leaned far out over the broad window sill and looked down. There stood a wee creature, not more than two feet tall. The top of his hat was about all that could be seen, for he did not look up.

It is not common for babies three or four years old to come with $20 bills asking for orchestra seats. Visions of childish robbery of a parental purse rose before Georges mind, and, with the benevolent purpose of nipping the sin in the bud, he asked, in a kindly tone:

"See here, My little man, where did you get all this money?"

"None o' your ——— business," a shrill, indignant voice answered, as a wrinkled midget face not less than 40 years old turned up toward the window.

"The Widow's Cruse."

New York Times: The Sunday school superintendent of the First Baptist church, Brooklyn, was quizzing a class of small girls the other day:

"And what was the widow's cruse?" he asked.

There was a moment's silence; then a little hand went up timidly:

"Please, sir," said the youngster, "the widow was one of the people that went with Noah in his yacht."

Busy Days For the Bear.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: In the near East, where war was imminent a week ago the proceedings lag. The Balkan dispute is in abeyance, either because Russia wishes to settle the Chinese business first or because it wants more time for military or diplomatic measures in the Balkans. There is no concealing its designs in either case. It is the dominant force in both quarters and in a position to make the rest of the world wait until its plans are more advanced. There are busy days ahead for the bear and anxious ones in store for Europe. Luckily this country has no great stake in the game.

Profit In Paying Good Wages.

Detroit Free Press: We pay more for labor than European countries and, paradoxically as it may seem, that is where we have them. If American industrial advancement has proved one thing more clearly than another it is the fact that good wages is a profitable investment on the part of the employer. It produces a standard of efficiency which more than offsets the added expense. Good wages means well-fed and well-clothed labor and ultimately intelligent labor. If a well-cared for horse can do more work than one which is half-starved and neglected, it is safe to assume that a well-fed man will accomplish more than one who is indifferently nourished. The world has come to understand that race and national supremacies are questions largely of a food supply in sufficient quantities to meet all the needs of the individual.

Rev. Mr. Spoonts has for nearly four years been pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, of Washington, D. C. His life so far has been a varied one. His parents were among the early pioneers in Texas, where he was born, and where he has passed the greater part of his life. During his boyhood he attended winter school and assisted his father, who owned a cotton plantation and operated a cotton gin and corn mill. At the age of sixteen years he left home to work on a cattle ranch, and for four years he followed the trail between Texas and Nebraska, participating in all the wildness and recklessness of the cowboy life. When he was twenty years old he abandoned the ranch, and shortly after was married and took up farming. He also traded extensively in cattle and horses. Later he engaged in general merchandise business and at the same time was sole buyer for a large firm of cotton merchants. At the age of twenty-nine, while still conducting this business, he was converted at a camp meeting and immediately became active in religious work, preaching as he had opportunity. He realized that he was handicapped by lack of an education and determined to secure one at any cost. In spite of the fact that he had a wife and two children he sold out his business, and with only a common school education entered the preparatory department of Trinity University, Tehuacana, Texas, and at the end of five years completed the full college course. It was only by a strong conviction that he must fit himself for greater usefulness at all hazards that he was able to finish the course. Shortly after entering college his little capital was exhausted and then he and his brave wife began a severe struggle to earn money enough to enable him to carry out his plans. After his graduation he supplied a church at Mexia, Texas, for eighteen months. He was a great power for good in that community. He was instrumental in building a manse and through his efforts a church was erected in a neighboring town. He left there to enter Lebanon Theological Seminary at Lebanon, Tenn., where he completed the three years' course, graduating in '99 with high honors. During his seminary course he spent two summers in Texas, holding singularly successful evangelistic meetings. In June of '99 he accepted a call to the Cumberland Presbyterian church of Washington, Indiana, where his ministry has been richly blessed. During his pastorate the church debt of $5000 has been practically liquidated, one hundred members have been enrolled and the church has been greatly strengthened, spiritually. The church granted him the privilege of making occasional evangelistic tours. He has conducted meetings extensively in Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. It is with great regret on his part and that of the congregation and entire community that he leaves this church, but a visit to Duluth convinced him that there is a great work to do in connection with the Bethel, and he decided to come here.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Baltimore American: The reverend gentleman who was investigating the Sunday drinking places in New York is said to have "emptied the beer glasses of the Sunday patrons in their faces." Well, where else does one want a glass of beer emptied?

Louisville Courier-Journal: The Rev. William Dixon, of Providence, R. I., has been dismissed from church because of plagiarism, which he admitted. The difference between Mr. Dixon and most other plagarists, both in and out of the pulpit, is that Mr. Dixon admits his offense.

Chicago Chronicle: Let us hope that the Nebraska clerical dignitary who has been arrested for shooting songbirds will receive the stripes of justice well laid on. Apart from the absolute brutality involved in killing larks and robins the proceeding is an open violation of the law, which is particularly disgraceful to a clergyman.

Indianapolis Journal: That was a funny message which the Protestant Alliance of London wired to King Edward's secretary at Rome expressing its "intense regret that our Protestant king intends to visit the pope, who is described in the homilies of our established church as anti-Christ." It is not likely that King Edward's orthodoxy or morals will receive any harm from an interview with the good old man in the vatican.

Minneapolis Times: The Almighty is blamed for so many things in this world that it is not surprising to learn that Mrs. Hetty Green has recently said "God seems to bless me in my suits in court." The case in court referred to was one against a Presbyterian church over the foreclosure of a mortgage, out of which Mrs. Green managed to get $1000 more than she had asked for in the first place. The inference of Hetty's remark is that Providence is for some reason displeased with the Presbyterian church.

TEN THOUSAND FOR YALE

Hartford, Conn., May 9.—The will of the late Walter D. Pilkins, who died in Washington, D. C., a few days ago, has been filed for probate in East Hartford. To the president and fellows of Yale $10,000 is left in memory of an uncle of Mr. Pilkins, Professor Anthony Stanley. The income of one-half of this amount is to be offered as a prize for proficiency in mathematics, and the income of the other $5000 is to be awarded to a needy and deserving under-graduate.

To the Congregational Home Missionary society $10,000 is given outright.

VERDICT SUSTAINED.

Mrs. Leis Will Get $100,000 From N. Y. Central.

New York, May 9.—The appellate division of the supreme court has unanimously sustained the verdict of the judiciary in the case of Mrs. William Leis against the New York Central. Mr. Leis was killed in the tunnel accident about a year and a half ago, and Mrs. Leis brought suit against the railroad for $250,000, the jury allowing her $100,000 damages, with costs and interest, amounting to from $6000 to $8000. This is one of the heaviest verdicts ever granted in a case of accidental death.

SENSATION CAUSED

By Suspension of Superintendent of Free Delivery Machen.

Investigation Into Postoffice Department Grows More Interesting.

Washington, May 9.—The investigation of the affairs of the postoffice department, which has been dragging along for two months took a sensational turn late yesterday afternoon when by order of Postmaster General Payne, August W. Machen, general superintendent of the free delivery system and one of the most widely known government officials in the United States, was relieved from his duties and Postoffice Inspector M. C. Posner was designated to take charge of that service. The change took effect this morning when Mr. Fosnes assumed charge of the free delivery service and at the same time that service passed under the control of the office of the fourth assistant postmaster general. Heretofore it has been under the control of the first assistant. The action of the postmaster general was taken on the written recommendation of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who is directing the investigation of the affairs of the department, that the transfer of Mr. Machen's bureau to his jurisdiction and its administration by a postoffice inspector would expedite the investigation. In ordering the change recommended, the postmaster general gave Mr. Machen "leave of absence until the investigation is concluded." Mr. Machen promptly acquiesced in the decision of the postmaster general, taking occasion to say in doing that he courted the fullest investigation of his official conduct.

Mr. Machen has been under fire ever since the investigation began. Charges of various kinds have been preferred against the administration of the free delivery branch of the postoffice service. These included allegations of collusion with letter box manufacturers in furnishing boxes to postoffice patrons, particularly on rural mail routes, the furnishing of advance information regarding the section of routes, and the appointment of carriers, etc. There has also been a conflict between Mr. Machen and First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne ever since the latter assumed office. Mr. Wynne charges Mr. Machen with insubordination. The strained relations between the head of the free delivery service and other officials resulted in an embarrassing state of affairs and for several months correspondence between the general superintendent of the free delivery service and his immediate superior, the first assistant postmaster general, has been conducted on the part of the former through one of his subordinates.

Mr. Bristow all along has been of the opinion that the best interests of the service would be subserved by the relief of Mr. Machen and has pointed out to the postmaster general that action was imperatively necessary to the successful conduct of the investigation.

Late yesterday afternoon before a large number of newspaper men, Postmaster General Payne announced his decision and read the correspondence between himself and Mr. Machen, together with the recommendation of Mr. Bristow. The latter's recommendation was as follows:

"In order to complete the departmental investigation, now in progress in a more expeditious and satisfactory manner, I beg to request that the division of free delivery be temporarily assigned to the bureau of the fourth assistant postmaster general, and that I be authorized to assign a postoffice inspector as the acting general superintendent of said division during the continuance of this investigation."

The letter of the postmaster general to Mr. Machen was as follows:

"I am in receipt of a request from Gen. Bristow, fourth assistant postmaster general, that the division of free delivery be temporarily assigned to his bureau and that he be authorized to assign a postoffice inspector as the acting general superintendent of said division during the continuance of the investigation now in progress.

"In conformity with this request, I have issued the following order, to take effect at the beginning of business on the ninth instant:

"'The division of free delivery heretofore under the general supervision of the first assistant postmaster general is hereby transferred and assigned to the fourth assistant postmaster general and the regulations of the department are amended in conformity therewith.'

"'You are hereby granted leave of absence until the investigation is concluded and will turn over the division of free delivery to the control of M. C. Fosnes, postoffice inspector, who has been designated as the acting general superintendent of the free delivery system.'

Following is Mr. Machen's reply:

"I am in receipt of your letter of this date advising me of your order, to take effect on the 9th instant, transferring the division of free delivery from the supervision of the first assistant postmaster general to that of the fourth assistant postmaster general. I also note that I have been granted a leave of absence until the investigation now in progress is concluded and that during my absence M. C. Fosnes, postoffice inspector, will be acting general superintendent of the free delivery system.

"In conformity with your instructions, I will turn the division over to Mr. Fosnes tomorrow morning. In this connection I desire to state what I have said to you heretofore, that I court the fullest investigation of my official conduct and stand ready at any time to aid in the investigation in progress as I am unconscious of having done wrong."

Mr. Payne, in discussing the matter, said he believed the correspondence told the whole story. He said his conclusion to relieve Mr. Machen was reached Thursday after office hours. Mr. Bristow, he said, had come to his office and they had a conference during which Mr. Bristow presented his letter requesting to be put in full charge of the office in order to expedite the investigation. He said there was nothing back of the exchange except what appeared in the letters themselves. He declined to say whether the charges made would be permanent, saying that that depended on the results of the investigation.

Mr. Machen came here from Toledo, O., in 1895, and qualified as superintendent of the free delivery service May 6 of that year. Since then the office has grown to immense proportions, and the rural free delivery mail service has been introduced and extended to cover all parts of the country.

Mr. Fosnes is one of the best known inspectors in the service. He is chief assistant of Mr. Bristow in the investigation. He is a native of Norway, where he was born in 1851, and his home is in Des Moines, Iowa. He was once a special examiner of the pension bureau and subsequently served as postoffice inspector at Philadelphia, Chicago, Helena, Mont., and St. Paul. He is still postoffice inspector in charge of the St. Paul division. He is best known in connection with his investigation of the postal frauds in Cuba. On the sensational dismissal of Estes G. Rathbone, Mr. Fosnes was appointed director of posts of Cuba, assuming that office June 23, 1900, and holding it until May 29, 1902, when the United States sovereignty on the island ceased.

COL. MURRELL'S WIFE

COMPLETELY RESTORED TO HEALTH BY TWO BOTTLES OF

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Women who dearly love husband, children and home life, are those who desire to be vigorous, active and full of health. When the wife and mother is suffering, and unable to minister to the wants and comforts of those dear to her, the home is sad and despondent; there is family discomfort and aching hearts long for the safety of the home guardian.

Thank heaven, thousands of our women are now fully prepared for any of the ills prevalent in the springtime. They have made Paine's Celery Compound their family medicine, and through it, they are enabled to ward off serious illness and physical breakdown. The happy experience of Mrs. William Murrell, a prominent lady of North Asbury Park, N. J., should cheer all women who now suffer from nervousness, sleeplessness, troubles arising from stagnant and impure blood, liver and kidney complaints, rheumatism and neuralgia. Mrs. Murrell says:

"I do not know how to express my heartfelt thanks to you for the benefit I have received from the use of Dr. Paine's Celery Compound. I had a continual pain in my back, a worn, tired feeling, and was despondent, with no energy to move about the house or to attend to my domestic affairs. My nerves were all unstrung; the slightest noise would startle me and put me in a tremble. After using different medicines and consulting different physicians, and getting no relief, I took the advice of a friend and tried Paine's Celery Compound. After using haf a bottle I felt so relieved that I determined to continue its use. Two bottles completely cured me. I have not had the slightest pain since, and I have never felt better in my life. I can truthfully say that Paine's Celery Compound gives immediate relief and makes a lasting cure."

THE-HAIR-THAT-CAN'T-COME-OUT

ARE YOU IN TROUBLE?

Do You Want to Know How a Beautiful Head of Hair May Be Acquired and Retained?

Cranitonic Hair-Food Is a Non-Alcoholic Wonder-Working Modern Hair Dressing.

Cranitonic Destroys the Microbe That Causes Dandruff and Falling Hair, and Nourishes the Hair Root Back to Health.

Cranitonic Hair-Food Makes Hair Grow—Prevents Hair Splitting—Renders Coarse Hair Soft and Silky.

A Sample Bottle of Cranitonic Hair-Food Will Be Given to all Who CALL, or Will Be Sent Free by Mail to All Who Send Name and Complete Address, Enclosing Ten Cents in Stamps or Silver to Pay Postage, to Our Building and Laboratories, 526 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

Perfect preparations for the cure of dandruff, falling hair and premature baldness have existed in the past only in theory.

They were compounded without any exact knowledge of the real cause of the diseases which they were intended to cure. They were good enough for the time—because there was nothing better known—but they are not good enough for today.

We know that diseases of the hair and scalp are of parasitic origin.

This truth is the result of modern investigation and our knowledge of the bacteriological origin of disease.

Send your hair for microscopic examination.

IN a microscopic examination of 1,000 samples of human hair, made in the Cranitonic Hair and Scalp Institute (Incorporated under the laws of the State of New York), 24 different diseases of the hair and scalp were discovered and identified, many of them extremely contagious, and all fatal to the life of the hair.

The Cranitonic preparations were formulated for the exact purpose of preventing and curing these diseases.

...in the Cranitonic Institute 19,862 people were personally examined and prescribed for by the physicians during the past year, while 165,631 were successfully treated by correspondence. For scientific research and investigation into the causes and cure of hair and scalp diseases and in the perfection of its formulæ, the Cranitonic Hair Food Company has already expended more than $200,000.

We Know that the itching scalp, the falling hair and the dandruff that annoys and disfigures are the work of a parasite hidden deep down in the scalp.

To cure the surface indications we must reach the cause below.

This Cranitonic Hair Food does.

Being a parasiticide, it penetrates to the entire depth of the hair-follicle and destroys the parasite that causes the trouble.

It does more—it feeds the weakened hair-follicle back to health.

It is both a germicide and a natural food for the hair. It gives the hair new life, lustre and growth by feeding the scalp which holds the hair roots, for the life of the hair is in the scalp.

It is the only hair and scalp food and there is nothing like it in the world.

It cures dandruff, stops falling hair and prevents gray hair and baldness.

It is pure, clean, clear as cystal, delightful to use and certain in its results. No sediment.

Have you dandruff?

Then you have a contagious disease, unpleasant, unhealthy and one that will lead to baldness unless cured.

Cranitonic Hair-Food will positively cure it.

Does your scalp itch?

Then you are suffering from a parasitic disease, distressing, annoying and one that indicates uncleanliness.

Cranitonic Hair-Food will cure it.

Is your hair falling?

The cause is a parasite in the hair-follicle eating away the delicate membrane which holds the hair-root in place. The only way to stop falling hair is to destroy the parasite which causes it.

Cranitonic Hair-Food does this, and then feeds the follicles and roots and rebuilds the waste tissue.

The result is a new growth of strong, beautiful, youthful hair.

Cranitonic Hair-Food is for sale by dealers in three sizes—$1, $2 and $5 bottles. Express prepaid.

ARE YOU IN TROUBLE?

All readers of The Herald who have any hair or scalp TROUBLE, or neglected their hair, and are worried about it, and who would like a microscopic examination of their hair are recommended to CALL on us, or send a few hairs pulled from the head, or a sample from the daily combings, when our Medical and Scientific Department will mail you, ABSOLUTELY FREE, a FULL REPORT and DIAGNOSIS.

Hair Food by Mail.

To enable the Public to test the Possibilities of Cranitonic, a LARGE Bottle will be given to all who CALL or a sample will be sent by mail, prepaid, to all who send name and complete address and 10 cents in stamps or silver to cover cost of postage and patent United States mailing case, to CRANITONIC HAIR FOOD CO., 526 West Broadway, New York.

IS DEAD FROM ELEPHANTIASIS

New York Woman Weighed Over Four Hundred Pounds.

New York, May 9.—Mrs. Annie Wilt is dead from elephantiasis. The body, swollen to enormous proportions, weighed 400 pounds. A coffin was specially constructed and the remains lowered from an upper story window, the doorway being found too small. Four men were found necessary to lift the body from the bed. Mrs. Wilt was 25 years old when her abnormal growth began. In the hospital where she had been for treatment she was known as the patient "with the elephant feet," her legs being as big as a man's body. For more than a year she had been unable to walk without crutches.

AMES NOT SENTENCED

Delay Granted For Purpose of Securing New Bonds.

Minneapolis, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ex-Mayor Ames was not sentenced in Judge Elliott's court at Minneapolis today, as had been expected. This delay was at the request of the defendant's attorneys, on account of the need of new bonds. County Attorney Boardman said that the defendant would be called up for sentence next week, but possibly not till Saturday. The case is subject to call by the judge whenever he is notified by all parties that they are ready. Dr. Ames is now under $21,000 of bonds on all the ten indictments that have been found against him. Of these bonds, $4000 are on the indictment upon which he was convicted and will expire, according to their terms, as soon as sentence is imposed.

New bonds will be required for an amount that will not be less than $10,000, in all probability. That will put the defendant under total bonds of $27,000.

It is now the problem for the defense to secure bondsmen for that additional $10,000, or whatever amount may be required.

Young Coffin had both legs crushed and three ribs broken, besides receiving injuries which developed into pneumonia.

FIREMAN IS FIRED

Made Charges Against Chief Engineer of Postoffice Building.

Failed to Sustain Them and Was Removed By Payne.

Washington, May 9.—Postmaster General Payne today dismissed James Dower, a fireman employed in the postoffice department, as a result of the charges that Dower recently filed against Chief Engineer James O'Donnell and other superior officers. Dower alleged that a ring to govern promotions and other matters existed in the engine room, and that improper contracts had been made.

The charges were investigated by a postoffice inspector and the report does not sustain them. The postmaster general announced today that the action of Dower "in making the frivolous and scandalous charges, giving them publicity and then failing utterly to sustain them, is to the detriment of the service and subversive of all discipline, the discharge of Dower is ordered for the good of the service."

The inspector's reports says Dower is reported by Assistant Engineer Anderson to have incited or attempted to incite other employes to acts of insubordination. "Dower's complaint," the inspector continues, "contains statements confirming the declarations as to his dissatisfaction with his assignments and accounts of insubordination, a conduct demoralizing to the force. Mr. Dower has permitted his feeling of resentment over his failure to secure a promotion to betray him into disseminating scandals and recklessly formulating charges involving the official integrity of his superior officers, as shown by the sworn statements of his associates, are absolutely untrue."

Postoffice Inspector Posnes today took charge of the free delivery service. General Superintendent Machen, who was relieved from duty yesterday, did not appear to turn over the office. He sent word that he was too ill to come.

ADVANCE IN WHEAT

Market Was Very Strong Both at Home and Abroad.

Heavy Selling of May Wheat on the Duluth Board

Duluth Board of Trade, May 9.—The wheat market was strong this morning both at home and abroad. From foreign parts there were reports of unfavorable weather. France reported a bad condition of weather for the crop and southern Russia is crying for rain. In America the weather was not what could be desired and gave rise to some uneasiness. In the Duluth market there was heavy selling of May wheat, probably 750,000 bushels being sold. It is believed that this was for Armour, who is supposed to have taken on a line at Duluth two or three weeks ago to protect his Chicago deals. This selling brought the May premium of May over July down from ⅜c to ⅛c at the close and at one time it was only ¼c. Foreign advices received by Duluth shippers reflected a strong condition and it is estimated that about 100,000 bushels was sold for export, a very good business for Saturday.

The Liverpool market closed ¾d up and Paris ¾ to 1c higher.

Minneapolis millers were in evidence in their market and the May price there was very strong, advancing 1¾c.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments Monday at 10,400,000 bushels, of which Europe will take about 8,000,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of wheat were 253,000 bushels, last year 232,000 bushels. Shipments, 267,000 bushels; last year 509,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 361,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 124 cars, and at Chicago, 51, a total of 178 cars, against 181 last week and 174 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. July corn in the Chicago market closed ⅝c up and July oats ⅛c up. Primary receipts of corn were 347,000 bushels, last year 355,000 bushels. Shipments, 525,000 bushels; last year 260,000 bushels. Clearances, 211,826 bushels.

Trading in the Duluth market was active. July wheat opened ⅛c up at 77⅜c bid, and sold up to 77⅝c at 9:35. After that it fell off to 77¼c at 9:50 and then ruled between 77¼c and 77⅝c until 1:45 at the close when it again advanced, closing at 77⅝c, an advance of ¼c. May was unchanged in Chicago. May declined ⅛c and late advanced ⅛c in Minneapolis, July advanced ⅝c and May ⅛c. In New York the advance in May was ½c and July was unchanged.

Cash sales in the Duluth market were unsatisfactory and small.

Flax was active and early in the session was stronger both May and July selling ⅝c up. That gain was lost however, and May was especially weak closing ⅜c off $1.14½. July closed unchanged at $1.15½. September was off ⅛c and October ⅛c. A cable this morning announced the Argentine flax prices in Antwerp as $1.30 and in Liverpool $1.24.

At Chicago, July wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 72⅞c to 73c, sold up to 73⅛c and closed at 73⅛c asked.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Higher With But Little Trading.

Chicago, May 9.—There was little trade in the wheat pit early in the day, but the market was firm with prices a trifle higher. July opening unchanged to ⅛c higher at 72⅝c to 72¾c. A good general demand was the cause of the strength at the start, the small receipts, unfavorable crop reports, firm cables together with some anxiety in regard to the political situation in the far East being responsible for the early buying. There was little change in prices the first half hour. July holding steady around 72⅝@¾c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 124 cars, which with local receipts of 54 cars; none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 178 cars, against 181 cars last week and 174 cars a year ago.

The market continued quiet throughout the session. There was some selling on prospects of large world's shipments on Monday and an easier tone developed. July selling off to 72¾c, but later the loss was all regained and closing prices were firm. July ⅛c higher, at 72⅝c.

The firmness in wheat affected prices in the corn pit, but the chief strengthening influence was the good demand from local bulls, who were encouraged by the higher cables. There was also some covering by shorts at the opening. Jul was a shade to ⅛c higher at 44⅝@45c to 45⅛ at the start, and prices held steady the first part of the session. Local receipts were 261 cars, with 18 cars of contract grade.

Prices held steady the remainder of the day, July closing ⅛c higher at 45c.

The feature in the trading in oats was the active demand for May from shorts and the small offerings on the market. The volume of business in general was quiet, but a firm tone prevailed. July was a shade higher at 32¼c at the opening, and held steady the first part of the day. Local receipts were 110 cars.

Provisions opened about unchanged on the steady hog market. The feature in the early trading was a good demand for September pork, which caused a slight advance in that month, the opening being 5c higher at $16.70. September lard and ribs were unchanged at $9.12½ and $8.50. Close: Wheat—May, 78⅝c; July, 72½c; September, 70¼c. Corn—May, 44⅝c; July, 45c; September, 44½c. Ribs—May, $9.22½; July, $9.32½; September, $9.27½@9.30. Rye—May and July, 56c. Flax —Cash Northwestern, $1.15; Southwestern, $1.14; May, $1.11; July, $1.14. Timothy—May, $3.50. Clover—May, $12.50. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was extremely heavy and dull. Very little cash business. Cables only partially followed the advance here. There was not much new in the way of crop news, but we think there is a moderately increasing tendency to complaints from this state, Missouri and Kansas. A fair decrease in the visible is expected Monday. Weather and crop advices are the most important factors. We still think we would buy wheat on the sharp breaks. Estimated cars 20.

Corn—Liverpool ¼@¾c higher. Market was dull. Nothing urgent in the cash position, local speculative operations entirely of a scalping nature. Weather is more favorable on the start of last rain, but continues cool and backward. The best that can be said of the market is that there is not much selling pressure and we think there will not be until the crop prospects are better assured. Estimated cars 240.

Oats—Market is extremely quiet. The weather is still the important factor with the tendency somewhat better. There was very little doing either in a cash way or in speculative operations. Estimated cars 155.

Chicago: Broomhall cables that political papers in France are beginning to agitate the question of a reduction in the duty on wheat. Another report is that it will be reduced from 37 to 15 cents.

The following comes from Union City, Tenn.: "I have never in my life seen such a great change in growing wheat as has been made in past two weeks on our best lands the plant is yellow and weak looking, not growing any and unpromising generally. Prospects are gloomy through the wheat Tennessee belt. Of course rain and warm weather may bring it out."

Kalb, of Chicago: Our Antwerp friends write us April 28 as follows: "The European wheat situation is unchanged except for the fact that the scarcity of wheat is felt clearer with every week. The demand is large everywhere and the offerings small. The following will illustrate this: The Danube was closed for three months by ice, the navigation opened end of March, and today, end of April, the stocks there are radically cleaned out as we have not seen it for years. Liverpool, the home of the chronic bears, this May wheat sells at a premium over July. Argentine's offerings are not pressing on the market and India's crop is practically all out of line. The United States, however, has sold large quantities of the new crop, and we can only repeat again that it is impossible to buy wheat for August-September shipment from any export country at the same parity as from the United States."

Snow reports: The condition of the wheat crop has decreased slightly during last month, but the decline in prospect is not yet material. Possibly the general average is four or five points lower than it was a month since, but it is doubtful of the figures of the forthcoming government report will show much decline since April 1. The spring wheat seeding is now practically over. Another crop has gone in about as the usual date and under soil conditions varying little from a normal situation. Corn planting has made fairly good progress last week, but as plowing has been delayed it is evident that crop will be planted later than usual.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments for Monday next will be about 8c, 400,000 bus, of which quantity, Europe will take about 8,800,000 bus. He predicts there will be a moderate increase in the quantity of breadstuffs on passage. Arrivals of breadstuffs into the United Kingdom during the past week 3,220,000 bus against similar quantity previous week and 5,000,000 bus a year ago.

Chicago Record-Herald: The general opinion is that the Armour interests is practically out of July wheat. That was the othcery yesterday and because of that view there was an increase in general buying. The outside buyer who kept out because fearful of a break on Armour liquidation was disposed to take hold because he felt this peril was out of the way. The Armour people still have their May and it is not to be supposed there will not be more or less Armour trade in the July. But there is no longer a belief in any important July campaign. Patten was a considerable buyer of wheat yesterday and that looked as if he felt there had been all the break on Armour liquidation there would be.

St. Louis has shipped 728,000 bus. wheat in five days and has received 244,000 bus. It looks as if the St. Louis wheat stock would be cut in two Monday, reduced from 672,000 bus. to about 280,000 bus. Duluth promises a decrease in its stock of 800,000 bus; Minneapolis a decrease of 450,000 and Chicago will decrease about 250,000 bus.

Chicago Record-Herald: The present winter wheat troubles are supposed to result from the conditions at seed time in the fall. The winter wheat went into the ground with an abundance of moisture, and then followed rain after rain through the fall. That, according to the crop theorist, meant a luxuriant growth of plant, but with no depth of root. With so much moisture at the surface there was not the necessity for the root seeking depth. The conditions were favorable for luxuriance, but were not favorable for sturdiness or the ability to withstand unfavorable conditions in the spring and summer.

INJURED SAILOR'S NERVE.

Travels Three Thousand Miles With a Broken Back.

New York, May 9.—Frank Heath, a destitute sailor who traveled 3000 miles with a broken back, lies between life and death in the Long Island College hospital in Brooklyn. His case is surrounded in mystery. Heath, who is an old seaman, was left in Curacoa a month ago and was unable to get work until the steamship Sulia arrived there. He was taken aboard as a destitute sailor. When a few hours out from Curacoa he, with other sailors, was sent up the rigging. He lost his footing and fell to the deck, injuring his spine. He was placed in a hammock, and his fortitude and vitality were so marvelous as to call forth expressions of astonishment from all physicians connected with the case.

At the hospital this evening it was impossible to learn whether he was dead, as Superintendent Shaw said he had been instructed to refuse information.

NO SWAP WITH WALKER.

Government Will Not Agree to a Trade.

Washington, May 9.—After much delay the land office has rejected the offer of T. B. Walker, of Minneapolis, to exchange about 3000 acres of land in California for other lands in another section of the same state.

It appears that the title deeds executed by Mr. Walker were defective and his lieu selections were rejected on that ground.

The case also hinged on the records of the land office as to the character of the lands, Mr. Walker claiming them to be mineral and the government deciding them timber land, which made a second ground for rejection.

This tract is within the limits of the temporary withdrawal for a forest reserve, and if the reserve is established, Mr. Walker will have opportunity to relinquish his holdings under the forestry law, but he will not be able to do this for a year or two at the earliest, during which time the money invested in this timber land will be tied up.

RELIEF

To Be Sent to Swedish Polar Expedition.

Buenos Ayres, May 9.—Buenos Ayres is without news from the Swedish South pole expedition on board the steamer Antartic, and this causes alarm, because Nordenskjold, the leader of the expedition, said if there should not be news of the party at Puenta Arenas by April 3 the hour would have arrived when it would be necessary to send assistance.

The director of La Plata museum has taken the initiative in making preparations for a relief expedition. The minister of the navy declares the absence of news is not proof of a critical situation, because Malvinas Islands have no telegraph connection, and news must be brought to Puento Arenas by boat. The Nordenskjold expedition went out on the Antartic in January, 1902.

AN ULTIMATUM.

Lafayette, Ind., May 9.—The Master Carpenters and Builders' association, by unanimous vote, gave an ultimatum to the striking carpenters today. They will employ all carpenters when they apply for work, paying from 25 to 32½ cents per hour, according to ability.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Selling Orders Were Abundent and Prices Took a Drop.

Bank Statement Was Bearish and Closing was Easy.

New York, May 9.—The languid trading at the opening did not disclose any distinct drift of prices. There were few changes in excess of ¼ either way. Amalgamated Copper opened unchanged and ran off a fraction on dealings in some large blocks. St. Louis & San Francisco fell ¾.

Selling orders became more abundant and the pronounced weakness of several trans-continentals introduced pressure elsewhere. Railroad stocks were most freely offered and such favorites as St. Paul, Southern Pacific and New York Central were easily forced down a point or more. Northwestern, Louisville & Nashville, National of Mexico, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred, Colorado & Southern, International Power, Metropolitan Securities and Enamelling also declined 1 to 1¾. American Grass Twine sold at 15 recovering yesterday's 3 point loss.

A drop of 4 points in Metropolitan Securities induced some selling. Declines of a point or more were made by Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Delaware & Hudson, Reading second preferred, New Haven, National of Mexico preferred, Metropolitan Street Railway, Copper and Colorado Fuel & Iron preferred. Chalmers preferred. There was a rise of 1½ in Enamelling preferred. The publication of the bank statement increased the selling pressure. The closing was easy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is heavy. There was selling by some of those interests which have been acquiring stocks of late and good support is not in evidence. Bank statement mildly unfavorable. The Russian Chinese situation does not encourage the market, while it is not much of a bear factor so far. We must keep on reiterating, however, the fact that the public does not come to the support of the stock market. With the increasing unrest and disturbance in labor everywhere, we doubt very much whether they will. We think the load is too big for Wall street to carry and advise selling stocks on the hard spots.

Waldorf to Coe Commission company: It was learned last night that the Waldorf party in the stock market led by Jacob Field and W. B. Dover has sold its stocks owing to the continued dullness. The crop and bearish manipulation is attributed to H. G. Well, one of the largest of the room speculators. It is the opinion of representative brokers that the stocks sold by this professional element have been taken by powerful interests and that this absorption will be reflected later on by higher prices. They declare there is no liquidation of good securities and make the point that while the dullness is discouraging the tone is good. Values have increased, it is also argued that the conditions are better than for weeks and that the bullish attitude of important factors in the world of finance are indicated by the strength of Missouri Pacific, the leading Gould stocks and Copper. The position of another interest lies powerful but of immense resources is thought to be denoted by the advance in securities. This is the Pierce-Yeakum combination, which has just sold the Frisco railroad system to the Rock Island, and which is said to have paid $20,000,000. The figure seems incredible, but it is pointed out that these capitalists bought Frisco when they were very low and sold them at a great advance. A disappointing bank statement is predicted, but with the actions at the exchange averaging less than 400,000 shares a day and money a drug on the market little interest is felt in the forthcoming showing.

Lapsley to Paine, Webber & Co.: Bears were out in war paint in the last half hour. Bad bank statement and war like tone of Manchurian news the cause. The market closed under some pressure to sell.

* * *

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been heavy today. There was rather persistent selling by some of the leading interests which have lately been active on the bull side. This change of position is based on expectation of unfavorable news. The Russian developments, further talk of an Atchison bond issue and the unfavorable bank statement were all influential. Weakness was shown in leading railroads like St. Paul, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Atchison, Rock Island and Missouri Pacific. The bad bank statement was attributed to syndicate operations.

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was inclined to be weak and in the early trading there was some liquidation. The bank statement was not good and this caused quite heavy selling. Prices dropped all around and the market showed very little support. There was little change until the close, which was weak and dull. We look for a continuance of this inactivity and for trading purposes it seems safe to sell on rallies and the reverse. The public will not come in and until we find an active demand from this quarter we cannot expect to see any activity.

Norton to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was extremely dull and featureless. Money for the week easy. Amalgamated Copper showed strength early from which it was inferred that the Lefisohn pool was still alive. Heaviness of Rock Island was taken to indicate the selling in anticipation of the merger with St. Louis and San Francisco. The market gives very fair evidence that some larger holder is making sure his 60 per cent of Rock Island common stock by getting the market price in advance. Mexican National preferred, strong, but inactivity of other Mexicans indicated the strength was for a reason special to this issue and not affecting other Mexican stocks.

Herrick to Paine, Webber & Co.:—The stock market opened dull and about unchanged. Initial trades in Amal. Copper were over 5000 shares, most of which was at a decline of ¼. Mexican National securities continued in active demand. The usually active list showed almost no variations. Market showed no signs of increased activity and bond prices were steady. Look for continued dull market.

* * *

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening market was dull and featureless at slight recession from the close last night owing to the uncertainty as to the bank statement, traders were making no commitments. London was not a factor. The heaviness in the Rock Island issues led to rumors of realizing by holders in anticipation of the merger with Frisco roads. Traders sold the market in the first hour causing declines of half a point or more. In the bank statement our opinion is that the large increase in loans has no significance. The market closed without special feature at practically the lowest prices of the day and without any increased activity.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bank statement showed a loss in reserve but a gain in cash, it was considered a favorable one in the trade and the general market ran off after its appearance. There appeared to be profit-taking in Amalgamated Copper or new selling for short account. It then ran a point. It met fresh support. Advices from New York state that copper is stronger. Fifteen cents is now bid openly for lake and the Mexican Central people. We think the best of coppers a buy on all reactions.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 9.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 1 to 5 points, remained active and strong on cables and within the first hour the old crop months had increased the advance to 9 to 10 points, while the new crop months showed an advance of 7 to 12 points. Frank Stevens Turned Over to Grand Jury.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank H. Stevens, alias H. P. Gilmore alias Hargrave and others, who was captured this week at Granite Falls, Minn., after escaping from jail at Vermillion, S. D., was turned over to the grand jury here yesterday for swindling Mrs. Janette Gerg, of Battle Lake, out of $1000. He is wanted in several states.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Grain Rate Breaks, And Charters as Law as 1 1-2 Cents.

Chicago-Milwaukee Gossip as to the Lumber Rate.

The grain vessel rate to the lower lakes from Duluth has broken from the 2 cent mark. Nominally the rate is 1¾c but charters of small lots have been made at 1½c and it is admitted that offers of cargo lots at 1½c would probably be taken. The 1½c rate has been accepted by some package freight boats that needed the grain to fill out uncompleted cargoes.

There is no very great amount of grain to be shipped out of Duluth. Stocks by the end of next week will be under 3,000,000 bushels, probably as low as 2,500,000 and the remainder may be allowed to drag along during the summer. Some shippers look for the rate to go as low as 1c in view of the fact that there is no grain pressing for shipment.

THE LUMBER RATE.

Plot Talked of In Milwaukee and Chicago.

Milwaukee and Chicago papers claim to have discovered a plot on the part of a number of the owners of lake lumber carriers to shorten the carrying season and thereby raise rates for the transportation of lumber.

A report from Chicago says: "It developed yesterday that owners of lumber tonnage on the great lakes, 95 per cent of whom are members of the Lumber Carriers' association, are engaged in a bold plot to shorten the carrying season and thereby materially raise the rates for transportation of lumber. The scheme as it is exposed by those who should be thoroughly familiar with the matter was to frighten shippers into hesitancy about doing business. To accomplish this, it is said, about ten days ago announcement was made that on May 5 a meeting of the Lumber Carriers' association would be held at Detroit and carrying charges marked up from $2.50 to $5 per thousand feet, for lumber carried from Lake Superior.

"Just before the day set for the alleged meeting denials were sent out by the association's officials and the ruse has had the desired effect. Shippers are in doubt about the future and will be taken by the carriers and will do no business other than is absolutely necessary under the circumstances. Later in the season it is presumed the vessemen will meet and fix a permanent rate for the season."

The report is not given credence generally in Duluth. "If the report is true," said a prominent lumber shipper of this city, "the plot has not had the effect desired by the vessel owners. While lumber shipments were delayed at the opening of navigation by the labor troubles, cargoes are now being shipped very freely and there seems to be no sign of a holding back on the part of the shippers. Asking rates for 1904 business and the meeting was widely reported and then denied it does not seem probable that there was any deep-laid plot on the part of the vessel owners. Indeed such a plot would seem to have the opposite effect and cause shippers into hur

THE WEEK ACTIVE IN REALTY MARKET

Business Has Been Excellent, Although Recorded Transfers Do Not Reflect Its Volume—Feature Is the Fine Demand For Small Properties.

Indications are apparent of a strong undertone to the local realty market at the present time. Business has been very good among the dealers and brokers during the past week, but the extent of the movement is not yet shown by the record of actual transfers, for there are a large number of good-sized transactions to be closed up within the next few days. The real estate men have been busy all the week there being a great deal more inquiry than the preceding week. The transfer record shows an unusually large number of completed transactions this week among which are deals that were practically made some days ago.

One of the features of the market at the present time is the number of small properties that are being sold. Nearly every dealer and broker reports a good business in small deals, but it is not the general rule to report the same. The demand at the present time is said to tend strongly toward improved property. Many people are still without homes and some of these are looking forward toward owning their own homes in the near future. Reports indicate that many workingmen are buying small homes in preference to paying rent. There is a steady inquiry, however, for vacant lots with a view of immediate improvement or for building during the summer season. The list of sales running from $250 to $500 is no small one and includes, largely, the outlying portions of the city.

While the heaviest part of the annual May moving is about over, there is still considerable changing around, especially among those who were not able to get the houses which they have leased, on the first of the month. Rental agencies have, with few exceptions, exhausted their list of houses and flats and are compelled to turn people away daily.

One agent said yesterday that the situation is as serious as ever and that he knew of several families who have been compelled to go to West Superior to get houses, even though the head of the family is employed in this city. The movement to Park Point is a little heavier, if anything, than a week ago and household effects for summer homes are going down to the point in large quantities daily. Some of the new houses and cottages that were built this spring on the point are now being completed and the owners or lessees are losing no time in occupying them.

Vacant houses at Lakeside, West Duluth, Woodland and even Duluth Heights have been filled up and in some instances a sale has been effected to the new tenants.

Some of the new houses and flats which have been building during the winter and early spring are now well on toward completion and will be ready for tenants by the first of the coming month. In some instances where it was figured that the new buildings would be ready by the middle of April they are not yet occupied and the prospective tenants have been subjected to no small annoyance as other people are crowding them for the places they have been holding for the past year. The opening of the new buildings will relieve the situation for many families.

One architect estimates that new homes for about twenty-five families will be open the coming month.

It is quite likely that camping parties that are figuring on locating for a few of the summer months in localities near the city, along Lester river and elsewhere, will have to pay ground rent this year. There is a strong feeling among the owners of property, whose lands have been occupied by squatters and camping parties year after year, that such should be willing to pay something for ground rent. The owners argue that they have to pay taxes on the land every year, and take proper precautions to prevent fires, and they can see no reason why they should not have some return for their outlay. This condition is said to hold true of Park Point also, and owners of platted or unplated land in the locality are taking active steps to secure rentals this year or evict squatters.

P. T. Norton has sold to Allen L. Goodman lot 5, block 16, Banning & Ray's sub-division, and lot 9, block 18, Portland division, for $8000. The property is near First street and Eleventh avenue east. The deed went on record this week and marked the closing of a deal begun about a year ago.

R. J. Lutes has bought from Carl Siegel a house and lot near Fifth street and Fifth avenue east, described as lot 74 East Fifth street, Duluth proper, First division. The consideration was $4000.

* * *

T. M. Spalding has sold to Oscar Lonegren the property at 5726 Oneida street for $2110. The property is described as lot 7, block 16, Lester Park division, Second division.

Leopold Massicotte has purchased from A. A. Jacobs for $6000 the property on lot 402 and the east half of lot 404, block 48, Duluth proper, Second division.

J. J. Wangenstein, the architect, reports the bids all in for the double brick house which August Kehtel will erect at Second avenue east and Third street. Plans are ready for the remodeling of the Clarendon hotel, at the corner of Garfield avenue and Michigan street. Plans are in the hands of contractors for a 2-story brick building on Michigan street, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues west, for T. Pensonault. Plans will be ready the coming week for a two-story store and flat building for Lawrence & Hall, at the northeast corner of Fourth street and Fourth avenue west; also for a 2-story bank and office building for the First National bank at Bemidji, Minn. Mr. Wagenstein will have ready this coming week plans for two new school houses at Brainerd, Minn.

The Interstate Land and Investment company reports a good week's business, including some five or six trades, ranging from $300 to $1600. Most of the sales were for actual improvement.

T. G. Vaughn reports an excellent business, running largely to improved properties. Among the sales of the week were a property on First street for $3200, a house on East Sixth street for $2000, a house on Fifth street, near Twenty-fourth avenue west, for $7000, a lot near Third street and Twenty-eighth avenue west for $500, and a corner at Fifth street and Fourth avenue east for $2200. Several other good deals are underway.

Little & Nolte report a brisk business in small sales, with negotiations well under way for several larger ones. The office has had a large inquiry and gives expression of a very satisfactory month's business thus far.

Cooley & Underhill report a strong demand for small properties. The firm has sold several West Duluth properties of late.

* * *

J. D. Howard & Co. report present conditions of the realty market as very satisfactory. The firm is selling property right along and notes a strong demand. A general strengthening of local realty values, especially in the better class of residence property, is also noted, and predictions are made that when the owner and prospective buyer get closer together on prices there will be even more activity in the local market.

The following building permits were issued this week:

Joseph Rosek, dwelling on Fourth street, $1000.

H. S. Holresien, dwelling on Fifth street, $2000.

Samuel L. Loeb, remodeling hotel, Superior street, $5000.

Lynch & Hogan, store and flat building, Superior street, $3800.

Pioneer Fuel company, coal pocket, Garfield avenue, $5000.

H. Lindgren, dwelling, Wisdom street, $600.

Mrs. E. Miller, building, London road, $8000.

F. A. Thornwall, flats, Fifth street, $3600.

D. A. Duncan, barn, Third street, $500.

W. C. Sargent reports a steady demand and sale of homes and lots for building purposes in Lakeside. There has been quite a heavy movement of people from more central portions of the city out to Lakeside this spring, and every available house is being taken. The Lakeside Land company has a number of building projects under way, and is confident on the face of the returns that its plan is finding great favor among intending owners of homes. The work of laying the sewer and water pipe has commenced on McCullough avenue. The avenue is 80 feet wide and the district to be covered by the system is one of the handsomest residence streets in the city. Several new residences are under the process of construction there now. Special inducements are being made now to intending builders to locate on this street with all improvements in and paid for.

George Crosby & Co. report the sale of 100 feet near the normal school, a double corner, for immediate improvement; a modern residence in the East End and a number of smaller deals. The office has now under way negotiations for some deals of considerable importance. The April business of the firm is said to have been better than for many previous months, the total sales being in a larger amount and the inquiry looking toward purchase a great deal heavier.

* * *

A very satisfactory week's business is reported by Stryker, Manley & Buck. Among the firm's sales of the week were the following:

Two-story frame building at 1913-15 West First street to Charles Skoglund for $5000. Ellston & Britts represented the purchaser.

The Schiffman house at 1627 East Superior street, to a local party, for a consideration of about $4000.

Mr. Lyons, of the company, reports the sale of the following: A residence property in the East End on First street for $5500; a house on East Fifth street for $3000; fifty feet on East Fourth street for $2250; a home on Fifteenth avenue east for $2750.

PINK CARNATIONS

By Julia Truitt Bishop.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

They both knew that the reception of the season had been a failure. They had quarreled between the last stroll and the buffet lunch—that was patent to everybody.

"Where are your flowers?" he said idly, having them in his lap. "You were about to have them—quite by accident, of course."

She laughed at him lazily and shrugged her shoulders. It was a pity to spoil such pretty shoulders with such an unpleasant shrug.

He closed the carriage door. His way happening to lead in the same direction, he walked after her, watching the cerise rage angrily.

Half a block down the street something bright flashed out of the carriage window and dropped on the crossing.

She had thrown his flowers away.

Pink carnations. He had bought them for her a few hours ago with what feeling of love and of pride in her beauty; and now—once more they were at enmity and she had shown everyone how little she cared. His flowers were in the street.

He turned insolently at the crossing and started toward them—to gather them up out from under the prancing wheels as though they were human and could suffer. But someone else was before him. He heard a little gasping cry of delight and a figure stooped over the fallen flowers and rose up with the whole bunch clasped eagerly to her breast. He saw her face for a moment—the face of a pale girl, flower starved—and then she went on and was lost in the crowd.

Duncan Lane passed on his way in an altered mood, brushing angrily an irritating moisture that made his eyes burn.

"Gwendolen has had the world and the fullness thereof all her life," he said to himself. "It is easy for her to throw things away."

Two days later he was going back to the beautiful apartments which had once been a pleasure to him and which had now grown to bitterness of spirit. In the elevator was the quiet girl who had a room, or rooms, on some one of the floors above him. He had seen her many times—every day, almost—but he had never really noticed her. He would not have noticed her now, perhaps, but that a sudden jerk of the elevator almost threw her down and as he caught her arm he saw the half-withered pink carnation pinned to the bosom of her black dress.

Then he remembered. She had run out into the street to pick up the flowers his love had thrown away.

"You are sure you are not hurt?" he inquired anxiously.

She was not hurt in the least, she said—it had been the merest little jar. The trifling accident had made him feel that he had a right to speak to her.

"I see that you love flowers," he said, looking at the forlorn carnation. Her face blushed a rosy red.

"Yes—I—I found this in the street," she said, with childish candor. "I couldn't have afforded to buy them."

The elevator had gone past his floor. Now it went past hers and sped up higher.

"Was this one all?" he found time to ask as the elevator paused under the roof. She answered him quite seriously.

"Oh, no—there was a whole, great, generous bunch of them. I have them in water in my room. But you know—I—I thought I might allow myself just one every day to wear while I was at work. It keeps things from seeming so—so sordid, you know."

"And so you are a bachelor girl?" he was saying smilingly as they began to drop back down the long shaft. And this was the same Duncan Lane to whom the very name of bachelor girl had once been an abomination. It was quite as an afterthought that he added, following her as she stepped off the elevator: "May I come in a moment and see the flowers?"

There were months of loneliness and isolation in the grateful glance she flashed at him—a look which made him toss back his head, thanking heaven that he was a gentleman by birth and by profession. And so he followed her into the scenes. And so he followed her into the bare little outer room, where the carnations rioted luxuriously all over the washstand pitcher that held them.

"They are not going to hold onto life much longer," she said regretfully. "It will be such a pity. They are so lovely to look at when I sit here in the evening all alone. You know they seem to fill the whole place with beauty."

Duncan Lane pulled his mustache and looked at her thoughtfully.

"And when they wither you will have to throw them away," he said.

She turned on him with amazement.

"Why, I wouldn't dream of such a thing," she cried. "I shall put them into a box—I brought one home last night on purpose—and put them away in my desk and kept them always in my desk and keep them always. They'll make pleasant memory, you know—and pleasant memories are not so abundant that one can afford to throw them away."

A little shadow of sadness drifted over her face as she spoke and he felt at once a great sorrow for this pale, slender girl, alone in a great city, working at obscure and unremunerative toil for barely enough to keep her alive in the two cheerless rooms. The sorrow made him feel, further, that it was time to go.

Down in his own beautiful rooms Duncan Lane leaned back in an easy chair and looked at the carnation lying on the table. A letter lay beside it—a letter that had been awaiting his coming. It gave forth a delicate perfume that he knew so well, but instead of opening it he sat there staring at a flower, the tips of whose petals were taking on the curl that precedes death. What was there back of the flower that need have drawn him, and his thoughts?

A lovely girl, pale and thin from overwork and friendliness!

With an impatient sigh he opened the letter and read:

"Well, you unreasonable creature, if you have sulked sufficiently and are duly sorry you may come up tomorrow evening and take me to the theater and to a supper at Feretti's afterwards. Be sure that you have your prettiest apologies ready. Forgivingly, GWEN."

He was motionless so long that the edges of the carnation curled a little more.

"My Dear Gwendolen," he wrote at last, "I have gone after the flowers which you threw away. We have both gone so far—the flowers and I—that it wouldn't be worth while for us to try to come back."

He sealed the note and addressed it and nailed it at the shaft in the hall. Then he went back into the room again and searched among his treasures until he found his rarest and daintiest Bohemian vase.

It was to hold the pink carnation.

Next evening he stood, half ashamed, at the door of the bare little upper room.

"May I come in?" he asked entreatingly. "I am a little lonely, sometimes, and so I have brought you a few flowers—to take the place of those that are withering."

He will never forget the look on her face.

"For me?" she cried in a hushed little voice. "You bought them—you bought them—for me?"

"I bought these just for you," he said.

She was silent for a moment, looking at him, while her face slowly took on a rosy hue that spread up to her brow. At last she turned her eyes away.

"Nobody ever bought flowers for me before—in all my life," she said in a voice that trembled a little. "Father would have done it—he was a great scholar—and a gentleman—I wanted you to know that—but he was an invalid for so long—and then he died—and since then I have been quite alone. So you see—it is so new for anyone to buy flowers for me."

"I have—have taken the contract—if you will allow me," he said with a strange, new awkwardness. "You will be doing me a favor if you will keep a few flowers here all the time—for me to come up and look at," he added, with such wildly bad logic that they both laughed—and hers was the sweetest laughter in the world, when one came to hear it.

Miss Gwendolen D'Arcy was forced to tell her friends in the Land of the Sky, a few months afterwards, that the latest comers were Duncan Lane and his bride, and that she didn't consider Mrs. Lane at all stylish, though many people considered her a rather nice-looking little thing.

"I—I—married—himself, they say," she added with a careful yawn. "His mother's taken her up, though, and pretends to be delighted. But how silly she looks, forever and ever wearing pink carnations!"

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION

Washington, May 9.—Senators Aldrich, Allison and Spooner, comprising a part of the sub-committee of the senate committee on finance, spent two days this week at the Virginia Springs discussing some details of proposed financial legislation that is to be brought to the attention of congress next winter. Senator O. H. Platt, of Connecticut, who is the fourth Republican member of the sub-committee, was not present. Neither Senator Allison, nor Senator Spooner, who returned to Washington after the conference, would discuss for publication the work of the sub-committee. It is understood, however, that in an informal way only was the subject of financial legislation discussed.

RETURNS A BUNCH

Grand Jury Brings In Batch of Twenty-Six Indictments.

Seven Not Made Public, Persons Not Being In Custody.

The grand jury for the present May term of district court, that has been in session since Wednesday morning, completed its work this noon and was discharged by Judge Ensign. Fourteen indictments were returned this morning and twelve more this noon.

M. L. Cunningham, a logger and merchant at Burnett, Minn., who was indicted yesterday on the charge of selling liquor without a license, was brought into court on a bench warrant by Deputy Sheriff Magie this morning. He has been released from custody on a bond.

Benjamin J. Campbell, former chief clerk and bookkeeper of the imperial council of the Modern Samaritans, has three indictments against him charging grand larceny in the first degree. The total amount of the alleged embezzlement is given as $2833.

Jack Kurtl is indicted on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree. The information against Kurtl is that he took $20 from the person of Walter Erickson at Chisholm.

Louis Carlson is indicted on the charge of assault in the second degree in two cases. Carlson is charged with entering a saloon on Lake avenue and carving the faces of two fellow-Finlanders, one of them in a horrible manner.

Trio Pallomaki is indicted on the charge of assault in the second degree. The information against him is that he performed carving operations on the face of another Finlander at McKinley, Minn., some days ago.

Marco Lutji is indicted on the charge of assault in the first degree. He is alleged to have shot a man through the shoulder at McKinley, using a shotgun loaded with buckshot, seven of which struck his victim.

David Wright, Frank Callahan, Thomas Doran, F. E. Pomeroy, Frank Bodeen and Michael Morrison, striking flour-handlers, are indicted on the charge of rioting.

Gust Hennuning, John Salom and Andrew Mattson are indicted on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree. The information against them is that they robbed one Matt Ark of $60. Ark is the man who recently found himself in Lincoln and was unable to account for the manner in which he got there. He alleges that since he came to Duluth the defendants have tried to drive him out of town by starting a fight.

Charles E. Harris is charged with forgery in the second degree. He is alleged to have passed a forged check on David Frankfort, the Bowery clerk who is also under indictment on the charge of swindling.

Robert Fitzgerald is indicted on the charge of assault in the first degree. Fitzgerald is the man who is said to have attempted to clean out the bar room in the Saratoga hotel the other day, receiving a broken leg and numerous other bruises in the melee.

Seven other indictments are not yet made public as the persons interested are not in custody.

In the cases of T. Peterson, J. Peterson, Peter Peterson and John Thompson, who were arrested near Alborn station at the instance of the Duluth Log company, on the charge that they jumped their jobs after their railroad fare had been paid, the grand jury did not take any action. The presumption is that the grand jury thought the men had been sufficiently punished, having been in jail for the past forty days. On motion of County Attorney McClintock, this afternoon, the cases against them were dismissed. The committment, which was sent to this city with the defendants, says that they refused to go to work before dinner.

It is expected that the trial of the criminal cases will begin next Tuesday, as all the defendants will be given two days after pleading to prepare for trial.

Yesterday afternoon Alexander Morgues pleaded guilty to the charge of maliciously destroying property. He was indicted on the charge of throwing a brick through a plate glass window.

Martin Brosius, who was indicted on charges of grand larceny in the first and second degrees, pleaded not guilty. Adams & Miller were appointed by the court to defend him.

John Ponder pleaded not guilty to the charge of larceny in the first degree. J. H. Potter was appointed to defend him.

A number of those under indictment will be given an opportunity of entering pleas this afternoon.

Clever Humorist Coming.

Ellsworth Plumstead, one of the most versatile of entertainers, has been secured for a recital next Friday evening in the Congregational church, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society. Mr. Plumstead's work, which is unique and of a high order, consists of dramatic and humorous scenes and sketches. He is the possessor of a fine baritone voice which shows to advantage in a splendid selection of humorous and classic songs. Adding to this several character impersonations in costume, and an unlimited fund of dialect stories, Mr. Plumstead is said to give such a varied program that he never fails to hold the attention of his audience to the end.

BIDS FOR PAVING.

First Street and Lake Avenue Contracts Up.

J. W. Preston, the well known sidewalk contractor, has branched into the street paving business and yesterday had the lowest bid for paving Lake avenue south of the viaduct with sandstone. AT WEST DULUTH

Miss Augusta Peterson will be released from the Red Cross hospital today or tomorrow, having sufficiently recovered to be moved. She has been able to leave her bed for some days past, and it is now though that she is out of all danger. She will be taken to her home to complete her recovery.

The police have given up all active search for the mysterious assailant. It is now thought that he will never be brought to justice unless some unforeseen accident should bring about his betrayal.

Miss Peterson's recovery and release from the hospital is the last chapter in one of the most mysterious cases in the annals of West Duluth police history. At no time have the police had a clue to the identity of the assailant, who entirely eluded the cleverest detectives in the city, aided by a large force of police, largely, it is believed, by the efforts of the victim of the assault to shield him.

ANOTHER ABOUT OPIE READ.

"Several years ago, when Opie Read's genius was just beginning to be recognized, he lived on one of Chicago's "blind" streets—that is to say a "court" with only one open end, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Between his home and that opening a butcher did business. It might be added that he also did some things which were not business. For instance, he let Opie run up a very large account with him.

One day Read, who is a man of ponderous stature, came into the Press club and entertained a goodly company of cronies there with the story of how he had just sneaked by the butcher and out into the main street.

"As I came out of my house," said he, "I looked down toward the butcher's shop, and there I saw him standing in his doorway. My bill had been running for a long time, and the longer it ran the bigger that butcher grew to be. As I looked at him now, standing there between me and the opening of the street, he was a gigantic figure, with a great expanse of white apron, smeared here and there with impressive clots of blood. And the nearer I approached him the bigger he became.

"It was absolutely necessary that I come down town, so I hopped off the sidewalk into the gutter and began dodging behind the blades of grass, skulking from one to another when the butcher was not looking my way. At last I managed to get by him and into the open street. And here I am, all out of breath. I have run every step of the way."

While Opie was telling this wonderful tale James W. Scott, publisher of the Herald, came in.

"Opie," said he, at the close of the humorist's yarn, "I want a story for the Sunday Herald. Here is a check for $150 on account."

Read took the check and went away, promising to have the story ready on time. The next morning he came into the Press club again.

"Boys," said he, "you remember Scott gave me $150 yesterday."

Yes; many of those present remembered.

"Well," Opie went on, "I got the check cashed he started for home to begin the story. On the way I thought I would stop in and pay my butcher, but when I looked for his shop I had a hard time finding it. It was only when I got down on my hands and knees and searched closely that I discovered it.

"'Where's the butcher that runs this shop?' I shouted, with a voice that set the little building rocking.

"'Here I am, Mr. Read,' said a voice so wee that I could hardly hear it.

"'Where?' I thundered.

"'Why, right here by your knee. Don't move or you'll squash me.'

"'Sir,' I roared, 'I want to pay my bill.'

"'Any time you wish, Mr. Read,' the butcher squeaked. 'No hurry about it.

We say "ripe and mellow" advisedly, because we are assured of their age, their quality before they begin to mature in nature's laboratory. SCENES AT MINES ON THE GREAT VERMILION IRON RANGE

Ely Has the Cream of the Finest Ore of the Lake Superior District.

Diamond Drills Busy on Famous Section Thirty ---Network of Shafts at Minnesota.

QUALITY IS FINEST

Ore of the Ely Bed Is Practically Pure Bessemer.

Worth More Than Any Other Produced In Minnesota.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Ely, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Imagine a great wedge of the richest iron ore of the Lake Superior region, coming to a point at the surface of the ground at the Chandler mine, almost in the heart of the city, and sinking and still widening, apparently, a mile and a half east, at the Savoy mine.

Along this wedge are five great iron mines, each with its marvelous system of levels and shafts, boring away into the deposits and shipping thousands of tons of its ore.

Such is the Ely bed of iron ore.

Hibbing has quantity, prodigiously. Ely has quality, unexcelled! It has quantity, too, at least 60,000,000 tons, and nobody has more than a faint idea of the limits of the bed.

Eleven hundred men are employed in working a dozen shafts in this great deposit, from which nearly 12,000,000 tons had been shipped up to the close of the season. At no point, except at the thinnest edge of the wedge, has the bottom been reached. Mining operations are in progress a thousand feet below the surface in several places, and it is known that the ore goes down 1300 feet. How much farther it may go no man can tell.

The best of it is that this ore is the cream of the Lake Superior district. At the Pioneer mine a grade of ore called "pilot" is produced—not so much of it, perhaps, compared with the total shipments, but still a considerable amount—that is the finest ore known anywhere. The ore of the Ely bed runs from 66 to 67 per cent in iron, and it is practically pure Bessemer, worth a dollar or two a ton more than any other produced in Minnesota.

The iron-bearing formation is diorite, which includes greenstone, and the area of diorite, a long, thin, tongue-like strip, is bounded on all sides by granites. All of this rock is igneous, molten in the universal fires of the Archaean age, the oldest rocks on earth. The country is practically all rock. The hills are of rock, with barely enough soil to support vegetation. As if there was not enough rock already, the glaciers of a later period deposited acres of rounded boulder drift all over the country.

A geological map of the district shows the diorite formation in the area covered by the five Ely mines; a larger or at least a wider strip where the famous "Section 30" property is located, another strip, including the Minnesota mine, twenty miles west, and several smaller areas scattered between. The diorite does not necessarily include iron; so much is known. For several of the smaller areas of the iron-bearing formation have been drilled without end and without success.

It appears odd to the novice that there should be such a great bed of ore at Ely, another great bed at Tower, and nothing between. It appears odd to the expert, too, so odd that most experts believe that explorations will yet develop other bodies of ore, though they have not done so as yet.

Nothing like an end of the Ely deposit has been found except on the Chandler, which is at the thin edge of the wedge, and which has only two or three more seasons ahead of it. Its deepest reach, apparently, is 960 feet, where it reaches the western limit of the Pioneer mine, and it narrows from there to the point where it pinched out at the surface. Yet it was quite a deposit, at that, for up to the close of last season it had shipped 7,673,616 tons, more than any other mine in Minnesota, and only two or three mines on the older ranges at the other side of Lake Superior had shipped more. While last year's shipments were not up to the high-water mark of 1899, when 868,359 tons were shipped, it was well up to the average with 645,786 tons, and it has enough ore to keep up with that average for the remainder of its history.

"No bottom" is the cry at the other mines of the Ely group. No particular attempt has been made to find the bottom, and doubtless the owners do not care very much whether they ever find the bottom or not. The Chandler and Pioneer mines are the oldest of the group, of course. They were opened up in 1887, and Capt. John Pengilly, who is now in charge of the Minnesota and Chandler mines, came to Ely at that time, before a pick had been put in the ground, and has remained ever since. Up to a few years ago he had charge of the Chandler, and when D. H. Bacon retired the Minnesota was included in his charge.

The Chandler made its first shipments in 1888, with 454,612 tons, and it has shipped an average of 511,574 tons annually ever since. The Pioneer became a shipper in 1889, starting modestly with 3144 tons, and it has shipped an average of 181,940 tons since. No shipments in 1893 and 1894 brought the average down. Last season it shipped 673,863. The Zenith became a shipper in 1892, and it has shipped 455,669 tons. The Savoy and Sibley, grouped together, began shipping in 1898, and they have put out 795,556 tons. The three latter mines are only in their infancy, and the Zenith is suspected of having the deepest ore body of the group.

The United States Steel corporation practically controls all of the six mines of the Vermilion, including the Minnesota at Tower. The Chandler is still owned by the Chandler Iron company, but the steel corporation owns half its stock.

The Vermilion range is under three superintendents: Capt. John Pengilly has charge of the Minnesota and Chandler; Capt. Charles Trezona has charge of the Pioneer, and Capt. "Nick" Cowling has charge of the Zenith, Sibley and Savoy. It goes without saying that all of the mines are in good hands.

From the Chandler to the Savoy, a distance of a mile and a half, is a most interesting walk, as it includes all of the five mines, which run practically in a straight line nearly east and west.

GROUP OF MINERS OT SOUDAN.

SAVOY STEEL SHAFTHOUSE.

Decidedly the most interesting thing about the whole trip are the great steel shafthouses of the Sibley and Savoy, the former 153 feet in height and the latter 163 feet tall. These are the first and so far the only steel shafthouses to be built, either on this range or any other. They are in the nature of an experiment, and the verdict is that the experiment is a success.

The object to be attained by building the shafts to so great a height is the screening of the ore, which the wooden shaft houses do not attempt to do. The ore from the mines under the steel shaft houses is hoisted up and dropped into pockets in the houses, the highest of which is fifty feet from the ground. There are two pockets for each of the two grades of ore in these mines, and the upper pockets catch the lumps, while the finer stuff goes through into the lower pockets. This practically makes four grades of ore from each mine. The operation of these shaft houses is most interesting and they will undoubtedly be followed by others of a similar construction.

Ely is one of the prettiest townsite locations on the two ranges, and while Tower might be a rival in point of picturesqueness, there are no others. Like Tower, Ely is surrounded by rock-ribbed hills, and the city itself is built upon the side of one of them. The way between Tower and Ely is lined with pretty lakes that caress the foot of the railroad grade on either side.

The city has probably 5000 people, including the settlements along the line of mines, and there is little poverty there. All of the mine laborers are well paid, and this is true of both iron ranges. While much of the work is almost to be classed as unskilled, the workers are paid much better than any common labor in the Northwest. The same neat little houses, surrounded by fences, lawns and litle gardens, that are to be seen at Soudan, are features of Ely and the mining settlements, and an air of comfort and prosperity pervades everything.

Of course most of the miners are of alien birth and they are thrown so much together that there is but little incentive to learn the language of the country of their adoption, and hundreds of them do not learn it. However, the children do, and there will be few in another generation that will betray foreign parentage.

A matter interesting to students of sociology is the manner in which the work of amalgamating a population almost totally foreign by birth and tongue is being done. Of course the schools are the base of the work, but much is being done by those in charge of the men, and a most notable work is being performed by Monsignor Joseph F. Buh, vicar general of the Duluth diocese of the Roman Catholic church, and Capt. John Pengilly. Both of these men are loved and revered by those in their charge, and their influence for good is almost boundless. They have been given unusual opportunities to serve their fellowman, and both of them have done great work. There have been strikes on the ranges, but never one under Capt. Pengilly or the other Ely superintendents.

Tower and Soudan are probably as quiet and peaceable and law-abiding as any mining towns in the world, and as full of good, useful citizens.

Ely itself is almost entirely mining. Winton, four miles away, with a population of about 500, is almost entirely lumbering, and its two mills employ a large number of men, while many more are employed in logging operations near by.

Ely is a good business town. Its stores are busy and prosperous, and the assured future of the mines insures a continuance of good times here for many years.

ITS VALUE UNKNOWN

Development Of the Famous Section Thirty Is Proceeding.

Ely Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three miles east of Ely and half that distance beyond the Savoy mine, the farthest working mine from the city, lies the "Section 30" property, which is easily the most famous of all the mines on both ranges.

Its fame comes from a long period of complicated litigation, beginning twenty years ago and only recently determined.

That litigation has cost nearly $1,000,000, and it is one of the most intricate and complicated bits of legal history that ever grew up in the Northwest.

The final outcome of it was that 320 acres of section 30-63-11, including what is known as the Eaton-Merritt tract, has become the property of Frank W. Eaton, Leonidas Merritt, George J. Lonstorf, R. H. Fagan and L. C. Harris. The value of the property is unknown. It lies on one of the biggest iron-bearing formations of the Vermillion range, and its surface indications are better than most of those that have been found in that section. Four drills and a large crew of men are now at work exploring the property.

What they have found—if anything—outsiders do not know. Who the work is being done for outsiders know as little about, though the impression prevails that the Clergue syndicate has an option and is conducting the explorations.

Probably even those on the inside have no very definite knowledge of what underlies the surface there. Iron has been found, but its amount is not yet shown. It may be of immense extent and it may be merely a series of small pockets. On the whole, the chances are that there is a big iron mine there, and it is that hypothesis that is generally accepted.

The topography there is about the same as that of the general Vermillion district—rocks and hills without end. There is an abundance of jasper, which often caps the Vermilion range iron deposits, and the country rock is diorite, which is the attendant or iron on that range.

There is not a great deal to be seen. Four diamond drills, a number of pits, a cluster of log houses and sleeping tents, and a wilderness of rocks and trees, is nearly a complete catalogue of the sights of "Section 30."

There is not much to be found out there, either. The surface of the earth tells nothing of what is underneath except by vague and uncertain hints, and the workmen who are engaged in penetrating the earth's secrets keep what they glean to themselves, as good and faithful workmen should.

The fact that so much time, energy and money has been spent in determining the title to the property, however, indicates a pretty strong and general belief that it is a pretty big thing.

Surface indications of iron ore on the property were discovered in 1880, twenty-three years ago, by one Brynes, an explorer in the employ of Charlemagne Tower, who then owned the properties subsequently purchased by the Minnesota Iron company. Byrnes, with a couple of friends, squatted on as much of the property as they thought would cover the iron deposits, after which Byrnes reported his find to his employers. He was rebuffed and told that it was his business to explore around the original finds, and that he had gone out of his beat. Nettled at this reception, he made a deal with F. W. Eaton and Leonidas Merritt, who scripped the land and gave Byrnes and his friends a third interest.

A long series of fights followed, involving appeals to the highest authority in the department of the interior, and later to the courts. Secretary Vilas finally cleaned out all of the claimants, and the decision, which threw the land open to new claimants, reached Duluth on Washington's birthday, 1889. It lay in the office, which was not open that day, until the following day. In the meantime the corridors surrounding the land office were filled up with a struggling mass of men after the land, and there was a crush at the door when it opened in the morning. Emil Hartman got in first, the Minnesota Iron company second, F. F. Huntress and S. C. Brown third, and George C. Stone fourth.

Most people are familiar with the long fight that followed, and it is too lengthy and complicated to be repeated here. It is enough to say that the five men named above have finally secured title to the property, and that it is now being explored. If the explorations show the desired results, development will follow rapidly.

WILD SCENE IN COURT.

Wives of Murder Suspects Refuse to Leave Them.

New York, May 9.—When the verdict in the barrel murder case, by which eight men were held in connection with the death of Benedette Madoni, was read, a wild scene followed. The wife of Laduca and Fanaro's wife and child pushed their way through the crowd in the room to the side of these men and clung to them. All the accused except Morello and Zaconni, who were not in court, were committed to prison without bail to await the action of the grand jury. Mozello later was taken into custody on the dismissal of habeas corpus proceedings instituted in his behalf. Zaconni had never been arrested in connection with the murder. Officers were sent after him.

TOWER AND SOUDAN

The Vast Underground Workings of the Minnesota Mine.

Some of the Levels Deeper Than One Thousand Feet.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Tower, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is the home of the great iron mines of the Vermilion range, as well as of T. J. Walsh and his rabbit farm and other interesting landmarks.

While Tower is not one of the liveliest towns on the two ranges at present, it is in a good, healthy condition, and including Soudan, the home of the miners, a mile and a half away, nearly 5000 people claim a residence here. The city has been livelier during the winter than it is at present, for the big mill of the Tower Lumber company ran steadily throughout the winter season, employing more than 300 men, and has just lately closed down, leaving a mammoth stockpile of finished lumber to mark the season's work.

Tower probably gets more real benefit out of the sawmills than it does out of the mine, because the latter is a mile and a half away, and nearly everybody employed there lives at Soudan, the big mining village that nestles in the valley just at the foot of the hill out of which the Minnesota Iron company—or rather the United States Steel corporation—gets its ore. Like the other end of the Vermilion range, there is an admirable quality of tidiness, neatness and comfort about this purely mining village. The houses are neat, tasty and comfortable, and most of them have their little plots of ground for flower and kitchen gardening.

A big school house hums like a great bee hive with its colony of little ones, and a brighter lot will not be found in any village in the country. Many of the parents have not a word of English at their command, but all of the children speak it, and speak it well. Another generation will show a remarkable change, due to the process of amalgamation that that big school house is conducting up on the hill at Soudan.

Tower and Soudan are both prettily situated in a valley, surrounded by scenic hills. The one mine of this end of the Vermilion range—the Minnesota—is located on the crest of one of these hills, just above Soudan, and its shafthouses and stockpiles and machine shops are outlined against the sky when viewed from the valley beneath. The Minnesota mine covers more ground and has a more elaborate array of shafthouses than any of the mines at the other end of the range, though up to the close of last season it had not shipped quite so much ore as the Chandler, at Ely.

The Minnesota mine was opened in 1883, and it shipped 62,124 tons in that year. It is, therefore, the pioneer mine of this great iron-producing state, and it has shipped steadily every year since then and will continue to ship for years to come. It is not now shipping nearly so much as it was in its palmiest days, and its 600 men are not half so many as it has employed in times past. Prior to 1887 the Minnesota shipped 592,004 tons. In 1889 it passed the half-million mark, shipping 535,318 tons, and it reached its high-water mark in 1887, when it shipped 592,196 tons. After that it subsided below the half-million grade and declined to 205,284 tons in 1901. Last year it shipped 275,168 tons. In all it has shipped 7,453,511 tons of ore, almost 40 per cent of the total output of the range, which is 19,061,566 tons.

A dozen years ago the Minnesota mine employed as many as 1400 men, whereas it now employs but 600. This is due not only to the falling off in shipments, but to the introduction of labor-saving methods in mining. For instance, it used to be the practice to load cars by hand, and now all of that is done by steam shovels. Air power drills are used more in the mine than they used to be; in fact, except in special cases, they are used almost exclusively, and there is very little hand drill work.

Like the Ely mines, the work is all underground, though at first there was ore on the surface, and in 1885 to 1887 mining was mostly on the surface. The big shipments soon exhausted the surface deposits, however, and sent the miners deeper into the ground. At present they are working 1600 feet deep on shaft No. 8, and nobody knows how deep the deposit runs.

Ore from the Minnesota mine is not of the high quality that comes from the Ely mines. Much of it is non-bessemer, whereas the Ely mines put out ore that is more than half iron, practically all pure bessemer.

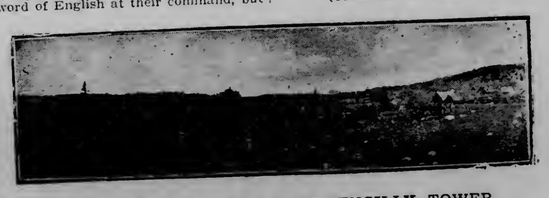
SOUDAN AND MINNESOTA MINE.



RESIDENCE OF CAPT. JOHN PENGILLY, TOWER.

SPRING PARASOL AND SUMMER FAN

Parasol of This Year Must Be Trimmed ---Now Called the Sunshade---Much Novelty in the Fans This Season.

New York, May 9.—No sooner is summer time in her midst than fickle womankind seeks to dispel it.

With abundant perasol she shelters herself from the first rays of the sun, while with waving fan she drives back the soft air, bringing heavier currents on the new breeze.

Nor is woman content with the large parasol alone, but she must also have it a handsome one. It must be so fashionest that it fulfills many requirements, one of which is that it shall be becoming to the hair and to the complexion of the one who carries it.

The parasol of this year may or may not be of the thirty variety, for upon this question there is a wide range of choice, but it must be trimmed, for the plain parasol is as much a thing of the past as the plain shirt waist.

A trimmed parasol may be trimmed in one of a great many ways. This season there is an immense deal of choice left to the purchaser, and it is in choosing the right style of parasol trimmed in the right way, that the woman shows her good taste, for not all are in good taste for general use.

One of the daintiest, prettiest parasols in the trousseau of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt was a white one made of taffeta, a very ordinary thing one might say for a rich bride to carry. Any woman can get a white silk parasol with a wooden stock and a shapely end.

The trimming of the sunshade, as it is now the style to call tais article, consisted of bands of black velvet ribbon, put on around the parasol in four or five rows. The velvet was half an inch wide, and was sewed at the upper edge only with the lower edge hanging free. Around the handle there was knotted a black velvet ribbon with a black velvet rosette attached to it.

Another parasol of this description was in pink silk with a black wood handle. It was trimmed with rows of black taffeta ribbon, sewed to the upper edge of the ribbon. Between the rows of ribbon were very narrow bands of black lace.

It is easy that a woman can take a plain parasol, if she happens to have one left over from last summer, and make it extremely stylish by a very simple scheme of trimming.

Another style of trimming the parasol is seen in the shirred covers, which are slipped over the top very much on the order of the covers that decorate the parasols of baby carriages.

While the shirred top is not new, the materials that are used for the tops make them seem quite novel. A shirred top of thinnest dimity, of doily variety pattern, was made in such a way that the stripes seemed to go around the top of the parasol. A great sett pretty cover of the fern rule which was sewed off short. Around the edge there was a double ruching of the dimity, while the handle had a great dimity bow tied near the end with a pink ribbon in it.

It is claimed that the new parasols are not made to be closed, but this is a libel upon their usefulness. Though trimmed upon the inside, they are so arranged that the trimming in no way interferes with the scheme of letting down the sunshade. And to accomplish this a great deal of ingenuity is used.

A beautiful sunshade in black silk, originally a small black silk umbrella, was appliqued on the inside with large red roses cut from figured chintz. They were extremely thin and beautiful laid upon the inner surface of the parasol so as to make a trellis design. The very same pattern was repeated as though they were in shadow, viewed from the inner side.

The prices of these comparatively small articles of dress is something enormous when one comes to buy the nicer specimens. But in counting up the original cost of the parasol, the price of the lace that is upon it, the amount of work that is required to complete it, and the necessary artistic skill one feels as if the parasol were made worth the price that is charged for it.

In the newer varieties, the actual novelties, one sees the sunshade with its upper edge cut in fancy shapes and the edge is then strengthened with lace of scroll design. It requires nerve and also skill and a great deal of heartlessness to take a pair of scissors and cut the edge of one's parasol into carved shapes. And only the most proficient should attempt it, for the edges must be at once secured with very heavy bands of lace and ribbon or the whole parasol will get out of shape when it is raised.

To make the picot edge there are laces with an irregular edge which can be sewed around the parasol as a border and there are also passementeries and fancy ribbons that can be used in this way. It is not at all unusual to see a wide piece of lace with scroll edge placed around the edge of the parasol in such a manner that an inch or more projects beyond the silk.

And speaking of lace one must not forget that a touch of lace must be upon everything. It is really alarming to note the extent to which its uses will yet go, and the laces are so expensive, too. But to offset this, one can always take comfort in the thought that there are inexpensive grades and that very often the less expensive variety looks quite as well as the dearer lace.

An example of the reckless use of a precious lace was seen recently in a gown worn by Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain at a great affair in South Africa. This dress, which was in pink etamine, was made up with rose colored lace, almost the same shade of the etamine. The lace, which was a handsome piece of point, had been dyed to the color of rose and was used as a dress panel and as a finish to a handsome square lace collar.

Laces are colored in the Oriental fashion by pounding a colored powder into them. It is terribly injurious to the lace, for it makes it thin and frail, but it is only another evidence that woman is stopping at nothing this year where beauty and style are in question.

The uses of dyed lace are increasing, and one sees a great many pink, blue, red and yellow gowns trimmed with lace to match. Arbutus and coral pink, trimmed with arbutus colored and coral colored lace, are found in many materials; and then one sees the popular champagne colored gowns for afternoon wear trimmed with champagne colored lace.

One is moved to wonder what the ordinary woman of domestic tastes, the woman who clings to dark colors and not much trimming, will do this season, for the dame fashion declares for the light colors and the vivid trimmings. And the domestic woman as well as the woman of style wants to get in line and be in the swim. Fortunately for her there are linens of almost every known color, and these combine so nicely with simple washable laces that she has a great range from which to make her choice, and from the lot she can select something quiet and becoming.

A dashing Newport girl appeared the other day in a dashing gown of pink linen trimmed with pink wash silk. She wore a white hat with a garland of pink roses, and to save your life you could not think of her as other than a wild flower, so beautiful did the pink blend with the surrounding green of the lawn.

A peacock costume is another Newport fancy, and was seen not long ago as an early spring creation. The material was a cream colored parasol and a hat with a waving green paradise tall upon it. The gown was embroidered down the front in two panels, one at each side of the middle front breadth. And on these panels were peacock feathers, reaching up toward the waist line.

The parasol was embroidered in peacock feathers that formed a border. The belt resembled two long peacock feathers thrown around the waist, and at the front the feathers met and were clasped under a big enamel buckle.

In fans there is some novelty this season, for there are fans that when closed look like a big flower. When opened they are small, and the two outer sticks are covered with crepe flowers; a flower is fastened at the end of each stick. When the little fan is closed my lady holds in her hand a beautiful flower, big scented and delicate beyond expression.

The flower fan made in this fashion is another thing within reach of home talent, and any girl can by taking a tiny Josephine fan, procurable for a quarter of a dollar, make herself a flower fan for summer.

Another specimen of fan is the silk fan, cut out along the upper edge, with a border of lace to act as a finisher. The all-lace fans can be made inexpensively by taking a little silk fan, or even a paper one, and removing the material from the sticks which are afterward covered with lace, put out as flat as possible and glued to the sticks.

The lace fan will be the most popular one of the summer, for it will share in the lace revival and be all, or nearly all, made of this delicate material. In some of the new fans the lace is not delicate, but is rather heavy and built for wear if not for tear.

A lace fan, a tiny thing, was covered with heavy lace, through which was run a wide ribbon. The ribbon was tied in a bow at one side of the fan so that when closed it would come on top. Another made of lace insertion had ribbons run through it with a bow knot at the end of each ribbon. The hand-painted fan is much in evidence, which is good news for the girl who can paint a little; and one of the new afternoon fans is in pink, painted in pink and white.

Gowns seem to be built up in schemes. One of these was in gold brown, a beautiful thing, built in a soft batiste that looked silky and delicate, but which was among the durable things of the season.

The skirt was cut with a lovely flare toward the foot, and into it were introduced medallions of ecru lace. The waist was cut on the blouse order, with medallions of lace set into the blouse. There was a lace fichu, with long, narrow lace stoles.

The hat and the parasol were of gold brown, trimmed with lace, while the hat was finished with pink roses put on in a mass at one side. A pink ribbon belt and a pink stock completed this pretty summer shirt waist suit, for such it was, though so delicately conceived that it looked like a French creation.

And, speaking of French creations, they are trimming evening gowns abroad with tiny fur tails for summer wear. And in the handsomer of these costumes the evening dresses, the tiny ermine and the smallest of mink tails are seen. Not content with this they are removing the "eyes" from ermine fur and using them as a trimming.

Fur is used directly upon lace flounces, and the woman who had a worn-out muff or a disabled boa can take it and rip it apart and cut it in very narrow strips which can be used in various ways.

A woman whose taste is unquestioned has made for herself for summer wear a thin gown of transparent material which is box-plaited. The plaits are held firm at the knees by a very narrow band of fur which measures scarcely a quarter of an inche in width and looks much narrower. At each side of the fur there is a band of lace.

Again, in the novelties, there can be mentioned the wide lace collar dyed brown. One of these lace collars was dipped into a golden dye which made it the scoftest, prettiest brown imaginable. It was worn with a black gown with a golden belt and a golden stock, both of them covered with gold lace. But what'a wearisome thing it is to know of the many little things of dress of this season and to realize that if one is going to have them one must make them for one's self.

The wrinkled sleeve is here in some profusion. In one style the sleeve formed a great wingilke puff below the shoulder. At the elbow it was extremely tight, and from the elbow to the wrist t was wrinkled. Another sleeve was wrinkled from the shoulder to the elbow, while it hung in a big bag from the elbow to the wrist. Both of these styles go to prove that any sleeve can be in style as long as it wrinkles somewhere.

In the cuff line a novelty is promised in the funnel cuff. One might almost call it the funnel, for it is so long and so narrow. The funnel cuff is sometimes made of layers of cloth, one over lapping the other, with a profusion of lace trimming the topmost one.

They make these funnels of silk and cover them with lace, and they finish them so that they can be slipped on and slipped off like an ordinary cuff, except that they go over the sleeve and come up very nearly to the elbow.

The vogue for the adjustable cuff is great and threatens to equal the vogue for the adjustable collar. Indeed, these adjustable articles come in sets, a pair of cuffs and a collar, all ready to be slipped on any gown be it a fine one or a plain one. Nor are these adjustable sets cheap. Some of them are of the most exquisite make and are a mass of lace, of embroidery, of chiffon and delicate silk flowers, all too lovely to behold.

The cuffs are to be slipped on over a cloth gown or a silk one and the collar, which is a stock, is to be worn in regular stock fashion. A set of this kind gives an unmistakable finish to the gown and the woman who is going to dress well can not do better than to procure from one to half a dozen of these handsome sets, even though they cost a lot of eyesight and her own time and taste, not to mention the great necessity for using plenty of skill.

In obedience to the fashion law, demanding the wearing of the shirt-waist suit, the dressmaker is fashioning all sorts of suits that come under the heading of shirt-waist suits.

The shirt-waist suit may be made of flowery goods, of heavy canvas, of cotton cheviot and of every other known material. It must be washable or look as though it would wash, and its trimmings must all be in accord with the tubbable idea.

Many of the shirt-waist suits are made with ruffled skirts and the latest way of putting on a ruffle is to pleat it instead of shirring it. The side-plaited ruffle around the foot of the skirt is very good, for it gives the right sort of flare to the skirt; and if this ruffle be shaped, that is, if it be arranged so that it is a little deeper in the back than the front, and if there be two or three or four of these plaited ruffles, all rising a little toward the back, the style is very good.

AMONG THE PLANTS

As planting time is so near, perhaps it would be well for us to glance over the list of what we may call staples and see what can be grown and does best in Duluth. I mean the things that grow well without much coddling. In vegetables nearly all can be grown except the egg plant; we are too cold for it. Tomatoes do fairly well, that is, if given a sheltered position. Many of them ripen, and there are any amount of green ones for pickling, but it is of no use trying late varieties; the earliest is none too soon, and they must be well grown before planting time June 1. The advantages of shelter I saw well illustrated last year. On one piece sheltered by the buildings from the sweeping rains they were as smooth as an apple, while on another piece exposed to the storms they were so crooked that it would almost make you squint to pick them. The rains beat off the pollen and they could not fertilize properly, and that is often the cause of crooked fruit or nosey strawberries. Celery gave some trouble last year by running to seed, one grower losing 100,000, but it is the exception and not the rule. Poor seed and letting the plants get too dry when young are the contributary causes. Perhaps there is no country in the world where green peas can be grown as well as here. They can be grown clear up to freezing time, while further south the late ones mildew, and someone could make money by shipping late peas south.

In the flower garden, too, sweet peas do excellently. Nowhere on earth are they better; they can still be sown and be good. Then there are the poppies; they cut quite a figure. The dianthus, too, are not nearly as largely grown as they ought to be; there are many of them as pretty as carnations, and although not fragrant, are lovely for cutting. But of all the easily grown things and showy are the asters, many of them just as beautiful as the chrysanthemums, especially the Semple type, and, by the way, there is an improved Semple out in three colors, white, pink and lavender, and said to be so grand that the Chicago people would not look at the old kinds if they could get them. They are called the Carlson aster and bloom a little earlier than the late branching, and I am impatient to see them bloom, for if they are better than any we have grown before they must be grand indeed. You can greatly improve the size of these flowers by pinching off the late side branches and letting the plant carry no more than four flowers. Then the pansies rank high in our late region, blooming all summer. They can bear the full sunshine. Farther south they need shade. Plant them about eight inches apart and give plenty of water in the dry, hot weather. A good mulch of lawn clippings or some such material helps lots, and keep the seeds picked off. It is astonishing how Duluth air improves even the seeds grown here. I find they grow larger by far than seed raised farther south, and the coloring better and brighter, and the prices are so low that you can all have them.

Single petunias and phlox must not be forgotten. They make lovely beds, or masses in the border. Many other pretty things do well, but the above are our main reliance and are not costly, so in making up your beds bear them in mind.

School Girls

Young girls at this period of life, or their mothers, are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; all such letters are strictly confidential; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; and her advice is freely and cheerfully given.

School days are danger days for American girls.

Often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality. Sometimes it is never recovered.

Perhaps they are not over-careful about keeping their feet dry; through carelessness in this respect the monthly sickness is usually rendered very severe.

Then begin ailments which should be removed at once, or they will produce constant suffering. Headache, faintness, slight vertigo, pains in the back and loins, irregularity, loss of sleep and appetite, a tendency to avoid the society of others, are symptoms all indicating that woman's arch-enemy is at hand.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped many a young girl over this critical period. With it they have gone through their trials with courage and safety. With its proper use the young girl is safe from the peculiar dangers of school years and prepared for hearty womanhood.

A Young Chicago Girl "Studied Too Hard."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for the help and benefit I have received through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. When I was about seventeen years old I suddenly seemed to lose my usual good health and vitality. Father said I studied too hard, but the doctor thought different and prescribed tonics, which I took by the quart without relief. Reading one day in the paper of Mrs. Pinkham's great cures, and finding the symptoms described answered mine, I decided I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did not say a word to the doctor; I bought it myself, and took it according to directions regularly for two months, and I found that I gradually improved, and that all pains left me, and I was my old self once more. — LILLIE E. SINCLAIR, 17 E. 22d St., Chicago Ill."

"Miss Pratt Unable to Attend School."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness." — MISS ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life.

SMOOTH SURFACE CLOTH WITH IRISH LACE.
FROCK OF SUEDE CLOTH.
EMBROIDERED VOILE GOWN.
BLUE GOWN WITH BLACK AND WHITE LACE TRIMMING
WARREN

Cloth gowns are a necessity the whole year round. That has been proved by experience, although there are weeks and months in summer when on most of the days the very thought of a cloth gown is a horror. Yet, let the weather change, and the woman who is not provided with something warm to wear not only feels forlorn, but looks so, and, consequently, cloth gowns—two or three of them—are included in even a modern outfit and are worn when they can be—that is, from now until the weather is impossible for them, and then occasionally on the cool days that come all during the summer. Light veiling gowns are more practical for midsummer wear and look rather lighter, but they do not take the place of the cloth gown. A rather curious fact is that it is a mistake to have too light a weight of cloth. A heavy winter fabric is, of course, most inappropriate, but unless there is some warmth to it a gown feels too light in the unseasonable weather.

Smooth cloth is more used for tailor suits than it has been for a long time. Long coats and short skirts are made of it, elaborately braided and trimmed. If the plain effect is not becoming. Rough serges and fancy cheviots are also in fashion, but have been so much used that their hold on the popular fancy is not a strong one. With most of the gowns both a long and a short skirt are furnished, especially if the coat is at all elaborate in design, for while a short skirt is eminently practical it is very unbecoming, and not at all smart for anything but hard wear, and the long skirt so entirely changes the appearance of a gown that it can almost do duty for two.

New Shades of Brown and Blue.

Odd shades of color are very fashionable in veiling gowns. There are some curious shades of brown and blue that have not been seen before. The brown that has a little red through it, almost like chestnut in effect, is very popular, and a smart gown of it has a lace jacket the same color, with full undersleeves and front of chiffon of the same shade. There is no touch of white to relieve this gown excepting just a line at the throat, but with it is worn a red hat, and the combination is good, although exceedingly trying. Gray of all colors, but in darker shades than last year, is made up in the veiling, and hats are made to match, and now are relieved with bright scarlet, a combination that has been absolutely tabooed for years, and now is seen only on the smartest gowns. There is something harsh, hard and old-fashioned about it, and yet, with the curious quality that a new fad possesses, attractive.

Black and white checked effects in cloth and silk are extremely fashionable. There is always a fancy in favor of shepherd's plaids, but this year there is a perfect craze for the style. In taffeta silks, in the soft louisines, as well as in cloth and any number of fancy materials this fine black and white and blue and white check reigns supreme, trimmed with bands of cloth or plain taffeta, black or white, as the case may be. A smart costume of the cloth made with short skirt and exaggeratedly long coat of this pattern is becoming and has something inuneusely smart about it. In silk, with facings of white of the same sized check, it looks very dainty and cool. The great trouble is that so many shirtwaist gowns are being made in this pattern that the fashion will become common before the season is over.

Taffetas Are Elaborately Embroidered.

Taffeta silk gowns are always fashionable, and, having been worn for several seasons quite plain, it is now considered necessary to have them embroidered or elaborately trimmed. Taffeta is also combined with cloth, veiling and all sorts of materials that have hitherto seemed quite inappropriate. The taffeta is put on in a deep faced band, as it were, as a trimming for the waist and sleeves. All the body of the gown and the upper part of the skirt will be of the taffeta and the lower part of cloth, with trimming of cloth, and after all there is nothing that combines with taffeta so well as cloth. A moire taffeta with considerable luster, so fashionable last year, is again in favor, made in coat and skirt or coat and blouse.

The only trimmings are tucks and pleats of the material, put in by hand, and one of the expensive fads of this year is that the tucking, and, in fact, all the work possible on the taffeta gowns, must be done by hand. Although it might not be supposed that the difference between machine and handwork would show on the black taffeta, there is no material on which it does show so much. The hemstitching and featherstitching which have been used on cloth and other materials also appear in the taffetas. One exceedingly smart model of a gray and white striped gown has lines of this heavy hemstitching, as well as faggoting in black silk—or white, if so desired—and the effect is much better than any other lines of trimming could possibly be.

In spite of the oft-repeated assertion that white is the most fashionable color of the season and that there are any number of attractive gowns in every material being made up in it, it is quite evident that white will not be the only color, for there are to be seen not only the queer shades to which reference has been made, but the old-fashioned plain browns, blues, greens, grays, etc., and these are worn both afternoon and evening. In fact, for evening gowns darker shades are more fashionable than they have been for a long time, while in smart repection gowns are seen quite dark effects in grays, browns and blues. The all-black gown is not so popular as it was, although, by a curious contradiction, it may be truthfully stated that there is no gown so smart, but it is not the one gown for a woman to choose if she has limited means. The queer shades are not relieved with any trimming of white lace.

Lace or embroidery to exactly match the color of the material is required, and if color must be introduced there are a bow on the front of the waist and a band around the throat or at the sleeves. The truth is that this style is exceedingly trying, and for that reason is liked by those people who desire to be dressed differently from the majority of womankind. The only relief possible in such a costume is that the hat should be made of some entirely different color and must needs be becoming. On the all white costumes are now seen the introduction of some color in trimmings, lining or embroidery. For instance, a white lace dress will have on the front of the waist, and perhaps on the skirt, pale green, blue or pink. In other words, there must be some change made, the fashion of all one tone having been popular far too long.

Coats and skirts to match, in often the most expensive and incongruous materials, are fashionable, and yet coats that have no reference whatever to a gown are worn—black coats with white, brown coats with blue, etc. In short, the question of dress—that is, fashionable dress—is most puzzling, and one must have time, means and a very level head not to be led aside into some of the wild paths of fancy that open before the lover of dress.

Some Dainty Corset Covers.

The fit of a corset cover is as important as that of a dress waist, and not only is it a great economy to make one's own, but it is also a very simple and interesting task, and the advantage of having them to the correct fitting makes it thoroughly worth while.

Anyone with a prominent figure should wear plain, tight-fitting covers, while she who is slight requires fulness across the front.

To make the right fitting ones requires a good pattern. A very easy and satisfactory way of procuring this is to use an old foundation bodice from a dress waist. If required only to the waist the old pattern should be cut off by the waist line, the neck cut down as required and about half-inch (or the original turnings) off the armholes and only the shoulder seams opened.

Fold the pattern down middle of the back; place this to a fold of the material for new garment and join the pattern flat. Cut out, allowing the necessary turnings to the front edges for the fastenings, which should be by small buttons.

The best way to do this correctly is to cut off (if there are any) the edges of the old pattern, outside the actual middle of the front, when fastened; then allow a half inch on the buttonhole edge and an inch and a quarter on the button one, marking each with a pencil line by the old edges. Make them neat by adding false hems that will support the buttons and buttonholes respectively.

The only seams will be on the shoulders, which will be as short as required for the high or low neck. If the curve is desired below the waist add a yoke basque otherwise turn up the neck, armhole and waist edges, make them neat with finishing braid and add a frill of lace for a plain garment.

For smarter ones use tucked and insertioned mull or set in fancy tops, the only disadvantage being that all unnecessary fulness is avoided and any edging is better to be only eased on.

For slight figures a straight strip of muslin embroidery, of any kind of fancy texture, may be cut to eight or twelve inches longer than the bust measure and the width from neck to waist as high as desired. A small curve is cut out for under the arm or not, according to the height of the neck edges. Two inches only of fulness are allowed across the back, and the remainder goes to the front. If made of a strip of muslin edging it is best to choose one that will permit a ribbon being run through the top edge, and this goes straight round the figure, under the armholes, shoulder straps of ribbon, with small bows on the top, being added.

If of material requiring a finish, beading or insertion edged with lace may be added. In that case a strip of the beading or insertion is joined to the neck edge, extending beyond each of the armhole corners, to its own width, where it is curved to form the shoulder straps, the corners being neatly mitred. Pieces are eased on to the armhole curve and neatly joined to the outstanding edges of the neck strip. Lace is added to both neck and armholes.

The front edges may be hemmed or made of insertion as preferred, and the waist is drawn up by a ribbon run through a beading.

Another pretty style for dressy wear is to join strips of ribbon and lace insertion alternately, so that the strips will run round the garment. This should be just to an easy bust measure, sloped out as required for under the armholes. A beading to carry a half-inch ribbon and edged with lace finishes the neck and forms the shoulder straps, while only frills of the same width lace are used for armholes and waist. The front edges are plaited up so as to draw the waist edge to fit the figure, and the lace frills meets that of the neck. This is exceedingly dainty and neat and makes a pretty present.

A variation of the foregoing is to make the strips go downward, and then plait the ribbon over the lace ones at the waist edge, which is finished with either a beading or a false hem. In this case the front edges are left full length, and may be finished in any way preferred, the prettiest being a continuation of the trimming of the neck.

For anyone desiring a warm waistcoat to wear under suit coats, and not wishing it to be bulky, an excellent plan is to cut the plain pattern with only shoulder seams as directed for a stay-cover.

Then purchase enough chamois leather to cover it. It is better to take the pattern to get just the right quantity, and it does not matter how it is joined, as it is merely sewn edge to edge, without any turnings, and with the edges to be sewn lying flat and just meeting.

Silk or farmer's satin is the best material to use, but henrietta or sateen may serve quite well. Purchase enough silk binding to go all around the edges, allowing for taking it up in the sewing in. Tack the material to the leather, then pin the shoulders in the material only and sew the leather as described. Bind the edges all around, work buttonholes down the right front edge to fasten to small flat, gilt or pearl buttons.

The Cooking Of Shad.

Shad, which appears as our most expensive fish bonne bouche in February and March, is infinitely cheaper and even better in May and early June.

If you would have a revelation on the gustatorial possibilities of the shad, make a pilgrimage to Catskill village in late May or early June; be down at the shore when the fishers come dragging in their seines at early dawn, filled with a tossing mass of silver beauties, buy one and have it dressed right then and there by one of the brouzed fishers whose fathers before them have impounded the herring, the shad and the sturgeon each in its season. Then fly with your prize, not forgetting the roe, up the banks to the farmhouse kitchen, where a bed of glowing coals waits your coming.

Now let deft hands lay your fish in a well-greased wire broiler and broil flesh side first until brown, then turn and broil the skin side until crisp, but not blackened. Peel off what skin comes easily, and return to the coals a few minutes longer. Then invert on a hot platter, cover with butter stirred to a cream, with fine minced parsley, salt, pepper and a wee bit of lemon juice. Serve to the accompaniment of hot baked potatoes, crisp radishes, strawberries, hot flaky rolls and a cup of genuine Mocha and Java, and you shall say "Eureka! I have found the ideal summer breakfast!"

If you had not been so hungry and could have waited a bit you might have had the roe for breakfast also, but it is just as well to put it away for luncheon or the next morning's breakfast. Before putting it in the ice-box, however, parboil in salted water to which a tablespoonful of vinegar or lemon juice has been added. This not only prevents its spoiling, but lessens its tendency to "pop" and splutter during the broiling process. When ready to cook brush over with melted butter or olive oil and broil; or split, dip in flour and fry in hot pork fat. Serve simply with lemon and cress, or with sauce tartare or mayonnaise.

For croquettes, after they have been boiled and allowed to get thoroughly cold, take off the skins and break the tiny eggs apart with a fork. Have ready a rich cream sauce made from two tablespoonfuls of butter, two of flour, two of milk and a half pint of cream. Season with salt, cayenne and a little lemon juice; add the prepared roes and let the whole mixture boil up for a moment. Stir in a beaten egg, remove at once from the fire and turn into a shallow dish to cool. When perfectly cool form into oval balls about the size of a large walnut, brush with egg, roll in bread crumbs and fry in smoking hot fat to a delicate brown. Drain on brown paper and serve with cucumber or tartare sauce. This quantity will be sufficient for a dozen people and makes a delicious fish course for luncheon or the midday breakfast.

BAKED SHAD.

When it is desired to stuff and bake a shad the familiar nonsense lines, "To a Baked Fish," might well be quoted.

"Preserve a respectable demeanor when you are brought into the room.
Don't stare at the guests while they're eating, no matter how much they consume."

In dressing the fish cut as small an opening as possible, wash thoroughly and fill with a dressing made in this wise:

Pour over one cupful dry bread crumbs cold water or milk to moisten. Add one tablespoonful of melted butter, a teaspoonful each of onion juice and kitchen bouquet, salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley. Mix thoroughly and fill the fish, sewing or skewering the opening together. Lay in the dripping pan four thin slices of salt pork and rest the fish upon them. Put two or three wafer thin slices of pork in the fish, previously sprinkling with salt and pepper. Set in the oven, pour two or three tablespoonfuls of boiling water into the pan to prevent scorching until the pork begins to try out and moisten the fish. Baste frequently and bake about three-quarters of an hour in a moderate oven. Serve with the fish a good brown sauce enriched by a small glass of Madeira.

GOD DIDN'T MIND HIM.

Henry, aged four, fat, dimpled and dictatorial, had for two years been an enthusiastic prayer and devout believer in the efficacy of prayer. It had been his conviction that all he needed to do was to demand of God whatever he wanted and waited.

Before going abroad Aunt Mary begged Henry to invoke protection for her from on high against turbulent waters and subsequent seasickness, and he prayed, night after night, that the Almighty would steady the vessel.

Henry was astonished, mortified and aggravated, a fortnight after his aunt's departure, to learn that as the result of unusual roughness of sea his mother's sister had been ill from Sandy Hook to Liverpool. He controlled his temper with portentous fortitude until bedtime, when, for his customary prayer, he substituted the following:

"God, why didn't you mind me! I told you not to let that boat rock, and I hear it rocked some!"

Beet Salad.

Arrange lettuce in dish and put beets cut into pieces about an inch in size in the center. Use mayonnaise or French dressing.

IN THE WHIRL OF SOCIETY

The weather, and in fact everything but society, are favorable for a delightful season of teas, parties and receptions, but the thing that seems to occupy the attention of those that do the entertaining, first, last and all the time, is a new place to live, or if not that, a clean place to live, for moving and housecleaning seem to be monopolizing attention.

Time is not dragging by any means for the school people, who have these last few weeks fairly crammed, aside from the cramming for the final exams, with the things that are so interesting to them—now. The girls have perhaps the biggest share of this fluttering excitement, for their gowns are the all-absorbing theme. It is always so, but this year that board of education has fairly made things buzz as far as discussions of gown go, for their decision on the matter just simply made about fifteen times more talk necessary. "And its talk, talk, talk." Whether her gown shall be pink or green or blue or any other color for class night is causing a deal of worry now, but on the momentous occasion she will feel the futility of it, for she realizes as well as the auditors, that crepe de chene or point de Paris and muslin of a cheap variety look the same the fifth row back. But all the wisdom of the board of education will not make the girl who is graduating believe that she wants the muslin in place of the crepe de chene. The junior-senior reception and the senior hop this year are to give place to affairs of which the prudes will all approve, the boys at one time and place and the girls all by their lonesomes at another. Awful! say the girls.

Clubs and Musical.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink comes to the Lyceum next Wednesday night in a song recital. She will be assisted by Miss Josephine Hartmann, who is the accompanist for the Grau Opera company at the Metropolitan in New York.

The importance of this event cannot be overestimated by music lovers at the head of the lakes. At no time has so truly popular and celebrated a singer been heard in Duluth. If the Lyceum is not entirely filled to welcome her, there will not be much inducement for the management to bring other good musical attractions here in the future. One of the leading New York papers says of this singer:

"Mme. Schumann-Heink is one of the foremost artists of the world. She is one of the very few singers before the public at the present who is able to interest all classes of music lovers. The public in general has little or no conception of what is implied in the intelligent interpretation of a great vocal work as to talent and study. Only those whose lives have been devoted to this art can fully appreciate its full meaning. What matter is it to the casual listener whether, through years of careful preparation, the artist is enabled to render the heavier classics, or whether a rollicking creation of a celerature style is given. They both please equally. Whatever Mme. Schumann-Heink renders it is in no sense mediocre, but is the work of an artist. There is no guess work in anything she does. It is true vocal art, and her singing is a veritable object lesson in the true act of song. The poise, the wonderful command and restraint, of magnificent tone volume, the tone-placing, and, in fact, all the perquisites of tone-producing that are marvelous to behold."

Following is the program for the recital:

Ballade—G minor ..... Chopin
Miss Josephine Hartmann.
a) Recitative and aria from "St. Paul" ..... Mendelssohn
b) "Wohin" ..... Schubert
c) "Die Allmacht" ..... Schubert

Next Friday afternoon the pupils of Ernest Lachmund will give a Beethoven recital in the Masonic Temple recital hall. The feature of the program will be a Beethoven song never before rendered in Duluth, and it is something of a curiosity from the fact that it was composed to be sung with violin and viola obligato. Miss Rena Smith will sing it, and the obligato will be played by Dexter Ostegren, violin, and E. Dorn, viola. Mrs. Tyler will be the accompanist.

The Lester Park Literary club will meet Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. R. O. Sweeny. The lesson for the day will be "The Awakening of a Nation," beginning at chapter five. The program will be conducted by Mrs. D. H. Williams.

THE SERVANT GIRL PROBLEM

Duluth Housewives More Troubled By It Than Ever—Are They Not Responsible Themselves For the Condition of Things?

The servant girl problem which has attracted the attention of the distracted housewives this spring, is just as aggressive as ever. One idea advanced is that the simple application of the golden rule by both employers and employed would help immensely. As everybody knows who has tried to get a girl, the demand, contrary to the employment bureaus, is much greater than the supply, and the reasons are patent. One bears a lot at this time and age of the specialist in a line of work and children are trained almost from the kindergarten up to believe that the one who specializes is the one who is going to do things. Then if the girls one wants to do general housework adopt the same plan, the blame must be laid to the present stage of civilization, for the dearth of girls is due, to a certain extent, to their desire to do simple dishwashing, waiting, or one other thing.

Mrs. Rorer and Miss Parloa to the contrary, housekeeping in an amazingly short space of time becomes nearly a bugbear to those who have all kinds of interest in the thing, and what must it be to the girl who cares not a bit whether the house is cleaned this spring or next, or whether the gas bill runs up to a perfectly terrible amount or not, or whether the linen is ruined in the wash or not, or whether Tommy falls down stairs and breaks his dear little neck or not, or whether the wedding china is broken or not—unless she has to pay for it—or whether the good man of the house loses his car or not, or whether the roast arrives in time or not, or whether the dessert is good or not, or whether the milkman comes at all—but hold on just a minute, the arrival of the milkman, the iceman and the deliverymen of all kinds is the one bit of interest in her day, and if he does not come at the usual time she's liable to be upstairs. The things that go to make up the life of the mistress are of no importance to the maid. The lack of interest on the part of the maid does not remain lack of interest, but becomes discontent, and she flies to other fields where the china is of a different pattern and makes a merrier cling as it falls, and the children are raised on the common-sense plan, that of heaps of dirt and plenty of bumps.

Given a maid with the condition of mind such as described, and a household nearly wrecked is the result. The scientists have decided that laziness is due to a microbe, but a far greater discovery and benefit to mankind, or rather womankind, would be that discontent is due to a microbe, and the remedy for it would exceed the advertised sales of patent medicine.

One really does not know who to be sorrier for, the mistress or the maid. The life of the first becomes almost intolerable from the strenuous effort to keep the maids; and the life of the second becomes unbearable from the lack of personal interest and the feeling of the aloofness of her serving life.

In Duluth the housekeepers, with the spring cleaning staring them in the face and the owner of the discontented face in the kitchen, a notice in itself of the desire to leave, have become positively panic-stricken, and the gradual rise in the wage of domestics is the result. Of course, once in a lifetime a treasunre is obtained, and the employer of that girl cannot understand the trouble that others have. But then the charm of manner, which is in reality thoughtfulness of others, prompted by a heart overflowing with kindness, which attracts and keeps friends of all classes, is the thing that will make contented a girl who does the kitchen work and will make her keep on wanting to do it. This spring the demand has frightened the women, and girls have been elated.

This congestion in the supply of housemaids has caused some of the women who are without them, however, to become panicky, as it were, and to offer all kinds of inducements to get girls or to keep them. There are many instances that can be heard of where the possibility of getting a maid has so excited the housewife that, without trying to find out what the applicant would expect in the way of compensation, has offered her anywhere from $3 up to $5 and $8 more than she could have had her for.

Another condition of which many women can be heard making complaints is the payment to employment offices of more than the customary fee to get girls, in order to obtain a preference. There are women who go to employment agents and, instead of paying the usual fee of $1, offer $5 for the supplying of a housemaid. There are those who spitefully say that this is the parvenu spirit, which some of the "get rich quick" still retain, which leads them to desire to flash their money, but among the greater class of the women the feeling that it is bringing on a demoralizing condition prevails.

The lengths to which some people will go to get maids is shown in the following ad which recently appeared in the want columns of a Duluth newspaper:

"Wanted—A cook; highest wages paid; no house cleaning. All privileges, escorts furnished; private bath."

SETTLEMENT IS IS SIGHT

Good Prospect That the Omaha Strike Will Soon End.

Omaha, Neb., May 9.—A plan for the settlement of the strike which now involves over 3000 teamsters, restaurant workers, freight package handlers and members of the building trades was reached late yesterday afternoon. In which Governor Mickey will be a prominent figure.

The plan for the proposed settlement was reached after the governor had held extended conferences with the leaders representing both sides of the controversy. It provides for the appointment of a committee of seven each to represent the Business Men's association and the labor unions, who will sit with Governor Mickey as chairman. The committee will meet at Omaha next Monday evening to try to reach a basis of settlement.

Meantime the labor leaders have given their pledge to do everything in their power to preserve peace and prevent violence. The situation here will remain in charge of the chief of police and the sheriff. The governor dictated a statement for the press and to the public, which is as follows:

"Having been invited by the mayor of your city and the sheriff of your county to come to Omaha for the purpose of conferring with them and others to aid in arriving at an amicable settlement of the labor troubles in which your city is now involved, I met with the Business Men's association last night and heard their discussion relating to the matter and was enabled to get some information as to their attitude and complaint, and this afternoon I met a delegation, representing the labor unions and discussed with them their complaint and attitude in relation to the situation.

"After brief and fair consideration on my part with both sides, I asked that the labor unions appoint a committee of seven and that the Business Men's association name a like number to see me Monday evening, May 11, for the purpose of mutually considering the matters in controversy and arriving at an amicable settlement to all interested."

The saloons were permitted to reopen at 6 o'clock last evening, the mayor expressing the opinion that no trouble could arise from such action.

Neither side to the controversy is willing to state on what grounds they will meet, but the opinion is generally expressed that the end of the strike is in sight.

Yesterday afternoon there was a large number of teams in the jobbing district and wagons were driven without molestation.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Menominee Police Looking For Dickman, An Alleged Kidnaper.

Menominee—The police are looking for August Dickman, of this city, and his 4 months-old child, which it is thought he kidnaped from the arms of its mother. The warrant was sworn out by Mrs. Dickman, who is almost distracted with grief. She fears that some harm has come to the child. She says that last night her husband went to a store for some kerosene. He did not return and she and the child went to bed. She slept soundly and this morning upon awakening was startled to find that her child and husband were gone. So far the police have been unable to locate either the man or the child. Dickman has relatives living near Birch creek and it is thought he may have gone there.

Wallace Schut, who was taken to the Menominee county jail Monday, suffering from an attack of delirium tremens, died in his padded cell. The attendants thought he had merely gone to sleep, and it was not known that he was dead until an examination was made by a physician.

Sault Ste. Marie—The village of Detour is dry. This is a strange condition, inasmuch as there are several "thirst parlors" and the people did not legislate them out of business. More than that the liquid dispensers have purchased their red cards from the county treasurer. The drought is the result of a contest over the office of president, the election board having declared one man elected and the next day the canvassing board composed of the same officers giving the place to his opponent. The outcome was that since the Detour board of trustees has no presiding officer recognized by the entire board for the purpose of transacting business two meetings were called, and at neither of them the board had a quorum. The trustees called a meeting on May 4th for the approval of liquor bonds, but there was still no quorum. The deputy sheriff ordered the saloons closed and hence the dryness, which nobody can tell how long will be continued. There are six trustees evenly divided. It is said members of the board of canvassers will be arrested as the result of the presidential contest.

Some time ago Alexander Boucher was given notice to vacate the island on which he lives, near the fish hatchery at the Soo, left to him by Old John Boucher, the Honest Indian. Alexander flatly refused to leave. Frank Boucher, the deputy sheriff of Sugar Island, now states that he has in his possession the deed that gives John Boucher the right to "hold the Island as long as he lives, and his oldest son thereafter."

Iron Mountain—The Hamilton shaft of the Chapin mine at Iron Mountain has been closed down owing to the fact that several new pockets are being put in on the twelfth level and new machinery is beinb installed. No work in mining will be done in the shaft for ten days or two weeks. This, it is said, throws 200 men out of work for that length of time.

Pittsburg, May 9.—George Walls, son of Martin Walls, of East Pittsburg, who has been missing for more than a year, is alleged to have been kidnaped. The Giant's Pillow.

BY EVERETT McNEIL.

PART I.

How Prince Noble Undertook the Quest of the Giant's Pillow.

The Giant's Pillow lay in the midst of the great woods that clothed the foot of the Black Mountain; and was a huge white rock, longer than it was wide, with sides swelling out like the sides of a great pillow. At one end of this rock grew a mighty tree with black leaves, and whenever a black leaf fell and touched the white rock it instantly became white. At the other end of the rock and six steps of a tall man from it stood a shaft of polished black marble, and on top of the tapering point of the marble shaft was carven a great stone eye, and underneath the stone eye hung a small bronze key, and beneath the eye and the key was a bronze tablet inserted in the marble of the shaft and marked with these words:

"Sir Knights and Brave Men All—If thou would'st behold her whose weakness and distress craves succor of thy strength and courage, take thou a white leaf from off the white stone and look at it through the great eye; but attempt not to venture unless thy heart be pure and thy courage great, for woe sits waiting the craven hearted."

Long the Giant's Pillow had stood in the great woods at the foot of the Black Mountain, and many famous knights rode gallantly up and read the inscription cut in the bronze tablet; but when they saw the white leaf through the stone eye some laughed and rode carelessly on, others dug their spurs angrily into their horses' flanks and dashed laughfully away, as though the venture were unworthy the dignity of their manhood, and yet others, but these were few, grew sad and rode pensively adown the road whence they came. And not one, prince or knight or peasant, of all who looked through the stone eye cared to undertake the venture.

Now, within the kingdom wherein was the Black Mountain lived a powerful prince in a great castle surrounded by seven high walls. The great castle and the seven high walls were built of black marble, and because of this the prince was called the Black Prince. Once each month the Black Prince rode out through the seven great gates at the head of his gallant knights, and when he returned many a brave knight came not back and others could scarcely sit on their horses' backs, so grievous were their wounds, and the armor was all hacked and soiled; but the booty was always great, and the long hall of the castle rang with laughter and shouts for days after each fray.

One morning the Black Prince arose early, and when he stood up there was peace on his face.

"I am ready," he said, and again he looked through the stone eye, and once again the marvellous vision of the leaf appeared, and he saw in the corner of a dark and noisome dungeon an old white-haired woman lying on a bed of straw, and the face of the woman was wrinkled and haggard with age and pain. Even as he looked the woman sat up and fixed her eyes imploringly on his face, and he saw that great chains bound her to the floor of the dungeon. Then a great whirling black smoke rolled before his eyes, and on the black smoke, in letters of fire, shone these words:

"Pluck a black leaf off the great tree, and when the moonlight falls on top of the marble shaft look at the black leaf through the stone eye, but know that he who plucketh a black leaf must follow the venture to the end or die. Beware!

"These are the words of the White King."

Then the vision vanished from the leaf.

Again He Looked Through the Stone Eye.

Now, within the kingdom wherein was the Black Mountain lived a powerful prince in a great castle surrounded by seven high walls. The great castle and the seven high walls were built of black marble, and because of this the prince was called the Black Prince. Once each month the Black Prince rode out through the seven great gates at the head of his gallant knights, and when he returned many a brave knight came not back and others could scarcely sit on their horses' backs, so grievous were their wounds, and the armor was all hacked and soiled; but the booty was always great, and the long hall of the castle rang with laughter and shouts for days after each fray.

One morning the Black Prince arose early, and rode carelessly on, others dug their spurs angrily into their horses' flanks and dashed laughfully away, as though the venture were unworthy the dignity of their manhood, and yet others, but these were few, grew sad and rode pensively adown the road whence they came. And not one, prince or knight or peasant, of all who looked through the stone eye cared to undertake the venture.

Now, within the kingdom wherein was the Black Mountain lived a powerful prince in a great castle surrounded by seven high walls. The great castle and the seven high walls were built of black marble, and because of this the prince was called the Black Prince. Once each month the Black Prince rode out through the seven great gates at the head of his gallant knights, and when he returned many a brave knight came not back and others could scarcely sit on their horses' backs, so grievous were their wounds, and the armor was all hacked and soiled; but the booty was always great, and the long hall of the castle rang with laughter and shouts for days after each fray.

One morning the Black Prince arose early. "This day shall it be seen whether thy father's blood flows in thy veins, or whether thou art craven to the core. Thou rideth to the fight at my right hand, and if thou falterest when the shock of battle comes, then with my own hand will I strike thee dead, for better a dead son than a live coward to call me father. Keep thy tongue still and put thy armor on quickly," and the stern father stood silent until the son had girded on his heavy armor. Then the seven gates of the seven high walls swung open, and with nodding plumes and glittering armor the long array of knights wound down the rocky road leading from the castle.

When the cavalcade came to the foot of the Black Mountain, where was the great tree and the Giant's Pillow with the shaft of black marble topped by the stone eye, the Black Prince halted, and, turning to his son, said, scornfully: "Here be a venture fitted to the gallantry of thy woman's heart. Thou hast ever prated of mercy to the poor, the old and the afflicted. Here be a test of all thy fine words. If thou wilt thou canst ride to the sneer of the forlorn damsel of the stone eye. I and all my knights yield this venture to thee."

"When the old and the weak call for succor it is the duty of the young and the strong to hearken," answered Prince Noble.

Then, dismounting, he took a white leaf off the white stone, and, regardless of the jeers and laughter of the Black Prince and his knights, went to the stone eye and looked at the leaf through it. As he looked his face grew sad and a great pity shone in his eyes, but when he turned from looking his face and eyes were ablaze with indignation.

"Father, right gladly I undertake this venture," he cried. "And shame on thee and all thy knights who have suffered the old and feeble to call vainly for succor. Father, I have thy permission; this venture is mine. Ride on; I remain."

The face of the Black Prince flushed with anger; but, controlling himself, he bowed his plumed head mockingly. "Homage, men: give homage," he called, "to this brave knight, who rusheth gallantly to the succor of old white-haired women, but trembleth at the sight of the drawn sword or the point of the crouched lance. Aye, he is a son for a warrior to be proud of!" and with a bitter laugh, and thus scorning his son, the stern father bowed low a second time and rode on. And each knight rode up and bowed low to Prince Noble and said "Homage to the brave knight," and, thus having mocked him, rode after the Black Prince.

Prince Noble stood silent and resolute, answering not a word to all the taunts, but when the last knight had gone he said sadly, "These be brave men, but cruel and without tenderness. God grant that kindliness may yet grow in their hearts. Alas, my father! I may never see thee more!" Then he knelt

Again He Looked Through the Stone Eye.

Tricks With Matches And Toothpicks.

Many little parlor tricks may be performed with nothing more than a few matches, and, as tricks which require the most accessible material are generally the most popular, these little things are worth knowing.

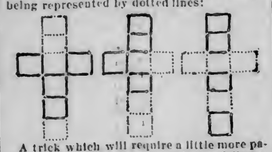
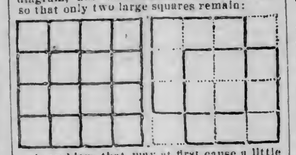
How can you take away ten matches from twenty-five, arranged as follows, and leave but four squares?

There are several different solutions to this trick, and all of them are very simple. Of course, only four squares must remain; that is to say, it will not do to have four squares and a part of a square left. Some of the solutions are as follows, the matches taken away being represented by dotted lines:



A trick which will require a little more patience than the above one is as follows: Arrange forty matches as in the following diagram, and take sixteen of them away so that only two large squares remain:



A problem that may at first cause a little difficulty is as follows: How can you place three-fourths of a dozen matches on the table so as to make three and a half dozen matches? The answer is simple. Three-fourths of a dozen matches is, of course, nine matches, and by placing three matches together in one pile and six matches in another pile you have, very obviously, three and a half dozen matches.

Another little pastime—for it can hardly be called a trick—may be performed with five wooden toothpicks, and will afford plenty of amusement to the little folks, and, perhaps, not least so because the element of fire is involved in its performance. Fasten five toothpicks together as in the accompanying diagram. It will be found that they will then form a framework which may be handled without its falling apart. Care should be taken in making this framework not to break the toothpicks, for the success of the thing depends upon its elasticity.

Then make the figure of a little man out of cork or any other light material, and place him on one of the corners of the framework, as, for instance, about where the letter B is shown on the accompanying diagram. Place the framework, with the little man in his proper place, on the rim of an ordinary tumbler, and then set fire to the toothpick ends C and D. When the fire has burnt the toothpicks at their point of intersection there will, of course, be nothing to counteract the force exerted by the rest of the framework and the whole affair will shoot up into the air, the little gentleman being thrown several feet as a result of the terrible catastrophe.

The man in the moon is so lonesome that he Feels like a pollywog up in a tree!
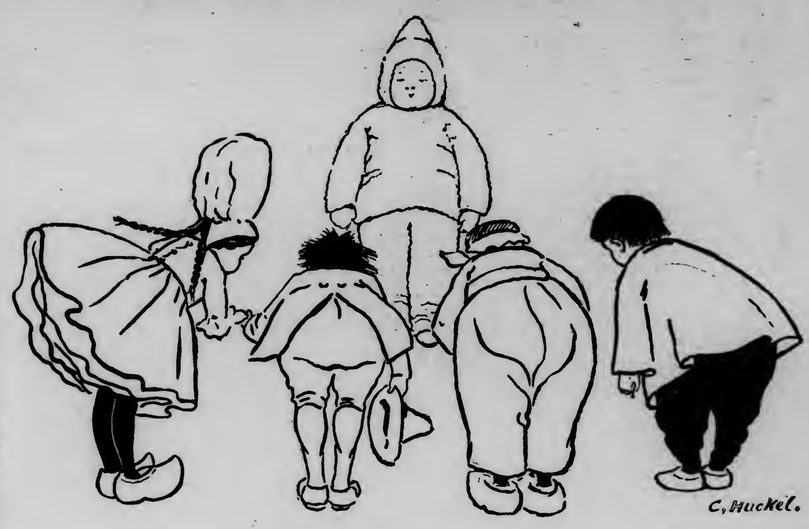
He has plenty of room and oceans of air—
But, ah! his dear little boy isn't there.

BOYS AND GIRLS FROM ABROAD---IV.



With Chinee taken gayly in tow,
Our friends met a fat Eskimo.
"Hi-gi-Chimo!" he cried,
And they all four replied
With a bow that was graceful and low.

A Cork And A Bottle.

Get an empty wine bottle and a cork that is, say, two sizes too small for it, so that if put in in the ordinary way it will fall clear down into the bottle.

Lay the bottle on its side and put the cork just within its mouth. Now ask the spectators, one at a time, to try to force the cork into the bottle by blowing on it.

It will amuse you to see the confidence with which the first person sets about the little task. He will step up with an air that says, "Why don't you ask me something hard?" Then he will stoop and blow his breath on the cork in a sharp spurt, expecting, of course, to make it disappear immediately.

But the obstinate cork, as if reversing the regular order of things, will come flying out of the bottle instead of disappearing in it.

The second person will approach the task with confidence, too, thinking that the first didn't go about it in the right way exactly—that he blew either too hard or too soft. But the cork is still obstinate, and out it comes again instead of going in.

So it will be with them all, unless someone in the company knows the secret, and when you take a little quill or tube out of your pocket and blow through it right against the center of the cork, thereby driving it in at once, there will be a good laugh.

But still they will not understand, perhaps, why their blowing on it did not drive it in. The reason is that some of the air goes around the cork into the bottle, which has the effect of compressing the air already there, and the cork goes a little way in; but the compression ceases almost instantly, and is followed by an expansion, which forces the cork out.

The Man in the Moon was heard to say—
"I'm tired of shining, and having no play—
I'll get me a spoon,
And turn out of the moon
To skim up the cream in the Milky Way."

THE WILD ANIMAL PUZZLE.

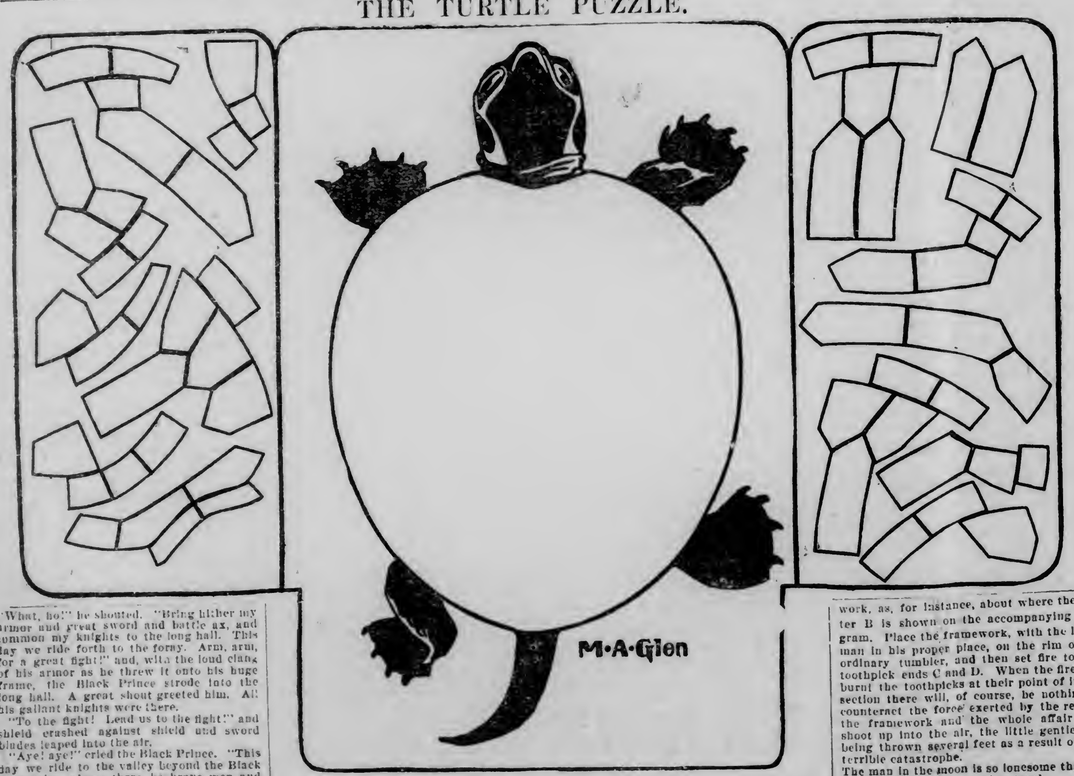
Cut out the parts and paste them together to form a wild animal.

The Sportive Pig.

All boys know that a dog is a great aid to the sportsman, but not many of them would think that a pig could be of much use in hunting. Yet in France pigs are used in hunting truffles, a delicacy for the table which is found at the roots of oak trees.

When a farmer decides to go hunting for truffles he takes his pig, and piggie goes snuffling about with his nose to the ground just as a dog when he follows the scent. When he finds a truffle he begins to burrow in the loose soil with his snout. Before he can take the truffle, however, the farmer pulls him away, but gives him a few acorns by way of compensation. As soon as he has eaten the acorns, Mr. Pig goes to work hunting more truffles. Sometimes he will find several pounds of them beneath a tree.

THE TURTLE PUZZLE.



Cut out the section containing the turtle, paste it on a stiff back, and use it as a puzzle board. Cut out the small pieces and put them together on the turtle's back in such a way as to make a perfect fitting shell. Then paste the shell fast.

A RETROSPECT

She's just the same old dolly!
I've had her years and years!
She's been my greatest comfort,
And cost me lots of tears!

She's just the same old dolly,
And yet—the fact is such—
Sometimes I hardly know her,
She's changed so very much!

Her hair, at first, was golden,
Her eyes a darling blue.
How well we loved each other
When she was "Annie Lou!"

We couldn't be persuaded
To stay apart at all,
Till, one day, on the sidewalk
We slipped and had a fall.

She went that very morning,
With mother dear, to town,
And came back with more color
And hair and eyes of brown.

I couldn't say the old name!
'Twas she, of course, and yet—
I made my feelings over
And she became "Annette."

And since then she's been "Bessie"
And "Margaret" and "Bell,"
And "Josephine" and "Olive"
And "Edith" and "Estelle."

Last summer she was "Sophie,"
And so far this is "Sue."
Each time her head is broken,
Although my heart breaks, too.

It mends again—where dollies
And hearts do, at the store—
And manages to love her
And take her in once more.

But, O, it isn't somehow,
Like when we both were new!
When I was first a mother,
And she was "Annie Lou!"

DULUTH'S TEAM WILL BE A GOOD ONE

Preliminary Practice Gives Promise Of a Fast Team—Still Looking For Good Men—Glove Fight at Superior.

Preliminary practice of the local Northern league team candidates indicates that Duluth will be among those present when the pennant honors are distributed next September.

The men have been developing fairly fast team work and the management is making the most strenuous efforts to land a few fast new men that have been strongly recommended by Managers Kelley of St. Paul and Gears of Kansas City.

The St. Paul fans are becoming more reconciled to the idea of having Volz farmed out to Duluth, and it is announced on the best authority that both he and Marcum will play here, though there is some question as to securing Martin, the Kansas City pitcher, owing to a claim put on him by Crookston.

Much local interest centers in the meeting tomorrow between the Superior league team and the Universal Millers of this city.

Wilson, the colored pitcher who was barred from a season with Duluth, owing to objections on the part of other Northern teams, has signed with St. Cloud, and, strange as it may seem, the clubs that made the greatest protest against his pitching for Duluth are trying to arrange practice games with St. Cloud. How's that for consistency?

McCoy, who has been playing second for Duluth during the practice work, may also come in handy as a utility pitcher. He pitched for Cavalier and Grand Forks last season.

Hughy McMahon, of Chicago, and Jack McDonough, of St. Paul, have again been matched to fight at West Superior on May 18.

The managers of the fighters have signed articles, and only the interference of the authorities can prevent the mail from taking place.

This will settle the dispute which resulted from the recent fight at Hibbing, when McMahon was given the decision over the St. Paul boy.

Both men started active training a couple of days ago, and nothing will be overlooked in preparing for the battle. McDonough will have the services of his brother and a couple of Duluth fighters, and Hughy McMahon will again train at one of the lakes within a short distance of St. Paul. Kelley, of Chicago, will be his training partner.

In addition to the fight between McMahon and McDonough, there will be a couple of attractive preliminaries between two St. Paul pugs and two second-raters from Chicago.

Tom Sharkey beat Duncan McMillan in a wrestling match, catch-as-catch-can, at the New London, Conn., opera house last night. McMillan won the first fall in 28 min. 14 sec. Sharkey won the second in 13 min. 24 sec. and the third in 21 min. 28 sec.

"Kid" Fredericks, of Buffalo, lasted barely three rounds in a 20-round contest with Aurelio Herrera, the Mexican, at Butte last night. Three thousand people saw the contest.

Stuyvesant Fish worked two years to get on the Yale 'varsity eight and was fired in two weeks. He is the great-grandson of John Jacob Astor, but the captain wanted something besides ancestry.

College football bids fair to be revolutionized next fall if the intercollegiate football rules committee carries into effect a regulation which is now under consideration.

This rule, which it is extremely likely will be adopted, provides that the ball has to pass through the hands of only two men before being regarded as "in play." At present it is necessary for it to go through the hands of three men.

The proposed change signifies that the whole game as now played may be materially altered.

Such cases as those of Billy Keeler and Patsy Donovan and the big salaries they will draw, not to mention several other outfielders, call attention to a rather anomalous condition existing in professional baseball. That condition is: Outfielders of the class of Keeler, Donovan, Stahl, Fultz and Kelley are so scarce that they command salaries as large, if not larger, than obtain among the crack pitchers, and therefore strictly first-class outfielders, which includes ability to bat and run bases as well as field, are harder to find than first-class pitchers. This condition exists now, and to a more or less extent always has existed. It is accounted for, in a measure, by the fact that every team carries at least four pitchers, while there are only three men playing the outfield; yet a club considers itself fortunate to have three pitchers. The pitcher is the central figure of ball games. He is the most conspicuous figure in the strife, is considered the most important, and around him the conflict revolves. So it would seem that with all a pitcher has to do and the importance of his work, he would be a scarcer article than the outfielder, but such is not the case.

A well-known player observed the other day that first-class outfielders are hard to find, while the woods are full of good pitchers; and he wondered why more young players do not go in for playing the outfielder instead of so many of them aspiring to be pitchers. It seems to be the prevalent desire of recruits to the national game to be pitchers. In the box they are in the foreground of the picture, while the outfielder is less in public evidence. Yet the Keelers, Welches, Forgartys and McAleers have made names that will live as long in baseball history as the Radbournes, Chesebroes, Rusies and Nicholses. He is a great pitcher, indeed, that any manager would not swap for an outfielder of the worth of Keeler; yet for one recruit who sets out to follow in the footprints of Keeler there are half a dozen who seek to become Cy Youngs.

Compare the lists of outfielders and pitchers for twenty years back and many more can be found who were or are first class in the latter position than in the former. The lists are pretty comprehensive, though there may be a few omissions. They show that where the game has brought out sixty-five first-class twirlers, it has brought out only forty-two first-class outfielders. A few outfielders could be added, but the ones mentioned are mostly those who were first class not only because they could cover ground and catch flies with certainty, but because they could bat well, run the bases and throw and handle ground hits. It should be said of the pitchers, however, that with the growth of the batting habit in late years they are improving in fielding and their responsibility as fielders is increasing. The value of the outfielder is shown by the fact that not a few of them have been graduated from the pitcher's box. Mike Tiernan was one of these, likewise Seymour, Burkett, John Ward, Keller and O'Neill. Had these men continued to pitch, the chances are that their baseball careers would have been much shorter than they were. Still, in length of service, the pitcher serves his club well and compares favorably with the outfielder, as witness Nichols, Young, Galvin, Griffith and numerous others. But obviously had they pitched every day they would not have lasted so long.

CATARRH CURED BY DRY AIR

Hyomei Medicates the Air You Breathe, Kills the Germs and Cures the Disease.

Hyomei cures catarrh thoroughly and permanently, because it reaches the smallest air cells in the head, throat and lungs, kills the germs causing the disease, destroys the cause, and makes permanent cures which can be effected in no other way. Breathe it for a few minutes four times a day and benefit will be seen at once. Continue this treatment for a few weeks and Hyomei will have cured you.

The Hyomei in the inhaler furnished with the outfit dries and sterilizes the air you breathe. It is a local and direct treatment for eradicating all catarrh germs in the mucous membrane and tissues and in this way cures catarrh in any part of the system. Used in connection with Hyomei Balm it has been successful in curing the worst and most deep-seated cases of catarrhal deafness.

A. W. Clark, of Everett, Mass., writes: "I have spent a fortune on different treatments for catarrh and could not hear across the table. After using Hyomei and Hyomei Balm for eight days, I can hear as well as ever."

Stronger than any claims that can be made in an advertisement, is the fact that S. F. Boyce will give his personal guarantee with every Hyomei outfit he sells to refund the money if the purchaser can say that Hyomei has not given satisfaction.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

High Grade Ore at the Deepest Workings.

Colorado Springs, May 9.—When the United States geological survey of the Cripple Creek district was made in 1894, the deepest shaft in the district did not exceed 350 feet. That the report of the survey did not attempt to cover a greater depth, an idea gained prevalence in some quarters that the values would be found only in the surface workings. This feeling has been wholly controverted by the large shipments of high grade ore which are now being made from the deepest workings. On the War Eagle, Hull City Placer, Bluebird, Stratton's Independence and other properties, shafts have reached a depth of 1200 feet and more. The greatest depth so far reached is about 1500 feet. From its 1350-foot level, the Bluebird mine is shipping ore, a good part of which runs $300 to the ton. The limit to which the ore extends is well known, but the fact remains that at the greatest depth attained, the values remain continuous, with nothing to indicate any change of character. The rumors which have been in circulation for some time in regard to the discovery of further large ore bodies in the Stratton's Independence, might seem to be confirmed by a number of very costly improvements which the management has authorized. A big pump has been installed at the 1400-foot level and a 65,000-pound boiler is now on the way from the East.

Five Cripple Creek companies during the month of April distributed in dividends $214,339. The total for the first four months of the year now reaches $661,225.69. The dividends paid in April were as follows: Portland, $90,000; Vindicator $55,000; Mary McKinney, $30,000; Strong, $25,0000; Acacia, $14,339. The ore output for the district during April was 51,506 tons of an average of $25 per ton, or a gross value of $1,702,650.

The total production from the Vindicator last month was 1500 tons of an average value of $35. The mine is in excellent shape and has enough ore blocked out to keep up this rate of production for years to come.

AND NOW THE DAY OF THE ANGLER

Sport With the Rod Again Is In Season —Novelties to Tempt Fishermen At Sporting Goods Stores.

The fishing season has opened. Rods have been taken from their cases, jointed and tested to "see if the frost is out of them." Old fishing boxes have been unlocked and last year's tackle examined with disapproving eye. It is strange, but the outfit which was all right in October and has not been used since is no good in May.

The man wonders as he surveys flies, spoons, bare hooks and snells how he could ever have caught anything with them. He gets out his scales and ties one end of a silk line to them, runs it out for 150 feet and tests whether it will stand a strain of ten pounds.

If it breaks he buys a new line or two; if it does not he says that it is rotten somewhere and not to be trusted—and he buys a new line or two. Possibly he has only three reels and is afraid of them, but considerations of economy come to him, and he forbears to purchase another, saying that he will make them do somehow through the season.

Instead he buys a new rod, which he really does need, since there is something the matter with each of the four which he put away with considerable pride last fall. He will get back to the old ones, the true and tried friends of rapid and lake, before July, but just now he does need a new one all over.

The man in the sporting goods store stands beside his counter and smiles a greasy smile, for he hears the tread of his victim afar off and knows what is coming. He has all of the standard things which have been proved worthy in strenuous times past; he also has a lot of new things which must be tried, hooks that are snecked at such an angle and hooks that are not snecked; gut snells of new hues, designed to blend perfectly with all sorts of waters; artificial lures which look like nightmares, but are warranted to charm bass from the bottoms of pools that run down almost to Tartarus; lines of new colors and new weavings, declared to be better than anything in silk yet dreamed of by man; all sorts of devices for hooking fish, retrieving fish, killing fish and scaling and cleaning fish.

How is a man to go into the woods along trout streams or river, wherein the black bass flashes his meteor way above the pebbles, without a sample of each and every one of these seductive articles? The question of flies alone will keep him busy for two weeks, for while he knows and loves the Jack Scott and the Dusty Miller and the Brown Moth and the Brown Hackle and the Black Doctor, the flymakers have been trying flies all winter while he slept or went to the theater and the man in the sporting goods shop flashes them before his dazzled vision.

Some years ago a chap who had filled himself with cold boiled lobster and hot Welsh rabbit went to bed and had a bad dream. When he got up in the morning he tied a fly called the Parmachenee Belle. It is red and blue and yellow and does not look like any bug that soars or floats, but sometimes takes both trout and bass.

The Parmachenee Belle is a mild fly compared with some of the glorious creations of this spring. Nothing is worth mention unless it contains red, green, blue, yellow, brown, black, white, orange, pink and gray.

Many of them have these hues with several variations. They are to be used, of course, on very dark days, and they are bright enough to be of service at night.

So the man who has taken out his rod and looked over his tackle box in a dissatisfied way is, so to speak, up against it, or rather he is up against the sporting goods dealer. Two weeks hence his pocketbook will look as if an elephant had stepped on it, but he will be in the woods, under the fresh green of the branches, whipping the laughing water and he will be happy. What is the bank account of the sporting goods man to him?

Fishermen will find this season, as in past seasons, that many silk lines, Nos. 5 and 6, which cost from $1 to $2.50, rot at the end of a week of service, become untrustworthy and part just when the trout or bass of the day is near to the landing net. There is no accident of angling more exasperating, and the man who sold the line comes in for objurgation both picturesque and profound.

Any quality of silk repeatedly wetted will decay. There is always a loose weave in a line somewhere, and there the water enters most readily, dries out slowly and causes rot most surely.

Lines well cared for, however, will last reasonably well. Three of them ought to carry an angler through the season, but they will do this only if they are of good quality when first reeled and are properly treated.

There is but one thing to do with a wet silk line, and that is to dry it as soon as possible. It should not be permitted to remain wrapped on the reel for a moment after the return to camp or hotel.

It should be stretched upon wooden prongs, or tree limbs, not less than thirty feet apart, so stretched that the air can get to every part of it, and it should not be reeled in until it is as dry as a bone. It should not be left out all night for the dew to dampen, and it should never be stretched upon nails driven into posts or trees, as the rust of the iron will eat into the silk more rapidly than the water. When reeled in it should be reeled evenly and tightly, and then be put away in a dry box or elsewhere, so that damp cannot strike it until it is used again.

Fresh water does comparatively little injury to the silk if it is dried out at the end of the day. A good line so treated will stand for a month of angling, though it be soaked for hours every day. Some will last even longer.

Much depends upon the man who uses it. Some men are naturally hard upon lines, though they exercise every care; they are hard upon lines just as they are hard upon clothing or shoes.

All dealers carry a silk line which has been oiled at the factory. It is called a waterproof line, and it is waterproof for a little while. As soon as there is wear of its surface, however, the water enters and rot begins, since this line is much harder to dry once it is wet than the line of plain, undefended silk.

It is a hard casting line, running out stiffly, coming in stiffly, and it is severe upon the thumbs. This is true also of the many kinds of hard-wound lines, which are supposed to be wound over a solid core. They last well, but they do not run out well, and they take the skin from the right thumb in a little while.

Probably the best device for the protection of a line of plain silk belongs by patent royal to an old angler of the West who has used it for years. He has always in his tackle box a bit of flannel rag, saturated with reel oil.

When his line has been dried and he starts to reel it in, he holds this rag between the thumb and first two fingers of his left hand. The line thus passes through the rag as it goes upon the spindle, and every inch of it is greased.

The rag is not so full of oil that the liquid can be squeezed from it. It is just thoroughly greased. Particles of the oil go all through the silk, and the line when used next day will stay dry for a long time.

It does not get stiff and hard, and casts as well as when it came from the shop. It does not wear and frazzle against the guide rings. The water is unable to soak it as quickly and thoroughly as if it were not oiled. It will last much longer.

Indeed, the old angler says that he can take any silk line of any quality and make it last twice as long by his greasy rag treatment. He has one line which he has used hard for four seasons. It has been shortened some fifty feet by repeated snippings, but what is left of it is still good, and its breaking strain is above fifteen pounds.

Almost every angler has an oily rag in his box for wiping his reel, and if he tries it on his line he will find that he will get more satisfaction out of fishing and will not have to do so much buying.

"There is a variety of trout in Whitney creek, a tributary of Kern river, in Kansas, the like of which I do not believe exists in any other water," said a New York man who has fished in Whitney creek. "That trout has an abode of its own in the upper waters of the stream, and it is never invaded by any of the other varieties of trout which swarm in the waters below, simply because the abode of that particular trout can't be reached by them.

"The reason for this is that about six miles from the head of the creek there is a perpendicular waterfall 150 feet high. The rock down which the water tumbles is solid and smooth on its face from base to summit. There are no protruding ledges or hollows at short intervals on the rock by means of which the trout from below, leap by leap, from ledge to ledge and hollow to hollow, can scale this watery precipice, as trout do in the case of thousands of high waterfalls elsewhere; and no trout or salmon that ever climbed from mouth to head of the steepest mountain streams can go up this sheer fall of 150 feet.

"Consequently the trout above that fall have never been disturbed by interlopers of a different variety, and they live by themselves in the pure, cold water, the most splendid family of all fresh water fish.

"These trout are literally bespangled with burnished gold and dashed with spots of the brightest crimson. The first time I ever saw one of them I really believed it had been artificially ornamented with flakes of goldleaf, and that its red spots had been heightened in color by the brush.

"But this is their natural appearance, and when they are taken from the water and the sunlight strikes them they glitter as if clad in brilliant armor. They are well named the golden trout.

"Their habits are the same as those of the brook trout of the East, and they are as game fighters at the end of a line. As to their flesh, it is not as delicate as the brook trout's. It is the beauty of these rare Whitney creek trout alone that places them at the head of the great piscatorial family noted for its beauty."

NO MONEY FOR CRUM

Law Which Prevents His Being Paid Until Confirmed.

Washington, May 9.—An account of Dr. W. H. Crum's fees and expenses for the month of April as collector of the port of Charleston, S. C., was received yesterday at the treasury department. It aggregated only $56.89 and was included in the regular account of the Charleston office. Collector Crum has been informed by the department that his personal fees and expenses cannot be paid at this time, the law saying:

"No money shall be paid from the treasury, as salary, to any person appointed during the recess of the senate, to fill a vacancy in any existing office, if the vacancy existed while the senate was in session and is by law required to be filled by and with the advice and consent of the senate, until such appointment has been confirmed by the senate."

Treasury officials hold that under this statute Dr. Crum can receive no money from the government as collector of fees or expenses until his appointment shall have been confirmed by the senate. No fixed salary is provided for the collector of the port of Charleston, who receives his compensation in the form of fees and expenses.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

James McMullen and John Rogulski, inmates of the Marathon county poor house in Wisconsin, became engaged in a quarrel and McMullen, being called a liar, whipped out a knife and stabbed Rogulski. The knife entered his stomach, allowing the intestines to protrude and causing his death. McMullen, who is 85 years old, will be held for murder. His victim was 38 and a cripple.

A distinct earthquake shock was felt in the Grand Valley, Col., between 12:30 and 1:30 o'clock Friday morning. The stock lasted several seconds and seemed to travel from the northwest to the east and southeast. This is the first seismic disturbance on the western slope in many years.

THE WEAK SPOT

The back is the weak spot. The many aches and pains of the back are the early symptoms of kidney ills.

Backache comes in many forms—quick twinges, sharp shooting pains, slow, exhaustive aches.

Plasters and liniments may relieve the "bad back" for a time, but if you would rid yourself of backache trouble, you must reach the cause—the kidneys. Keep the kidneys working properly, keep them in a healthy condition and the back will be free from aches.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

cure all kidney ills, from common backache to dangerous diabetes. Cure urinary disorders, retention of the urine, excessive urinary discharges and every complaint of the bladder. Doan's Kidney Pills are endorsed by people you know. Here is proof—

DULUTH PROOF:

Mr. A. Ebmer, of 331 Fifth street east, says: "A heavy, dull, persistent aching pain through my loins was most distressing for I could not rest well and no position seemed comfortable. I tried a great many different times to get relief, but no medicine I could find gave me any material benefit. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and used it. I obtained relief right away, and since then I have never had them fail to relieve me promptly whenever I had a slight recurrence, say from catching cold or straining myself."

OFFERINGS AT THE DULUTH THEATERS

"Michael Strogoff" and "His Society Wife" At the Metropolitan—Rose Coghlan and "The Fatal Wedding" at the Lyceum.

The offerings of the Ferris comedians at the Metropolitan for the coming week are the great Russian drama, "Michael Strogoff," beginning Monday evening for three nights and Wednesday matinee; and the beautiful American society comedy drama, "His Society Wife," which play commences Thursday evening for three nights and Saturday matinee.

"Michael Strogoff" is one of those thrilling dramas which carry the audience with absorbed interest until the fall of the curtain. It is interspersed with the comedy of the two war correspondents, the American and the English, each striving to get ahead of the other and always ready to lend a hand at the right moment.

The scenic effects of this play are of the finest. The production has been brought complete direct from Dick Ferris' Lyceum theater stock company at Minneapolis, where it met with such great success only a few weeks ago. The noteworthy scenes are the palace of the czar, the post station on the Russian border, the telegraph office of the Russian army at the front and the great battle scene at Irkutz; the escape down the river, and the court of the great Emir of the Tartars; and the last act showing the palace of the grand duke at Irkutz. The play has been well cast and is an exceedingly large one, requiring many auxiliaries in addition to the regular cast.

"His Society Wife," which will be presented by the Ferris company the last of the week, will be one of the prettiest and most pleasing presentations of this company. It is one of those American plays which are hard to describe but leaves the best of impressions and satisfaction with the audience. It is one of the class which has so pleased the patrons of the Metropolitan, full of heart interest, comedy and pathos. It calls upon the actor for the best and most natural portrayal. This play permits of beautiful stage settings.

Bandy and Wilson, the specialty duo, who have made such a hit at the Metropolitan in their two strong vaudeville turns this week, will appear with the Ferris comedians for another week, changing their act entirely twice during the week. The management has secured the celebrated Robinson sisters, beginning next Monday evening and continuing during the week. This is said to be one of the cleverest sister teams on the vaudeville stage and were engaged at a high salary for this special engagement.

ROSE COGHLAN.

That much discussed play, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," by A. W. Pinero, of which has been presented by some of the great actresses of the dramatic world today, notably Signora Duse, Mrs. Kendall, Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Olga Nethersole, will be given its first production in Duluth Monday evening at the Lyceum by Miss Rose Coghlan.

"The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" illustrates the struggle of a modern Magdalen to regain a position in society which she has forfeited through weakness and love of admiration. By going through a marriage ceremony with an aristocratic gentleman, Paula Ray hopes to rehabilitate herself in the good graces of her acquaintances and regain the esteem of her world. How unsuccessful she is, how Pinero seeks to prove that one may evade the social, moral laws laid down by man, but never the chastening pangs of conscience, is wrought out in four cleverly written acts, which are peopled with admirable types of English society folks, whose manners, morals and beliefs are vividly contrasting. Miss Coghlan's characterization of the Second Mrs. Tanqueray is distinguished by a display of all the resources of the art of acting which have made her name so well known. Her costumes are elaborate and costly.

"THE DARKEST HOUR."

"The Darkest Hour," one of Lincoln J. Carter's plays, embellished with the startling scenic effects and complete equipment with which Mr. Carter invests all of his productions, was given its first production in Duluth at the Lyceum this afternoon, and this evening will again be seen.

A feature of the production is the appearance of Charles A. (Karl) Gardner, the eminent German singing comedian.

"THE FATAL WEDDING."

The attraction at the Lyceum next Thursday and Friday will be "The Fatal Wedding." The story tells of two adventurers, an unscrupulous man and woman, who are represented as endeavoring to wreck the lives of a happy married couple. They work divers schemes and for a time succeed. Howard Wilson and his wife are the happy couple—Robert Curtis and Cora Williams are the adventurers. Cora Williams wants Howard Wilson for her husband and Curtis is secretly in love with Mrs. Wilson. Between them they hatch a plot to arouse suspicion in Howard's breast as to the fidelity of his wife. Curtis poisons Mrs. Wilson's mind about her husband and gains consent to allow him to visit her in the evening, when he will reveal more to her. Wilson arrives home from his club and finds Curtis and his wife together. She declares her innocence of any wrong, but the husband refuses to believe, and secures a divorce and the custody of the two children. Mrs. Wilson steals the children, with the help of two servants, and finds shelter in the tenement quarter, where she support sherself and children by sewing. The Williams woman has promised Curtis $20,000 in the event of the success of the scheme, this promise being put in writting, and this paper, being discovered just as she is about to gain her end and marry Wilson, proves her undoing and brings about a reconciliation between the unhappy husband and wife.

"ARE YOU A MASON?"

"Are You a Mason" comes to the Lyceum Saturday, matinee and evening. There seems to be no question about the big success it has achieved wherever presented. It is said to be full to the nozzle of fun in the superlative degree, and, Mason or not, it makes no difference in the enjoyment which a spectator gets out of it. And all the funa risse legitimately from the falsehoods of two deceiving husbands who find it a clever excuse to tell their trusting wives, in order to cover up some poker games and other episodes, that they have joined a Masonic lodge, when they have done nothing of the sort. John C. Rice and Thomas A. Wise, a pair of comic stars of unusual brilliancy, are the pseudo Masons, and it would be difficult to decide which is the funnier of the two.

THE SUMMER OPERA.

Madison Square Company to Open at Lyceum June 8.

Manager Marshall will inaugurate the special season of light comic opera productions to be presented by the Madison Square Opera company, beginning Monday, June 8. An exceptionally strong cast has been assembled by Mr. Walle for the organization. The members have been selected from the front ranks of the most prominent musical companies known to the amusement goers. Each and every player has been individually selected for the roles to be interpreted. The chorus will be composed of a battalion of pretty girls who have not only been selected for their beauty and symmetry of figure, but for voices as well, with the support of an exceptionally youthful and well-voiced male ensemble.

The orchestra will be increased in number and every production will be properly staged, while the music will be given its full value and properly rendered.

Among the principals will be:

Miss Maude K. Williams, of "The King Dodo" Opera company.

Miss Eleanor Jenkins, of the Augustine Daly Musical Comedy company.

Miss Bertha Hayden, of the Castle Square Opera company.

Miss Sylvest Cornish, of the Duff Opera company.

Miss Louise Hilliard, of the "Prince of Pilsen" company.

Miss Harriett Packard, of the "King Dodo" company.

Stanley Delch, of the Grau Opera company.

Tom Martin, of the "Nancy Brown" company.

Charles H. Drew, of the Haslne Opera company.

George Lyding, of the "Robin Hood" company.

George Chapman, of the De Wolf Hopper company.

H. E. Huffman, of the "Sally in Our Alley" company.

The Madison Square company engagement will begin with a magnificent production of "The Black Hussar," which had a phenomenal run in New York. Manager Marshall, in conjunction with this engagement, will usher into existence a novelty entirely new to midsummer theatricals.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

New York, May 9.—The death of Stuat Robson was a shock to Broadway. All knew he was ill, but none had any idea that death was at hand. "I know I am not well, but if I have to die I would rather it would be on the stage," Robson told members of his company last week while he was playing one-night stands, and was frequently so weak that Clifford Leigh, an English actor who took the part of Dromio of Ephesus in "A Comedy of Errors," had to play also the part of Dromio of Syracuse until the last act, when the two Dromios meet for the first time. "I have spent most of my time on the stage for 51 years, and I don't know any better way to die than before the footlights." But at times in the past Mr. Robson had not been as anxious to appear before the footlights as "Billy" Crane though becoming, and this is asserted to have been one of the main causes of their separation. One night Robson could not be found. The curtain has been rung up and the play was going on, but, search as they would, his fellow-actors could not find the star. Boys were sent to the hotel at which he was stopping and to all the others near by without learning of his whereabouts, until finally a man who knew him reported that a person answering to a strong resemblance to him had gone to the top gallery. There, in a front seat, munching peanuts, Robson was finally located.

A toss of a coin might have turned the current of Robson's life. When he was a boy in Baltimore half a century ago his closest friends were Edwin Booth, Arthur Pugh Gorman, Wilkes Booth and John Sleeper Clarke. The future United States senator decoupled the future comedian to go to Washington with him and enter political life, while Booth was equally anxious that his friend should go on the stage at once. To settle the matter a coin was tossed. It fell heads, and Gorman won. For a year and a half Robson served as a page in the House of Representatives, while Gorman occupied a similar position in the Senate, but he tired of the life and followed the guidance of his friend Booth, who was even then attaining fame. Robson's first venture was in tragedy. He took a part in "Uncle Tom's Cabin as It Is," a Southern version of the famous novel, but made so complete a failure that he was so laughed at by his friends that he determined then and there never again to essay anything except comedy.

The theater-going public here is now enjoying two remarkable mechanical devices on the stage. First is the cyclone scene in "The Wizard of Oz," the curtain goes up on a typical Kansas farmyard scene, and the old farmer is sitting quietly on one side reading the weather bureau report. Suddenly the faint overcast and the cyclone cloud is seen in the distance. From then the scene is a most faithful and elaborate portrayal of the work of a genuine cyclone. Nine out of ten in the audience believe that the stage is filled with remarkable mechanical devices, but as a matter of fact the whole scene is produced from the first balcony. An opaque gauze drop is so quietly let down that the spectators do not notice its appearance, and while the cyclone is on all the lights on the stage and in the house are turned off. At this point a revolving stereopticon gets in its work. The effect of the farmhouse being carried away and all the other details of the wreck are portrayed from slides prepared by artists, and the effect is startlingly realistic. Meanwhile the stage hands are at work behind the gauze curtain, and by the time the lights are turned on again everything has been changed completely. This device was the invention of Julian Mitchell, who is probably the most ingenious stage director of the present day.

The other device is in "The Suburban" at the Academy of Music. Here the grand stand is filled with a crowd faithfully painted on canvas but so controlled mechanically that almost every figure is given a lifelike motion. During the race and at the finish flags and parasols as well as handkerchiefs are seen to move in apparently frantic excitement among the painted spectators. The secret is a simple one, for at the front drop some twenty electric fans are placed below the painted spectators. All over the scene bits of paper are fastened, and when the electric fans are turned the wind sets the paper in motion. It also starts flags and pennants to flying and waves the handkerchiefs and parasols with lifelike ability.

Great excitement was caused at Broadway and Thirty-sixth street one night recently by a dog whose antics convinced spectators that he was really mad. The police were sent for in a hurry, but soon discovered that the dog was holding one unseemly captive and barking frantically at him. The cause of the trouble was "Markie" Mayer, who had ventured from the Lambs' club in a new light hat of that brand worn only by him and Oscar Hammerstein. Whatever called the dog's attention to the headgear is not known, but Markie when rescued by the police, fervently swore that he would never wear it again, and, returning to the club, he promptly bestowed it upon his valet.

Col. William A. Brady, a well-known literary light, who is also interested in theatrical enterprises, and Miss Grace George's productions, is going in for play writing. He has decided to assist C. Pollack, who promotes publicity for Miss George, in dramatizing the late Frank Norris's novel, "The Pit," in which Colonel Brady has engaged Walton Lackaye to star next season. Just how Col. Brady will assist C. Pollack is not stated in the early bulletins, although it is suggested by one of the Colonel's business associations that he will hold down the typewriter while C. Pollack gives it a good trimming, or that he will stand by with a bucket of water or a hand grenade, so that when a burning thought or situation strikes C. Pollack he will be able to moisten the copy paper, and thereby avert a conflagration. Colonel Brady will sail for England on May 27, where he hopes to engage the wife of a famous English actor-manager as Mr. Lackaye's leading woman. While abroad the colonel will see Charles Frohman and other famous European lights. Mr. Frohman, he thinks, is anxious to obtain the rights of "Pretty Peggy" in England. Again, Col. Brady will present Mr. Lackaye in "Othello" next season. A prominent firm of upholsterers is at work on the pillow for the smothering of Desdemona.

"The Crisis" will be played exclusively by Miss Isabel Irving next season. James K. Hackett will give up the role of Stephen Brice and appear in a historical play by Victor Mapes, opening at Messrs. Weber & Field's new Globe theater, Boston, thence coming to the Manhattan.

The fact that Miss Eleanor Robson journeyed to Albany under the strict care of a physician was kept a carefully guarded secret until after her first three performances in "Romeo and Juliet." Her managers feared a complete breakdown on her part before the first curtain rose, and every precaution was taken to avert what would have meant disaster to the all-star tour. Miss Robson's nervous trouble began in New Orleans, where she arrived after a particularly hard tour of Texas in "Audrey." At the Crescent City she was met by Eben Plympton, who journeyed from this city to begin rehearsals with her in the South. While down there all Miss Robson's spare time was devoted to Juliet, and this was followed by a long and tedious ride north and a continuation of rehearsals without a day's intermission. All the time that she could spare from study in this city was given to costume makers and photographers, and the day before her debut she was almost a complete physical wreck. Speaks well for the care devoted to her that there has been no trace of this weakness in her work.

David Belasco, so rumor has it, is to show the world what he can really do in the way of a spectacular production. So great has been the success of this feature of "The Darling of the Gods" that Belasco is convinced New York is yearning for a theatrical spectacle more magnificent than anything it has ever seen before. Consequently he is arranging for a revival of "Humpty-Dumpty" that will cost him in the neighborhood of $360,000. At least, this is what the report says.

Miss Kathryn Osterman will present "Miss Petticoats" when she begins her starring tour in October under the direction of her husband, "Jake" Rosenthal. The play is a dramatization of Dwight Tilton's novel of that name, and the scenes are laid in old Chetford, a New England seaport, and in New York city.

Bramwell, the leading man of Proctor's Fifth Avenue Stock company, amuses himself off the stage with mathematics. He has a passion for statistics, and especially those concerning the life of a leading man. "During my three years' experience of stock work in New York," he said the other day, "I have played 125 parts, and the average number of words required by each was 16,320. This means that during that period I have had to memorize 2,040,000 words. Then there's the question of buttons. In the modern society play I make four changes on the average, but this means, with two performances a day and dressing for the street in between that, I handle seventy-four sets of buttons, or a total of 600 daily, and a total of 150,000 in a working season. He is now thinking up some more facts.

Jameson Lee Finney, now leading man in "A Fool and His Money," is a one-sided matinee idol. That is, it's all on the girls' side, for it must be distinctly understood that he is devoted to his art and one sweetheart. In this case the sweetheart's age is something over two-score, but they are most devoted. She visits the theater every performance when he is playing, and, just as likely as not, is to be found behind the scenes. Mrs. Finney is justly proud of her boy.

One of the properties being built at Proctor's theater in Harlem, is a captive balloon shaped like an airship. The other day the makers inflated the silk bag with gas in the theater. There was a leak, and then carefully fastened it to earth in an alley in the rear of the theater. The assistant superintendent came along later and climbed into the basket out of curiosity. Soon loud cries for help brought men to the spot, who saw him clinging desperately to the edge of the basket while the balloon was bumping vigorously against the roof that covered the alley. It took a ladder from a near-by fire house to get him down, but it will not happen again.

Miss Minnie Dupree, who was forced to close her tour in "The Rose o' Plymouth Town" early in the season owing to the impossibility of securing out-of-town dates, has now had the Park theater, Boston, placed at her disposal by the Theatrical syndicate, and will resume her tour at once. Late in August Miss Dupree will appear at the Madison Square in a dramatization of "Tangled Up in Beulah Land."

George H. Broadhurst, whose play, "A Fool and His Money," has turned out a big success, has gone to Lakewood, where he is at work on the scenario of a new comedy, in which Aubrey Boucicault is to be starred next season.

Olga Nethersole is to bring out a new play in London next season. It will be a dramatization of one of Jean Richepin's French stories. Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbs) is making the adaptation.

George Sydney closed his first season as a star last week and laid aside "Bussy Izzy," his own piece, for the summer, to return to the Ward and Vokes company at Boston, where they are locked to remain for some time. Sydney resumed his old part of Izzy in "The Head Waiters," and will remain with them until Allen Curtis recovers from the sickness that has compelled him to lay off. Sydney will continue as a star next season.

There was one story given out last week which sounds true, for, verily, the press agent would not have dared spread such information. This was the report that Mrs. Langtry has just graduated into the grandmother stakes. It's true, but the Jersey Lily is still a stunning grandmother, at that.

Tom Nawn is mentioned as a possible star in musical comedy. Fred Rankin, who wrote the libretto of "The Chaperons," is said to be at work on a new one for Nawn's use, to be called "The Genie," and there was a leak, and then carefully fastened it to earth in an alley in the rear of the theater. The assistant superintendent came along later and climbed into the basket out of curiosity. Soon loud cries for help brought men to the spot, who saw him clinging desperately to the edge of the basket while the balloon was bumping vigorously against the roof that covered the alley. It took a ladder from a near-by fire house to get him down, but it will not happen again.

By the middle of next season there will be three big English pantomimes running in this country. "Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," the first of these delightful productions brought over from London, will be on tour; "Blue-Beard, Jr.," will be in its run at the new Iroquois theater in Chicago and "Mother Goose," last Christmas at the Madison Square, will be having its run at the New Amsterdam theater in New York.

The heavy demand in the best class of popular price houses for musical comedies and farces has been quite a drain on the vaudeville headliners for next season. Recent announcements alone take four big vaudeville stars out of the ranks. The acts which will be missed are Nat M. Wills, Tucker and Williams, Kathryn Osterman and James J. Corbett. The latter is to be the star of Secretary Hay's "Jim Bludsoe." Miss Osterman and Williams and Tucker are both to star in farces under the management of Jake Rosenthal and Nat Wills goes out in a burlesque under the management of Broadhurst and Currie. Another featured act which will be lost to vaudeville is that of Grapewin and Chance, as their vaudeville sketch, "The Awakening of Pipp," has been elaborated by Grapewin into a three-act farce and they will join the stars in it. Several others contemplate the same move and it is apparent that if the defection keeps up vaudeville will be in sore need of some new blood to keep it as popular as it is at present.

Charles Kilpatrick, the well-known one-legged cyclist, has just returned from a tour of the European variety halls, where he has been introducing his daring loop-the-loop act on a cycle. While abroad Kilpatrick introduced the loop-the-loop in St. Petersburg, where it is now a fixture with one of the biggest circuses there, and he also presented his own novel act at the Olympia in Paris, creating one of the biggest sensations ever scored by an American act in the French capital.

George Primrose, the well-known minstrel, has refused an offer of $20,000 for 20 weeks in vaudeville next season, and announces that when he closes his business with Lew Dockstader he will take at least a year's vacation in rest and travel.

Robert E. Bell, who has done so much for the proposed sanitarium in Colorado for actors stricken with consumption, is himself a victim to his work in this direction, and is reported to be quite ill in Denver. His plans, however, are being carried out in different parts of the country, and as a result a tidy sum has already been raised for this worthy cause. Blanche Walsh and the members of her company recently gave a special matinee performance of "Resurrection" in New York, for the benefit of the home, and several hundred dollars were netted the cause.

Joseph Jefferson, in a recent lecture delivered before a ladies' club in Birmingham, Ala., came out rather forcefully in opposition to the proposed national theater. The stand taken by Mr. Jefferson has aroused the ire of the Usher in the Mirror, who says, considering the long career that Mr. Jefferson has enjoyed on the stage and the debt he owes the theater hereby, it would have been a more graceful thing for the dean of the profession to have done something practical for the profession in acknowledgment of this debt, and further intimates that a slight subscription would have been in better form. Continuing, the Usher says:

"Mr. Jefferson has done little or nothing for the American drama. It is almost beyond recollection since he produced a new play. I doubt if he ever paid a royalty to an American or an English dramatic author in the whole course of his stage life. The sum and substance of his contribution to the art of the American theater has been four or five characterizations which he has exploited in the most economical manner in order to secure the largest personal profits."

In June Kyrle Bellew is booked to make his annual pilgrimage to England. There is no chance, as stated in some quarters, that he may bring Mrs. Brown Potter back with him. She is very comfortably situated where she is. There is such a possibility for the year following, however, and it is not unlikely to be Shakespeare, under the Liebler management.

M. Alvarez, who left this week for Europe, is one of those who most grieves at the disappearance of Mr. Grau from operatic management. His salary here has been $1700 a night. At the Paris Opera, to which he now returns, his compensation is 90,000 francs a year. Quite a trifling difference.

John C. Fisher will doubtless produce the new London musical comedy, "The Medal and the Maid," in the fall. The piece made a success on Saturday night, and it was on this that Mr. Fisher's opinion depended. This will have the effect of postponing "The Princess of Kensington" indefinitely. The new piece lends itself to great scenic embellishment.

"A murrain on't! I took this for silver!" says Shakespeare's soldier at Corioli. He could never have taken base metal for silver had he lived in our day and recognized that the

Happy Homes

One of the essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a fund of information as to right living and the best methods of promoting health and happiness. With proper knowledge, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and are of not less value than the using of the most wholesome foods and the selecting of the best medicinal agents when needed. With the well-informed, medicinal agents are used only when nature needs assistance and while the importance of cleansing the system effectually, when bilious or constipated, has long been known, yet until within recent years it was necessary to resort to oils, salts, extracts of roots, barks and other cathartics which were found to be objectionable and to call for constantly increased quantities.

Then physicians having learned that the most excellent laxative and carminative principles were to be found in certain plants, principally in the leaves, the California Fig Syrup Co. discovered a method of obtaining such principles in their purest condition and of presenting them with pleasant and refreshing liquids in the form most acceptable to the system and the remedy became known as—Syrup of Figs—as figs were used, with the plants, in making it, because of their agreeable taste.

This excellent remedy is now rapidly coming into universal use as the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually without disturbing the natural functions and without unpleasant after effects and its use may be discontinued when it is no longer required.

All who would enjoy good health and its blessings should remember that it is the one remedy which physicians and parents well-informed approve and recommend and use and which they and their little ones alike enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all reliable druggists, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, in original packages only, having the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs—and the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

LATEST BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

"The Stumbling Block," by Edwin Pugh, is a most interesting work. The tale is English—English with a high flavor—its background shifting from London to Hampshire and back. The London part has delightfully rich and characteristic "atmosphere," and the Hampshire part is delectable with country sights, sounds and smells. Two girls and a man, both girls in love with the man, the man, sooner or later, in love with both girls; these are the persons with whom the story chiefly has to do. The passion of Bria, the principal heroine, for Saxon, the hero, is so devouring that it proves "a fatal stumbling block in the game," and in the end—but it is not fair either to an author or to a reader to tell just what happens in the end. The building of the book is amateurish, but the characters, major and minor, are so freshly divined and freshly rendered that the discriminating reader will be ready to say grace for almost every one; and that rare bird, style, soars and sings over well nigh the whole of the tale. Published by A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

There has been heard so little lately of the censorious city librarian that the information that "What Manner of Man" has fallen under his expurgating eye comes with all the vernal fragrance of a young onion. The citizens of Jacksonville, Ill., will henceforth have to buy Miss Kenton's new novel or else join the Tabard Inn, for the dispenser of free fiction in that prairie city has put the sign of the double cross on her story. In Boston "What Manner of Man" has been very popular—but then, it is not safe to jump at conclusions.

Alfred Henry Lewis' new book, "The Black Lion Inn," was issued by Harper & Brothers on May 7, with the imprint of R. H. Russell, whose publishing business has been acquired by this firm. In the latest number of the London Bookman, Mr. Lewis is compared with Bret Harte and Mark Twain, and hailed as "really a humorist and a great one." Mr. Lewis has written many humorous sketches under the nom de plume of "Dan Quin," but not until the Wolfville stories appeared did he become famous. He is a resident of New York.

Little, Brown & Co., Boston, have just published "A Rose of Normandy," by W. R. A. Wilson; illustrated by C. L. Greenwald. It is a most entertaining historical romance of France and Canada in the reign of Louis XIV. Robert Caveller, Sieur de la Salle, and his faithful lieutenant, Henri de Tonti, are leading characters, the latter being the hero of the book. The explorations of La Salle, his hardships and adventures, the love of Tonti for Renee, the "Rose of Normandy," their escapes from the Indians, and other adventures, make up a story which the author has told with spirit, which is full of action and incident, and which holds the reader's attention from the first page to the last.

Andrew Caster, the author of "Pearl Island," a juvenile story which has just been published by Harper & Bros., of New York, is one of the writers who has gone far to collect his literary material. Mr. Caster tells of the adventures of two shipwrecked lads on a little-known island in the South sea, and he thoroughly traveled through the South Pacific while he was gathering material for his story. In this manner he has been enabled to give an unusual and entertaining account of the flora and fauna of the South sea islands, as well as describing their peoples and life. The book is full of the exciting and the unusual, there being accounts of attacks by pirates, explorations by land and sea, excursions into a wild, volcanic country, the discovery of fabulous treasures of pearl, etc. Because of the many curious and fascinating incidents related, and of its educational value, the book has been compared to "Robinson Crusoe." Mr. Caster has ceased his roaming for a time, and is at present a resident of California, where he is busily engaged in preparing material for another book.

The National Magazine for May maintains its customary breadth of view and variety of interesting topics, and in addition gives its readers nine sprightly stories and a forty-page World's fair dedication souvenir—this latter the most complete and authentic advance story of the Louisiana Purchase exposition that has ever been put into print. The souvenir reviews the history of the Louisiana purchase, tells what has been done in that vast region during the last century, and forecasts its future greatness. It also shows in broad outlines exactly what will be the chief charms of the great World's fair to be held in St. Louis in 1904.

Lippincott's Magazine keeps up its reputation for publishing a strong, bright novel each month by presenting in the May number one of even more than usual interest by George Gibbs. This is called "The Love of Monsieur," and, as the title implies, it is Frenchy, with a hero who is "a daimon for success with petticoats." His last love is a fetching conception, well worth the quarrels she provokes. With Mr. Gibbs' grace in writing and a nextraordinary fine plot there is left nothing to be desired in this very fascinating tale. Among the short stories there is one by Seumas MacManus, called "Caitlin Dhu." The fight between Irish rivals is described in a way which stirs sporting blood.

The Pilgrim for May comes with a striking cover by Otto J. Schneider, who is called the American Meliou, for the beauty of his pastels, which have all the delicacy and charm of drypoint etchings. The contents of the same issue are extensive and varied, in keeping with the idea that the Pilgrim shall each month possess features of interest to every member of the family. The most striking feature of this number is the beginning of an exceedingly engaging story of animal and child life, by Curtis Dunham, illustrated by Oliver Herford, in his inimitable manner. This story, or, rather, series of distinct stories, will continue for several months. It bids fair to create quite as great a sensation as Kipling's jungle book or Mr. Thompson-Seton's first literary work.

The first article in the Popular Science Monthly for May is by President David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford Junior university, and is entitled "The Classification of Fishes." Dr. Jordan is everywhere known as one of the most eminent educators of the country and one of the best writers, but it may not be known to all that he is, perhaps, the leading American authority on fishes. The present article the methods used in classification in a clear and readable manner. Probably the most interesting article in the number is one by Professor Edward L. Thorndike, of Columbia university, on the "Decrease in the Size of American Families."

The open air number of Leslie's Monthly justifies its name by some remarkable out-of-door articles on the modern sailor, the Canadian frontier police, the first perilous ascent of Mount Bryce, and the life in a trout stream, besides a rattling ball story and a story of characteristic sentiment by Henry Garland, who wrote the "Cardinal's Snuff Box." In "What the Trout Stream Saw," the illustrations by Charles Livingston Bull and the text by W. D. Hulbert, supplement each other most effectively.

"Getting Into the game. Playing for the thrill of the sport, whatever it is, and not merely to win. That's the American of today," declares Caspar Whitney, editor of Outing. "The pace of twentieth century life demands physical as well as mental vigor and alertness and we're bound to keep in the van. The ethics of sport, too, are getting merited attention." For twenty years Caspar Whitney has made a careful study of outdoor America, making periodical trips from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Arctic to the gulf. He has just returned from an extended trip of the United States. He tells what he saw and what he thought of it in the "Sportman's Viewpoint" of the May Outing.

The most conspicuous figure remaining of the great men who made the armies of the Confederacy is Gen. John B. Gordon. For many years he has gained thousands of friends all over the Union by his vivid lectures on the war, and he has finally written his reminiscences for publication in book form. A part of them will appear serially, and the story begins in the May number of Scribner's Magazine. It is probably the last of the great personal narratives that the civil war will produce. It is believed that it will take the same place in Southern history that Gen. Grant's memoirs have taken in Northern. The first paper, entitled "My First Command and the Outbreak of the War" gives a most amusing account of Gen. Gordon's company of mountaineers that became famous over the name which they themselves adopted, "The Raccoon Roughs."

The Louisiana Puchase anniversary is much in evidence in the May Review of Reviews. The editor's interesting recapitulation of the salient facts in that "Napoleonic real estate deal," of Jefferson's part in the transaction, of the Lewis and Clark expedition, and of the subsequent results of the puchase, opens the number. An important paper on "The Significance of the Louisiana Purchase," considered from the point of view of diplomacy and international politics, is contributed by Professor F. J. Turner, of the university of Wisconsin. The plans for the great fair to be held at St. Louis next year to commemorate the event are outlined in a comprehensive illustrated article by Frederick M. Cruden, whiel the city of St. Louis, as it is today, is described by William F. Saunders.

The May Century has four full-page reproductions in color of water-color drawings by Arthur Schneider, the American artist, who was instructor and intimate companion of the sultan of Morocco from November, 1900, to March, 1902. The drawings show the sultan's first view of the ocean since childhood, the sultan and his minister of war watching the royal fireworks in the palace grounds, the sultan leaving the palace in state for camp and a portrait from life of Morocco's ruler. Mr. Schneider's story of his unique experience in Morocco is illustrated further from numerous sketches in black and white.

Bright, interesting stories, practical instructive departments, entertaining special articles and pictures that please, make up the Housekeeper magazine for May. "Not a Sad Story" is the title of a touching little tale by Mary Stewart Cutting, which tells how a little boy's death changed an entire town for the better. An article by Jessie Ackermann, the famous woman traveler, describes the many odd places of worship she has visited in various parts of the world, illustrated by rare photographs which have never before been published.

Country Life in America has a large special Vacation Number for May, entirely devoted to the subject of how to spend one. There are full details, with cost, of such vacations as camping, houseboating, cruising, canoeing, fishing and many other things—even including a vacation home at small cost, a walking tour and a plant hunting vacation. It is a unique and unusual number of this superb magazine that aims to be a calendar of the changing spirit of the seasons out-of-doors.

The Woman's Home Companion for May opens with a charming short story of boy life, "Snatched From the Sacrifice," by Forest Crissey. There are three other short stories, and the installment of Eden Phillpotts' strong serial, "The Farm of the Dagger," is of great dramatic interest. There is a charming page of prize photographs of mothers and children, and there are features on "Successful Women Ranch-Owners," "Heroes Who Fight Fire" and "Adventures of the Crown Jewels of France." There are poems by Frank Dempster Sherman, Madison Cawein and John Kendrick Bangs. Fashions, Dressmaking Cookery, Home Health-Exercises and Fancy-Work are all treated of in the department. Published by the Crowell Publishing company, Springfield, Ohio; $1 a year; 10 cents a copy.

Charles Dana Gibson's double-page drawing in this week's Collier Weekly is called "Advice to Noblemen." It contains a dash of that rare humor for which Gibson is noted and the subtlety of which cannot be appreciated except by studying his drawings. The frontispiece of the paper is a photograph of Reliance under full sail. It gives an adequate idea of how the cup defender will appear during this year's race with Shamrock III. The latest startling crime furnishes the text for an article on "The Mafia in America," by Allen Sangree, which lets in considerable light on the workings of that mysterious organization.

Nineteen stories and articles and one hundred and twelve illustrations form the contents of the May Cosmopolitan. J. Hemiker Heaton, M.P., contributes an article on the British Parcel Post—particularly timely, in view of the plan, about which the entire mercantile world is showing so wide an interest, to introduce into this country the system of carrying parcels in the mail. Ella Adelia Fletcher is the author of a charmingly illustrated essay on "The Power and Beauty of Woman's Eyes."

Timeliness of subject seems to be the keynote of the May number of the New England Magazine, which opens with two admirably illustrated articles on the forthcoming celebration of the hundredth anniversary, May 25, of Emerson's birth. The first is entirely devoted to that subject and the second shows the great philosopher's relations to the transcendental movement. The former editor of the magazine, Edwin D. Mead, contributes a review of Jean de Bloch, and "The Future of the War," with a very interesting portrait and picture of the War Museum at Lucerne.

The May number of North American Review is replete with interesting and authoritative comment upon subjects, literary, political, social, economical and scientific, which engage the public mind at the present moment. Archibald R. Colquhoun discusses "The Future of the Negro." Apropos of the approaching centenary of Emerson's birth, Dr. W. Robertson Nicoll writes with insight and discernment, as well as sympathy, of "Ralph Waldo Emerson." W. J. Long explains the methods and ideals of "The Modern School of Nature Study."

In the May Atlantic is one of the most readable papers in that magazine's interesting series of studies in the life of the American citizen of today. This paper, "The Evolution of the Trained Nurse," by Mary Moss, a clever essayist and story writer, presents both the history of the nursing profession and the actual experience of the nurse of today in a way sure to instruct and entertain the reader.

The May McClure's is printed in a new type, and, in all respects of appearance and make-up. It is notable for both the quality and number of its illustrations. Jules Guerin's two full-page views of Pittsburg, by night and by day, admirably illustrate Lincoln Steffen's paper on "Pittsburg: a City Ashamed," a conpion-piece of nis St. Louis and Minneapolis papers. Then there are some very telling drawings by Henri Lanos, reproduced in tint to illustrate Professor Simon Newcomb's capital story, "The End of the World."

President Mary E. Woolley of Mount Holyoke college points out in Harper's Bazar for May the error of "cramming" students' brains in "Preparation for College." The author quotes the reply of President Barrows of Oberlin to a student who desired to crowd his work into a shorter time—"Just remember that when God wishes to make an oak He takes a hundred years, but when He wishes a squash He takes six months." President Woolley advocates distinction in a few rather than mediocrity in many studies. In the same number Lawrence Gilman writes of Miss Ethel M. Smyth, the first woman composer to have an opera produced in America. Mr. Gilman describes Miss Smyth as brisk, foreful, energetic and direct, and not at all like the conventional composer. She is a firm believer, he says "in the special artistic mission of her sex."

SKIN TORTURES

Itching, Burning, Scaly Eczema, Psoriasis, Tetter, Ringworm, Instantly Relieved and SPEEDILY CURED BY CUTICURA.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures of the civilized world.

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Modern Fable of the Unhappy Financier and the Discontented Rube.

(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell.)

One there was a Stock Exchange Midas who had great gobs of the Whereswith. Day and Night he was hounded by those who were looking for Hot Tips, or who wanted to touch him up for Denominational Colleges or who had Good Things which they wished him to buy with much Coin.

At last, in order to escape the wearing sound of the Ticker and get the Hard Knots out of his Nervous System, he ducked away to the Country and left word that he had gone to Europe.

He struck a Rest Cure where every one dressed for Dinner and a full Orchestra tore off Popular Music. He saw the same Mournful Faces of the male and female Plutocrats who were trying to purchase Enjoyment at so much per Day and they did not seem to have a transient Effect on him. So he wandered away from the Hotel and took to a quiet Country Lane and soon he was in the Deep Woods.

The Silence was broken only by the Rustle of Leaves, the tapping of the Woodpeckers and the occasional Stunt of some Feathered Warbler.

"This is where Man really belongs," sighed the track-sore Financier. "What an artificial and profitless Life we lead there among the Sky-Scrapers. Our Little Existence is rounded off with a French Menu and a few lines of Bromo Seltzer in the Morning. We toil for years trying to get the Hammer-Lock on Fame and when it comes to a Cash-In, nobody knows whose Funeral it is and the Trolley Cars refuse to get out of the Way."

While he was thus Meditating, he came to a Clearing, in which there was an humble Shack with a dinky Little Garden behind it. In the Doorway of the Modest Cot sat a Rube who wore a heavy Fringe on the Sub-Maxillary. Above his Head bloomed the symmetrical Morning-Glory and the fresh smell of the Greenwood was mingled with the pleasing Odor of the Store Tobacco he was smoking, the while he spelled out the Long Words in a Newspaper.

"There's a Three-Sheet of Contentment for you," said the weary Millionaire. "I wish I had his Snap. Nothing to do except read about Crime and watch the Squirrels. No one to call him on the Phone. No lying awake at Nights wondering what Attorney-General Knox is going to do. When he's hungry, all he has to do is put on the Griddle, pull a few Radishes and milk the Cow. No getting roped in at Annual Dinners. No Struggle to butt into the Headquarters of the Elite. How I envy him."

So he approached the Man behind the Whiskers and greeted him cheerfully, for he felt that he would fain know the Secret of True Happiness.

"You have a charming Joint here," said the Financier. "You seem to be quite away from the hurry and turmoil of the World."

"Yes, it is very Lonesome," was the melancholy Reply. "I should like to live on the Main Pike but Land is too high. As soon as I sell my Hogs I hope to have a telephone installed. Sometimes three or four Days will elapse after an important Prize-Fight ere I learn the Result. This failure to Keep in Touch with Events is very trying to one who would be abreast of the Times."

"Why should the Outside World cut any Ice with you?" demanded the Millionaire. "Here you have a beautiful Sylvan Retreat. The Birds carol in the Trees. Nature is ever smiling. You are far removed from the carking Cares, the hard Throwdowns and the Bunko Manipulations of the Commercial World. Are you not satisfied?"

"How can I when I read here in the Weekly about a Newport Shindig where they have $80 worth of Ice Cream? Why should I ride Horse-back when you Folks have Autos costing $7000? I never get to see a good Show and I haven't had my Picture taken for 6 Years and sometimes I don't have anybody come in to see me for Weeks at a Time."

"Why, you concatenated Chump, you have a two-acre Paradise here and you don't know it," said the City Man. "I'd like to trade Places with you."

"I'll trade with anybody," said the Rube. "I'm tired of this Dog's Life."

"You're on!" exclaimed the Financier. "This is what I'll stake you to. You'll have a Spring Bed with 4 Mattresses and a Canopy. You can lie there on the Husks and look at $80,000 worth of Paintings by the Old Masters. In the Morning a British Gentleman of Aristocratic Appearance will come and lead you to the Royal Porcelain, after which he will dress you, without your lifting a Finger. You shall have Silk Underwear and a Monogram worked on each Sock. At Breakfast you shall have Hot-House Grapes and everything else out of Season and Flowers on the Table. After Breakfast you may step into a Carlage with Gold Trimmings, drawn by two Prize Bays and ride to an Office, where the Chairs are padded eight inches deep and all the Hirelings jump at your slightest Command. For Luncheon you shall go to a Club where you may meet those who have Money to burn and if your Check is under $1, it shows that you are a Piker. You can stop Work at 3 p. m. and go for a spin in your French Touring Car, with a Chaffeur to work the Wheel. In the Evening you can put on your Glads and drink $8 worth of 6 Vintage Wines and take in two or three Theaters and after that, start in again and have something to Eat."

"You are stringing me," said the Rube "Such Heavenly Joys as these never come to the poor Yap."

"I will let you use my Bank Account and then you won't be a Yap," explained the Millionaire. "Go and revel in the Life that you read about in the Weekly Papers. All that I ask in return is the Use for one blissful Month of this unsurpassed Snuggery, here among the Morning-Glories and blithesome Chickadees."

The Financier gave the Rube all the Credentials needed and shipped him to the roaring Metropolis. Then he sat down under the whispering Trees with nothing to superintend except the rising and setting of the Sun.

Two weeks later, as the Financier was emerging from the Deep Woods he met the Rube coming in with a Pullman Car Towed around his Head.

"What, so soon?" asked the City Man. "I've been against it for 25 Years. Why should you pass it up after two brief Weeks?"

"For the first three or four Days it was Great Stuff," responded the Sufferer. "Then I began to tumble to the Fact that the Shows were all about the Same and that a $7 Lunch was a Delusion unless I had an Appetite. The Automobile was a Hit until some of the New Machines began to pass me and then I lost interest. As soon as it was noised around that I had Stuff, I became a Mark for every known Con Game so I tightened up and refused to see Visitors and every one said I was a Snob and the only Friends I had were the Writers I tipped. So far as I can discover, the Bust-Head resulting from the Bubbles that cost $6 per Quart is the same old Feeling that we used to get out of Apple-Jack. In short, I begin to see that the Rich can afford all the Luxuries but the Minute they begin to dip into them, the Trouble begins. I think I'm due for about one week of Absolute Calm. But what are you doing on your way to the Station?"

"Say, I don't like to roast your Establishment, but you have got the dullest lot of Birds I ever listened to," said the Financier. "The Repertory is too limited. And that Cow has a manner that is soothing for a Day or two and then begins to suggest an irritating lack of Versatility as it were. I discovered also, a certain Monotony in the Antics of the Squirrels. As for the Weekly, I have read it all through, four times, including the Sarsaparilla Ads and along toward the last the only thing that interested me was the Time-Table. I needed a good Rest and I've had enough to last me fully years. When I strike that Club tonight, I'll simply sign my Name to the Card and have them bring in the whole Works from Vaviar to Cafe Noir."

"I'm afraid there isn't any such Institution as a Paradise on Earth," remarked the Rube.

"Oh, yes there is," said the Millionaire, "but we never find it twice in the same Spot."

Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Messrs. Pesterer & Lunz, who have the contract for building the new water and light station and laying the intake pipe, have about completed the rock excavation for the building, and are now working on the intake well. Material for the building, has been ordered and it is expected it will commence to arrive within the next few days, when the construction of the building will be pushed as rapidly as possible, and simultaneously with the erection of the building the rock excavation for the intake pipe will be carried on.

Oscar Claussen, electrical engineer, of St. Paul, who has been employed by the village council to prepare plans and specifications for the extensions to the light plant, was in the village Thursday and went over the matter with the committee on light. It is the intention to retain the present dynamo and engine, but the fly wheel on the engine will be increased in size so as to permit it to be run directbelted, instead of belting to jack shaft as at present. By this mode of operation about 20 per cent in power will be gained as compared with the present method. A new dynamo of 100 horse power alternator will be installed, which will call for an additional 235-horse power engine. This will be a direct connected unit, which is considered the most economical for operation, although the initial cost of installation is considerable more than a direct-belted engine.

Iron ore shipments at this port during the month of April were a little over 200,000 less than in April 1902, notwithstanding the fact that the season opened earlier than the previous year. The receipts are now averaging about 23,000 tons per day, and it is expected that within a week the average receipts will be about 40,000 tons each twenty-four hours, and according to present schedule this average will be kept up during the entire summer, unless something unforseen transpires. The decrease in shipments has been has been due almost entirely to shortage of motive power. The engines which were East during the winter, have not as yet all been returned, and it was necessary to make extensive repairs on all that has been returned; but it is expected that all of the engines will be in shape to be used exclusively in the ore traffic, will be in the service within the next week or ten days. Nearly 300 out of the 500 new ore cars have arrived, and fourteen put in the service. By the addition of these 500 steel cars the ore-carrying capacity of the road so far as cars are concerned, has been increased about 20 per cent. In addition to this the hauling of a great amount of dead load has been eliminated, as the steel ore cars will not weigh over 50,000 pounds each, on an average, 7000 pounds more than the 50,000 and 60,000-pound capacity wooden cars.

Up to the present time, 37,600 tons of coal have been unloaded over the dock at Two Harbors, in addition to the steamer George Peavey, which arrived today with 4800 tons. Up to the present time nearly 2400 cars of the coal received this season has been brought up by boats belonging to the United States Steel corporation. Last year nearly all coal was brought here by outside boats, and the Steel corporation's boats came up light.

The indications are now that the logging business will keep up by rail for the next three months about as at present, even if no additional logs are secured; and it is reported on good authority that the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company has about 20,000,000 feet banked at Cloquet river, which they have now decided to haul to Duluth by rail. This will mean about two car loads, and it will take about four months to complete the shipment.

The Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company has rented the upstairs of the Dwan building at No. 113 Poplar street for their offices and now have it fitted up with new furniture. The company has ordered a large amount of machinery for their crushing plant, etc., which will be located down the north shore about forty miles, and the work of setting up the machinery, building a dock and constructing a tram railroad about five miles in length, will be pushed vigorously from now on.

Invitations have been issued by the Bachelors' club for their sixth dancing party to be given in Norden hall May 16. The parties given by this club have heretofore proven a great success, and invitations to the forthcoming event are eagerly sought after. A COUGH CONUNDRUM

When is a cough more than a cough?

When it's a settled cold. When it hangs on in spite of all you can do. Cough mixtures won't cure it because they are merely for a cough and this is something more.

Scott's Emulsion cures the cough because it cures the something more. It heals and repairs the inflamed tissues where the cold has taken root and prevents its coming back.

Walker.

Walker, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Marshal Frank Tutts spent the first three days of this week serving subpoenas on the Indians who are to appear as witnesses in the prosecution of the various Walker saloonkeepers and bartenders, who will be tried at the spring term of the United States district court which convenes in Duluth next Tuesday before Judge Lochren. The Indians, about twenty-seven in number, will assemble at the agency Saturday and will be taken down to Duluth Monday morning's train.

The testimony they will give is looked upon as being very strong and the government officials are confident of conviction. Deputy Tufts was accompanied on his subpoena-serving tour by an Indian policeman. The trip around the lake was made on the Hollo Hill, formerly the White City, and in addition to the boat's owners, Capts. Brumund and Chase, there were on board John King, Albert B. Wood, Howard Aymes, engineer; Andrew Gohres and Mitchell Ellis. Capt. Brumund officiated as pilot and Capt. Chase had charge of the commissary department, and a large supply of provisions and a week's trip if it had been necessary, was on board.

Stops were made at Otter Tail Point, Sugar Point, Bear Island, Boy river, Squaw Point, Sucker bay and one or two spots along the shores where the Indians who were wanted were to be found. Monday evening while the party were getting around their camp fire on Sugar Point they were visited by Horace Dunaway and three of his corps of United States surveyors, who are now on Bear Island. Tuesday an attempt was made to go up Boy river, but it was full of logs at the mouth and a run was the only way made to a landing, whence Tufts and the policeman made a portage with a canoe across a couple of miles of land to the river, and the rest of the party spent the whole of the day lying around waiting for their return, all except Harry Brumund, who was busy trading with the Indians and securing a supply of maple sugar. Sugar, however, seems to be a scarce article this year. Muskrat skins, which Brumund also tried to get, are likewise scarce and the Indians are backward about selling them even at prices as good as 18 cents.

The return landing was made about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

While engine No. 8 on the Minnesota & International was running light up the track Wednesday forenoon, the rails spread about half a mile beyond the station, and the engine toppled over on its side and partially buried itself in the mud. Bridge Superintendent Bachor did not consider it necessary to send for the wrecking car, but started in with jacks and other appliances to raise the engine and get it on the rails again. In the meantime a temporary track was built around the wreck and regular train service was not interrupted.

Archdeacon Appleby will be in Walker next Sunday and will hold service in the school house in the evening. He will also conduct a service at the agency.

Flotation of the Higgins Development Company In Arizona.

Champion Mine People Refuse to Talk About Dividend.

Houghton, Mich., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Easily the most important Arizona flotation of the year is the Higgins Development company, organized a week ago, with a capital of $500,000, to take over the well-known Higgins claims, adjoining the Copper Queen mine, at Bisbee, Ariz. These claims have long been regarded as valuable but the owner, who is a bit of a misanthrope, would not sell to the Copper Queen people, and his price was too high for other purchasers. The claims are held under bond and lease at $675,000, on which the first payment has been made. The stock was oversubscribed by noon of the day of issue, without a line of advertising, which shows that the absorptive capacity of the lake investors has not yet been reached. The Higgins company is also notable for the fact that it brings new blood into the Arizona game, as several prominent investors in Detroit and Boston are heavily interested. The Detroit people have but small holdings in Arizona mines, and Boston has held aloof entirely until recently, but the continued contemplation of a copper stock boom in which the professionals of the Hub had no part was too much for the Eastern men, and from now on they may be expected to take a hand in the game—playing cautiously at first, and for high stakes later on, as is the habit of the Boston investor, who prides himself on his conservatism, yet will go the limit when warmed up.

The World's Fair group of twelve claims on the flank of Sacramento Hill, not far from the Copper Queen and Calumet & Arizona mines, Bisbee, is to be organized upon by a local company, the preliminary organization of which is being effected, though a title has not been chosen yet. The first payment of $20,000 on the bond of $200,000 will probably be made on Monday next, and the company fully organized next week.

The management of the Champion mine has nothing to say regarding the alleged declaration of a dividend of $1. Whether silence is wise is a matter on which opinions differ. The Champion is a great mine, and its productive capacity is being crowded. It is probable that a closer selection of rock broken will be made eventually, which will enable the mill to show a larger return of ingot per ton milled than is now the case.

Messrs. Agassiz, Livermore and Leavitt, of the Calumet & Hecla, Todd of the Quincy, Adventure and Rhode Island, and Fay of the Trimountain, Centennial and other mines, have visited their properties in this district during the week. The men at the head of these properties and the people at the head of the Stanton and Stanton-Paine groups of mines believe that a mine management should keep in touch with their properties by frequent visits. The correctness of this policy is so obvious that it is rather remarkable that it is not the universal practice.

Oscoda's production is increasing, though not as rapidly as had been expected. The output of the mine for the current year cannot reach the high-water mark predicted earlier in the season, but should show a substantial gain over the production of any preceding year.

No. 3 shaft of the Winona will soon be started, and it is hoped that this shaft may open a good stretch of productive ground, in which case the Winona will be able to plan on aregular output.

No. 3 shaft of the Victoria, nearly a quarter mile west of the present main shaft, is to be sunk, with a view to becoming an important productive factor of the mine. The magnificent water power of the Victoria gives this mine a fine start in the race. The dam was completed last fall and the canal of nearly a mile in length, largely through sandstone, is progressing rapidly.

The recent assessment of $1 per share on Phoenix did not surprise lake shareholders. Delay in receipts of machinery and the consequent abandonment of the date of beginning production placed the finances of the company in a position where common prudence dictated the levying of another small assessment, which should prov. the final call. The mine is looking well and work at the mill is nearing completion. The Phoenix should be able to begin stamping with one head in July, and as a fine stockpile of good rock has been accumulated, should make a satisfactory showing.

Lake people are awaiting with deep interest the starting of the new deep shaft of the Allouez, planned to develop the Kearsarge lode at depth. It is to be hoped that the management will not devote further time or money to the Allouez conglomerate lode at the present. With a paying mine opened on the amygdaloid the conglomerate might be worked at a profit, but the risk of working the conglomerate alone is too great.

The sporadic cases of labor troubles noted at the lake mines last month have all been settled satisfactorily, by mutual compromises, and there is no evidence of any further troubles of the sort. Although the lake mines now employ 16,000 men, there are few important mining districts in the world where labor troubles are so few, and none where the strikes are so entirely free from violence or bitterness on the part of both employer and employe.

The Elm River company is said to feel much encouraged by the promise of a workable lode given by the Winona amygdaloid. Where opened on the Elm River lands.

The Arcadian is confining operations to its Douglass shaft and diamond drilling. The mine is producing refined copper at the rate of about 50,000 pounds monthly.

Mohawk's production for April was but a trifle under 400 tons. No. 4 shaft is fully demonstrating its value and verifying the rosy predictions made for it by admirers in the past.

Local promoters are arranging to organize upon claims in the Huachuca mountains, west of Bisbee, Ariz. The Mitchell Development company already has claims undergoing development in the Huachucas, but is hampered by delay in receipt of needed machinery. The surface showing of the Mitchell could scarcely be better, but the district is a new one, hence it is desired to sink below the present depth of 150 feet, and prove the territory at considerable depth. Lake people are also heavily interested in mining lands in the Chiricahua mountains of Arizona, where mining work is to be undertaken this season.

St Mary's Canal Mineral Land company mine, one on section 12 adjoining the Globe tract, the other near Thirteen-Mile Creek. The canal company sold the lands that now comprise the Calumet & Hecla, Tamarack, Baltic, Trimountain and Champion mines, but in the case of the latter retained a half interest in the property. The canal company will endeavor in the future to open a few good mines of its own, if such can be found on its lands, which is pretty nearly a certainty, if enough work be done, as the landed holdings are upwards of 100,000 acres, nearly all located on the mineral belt.

The Globe tract, lying next south of the Champion mine, is, perhaps the most valuable undeveloped mineral property in the district, and its owner, John Stanton, is said to have refused $1,000,000 for it. Diamond drills were operated last season, and are said to have tapped the Baltic lode and to have found it rich. Whether drilling will be resumed this season is not known.

The improvement in the percentage of copper being secured from the Atlantic mine continues. If any mine deserves luck, it is this. It has been, for a quarter century past, the lowest grade mine in active operation at any point on the globe, and has been kept going by a rare combination of skill, economy and courage.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

THE WESTERN COAL MARKET

Movement By the Lakes Heavy—Anthracite Trade Active.

Chicago, May 9.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal market, this week, says:

Except for the continued pronounced activity in anthracite the coal market is very quiet and comparatively dull. Prices on bituminous have not sagged to an important extent, although occassionally some lower figures may be noted on spot coal that is drawing car charges, but the demand is not active. This is largely due to the advent of summer conditions, which have resulted in a quiet consuming demand and have, of course, influenced the movement of coal to the consuming trade, operating interests continue to take a firm view of the situation and are not making any sacrifices to move their tonnage. They prefer that their mines should remain idle or that coal should move into storage rather than it be sold at figures which are lower than the contract basis.

Movement of Eastern coals to the West is largely confined to the great lakes. Vessels are in fair supply at Ohio and Pennsylvania loading ports and freight rates are fairly equitable, causes which contribute to a much heavier movement than a year ago. This movement is further accelerated by the fact that Northwestern docks were bare at the commencement of the season and the docks interests prefer that there shall be an over supply for next winter's use rather than an under supply. To create a normal stock at principal lake ports, it will be necessary that all previous records in the movement of bituminous coal shall be broken, and this is what the operating interests are attempting to do.

In the Chicago spot market prices are fairly steady. Occasionally it is noted that Pittsburg coals are sold on spot at from 15 to 25 cents below the established price, but in such instances the lower figures are named by the smaller interests who have no dock capacity and who must ship their tonnage all-rail. Such operators, of course, look to Chicago and the west as a market and are inclined to reduce their prices in an effort to force the movement. However, even these smaller operators are not inclined to cut their prices as deeply as usual during the warmer weather, owing to the fact that the cost of producing coal is much greater, and any losses resulting from price cutting will be comparatively heavy. In western coals there is not much activity in the market at the present time. Some new contracts were closed with the first of the month or since then, and in very many instances operating companies now announce that they have no more coal to sell in this way. Generally, it may be said that contracts have been closed from one or two weeks later than a year ago, but large buyers are realizing more and more the possibility of extreme high prices again next winter, and, rather than run the risk of paying these figures, are taking hold. Western lump has held fairly firm, but occasionally figures from 10 to 15 cents below established prices are noted. Mine run coal from the western fields is sensitive to market conditions and shows frequent fluctuations on the spot. This is either due to an over-supply at the mines or at selling points.

Movement of coals seems to be about normal, the railroad transportation situation having improved to an extent that makes it no longer much of a factor in the haul on all-rail coal. From the mines of West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania to lake ports on westbound coals there is some complaint of a shortage of cars, but it does not seem to be much of a factor yet. Later in the season it is expected that it will be, however.

In the anthracite trade the new May prices, amounting to an advance of ten cents a ton, were put in effect without any friction. As a matter of fact, the trade has become so accustomed to the graduated scale of prices which prevails during the summer on this commodity that there was no reason why there should be any friction. Furthermore, the demand for anthracite continues so insistent and so active that it is not a question of price with most householders. It is a question of obtaining coal and obtaining it in sufficient quantities so that there will be no repetition of the famine of last winter.

The number of orders carried from April into May, untilled, because the coal could not be moved forward fast enough, is reported to have been accepted in the history of the Western trade. Most of these orders were accepted by selling agents with the understanding that if they were not filled in April they should receive attention as early as possible at the current prices when coal could be moved forward. Selling agents are now giving these attention and are moving out this coal as fast as possible. However, they represented such a large volume of business that in some quarters it is a question whether they can be filled the present month. In support of this statement, it is only necessary to point out that very few of the selling companies have as yet sent out their traveling representatives. Some of the largest companies have instructed their salesmen to remain off the road the entire month and are now known to be inclined this early in the month, to refuse to accept new business and take care of it before June. Others say that they have accepted orders for practically all the coal they can get forward in May and they are therefore not seeking new business. It looks now as if the early summer months, at least, would be active, and in some quarters it is believed this activity will continue till well towards September.

AT THE MINNESOTA MINE.

TOWER AND SOUDAN.

Minnesota mine has been running for a long time, and while the end is not yet in sight, there must be an end to it, and it is possibly not very far in the future. The lumber mills and logging operations help the city, but their limit is more clearly defined than that of mining. The general impression seems to be that while there are now no other mines at Tower, it is incredible that there should be just this one mine there, twenty miles away from the great Ely deposit, and that explorations will yet show up more valuable deposits.

If they have done so up to date it has been kept very quiet, and it is not believed that anything very definite is known about the extent of the ore on the Western Vermilion. There has been some exploring, and there is some still, but it is hard and expensive work, and it is not being prosecuted so forcibly as it would be if the deposits at the Minnesota were rapidly near exhaustion.

The Minnesota mine, like the other older mines of the Vermilion range, is a deep and wide network of shafts, drifts and levels, not unlike a great honeycomb. No ore is being taken at a lesser depth than 600 feet in all the Vermilion range, and some of the levels are deeper than 1000 feet. There is no indication whatever on the surface of all this great system, bewildering to the stranger who goes beneath the surface, but clear as a city's streets to those familiar with the mine.

It is all interesting, every inch of the ground from Tower to Soudan. Standing beside the McKinley memorial monument, at the eastern end of the city, is a most charming and absorbing view. At the foot of a decline runs East Two Rivers, and across are the spacious grounds occupied by the residence of Capt. John Pengilly, superintendent of the Minnesota and Chandler mines. The valley runs beyond and over the foothills can be seen the houses of Soudan, with a glimpse of the mines to the left. A good road and a continuous sidewalk connect Tower and Soudan.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

A Clark Family Poisoned By Eating Ice Cream.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Clark—The members of R. Ackerman's family, living north of town, were poisoned by eating ice cream. Mrs. Ackerman is seriously sick.

Clark is planning to incorporate as a city and put in waterworks.

N. A. Hurlbert, living near Raymond, has struck a fine flow of water at a depth of 11,000 feet.

Deadwood—The combination theater has passed from the possession of John Ryan to Frank Sater, who came to Deadwood recently from Denver. Mr. Sater has obtained a county license for the retail liquor business in the place, and has applied for a city license. The theater was closed by the mayor on the ground that it was disorderly institution, and he refused to permit it to reopen as long as Mr. Ryan remained as proprietor.

Mrs. Sarah Ingersoll, wife of John Ingersoll, died at the age of 70 years. She was a native of Ohio.

Vermillion.— Mrs. G. E. Wiltse is in the city from Frank, Alberta, on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Brosius. She was an eye witness of the awful disaster which visited that town, and was only a block away from that section which was covered by the land slide. Her husband is secretary and treasurer of the coal mines there, and was obliged to remain and take charge of affairs. Mrs. Wiltse says the town of Frank will be no more in a short time, but another will spring up in a safer locality not far distant. The coal mine will be operated from another point.

The remains of A. J. Opland were laid to rest in the cemetery at Prairie Center. His death was due to a blood clot on the brain. He had been a prosperous farmer of Clay county for many years.

Aberdeen.—L. D. Spore, a late arrival from Vincennes, Ind., is much worried over the disappearance of a brother, Charles G. Spore, who left Vincennes with a car load of stock and immigrant movables. He was in Chicago with the car on April 30, but has not been heard of since. The car reached here Sunday last, but the man was not with it and no trace of him can be found.

He had $70 in cash in his pockets when he left Indiana, and also had a bank book showing a balance of about $2500 in a bank there. The book was found with other property in the car.

Huron.—The examination of applicants for positions as clerks and carriers in the government service was attended here by six young ladies who hope to become postal clerks and seven young men who aspire to be carriers.

A collection of 388 eggs collected by Henry Schaller of this city has been presented by him to the state agricultural college, and will be placed beside the collection of birds, reptiles and animals recently sold by him to the state. The eggs include some very rare specimens.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Information has been filed in the district court against Jesse Howard and Henry Bradford, who were mixed up in a shooting scrape here last winter. The men will be tried in a few days. Howard endeavored to chop up a tough negro woman with an ax, because she made some disparaging remarks about a woman in whom he was interested. Bradford was a friend of the woman on whom the ax was used and took revenge by shooting Howard in the legs with a shot gun.

Gus Hahne and Fred Miller, well known farmers in the western part of the county, have been arrested on the charge of cutting ditches and damaging property. The warrants were sworn out some time ago and held till the men came to town. It is said the drains were backing water on their farms, and they released the water which flooded the fields of others.

An insane man, who gives the name of William Siggers, was brought in from the country, where he has been begging meals several days. He seems to be an escaped patient from some asylum. His hallucination is that he has been in a wreck and lost both legs.

Devils Lake—When Undertaker John Nimmo went to the Hartman farm Wednesday to take charge of the remains of Samuel McSherry, the young man who was killed Tuesday by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in his own hands, he found tatooed on one of the arms of the deceased the name "P. S. Cox." James Donohue of this city, who worked with McSherry last fall through threshing, says McSherry told him he was a married man and had left his wife at Canton or Marion, Ohio. He also said McSherry served in the Philippines as a member of the Fourteenth Infantry, U. S. A., and that while intoxicated he re-enlisted, but that when he sobered up and realized what he had done he deserted.

Lisbon—The spring term of the district court is in session this week. The calendar has many criminal and civil cases. There has been but one case disposed of as yet, that of the state vs. Nels Lindberg, charged with horse-stealing. Lindberg was given a year at the penitentiary.

Mrs. J. W. Balderson, residing west of town, died from blood poisoning.

DE LONG & CHAMBERLAIN'S PLANT AT NICKERSON, MINN.

The above cut shows the sawmill and planing mill of DeLong & Chamberlain, lumber manufacturers at Nickerson, Minn. The mill has an annual output of about 45,000,000 feet, running eleven months in the year. It is equipped with modern machinery and has a hot pond for winter sawing. The mill is cutting on contract for the Scanlon-Gipson Lumber company, of Minneapolis, whose logs are hauled to Nickerson over the Minnesota & North Wisconsin logging railway. It is estimated that enough timber remains within range of the Scanlon-Gipson operations to keep the mill operating for about a year and a half longer, when it will probably be removed to the Pacific coast. To the right of the lake is seen the log dump, in the center background is the Scanlon-Gipson office of the local superintendent and to the left is the general store of DeLong & Chamberlain, and some of the houses of the settlement.

SITUATION IN CHINA IS GREATLY RELIEVED

Russia Intends to Evacuate Manchuria Soon.

Concerted Action of Nations Not Necessary.

Paris, May 11.—The French minister at Pekin reports that Minister Conger, following instructions, has notified the Chinese government of the assurances regarding Manchuria which Russia has given the United States, directly through American Ambassador McCormick, and also through Ambassador Cassini, and says the Russian charge d'affaires at Pekin has given the Chinese officials similar assurances. The French minister all thus the Chinese officials are not gravely concerned by Russia's alleged designs on Manchuria, being fully satisfied with the foregoing assurances.

The feeling here, which is strongly sympathetic with Russia, has been greatly relieved by the official advice from Washington, summing up the results of the conference between Secretary Hay, Ambassador Cassini and the Japanese minister, particularly the contradiction of the report that Mr. Hay had telegraphed to President Roosevelt relative to the question of joint action on the part of Great Britain, Japan and the United States, which report aroused serious apprehensions here of possible international entanglements.

London, May 11.—The under foreign secretary, Lord Cranborne, announced in the house of commons today that the British consul at New Chwang reported that there had been no reoccupation of New Chwang by the Russians. Friendly communications on the matter, he added, had been addressed to the Russian government during the last few days by the United States and Great Britain independently, and the Russian government, in reply, had intimated that it would adhere to its engagements to evacuate Manchuria, although the evacuation was temporarily delayed. Russia has also explained that she had no intention of adopting any measure tending to exclude foreign consuls or obstruct foreign commerce or the use of the ports. Under these circumstances the British government saw no reason for securing concerted action between the United States, Japan and Great Britain with the object, as suggested by his questioner, Joseph Walton (Liberal), "of arriving at a definite agreement with Russia for the prompt fulfillment of her assurance."

GREAT NORTHERN TROUBLE MAY RESULT IN COMPROMISE

Indications There Will Not Be a Strike.

Number of Concessions Made By the Road.

St. Paul, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A little before noon today, General Manager Ward of the Great Northern road met the representatives of the Trainmen's Brotherhood in his office for the further consideration of the differences over the handling of double header trains.

The count of the votes of the men was completed this morning. All of the poll was in the hands of the men's committee Sunday except from the Cascade division, which was counted this morning. No definite statement about the count would be given out, the men withholding such information until after the conference with General Manager Ward. Before going to the Great Northern offices, the trainmen's committee met a number of the conductors in secret conference and the reported compromise offer of the railroad is said to have been under discussion.

The conference lasted nearly two hours. The detailed vote of the men was submitted to the general manager and the situation discussed fully. At the end of the conference Mr. Ward announced that no decision had been reached, and the committee had retired to consider a tentative proposition made by him and would return later in the day with their decision. He added that it had been agreed not to disclose the nature of his proposition for the present. No statement of the vote was given out, but some of the committeemen declared that the cause of the men had been sustained by an overwhelming majority.

The indications are there will not be a strike. About twenty-five association men, conductors and trainmen, most of whom have been long in the service of the company, held a conference with General Manager Ward yesterday, in an endeavor to avoid a strike. These men, while loyal to the association, are said to be disinclined to any radical measures, and the conference was asked for with a view to securing some sort of a compromise—something that would not mean a square backdown for either side.

Mr. Ward made a number of concessions, the most important of which was an offer to agree that not more than 3 per cent of the trains on the whole system should be run as double headers. This is about the percentage now run. The men are said to regard this offer as a liberal one. They claim that by the agreement entered into with the Northern Pacific and the Southern Pacific, those roads can run from 7 to 10 per cent double headers, if they choose.

Although the committee is sustained by the poll taken, it does not necessarily mean that there will be a strike. If further negotiations do not result in a compromise of the difficulty the committee have been given power to enforce the demands by declaring a strike. But they are also empowered to effect a compromise without submitting further proposal to the referndum. The matter, therefore, is now entirely in the hands of the grand officers of the association and the general committee of the Great Northern employes, with indications that conservative counsels will prevail and a crucial test of strength be avoided.

THE POWERS WILL NOT ALLOW TURKEY TO INJURE BULGARIA

Official Note Shows That Bulgaria's Course Is Approved and the Porte Will Be Prevented From Adopting Any Stern Measures Against Her.

Paris, May 11.—There was a simultaneous publication this morning in Paris, Vienna and St. Petersburg of the official view of the Bulgarian situation. It appeared in Figaro here, the Neue Freie Presse, of Vienna, and in the official organ at St. Petersburg, and carries out the idea, previously cabled to the Associated Press, that the powers are satisfied with the correctness of the Bulgarian course and will not tolerate the adoption by the sultan of Turkey of stern measures against Bulgaria on account of the Salonica outrages.

It is pointed out that the question is not merely one between a suzerain and a vassal, but is one between Turkey and the powers signatory of the Berlin convention, mainly France, Austria and Russia, owing to their geographical position. The official communication sums it up as follows:

Two important points mark the present status of the imbroglio. First, the Bulgarian government is not responsible for the Macedonian violence and second, neither St. Petersburg, Vienna nor Paris have the intention to permit Bulgaria to be held responsible.

The communication closes with the statement that the porte's first duty is to carry out the general plan for the Balkan reforms, repress the Albanian agitators and punish the murderer of the Russian consul, adding: "If Turkey persists in diverting attention by menacing Bulgaria the ambassadors of the powers may shortly remind the porte of what the powers expect."

POLICE HAVE SHAM BATTLE FOR MOVING PICTURE SCENE

The People Around Tompkinsville Witness What They Take to Be a Fierce Battle Between Policemen and Fierce River Pirates.

Chicago, May 11.—A dispatch to the Inter-Ocean from New York says: A battle between the policemen who man the police boat and a squad of policemen disguised as river pirates has been fought off the shore of Tomkinsville. There was no bloodshed but the battle looked real enough, and a number of Staten Island residents on the Bay Ridge shore were convinced that the police had made an important capture of river thieves. The police patrol fired a number of shots from its two five pounders at the pirates. The contending forces clashed, brandishing clubs, strips of rubber hose, and revolvers, and the fire boat New Yorker, with steam up, stood a short distance away, apparently ready to give the police help, should it be needed. As a matter of fact, the fight was arranged for movement pictures to be shown in the public parks during the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of New York. The patrol with two launches and several row boats was used in the fight. Two of the pirates pretended to be shot and fell to the bottom of their boat. A hand to hand conflict wound up the proceedings.

BUNCH OF HIGHBINDERS ARRESTED

San Francisco, May 11.—Four of the eleven presidents of the See Yup society have been arrested for conspiracy to murder 300 members of the Chinese society of English education, and two of them, Gee Hong, who is not only the president of the On Yick Highbider Tong, but of the See Yups, and Lee Ying, president of the Bow Long Tong, have made complete confessions to the police. The other seven presidents are in hiding, but will be arrested as fast as they can be found upon charges of conspiracy to commit murder and it is believed that the evidence already obtained is sufficient to send them all to the penitentiary for long terms. The men under the ban of the See Yup society were suspected of giving the authorities information regarding gambling under police protection in Chinatown.

DOG HAS ARISTOCRATIC BURIAL

New York, May 11.—Lying in a rosewood coffin, his head resting on a pillow of flowers, the body of Tyras, a Harlequin Great Dane dog was borne away to the dog cemetery at Scarsdale, followed by a procession of nine automobiles, which carried about forty mourners. Tyras belonged to an actor and character impersonator. The dog was 13 years old, had appeared on the stage in nearly every country in the world. He had been twice around the globe, had played before the czar of Russia, the empress of China, the mikado of Japan and at the time of his death wore a beautiful collar given to him by Cecil Rhodes. The dog was presented ten years ago by Prince Charles of Denmark to his owner, and in the actor's presentation of "great men of the past and present" he always had the dog by his side in his impersonation of Bismarck, as Bismarck for years was always accompanied by his Reischund. While returning from Australia last January with his master the dog became blind while the ship was crossing the equator. Arriving in New York, he was taken to a dog hospital, where he died of Bright's disease. A large granite monument will mark Tyras' last resting place.

MORE TROUBLE IN BROOKLYN

Striking Workmen Attempt to Assault Those Working.

New York, May 11.—Serious troubles arising out of the recent strikes inaugurated in Brooklyn, occurred in various sections of that borough today. A gang of striking blacksmiths descended upon two blacksmith shops in turn and severely beat a number of the non-union men employed there. In both cases the police were called, but the strikers fled before the arrival of the police.

A delegation of Italians tried to stop men at work repaving the streets. Wherever the strikers appeared they were met by the police and dispersed. In some instances the police were obliged to use their clubs.

At a meeting of subway strikers in this city today, which was attended by about 6000 men, it was decided to continue the strike for six months, if necessary. The Italian subway excavators maintain that their fight is against the Padrone system and assurances will have to be given them by the contractors that they shall be hired through their union representatives instead of through Padrones. They also demand that some substantial increase in wages be guaranteed them, and they are unwilling to await the delay of arbitration on the wage question. The State Island carpenters, 400 in number, are again on strike. One of the firms in paying the men on Saturday, told them to quit for the rest of the day and deducted two hours' time. The men reported to the union and all the union carpenters were called out.

STEAMER DISABLED.

The English King Was Making Repairs at Sea.

New York, May 11.—The Cunard liner Ivernia, which arrived today from Liverpool, passed on May 6 the British steamer English King, with signals displayed, "Not under control, machinery disabled." The English King did not require assistance and was making repairs. She is bound from Antwerp for Boston.

Col. C. M. Watson, British commissioner to the St. Louis exposition, was a passenger on the Ivernia.

BRODRICK PUZZLED.

Milini Has Fun With the War Secretary.

London, May 11.—Milini, the American card performer, had some fun at the expense of St. John Brodrick, the secretary of war, the other night. Henry White gave a dinner party, at which Milini gave an exhibition. Mr. Brodrick did not seem to be much impressed, which nettled the performer, who borrowed a $5 bill from Mr. White and asked Mr. Brodrick what he should do with it. "Oh," said Mr. Brodrick, "you Americans are such clever financiers, turn it into a £5 note." Milini grasped the hand of Mr. Brodrick and pressed into it a piece of paper. The latter found a new Bank of England "fiver." "Clever," said Mr. Brodrick, "but can you depreciate values as well as increase them?" "Certainly," answered Milini. Taking the bill and repeating his maneuvers, he held a $1 bill under the war secretary's nose.

WOMAN WALLED UP BY UNWILLING MASON

Most Horrible Crime Is Perpetrated In the City of Baku.

New York, May 11.—A stone mason was at work on an old wall in the center of the town when a carriage drove up to him, two masked men jumped out, threw a bag over his head, bundled him into the carriage and galloped away, says a dispatch from Baku to the Herald.

After half an hour's furious driving the mason was told to alight, the sack was taken from his head and he found himself in an old-fashioned court yard.

He was pushed through a door into a corridor and in an empty room he noticed an opening in a stone wall in which was wedged a woman trembling and with terrified face.

The men who had brought the mason pointed revolvers at his breast and ordered him to wall up the opening with the woman behind it, threatening to shoot him dead if he refused. Stones, mortar and trowels were in the room. He was told that the woman was a Mahommedan who had injured her husband.

The mason built up the opening, the sack was again drawn over his head and three-quarters of an hour later he was put out of the carriage at a lonely part of the city.

As soon as he could free himself of the sack, he did so, but the carriage had disappeared. He went immediately to the police and told his story, but although the police are ransacking the houses in the Mohammedan quarter, they can find no trace of the locality of this horrible crime.

THE STRIKE SITUATION AT OMAHA IS GROWING WORSE

Eighteen of the Large Laundries of the City Lock Their Doors For Fear That the Employes Would Go Out on a Strike.

Omaha, May 11.—The strike situation in Omaha was further complicated this morning by the closing of eighteen of the large laundries in the city, and the locking out of 500 laundry workers. This action was taken by the laundrymen after an extended conference last night and a request from the laundry workers union that they do not attempt work for hotels, restaurants and other places which have been declared "unfair."

During a meeting of the Laundry Workers' union, which was attended by representatives of the unions whose members were already on strike, a committee was sent to the laundrymen, in session at a local hotel, to present the request. Without making answer the laundrymen decided to close down their plants today, thus locking out the men who they feared would declare a strike. Chairman Kimball, of Tri-City Laundrymen's club, says the union does not represent a majority of the laundry workers. He said there were sufficient non-union employes left to run the laundries, but he feared for the safety of the employes, and that therefore, the laundrymen had decided to close indefinitely. The shut-down will be general.

HAVEMEYER CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

Yonkers, N. Y., May 11.—The challenge recently made by John C. Havemeyer to the labor unions of the city, in which he offered to propound various questions for labor union speakers to answer at a public meeting, the expense to be borne by him, has been officially accepted by the local branch of the Federated union. The vote to accept the challenge was unanimous. There were delegates present from twelve of the locals. It was at first deemed expedient to confine the speakers to Yonkers men, but the point was raised that Mr. Havemeyer would in all probability have the support of a great many wealthy men of the country, and for that reason the ablest labor speakers in the country are to be obtained to answer him.

LOSS AT OTTAWA WILL BE HEAVY

Ottawa, Ont., May 11.—About 500 houses destroyed, probably 3000 people homeless, and a financial loss of fully $500,000, is the result of a conflagration which yesterday devastated the city between the Ottawa & Parry Sound tracks on the east, Albert on the north and the tracks of the Canadian Pacific at Third avenue on the west. About one-half the loss is covered by insurance. While it is generally believed last night that an incendiary had started the fire, doubts were thrown upon this theory today. It was said today that the blaze was seen in the grass before it seized the lumber. From ten to fifteen million feet of lumber burned. The buildings destroyed were dwelling houses and stores. No lives are known to have been lost. While the buildings were all pretty well insured, some of the tenants had nothing on their furniture. A good many of these, however, succeeded in saving their effects. Through an accident to the water pipes, it was nearly an hour after the fire was discovered before water was thrown upon the flames, which in the meantime had made great headway. Assistance arrived from Montreal but was not required. The military was called out to aid the civil power in combatting the fire.

(Earlier reports of the fire will be found on page nine.)

AN AMERICAN LINER HAS A CLOSE CALL

Fire Broke Out on the Friesland When Four Days at Sea.

Chicago, May 11.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Philadelphia says: The American liner Friesland, which came into port yesterday from Liverpool with 114 Cabin and 638 steerage passengers, was in grave danger of destruction by fire during the voyage.

From one of the passengers it was learned that on the fourth day out Capt. Pheld was at breakfast with the passengers, when news that the ship was afire was taken to him by the second officer. Excusing himself so as not to alarm the passengers, the captain mounted to the upper deck, where smoke was pouring from the hatch in dense volumes.

With an order to have the pumps manned Capt. Pheld soon had men engaged in her slinging out bales of cotton and barrels of resin, paraffin and wax. Capt. Pheld with the cry "come on men; there's work to be done," seized a rope and swung himself into the hold, although several had been nearly suffocated on the first attempt.

In the course of an hour's time, the fire had been conquered. Near the place where the fire originated were barrels of oil. Had they ignited nothing could have saved the ship. In their fight Capt. Pheld's and the men's faces, arms and limbs were blistered.

To show their appreciation of the fearlessness of the men in charge of the ship, the passengers drew up a set of complimentary resolutions and presented them to the captain.

THE SMUGGLING OF VALUABLE JEWELS INCREASING RAPIDLY

Rich Americans Who Buy Gems Abroad Are Making Every Effort to Get Them Into This Country Without Paying the Required Duty.

New York, May 1.—William H. Thobold, former special agent of the treasury department, makes the statement that more smuggling is going on now than there has been at any previous time in the history of the United States government. Of his own personal knowledge, he said, he knew of four pearl necklaces, no one of which was worth less than $30,000, having been brought into the port of New York without paying a cent of duty. Further than this, he said he knew of at least four firms in Maiden lane who are engaged in the unlawful traffic, and that he can place his hands upon them at a moment's notice. Ludwig Nissen, who has been chosen to go abroad to bring about a more thorough understanding between the foreign agents of the treasury department and the dealers there, says:

"Smuggling among merchants is less than it has ever been before. I don't believe there are any large or responsible houses that countenance it. The trade is confined to rather narrow lines, and we can get a pretty good idea of it when any house does that sort of thing.

"But the smuggling by travelers has been steadily on the increase. Rich Americans go by thousands to Europe every summer, and the number of those who try to bring back diamonds and other jewels without paying duty is large and increasing. Many seizures have been made in the last few years, but, as it is with gamblers, for every one that is caught many go free. If these people only knew it, they could buy diamonds cheaper here (with the duty added) than in Europe, because the merchants there invariably charge the highest prices to the rich Americans."

WOMAN ATTACKED BY BULL DOGS

Syracuse, N. Y., May 11.—Mrs. Thomas B. Leonard is at her home in a precarious condition as the result of an attack made upon her by two ferocious bulldogs. Mrs. Leonard tried to separate the dogs, which were fighting on the piazza of her house, when she was knocked down and almost chewed to pieces by the animals. The dogs attacked her simultaneously, one burying his teeth in her throat and the other seizing her by her left arm. They bore her to the steps and gashed her with their teeth, disfiguring her face and arms in a terrible manner. She probably will carry the marks for life. A colored man went to her assistance and dragged both dogs away. Mrs. Leonard's body bore twenty marks from the teeth of the dogs. A large piece of flesh was torn from her lower lip, part of the right cheek is torn away, her left arm is torn and mangled and her right arm almost completely covered with prints of the dogs' teeth. The attending physicians say Mrs. Leonard will live.

BOLD HOLD-UP AT OSHKOSH

Keeper and Inmates of Mamie Seymour's Resort Robbed.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 11.—All the effort and inquiry of the police department has failed to discover a single clew to the identity or whereabouts of bandits who held up the resort of Mamie Seymour and robbed the inmates Sunday morning at the point of revolvers.

The story of the holdup as related by the inmates of the resort shows that it was conducted in real "road agent" style. Accounts differ as to the number of men engaged. Some say six, but all agree that there was no less than four. How the men entered the building is not clear. The first notice that the management had of the arrival was the appearance of the gang in the main room and the announcement that they had come for money, which announcement was made clear by the brandishing of revolvers.

The following incidents are best told by Harry Maxwell, a local saloonkeeper. According to Maxwell, he and Miss Seymour were eating a lunch. Suddenly the door of their private room opened and in walked the girls who make their home at the place, in single file and lock step. Behind them came a stranger, who was brandishing a revolver.

"Who are you?" demanded Maxwell.

"Who are you?" retorted the man who was driving the girls.

"I'm the 'main squeeze' about here," replied Maxwell.

"No, you are not," returned the bandit. "I'm the 'main squeeze.' Throw up your hands!" and the robber placed his pistol in Maxwell's face.

The bandits then searched Maxwell, and after relieving him of his $500 diamond pin, found only $3.35 in his clothes. They upbraided him for having so little money and one of them struck him a blow with a revolver that knocked him down. Maxwell saved his ring by throwing it under a lounge.

Miss Seymour was then despoiled of her jewelry. One diamond earring was torn from the ear, slicing the lobe. Then she was forced to open the safe and turn over the funds, which amounted to about $100. Maxwell and Seymour were then compelled to occupy certain chairs and place their feet on a table. All the girls were robbed of their jewelry, but later the bandits returned most of it. Among the guests was an Oshkosh married man, who lost a pin and a watch with his wife's picture pasted in the case. The robbers, on entering the house, kicked the telephone to pieces, and destroyed communication with the authorities. While they were ransacking the place a traveling man walked in and he was taken charge of and searched. All that his clothes contained was 35 cents. This was used to buy drinks for the crowd.

The piano was kept going all the time.

"What can you play?" asked the leader of the professor.

"Anything," was the response.

"Then get busy," firing a shot at the professor's feet, and they kept the man playing all the time they were there. After they got all the plunder in sight the robbers went to the barns, secured a rig and drove to town.

Then Miss Seymour turned in an alarm over a police patrol wire, but in her excitement she called out the fire department. The apparatus passed the bandits on their way in. Two men were standing at the horses' heads and four were in the vehicle. The rig was found this morning back of the Ives commission house.

Maxwell says the men were all smooth faced and two wore blue shirts. The leader, whom the others obeyed implicitly, was about 40 years old and slightly gray. Maxwell also lost an octagonal $50 gold piece that is worth several hundred dollars on account of its scarcity.

QUARANTINE RAISED.

Washington, May 11.—The secretary of agriculture has raised the quarantine upon cattle, sheep and other ruminants and swine in Rhode Island, which was imposed by order of Nov. 27, 1902. The department of agriculture announces that all animals affected with foot and mouth disease in the state have been destroyed and the premises occupied by them thoroughly disinfected.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY FOLK OF ST. LOUIS AND THE $15,000 HOUSE HE DECLINED TO ACCEPT.

Circuit Attorney Joseph Wingate Folk of St. Louis, the young man who has succeeded in breaking up one of the most corrupt municipal gangs ever known in this country, is again prominently in the public eye by reason of his recent refusal to accept a $15,000 residence which his admirers were anxious to present him as a testimonial of their appreciation of his work for good government. Mr. Folk declined on the ground that he is well paid for his services. Among the men sent to prison by Mr. Folk are half a dozen city councilmen, one millionaire and Ed Butler, the leading spirit in ward politics in St. Louis, a man who is said to be worth $5,000,000. Besides these, several wealthy men are fugitives from justice.

BUYS LAND GRANT

A. D. Davidson Negotiates Purchase From Canadian Pacific Road.

Duluth Men Interested In It—Three Million Acres.

Duluth parties are interested in a deal just closed whereby Minnesota capitalists have purchased 3,000,000 acres of land in the Canadian Northwest for $3,000,000.

The transaction, which is one of the largest land sales ever made in the United States or Canada, includes the entire land grant of the Canadian Northern railway. Not an acre is excepted.

The purchase was made by Col. A. D. Davidson, of Duluth, in Toronto, Saturday afternoon. Associated with him in the purchase are: A. D. McRae and George C. Howe, of Duluth; A. R. Davidson, of Little Falls, Minn.; D. H. McDonald, of Fort Q'Apelle, N. W. T.; A. J. Davidson, of Rostern, N. W. T.; and George F. Piper, F. E. Kenston and W. D. Douglas, all of Minneapolis.

St. Paul will be made the distributing point of this big deal, and as soon as the necessary formalities can be completed a new company, with a paid-up capital of $5,000,000, to be known as the Manitoba & Saskatchewan Valley Land company, limited, will be organized. Offices will be maintained in England for the purpose of promoting colonization and settlement on the lands.

The property is situated in the choicest part of Canada, and include all of the lands given the Canadian Northern by the government. The road extends from the boundary line to Winnipeg and its branches tap much of the Northwest territory.

The Canadian Northwest is the Mecca of the landseeker just now, and thousands of Americans have swarmed into that section in the past year or two. While the head offices will be in St. Paul, branches will be established in various parts of the country, including Duluth.

Col. Davidson was expected home from Toronto today.

Two million Americans suffer the torturing pangs of dyspepsia. No need to. Burdock Blood Bitters cures. At any drug store.

THANKS SOLDIERS.

President Makes Little Speech to Fifteenth Infantry.

Pajarado, Cal., May 11.—The presidential train left Del Monte at 8 a. m. A detachment of the Fifteenth Infantry commanded by Capt. Sweet accompanied the president from his hotel to the train. After the men had been drawn in line, the president stepped in front of them, and, addressing Capt. Sweet asked him to convey his thanks to the officers and men of the Fifteenth Infantry for the good care they had taken of him during his stay at Del Monte. A company of his regiment guarded the hotel last night and kept intruders from the grounds. At Pajardo, a stop of ten minutes was made, during which President Roosevelt made a short speech to the crowd collected at the depot.

THE HIGGINS PROPERTY.

Initial Payment Made and the Title Clear.

Houghton, Mich., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A telegram from Los Angeles, saying the initial payment of $100,000 on the claims in the Warren district in Arizona, recently secured under option by the Higgins Development company, had been made, and that the title to the property was clear, was a source of great relief to the holders in the company. The officers and shareholders feared some hitch might nullify the deal, hence their solicitude. The flotation of the Higgins Development is the biggest mining deal in the copper country since the Calumet and Arizona was floated by Calumet capitalists. Eleven claims, adjoining the noted Copper Queen mine, are in the group purchased and the promoters believe that when developed, the claims will be some of the greatest producers in the Warren district.

Although the largest holders of Higgins stock are not disposed to boom it the stock was sold for $10 par value, and now none is to be had for $15 to $20 bid. Samuel A. Parnell, son of the late Capt. William E. Parnell, is on the ground as superintendent of the new property. He formerly was with the Old Dominion at Globe, Arizona, and more recently had charge of the properties owned by A. C. Burrage, of the Standard Oil company in Mexico. Development work will be started at once.

AT WEST DULUTH

The West Duluth baseball team defeated Hibbing yesterday by the score of 10 to 3.

The game was a fast, closely-contested battle, and with the exception of two innings, was almost errorless.

In the third innings the West Duluth boys had a narrow escape from an ascension, and it was not until after three runs had been scored that they settled down. These three tallies were the only ones made by the Hibbing team.

In the fourth the Hibbing team took its skyward flight, and the West Duluth boys rolled up seven runs before the innings closed. In this innings Ed Robinson batted twice, making hits both times. Other hits with passes and several errors were responsible for the seven runs. In the remaining five innings but two runs were scored, and the play was fast and marked by brilliant fielding by both teams. The list of players with the score by innings is as follows:

West Duluth.		Hibbing.
Coughlin.....	short stop.....	Coughlan
Carey.....	left field	Haslin
Ed Robinson..	second base.....	Skinner
Williams....	third base	McIntyre
Faubister	center field	A. Kliffman
T. Robinson.....	center.....	F. Kliffman
Young.....	first base	Alrich
Bassatt.....	right field	Knapp
Larson.....	pitcher ...	Weaver and Thomas

West Duluth .....0 1 0 7 0 1 0 1 0—10

Larson pitched a magnificent game for West Duluth, allowing but three hits, one of which was a 2-bagger. Thomas replaced Weaver in the box for Hibbing after the fourth innings, and succeeded in holding down the visitors in good style.

It was the first appearance of the West Duluth team in their new suits, which are very trim and neat and made a fine showing.

The West Duluth boys are loud in their praises of the treatment they received. The umpire, H. D. Cowles, a Hibbing man, was very fair in his treatment of both teams, and not a kick was registered against his decisions. The best of accommodation and entertainment were provided, and the large crowd which was in attendance, while eager for a victory for the home team, cheered the good plays of both sides impartially.

TOUGH YOUNGSTERS.

A Gang of Tender Years Commit Much Crime.

West Duluth is at present infested by a gang of young hoodlums who have been causing the police no little trouble and annoyance during the past week. The members of the gang are but children, the oldest of them not being over 8 or 9 years.

Saturday, May 2, a boat house was broken into and the oars and oarlocks stolen. The following day another boathouse was broken into and the boat and fixtures taken.

Monday, May 4, a number of paper-hangers left their tools lying around the building at which they were working. The tools and overalls were stolen by the boys.

Wednesday two of them entered a house in West Duluth and stole $21 from a domestic. The money was all the girl's savings. It was later recovered by the police, however.

Thursday the children robbed a chicken coop, killing several valuable fowls and making off with others.

Last Friday they set fire to a small outbuilding. The blaze was extinguished before much harm was done, however.

In every case the plunder has been recovered by the police, but it is feared that these gangs hoodlums will commit some serious offense unless their parents keep a better watch over them.

"The police cannot touch them," said Lieut. Briggs today. "They are nearly all about 6 or 7 years of age, and are not supposed to be responsible for their acts. But their parents will have to do something, or the police will take the matter in hand and have them all sent to some institution where they will learn to respect the property of others."

HONOR THE DEAD

Usual Exercises to Be Held on Memorial Day.

Flowers to Be Strewn on Graves and on Waters.

Saturday, May 30, the fast-dwindling band of veterans of the war of the rebellion will once more formally remember their larger army of the dead by appropriate exercises and the usual decoration of the graves.

Flowers will be laid upon the sod that covers the remains of those who have passed away, and the women of the societies' auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic will perform the pretty ceremony of strewing flowers on the waters in memory of the sailors of the war who found their graves in the deep.

Plans are not yet completed, but in a general way they have been formed. The exercises will be held in the High School Assembly hall in the afternoon, and they will be preceded, if the weather permits, by a parade. The members of the G. A. R., the local militia companies, the school children and others will form at the postoffice and march to the Assembly hall. The local organizations will have a good speaker as the orator of the day, but he has not yet been selected. There will be appropriate speeches and music at the High School.

During Saturday afternoon delegations from the local posts will visit the different cemeteries where the country's honored dead repose, and the graves will be decorated with flowers.

An attempt will be made to have the local business men close their stores during the exercises, from 2 to 4 o'clock p. m.

In the morning the women of the auxiliary societies will repeat a pretty ceremony which was performed here for the first time last year. Flowers will be cast upon the waters of the lake from the canal piers in memory of those whose bones lie under the surge of the ocean.

In accordance with the usual custom, exercises of a patriotic nature will be held in the public schools on the day before Memorial day. WAS NO ASSAULT.

Police Say Freight Handlers Were Not Assailed.

The authorities say they can find no evidence of any assault having been committed on non-union freight handlers early yesterday morning.

The assault is supposed to have occurred on the Sixth avenue viaduct as the freight handlers were going to work at the Omaha sheds. Police Sergeant John Kenna was at the viaduct when the assault is said to have taken place and he said he could see nothing out of the ordinary. The union strikers also deny the reported assault.

DOCTOR IS FINED

Dr. A. A. Forbes Fined For Violating the Smallpox Quarantine.

Claimed He Was Persecuted For Anti-Vaccination Sentiments.

Dr. A. A. Forbes, of Woodland, paid a fine of $10 and costs in the municipal court this morning for violating the quarantine regulations of the health department early in January.

Ill health on the part of the defendant has prevented a hearing of the case until now, though it was originally set for hearing on the municipal court calendar for Jan. 9.

The assistant health officer quarantined the home of Dr. Forbes, claiming that a brother had a well developed case of small-pox. The quarantine cards were torn from the door and the health authorities promptly replaced the cards and secured a warrant against the physician.

Dr. Forbes came back with a written statement that he was being persecuted for an article he once wrote against vaccination, but Health Commissioner Robinson said the health inspectors were simply enforcing quarantine regulations.

The case was not fought to any great extent, but the hearing has been postponed a great many times on account of the defendant's illness. The fine imposed this morning was paid.

SYMPATHY STRIKE

Of the Southern Pacific Men Has Been Deferred.

Fifteen Days Granted to Civic Federation to Settle Matters.

New York, May 11.—Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the civic federation announces that he has received a telegram that the Southern Pacific threatened strike has been postponed fifteen days to give time for a settlement. The boilermakers on the Southern Pacific road were to have gone on strike today out of sympathy for the Union Pacific machinists strike, which has been on for about six months. Senator Hanna acting for the federation asked that this sympathetic strike be postponed pending efforts of the federation to bring about a settlement.

Earlier reports stated that the strikers had informed Senator Hanna that his request came too late, but Mr. Easley said these reports were unfounded and that the assurance had been received that a delay of 15 days had been granted.

The executive committee of the national civic federation meets in this city on Wednesday and the question of reaching a settlement in the Union Pacific matter will come up then.

Chicago, May 11.—The Chronicle today says: President H. G. Burt of the Union Pacific and J. C. Stubbs, third vice president and traffic manager of the Southern Pacific road, were central figures in conferences held in Chicago yesterday in efforts to forestall an alliance between the shopmen on the two systems in furtherance of the Union Pacific strike. All Saturday night stenographers were at work in the joint offices of the two systems, and yesterday the telegraph wires were kept busy with cipher messages from the same offices. Conferences between Mr. Burt and Mr. Stubbs included other advisors the identity of whom were guarded with the closest care. Last night none of the participants would discuss what had been done.

HONOR FOR HIS HONOR

Mayor Hugo's New Masonic Position Is an Important One.

Mayor Hugo has returned from Peoria, Ill., where he was elected grand sovereign of the Grand Imperial Council of the Knights of the Red Cross of Constantine.

The Red Cross of Constantine is the oldest Masonic chivalric order and one of the most exclusive. Mayor Hugo is now the highest officer of the order in the West and has jurisdiction over twenty-three states of the Union.

Duluth Masons are much elated as a result of the high honor conferred on the mayor and predict that he will make something of a reputation as a grand sovereign of the Grand Imperial Council of the order.

Very few of the local Masons belong to this particular branch of Masonry, there being scarcely more than a dozen members in the entire state of Minnesota, it is so exclusive.

In England the members of the Red Cross of Constantine are confined almost entirely to the nobility while the Eastern and Western jurisdictions in this country includes many distinguished men in national life.

As the chief officer of the Western jurisdiction, Mayor Hugo will look after the affairs of the order for Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California, and he will virtually be in supreme authority in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The mayor has little to say of his new office except that he highly appreciates the honor conferred at Peoria.

KENNEDY BOUND OVER.

Fremont, May 11.—Frank Kennedy, who was recently arrested at Sandusky and suspected of complicity in the Reichlin mburder at Lorain, is in jail here, having been bound over to the grand jury on the charge of grand larceny. It is charged that Kennedy robbed a hardware store at Bellevue on the night of the murder, but the police have thus far been unable to connect him with the killing of Miss Reichlin.

DEMAND IS LARGE

No Trouble About Selling City Bonds This Time.

At 4 Per Cent There Are a Number of Bidders.

At 4 per cent interest the city will have no trouble in selling the $10,000 block of water and light plant bonds which recently failed to sell at 3½ per cent.

The issue was re-advertised and besides local bidders there will be at least two outside concerns. It is reported that a substantial premium will be offered.

The sale is to raise money for extensions to the water and gas service, contracts for which have been let by the board of water and light commissioners.

City officers are perplexed that there should be such a general desire for these bonds at 4 per cent while the former offer at 3½ per cent went begging. It is now believed that the financiers did not fully realize that the issue was a gilt-edge security, being a direct lien on property benefitted.

The bids will be opened this evening at the council meeting and the successful bidder will be required to furnish the money within ten days after receiving notice that the bonds are ready for delivery.

The award will, of course, go to the highest bidder, but where it is possible local investment will be given the preference, especially as relates to individuals and local societies.

INTEREST ELSEWHERE.

Proposed Tar Macadam Paving Plant Attracts Attention.

The fact that Duluth is seriously considering the manufacturing of street paving under a municipal ownership, is giving the city much good advertising throughout the country.

Inquiries are coming in steadily and from the tone of these inquiries Duluth made tar-macadam paving will find a ready market in other Northwestern cities if the plant erected here can supply more material than is needed on local streets.

Under Alderman Mannheim's resolution instructing the city engineer to prepare plans and specifications for a municipal paving plant and advertising for suitable mixing apparatus, it is proposed to secure machinery that will turn out 1000 yards of tar-macadam a day.

WILL NOT SIGN IT.

Mayor Disapproves Purchase of a Sewer Outlet.

Mayor Hugo will veto the council's resolution paying $200 for the privilege of building a trunk sewer outlet in the right-of-way of the Duluth Belt Line Railway company.

The mayor says he cannot conceive of any reason why a franchise corporation should charge the city for an improvement of this nature and advises the council to acquire the sewer outlet by condemnation proceedings.

The sewer way affected is the first sanitary sewer outlet planned for bettering the sanitary condition of West Duluth. It is proposed to follow the course of Keene creek from Fifty-ninth avenue to St. Louis bay and in doing this the sewer runs through a part of the right-of-way of the Bay View Heights incline which is owned by the Belt Line Railway company.

It costs but 10 cents a week to have The Herald delivered regularly at your home either in city or suburbs.

INQUIRE INTO FREIGHT RATES

Railroad Commission to Look Into Iron Range Roads.

The state railroad and warehouse commission will listen to shippers' grievances Wednesday upon the alleged exorbitant rates for carrying merchandise on the range railroads.

The commission will also hear complaints on the rates on lumber and coal maintained on several of the Minnesota railroads.

It is claimed that numerous complaints have been made by shippers in regard to the rates charged for merchandise by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road and the Iron Range road.

There has been no hearing because no specific complaints have been lodged up to this time. Last week, however, one was made, and the commission set aside Wednesday as the day for hearing all sides of the controversy.

A SPEED WAR.

One Threatened on Chicago-St. Paul Lines.

The Northwestern railway has put on a new Chicago train out of St. Paul, leaving there at 8 o'clock at night and reaching Chicago at 8:30 the next morning. A new train from Elroy will run to St. Paul, arriving at 4:45 p. m.

The Northwestern has cut the running time between Chicago and St. Paul fifty-five minutes, and the time of the run for the night trains is just twelve hours.

The cut in time was made to meet the cut made by the Milwaukee road some time ago. There was formerly an agreement on thirteen and one-half hours for the night run, but the time has been cut slowly until it will be twelve hours now.

Railroad men are looking for a speed war between the St. Paul-Chicago lines, though no other roads have taken any action so far.

Petition In Bankruptcy.

Andrus R. Merritt has filed a petition in the court of bankruptcy claiming liabilities of $183,010.54, with no assets. The liabilities consist chiefly of judgments against him dating back as far as 1892. The principal creditor is the state of Kentucky, which obtained judgment against him in 1894 for the sum of $65,000. The Connecticut Land company, of Connecticut, holds judgment for $32,651.40; Edward H. Stevens, of this city, is a creditor to the amount of $8717.23, and J. L. Washburn, also of Duluth, holds a judgment against him for the sum of $8437.39. The Bank of Allentown, Penn., is a creditor to the amount of $7909.30. Etta M. Merritt holds three judgments against him for the sums of $5884.77, $5887.47 and $3030.79. The petitioner gives his occupation as that of real estate broker and his residence as Duluth.

Storm Warnings.

Storm warnings were put out by the weather bureau at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

All vessels are warned to stay in port until the storm is over. No departures have been reported from the harbor today.

DISTRICT COURT

Libel Case of Esterly Against Bagley Is on Trial.

The Jury Cases Are Begun In Two Court Rooms.

Trial of civil cases by jury on the May calendar of district court began this morning in Judge Dibell's and Judge Cant's rooms.

The damage suit of Eugene E. Esterly against Cassius Bagley, of F. D. Day & Co., for alleged libel, is being tried in Judge Dibell's room. The plaintiff asks for a judgment of $5000 for statements of an alleged defamatory character which he alleges the defendant wrote about him in a letter to C. F. Warner, of Two Harbors, and which the latter had published in the local paper of that place.

The plaintiff claims that he voluntarily quit the employ of F. D. Day & Co. April 5, 1856, and that on Dec. 20, 1902, the defendant wrote a letter to Warner, who is a competitor of the plaintiff in the jewelry business at Two Harbors, stating that Esterly had violated the confidence of the firm of F. D. Day & Co. and was given ten minutes to pack up his tools and quit the store here in this city.

Counsel for the plaintiff said that the violation of confidence which the defendant claimed was the act of the plaintiff in buying a second-hand watch from a lumberjack in F. D. Day & Co.'s place of business after the defendant had refused to purchase it. Plaintiff claims he bought the watch for the purpose of trading it on a meal ticket, that the trasaction was witnessed by the defendant, Bagley, who, as soon as it was consummated, told plaintiff that neither he nor Mr. Day would stand for it. Plaintiff alleges that he quit his job and that the defendant did not set any particular time for him to remove his tools from the store.

Plaintiff further alleges that defendant wrote the letter to Warner with the understanding that it was for publication. Defendant admits that the plaintiff was formerly in the employ of F. D. Day & Co., admits that the letter was written, stating that he had been discharged for violating the confidence of the firm, but denies that it was written with the knowledge or intention of publication, or that any idea of dishonesty on the part of the plaintiff was meant by the wording of the letter.

Mr. Esterly was the first witness called in his own behalf this morning. H. F. Greene appears for the plaintiff and S. T. Harrison and C. O. Baldwin represent the defendant.

The personal injury action of Fred Brisson against the Minnesota Land and Construction company is on trial in Judge Cant's room. The plaintiff was formerly employed as a brakeman on the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road, which is owned by the defendant company, and claims to have received which he now asks damages. The while thus employed the injuries for plaintiff is represented by S. A. Anderson and the defendant by Howard T. Abbott and Bert Fesler.

The action of Peter Peterson against the Duluth & Northern Minnesota Railway company, that of M. W. McDonald against Charles Anderson, were dismissed on motion this morning, and the case of Charles V. Landgren against the Minnesota & North Wisconsin Railroad company were stricken from the calendar. In the case of M. Norris against Simon Clark, the jury was waived and trial will be held by the court.

The trial of the case of John Mackey against Wirt H. Cook et al was begun in Judge Cant's room this morning, but was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff after the jury was drawn.

The divorce action of John H. Potter against Pauline A. Potter, on the grounds of desertion, was heard by Judge Cant this morning. Findings were for the plaintiff.

MONITOR MUST STAY IN RIVER

Arkansas Cannot Go Down Mississippi Until Next Spring.

Washington, May 11.—Lieut. Chester, one of the watch officers of the monitor Arkansas, arrived at the navy department this morning from St. Genevieve, where the vessel is lying, and reported that in his judgment it will be impossible for her to make her way down the Mississippi until next spring, unless an unexpected and unseasonable flood rise occurs. The navy department will make its plans accordingly. Some of the vessel's crew will be transferred to other warships in the East, and those remaining on the Arkansas will put in the summer and fall in the comprehensive drills which will probably make the boat an object of attraction to the Western people. The Arkansas was finally accepted by the acting secretary of the navy today, having fulfilled all the requirements of her contract.

BRIDGE MEN STRIKE.

Chicago, May 11.—One thousand men employed at the Lassig Bridge and Iron compan, a branch of the American Bridge company, struck today for recognition of the union. The two in a jocular mood were throwing stones at Link Lowery, colored, last night. Lowery objected and opened fire on them, with the above result. He then gave himself up to the police.

GOV. SCOFIELD DID NOT COME

Has Not Arrived From Madison—Must Meet Edward Hines.

"Nothing definite will be known relative to the plans for the sawing of the Hines timber at the head of the lakes this season until a conference is had between Mr. Hines and Mr. Scofield," said W. A. Ashley, local representative of the Erward Hines Lumber company, this afternoon.

Ex-Governor Scofield, who owns the mill that burned yesterday, was expected to arrive today from his home in Madison to look over the ruins and the situation, so far as his contracts for the summer are concerned, but up to this afternoon he had not arrived.

It is not known whether Mr. Hines will come to the head of the lakes or meet with ex-Governor Scofield in Madison or Chicago to decide on the course that will be taken relative to the cut of the logs now banked on Superior bay.

ESCORTS FOR RENT.

Windy City Leads the Way In the Enterprise.

Chicago is pluming itself on the evolution of a brand new and original idea. It believes that for once—or, rather, once again—it has shown the way to New York. It has flashed the news from pole to pole that on its sacred and progressive and up-to-date, if rather unstable and quicksandy, soil has originated a plan of which the effete East, meaning Greater New York, would be incapable, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The plan in question is one which came to light during the closing days of the dressmakers' convention in the Windy City, whereby the manless female is hereafter to hire an escort, just as she hires—or tries to hire—a cook or a coachman, a general houseworker or other domestic slaveys. And New York women are smiling at the idea of this being in any wise a novelty, for New York women have been renting escorts when they found it convenient to do so for at least fifteen years, just as they have been hiring dancing men and parlor entertainers, and paid "guests" of one sort or another. And New York women know of at least one regular bureau that exists solely to cater to the demand for this sort of masculinity.

"The manager of one such bureau, which stands high in the favor of 'our very best people,' is a middle aged, sensible, eminently responsible and trustworthy looking man. He is aided by a matronly woman of elegant manners and good appearance. He said:

"Escorts? Why, certainly, any sort, any age, for any occasion; respectability guaranteed. Where do we get them? Why, from all over. There are plenty of well mannered, well appearing young fellows, who own evening dress, are socially inclined, and who welcome a little addition to their incomes. We furnish them for the evening, or by the week or the month, or, if desired, by the season. Of course, we have to be very careful to know all about them. Mothers wouldn't want to send their daughters out with our young men if they did not feel that they were perfectly safe. There must be no—well, no—er—nonsense, you understand. Yes, yes, of course; young people will be young people, and mistakes do happen; but then they happen occasionally with the volunteer escorts.

"The sort of men? Why, just the sort of men the girls are in the habit of meeting—well educated, well mannered, well appearing young fellows—fellows who know how to behave at a party or at the theater, and how to pay a girl, easily and gracefully the attentions natural to the occasion; fellows, indeed, rather above the usual run that girls meet, because we are responsible for the character and conduct of our men, and no one is responsible for the usual run. Romances? Oh, yes, romances do develop. As I've already said, accidents will happen.

"Charges? Well, now, that all depends. For an evening it's $1.50 to $3. Depends somewhat on the sort of duty required, how good a time is promised, you see. A theater or a party in a private house is a much more attractive engagement than a lecture or a prayer meeting, for instance. So a fellow who would be glad to do the one for $1, even, would want $2 for the other, and expenses, of course. Then it depends on whom a man is to escort—a girl with whom he's been out before, and who has helped to make things pleasant for him, is much more desirable than an elderly and unknown spinster who may be animated solely by a desire to keep him in his place. We make terms for single engagements somewhat according to circumstances, and try to make our escorts fit the occasion, and the-er-well, the escorted, you know. There is no use wasting a young fellow with fine social gifts on the desert air of a prayer meeting or of a school marm of uncertain age, you know.

"When it comes to filling a position for a week or for a month or anything of that sort we send up several samples for the lady to select from, and let them make their own terms. And the lady isn't the only one who does the selecting, let me tell you. A sour-faced, crabbed-tempered spinster, even if she has plenty of money, may find that the boys put on prohibitory prices, whereas a lively, pleasant-faced girl can pick them up a wonderful bargain. Generally if a fairly good time is promised they charge $3 or $10 a week, and expenses. It's always 'and expenses,' of course. But if they don't like the prospect it runs up to $15."

So when the dressmakers' convention in Chicago agreed that men were necessary to its happiness, and that men were a mere commodity to be had for hire, just as their corset models were, they were making no new discovery, neither were they contributing to the great cause of eminine progress. Perhaps it is the first time that a convention of women has recognized officially that men were a social necessity, and passed formal resolutions undertaking to lay in a stock for their next meeting, but the hired escort, the paid guest, is a familiar feature of Eastern social economies, although even in the effete East there are plenty of girls who would indorse the declaration of a fluffy and frivolous blonde in that convention, that any woman who can't get an escort without hiring him doesn't deserve to have one.

ABDUCTION OF BOY

By a Tramp Who Has Taught Him to Beg.

Youth Is a Valuable "Moocher" For His Companion.

St. Louis, May 11.—The strange story of the abduction of Archie Davies by a tramp, as told by his mother, Mrs. O. L. Davies, of 908 Main street, Kansas City, has been brought out by her appeal to the St. Louis police for assistance in locating her 13-year-old boy, who has twice been stolen by the same vagabond.

Mrs. Davies is now searching the country for Archie. She has followed him and his abductor from Kansas City to Chicago; then to Taylorville, Ill. She has reason to believe they are now in St. Louis.

The second abduction occurred March 31, after the tramp had spent two months near the Davies home in Kansas City, seeking to see the boy.

The first abduction was early last summer, and for two months Mrs. Davies followed Archie and his abductor over the western country, finally getting the boy back at Kinsley, Kan.

Mrs. Davies in her search has never appealed to the police of the cities, but has preferred to work independently.

Mr. Davies is a railroad man, and Mrs. Davies never lacks assistance when she appeals to railroad men in the cities she visits.

The tramp keeps in the railroad yards and sends Archie into the towns to beg.

He is a bright-faced, rosy-cheeked lad, with dark hair and big brown eyes, and makes an excellent "moocher," as tramps term the boys they carry about the country to beg food and money.

After the search of two months last summer, Mrs. Davies rescued Arcnie from a "hobo" camp and then appealed to the Kansas sheriff to arrest the tramp. The sheriff refused, and the abductor escaped, vowing that he would again get the boy.

In January the tramp came to Kansas City and made his quarters in box cars along the river.

For two months he devoted his time in seeking to recover Archie. Finally, with the aid of boys he had hired, he enticed the boy away from home and left at once for Chicago.

As soon as she learned what had become of Archie, Mrs. Davies started after him.

She traced the pair, known to tramps as "Bill" and "Shorty," to Taylorsville, Ill., where the police told her that the boy had been seen begging on the streets.

They had left, and Mrs. Davies was so worn out with her search that she was compelled to return to her home.

The tramp's motive for seeking to get possession of Archie was that his bright face, his good manners and general appearance make him an excellent beggar, and that he can always secure food by employing him.

Mrs. Davies says she has learned that the tramp is an ex-convict. He is 5 feet 7 inches tall and very slender. He usually wears a bushy, light-colored mustache.

When Archie left home he wore a dark blue suit of clothes and a winter cap, and when seen in Taylorville was still wearing the same clothing.

SUES RICH HUSBAND.

Evanston Social Leader Asks For Separate Maintenance.

Chicago, May 11.—"I do not love you; you will never see me again," are the words which have estranged Mr. and Mrs. James A. Lawrence, of Evanston, for twenty years prominent in the social affairs of the north shore suburb.

Mrs. Lawrence surprised her friends Saturday by filing suit for separate maintenance. From some point in Texas, she says, her husband wrote her a letter telling her he loved her no longer and had passed out of her life.

Mr. Lawrence is known as a rich man. He is connected with numerous business ventures and his house at 1140 Forest avenue, Evanston, is valued at $35,000.

According to the bill filed by Mrs. Lawrence her husband left her on the morning of March 19, apparently in good spirits. Since that day, she says, he has not been seen in Evanston or at his offices in Chicago, neither has he visited the Union League club, of which he is a member. A short time after his disappearance, Mrs. Lawrence avers, she received the letter from Texas. The Lawrences were married on July 26, 1883.

Besides the $35,000 residence Mrs. Lawrence says her husband owns real estate and securities worth $150,000. He also has an account in the American Trust and Savings bank, is stockholder in the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company, owns steel stocks, is apartner in Lukey's merchandise store in Evanston, and is president of the Texas Fidelity Trust and Improvement company, as well as having extensive grain interests.

By a writ issued by Judge Haney all Lawrence's business associates are restrained from disposing of his property.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence have no children.

WOULD DEFEAT JUSTICE

If Curtis Jett Were Taken to Jackson.

Lexington, Ky., May 11.—Since the arrest of Curtis Jett, in Madison county, Sunday morning, charged with the murder of J. B. Marcum, a grave problem confronts the prosecution, which may require a special session of the legislature to solve. Under the law Jett would be taken back to Jackson, the scene of the murder for trial, unless he requests that he be taken elsewhere. He asked to be taken back to Jackson and will therefore have to go. If he goes to Jackson it is contended that the feeling is such that justice would be defeated. A well-defined movement is on foot to delay the removal of Jett to Jackson unless it is ascertained that steps can be taken to avoid it under the law. If the law offers no relief, it is stated here that the government will be asked to call a special session of the legislature to change the law.

GIRL WALKS IN SLEEP.

Is Awakened By Falling Into a Pond.

Washington, Ind., May 11.—Miss Nora Reynolds, aged 16 years, the daughter of Wenbeck Reynolds, a farmer residing six miles southeast of this city, was missing from her bedroom Saturday morning and at first it was believed she had been kidnaped. Her clothing was lying beside the bed and her other garments were undisturbed in the wardrobe.

The alarm was given and more than 100 men and boys commenced searching the country for her, but she was not found until late in the afternoon, when one of the searching party found her in a straw stack four miles from home. She was covered with mud, her bare feet were scratched and bleeding, and she was almost chilled to death.

She explained that she left home while asleep and did not awake until she fell into a pond on the Billings farm, and only saved herself from drowning by a desperate struggle. She then started for home, but upon reaching the straw stack became exhausted.

WEIGHT IS TOO LIGHT.

Fifteen-Pound Boy Is to Be Deported.

New York, May 11.—Joseph Bernstein, 7 years old, who, with his mother, brother and sister, arrived recently in this country from Prussia, has been ordered deported, the immigration authorities having decided him to be ineligible for admission to the country because of his diminutive size, he weighing only fifteen pounds. The boy is said to be healthy, physically and mentally, but because of his lack of growth is classed with the cripples.

Young Bernstein's father is employed in a glass factory at Toledo, Ohio, and has taken out his citizenship papers. Mrs. Bernstein and the children were on their way to join him. The mother will return to her former home in Prussia, but the brother and sister of the deported boy will go to their father.

MEMORY IS REVIVED

From Sixteen Years' Sleep and a Family Is Reunited.

George W. Poston of Havana, Cuba, Restored to His Wife.

St. Louis, May 11.—George W. Poston, a tobacco planter of Havana, Cuba, found a family in St. Louis last Sunday that he had forgotten he possessed.

Mr. Poston's find reveals a most remarkable case of suspended memory.

For sixteen years Mr. Poston has been a resident of Cuba. Last Sunday he came to St. Louis on a business trip. While looking in the city directory for the address of a business associate it occurred to him to see if any persons of his own name lived in St. Louis. He found the name, Arthur Poston, and the address, 2027 Eugenia street.

The name awakened in Mr. Poston's mind a flash of memory. For years there had been latent in his brain a past which he could not recall. The name Arthur Poston brought back to him the face of a boy. From this he forged a misty chain of memory that had been broken years before.

He called at the address given and found a man 27 years of age. Suddenly the past came back, and he recognized the son he had known years before.

From his son he learned of the wife of his youth, still living, whom he had deserted sixteen years ago, all unconsciously.

After many explanations husband and wife were reunited, and Tuesday night Mr. Poston and his son will leave for Cuba to close up his affairs there and return to St. Louis to go into business.

Mr. Poston is now rich, and his family will live in comfort. For sixteen years life for them has been a struggle.

The story as told by members of the Poston family is as follows:

George Poston was one of the most prosperous men in Carmi, Ill., in 1887. He was an architect and contractor, and had won a fortune by his industry and ability. He had married ten years before one of the prettiest girls in the country thereabouts, and they had a family of five children.

No one in Carmi was better known or more respected than Poston. Besides his business as a contractor he owned a large sawmill.

One day one of his sons, Arthur, then a small boy, went to the sawmill. Poston was sawing a log and when his son spoke to him he turned and his hand came in contact with the saw, severing the tips of three fingers of his left hand. By his deformity the son knew his father when they met after sixteen years' separation.

In the fall of 1887 a fire destroyed Poston's sawmill, his store and house. Everything that he had gained by years of toil was swept away in one night. Poston was distracted by the ruin wrought in ruin his wife tried to comfort him. Poston could see nothing for him in the future and seemed to be inconsolable.

One day, however, he got a contract to build a bridge at Cairo, Ill., and while he was not his old self the family took heart for the future. Bidding his wife and children good-bye Poston set out for Cairo. That was the last seen of him until last Sunday, when he greeted his son in St. Louis.

For years the Poston family struggled with adversity. The brave mother battled with the world to support her children. Two of them died, a boy and girl, and the heart-broken bother, yearning for the comfort her absent husband might have given her, worked on unaided. Hoping against hope that her husband might be alive, Mrs. Poston exhausted every resource of information. Once she heard that he was in Louisiana, through a report from the pension office.

Her oldest son, Arthur, then 14 years of age, went to Opelousas, La., seeking his father, but found that the man George Poston there was not he. While the boy did not remember his father's face, for process of identification, he bore the recollection of the severed fingers.

The family, in the course of time, moved to Centralia, Ill., and as the three boys in the family—Arthur, George and Charles—grew up, they helped their mother earn a livelihood.

When Arthur was of age he bade his mother good-bye and started out into the world to make a better home for them all. He came to St. Louis. He was an ambitious young fellow, and was willing to take any work he could get. When he alighted from the train at Union station the first men he saw who looked like an official proved to be the superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad.

"I want work," said young Poston. "Anything will do."

The superintendent liked the boy's looks and put him to work, and for nine years young Poston has been in the employ of that company.

With Arthur Poston's position in St. Louis the fortunes of the family began to improve. Every month the brave lad sent the bulk of his wages to his mother for the support of herself and his young brothers.

In the meantime the family did not cease in their search for the missing father. Inquiries were made wherever a clue presented, but no trace of him was found.

As Arthur Poston gained advancement in his position in St. Louis the fortunes of the family improved. First he secured work for his brother, George, as an usher in the Union station. Later he sent for his brother, Charles, who went to work in the Terminal hotel. The three lads supported their mother in Centralia, but they finally sent for her and furnished the house for her at 2027 Eugenia street.

When George W. Poston left Carmi he went into the world a man with a name only. Where he went and how, and the manner in which he left Cairo, for the lack of his American memories ends there, he does not remember.

He knows that he arrived in Havana, Cuba, and that he found himself in possession of $700, probably the profits of his Cairo contract.

He knew that his name was George Poston. From the dates on his papers in Havana he must have traveled in the United States for about four years, but where he went and how he lived is still a mystery to him.

His career in Cuba, however, is well known to him. When he stepped from the steamer upon the mole in the old Spanish town he seemed to have come to life anew. He was full of American enterprise and energy, and finding himself in possession of a working capital he at once proceeded to make use of it.

But he could not remember his past. In his pockets he found a card on which was the name George W. Posten, and he recalled that by this name he had been known. Who he was, whence he had come, why he was in Cuba, and who where his family and friends had been entirely obliterated from his mind.

Meeting an American who owned a photograph gallery and who was anxious to return to the United States, Poston bought the business. He knew nothing about photography but he learned all he could from his predecessor, and began to make pictures. He learned the language and became popular with the natives of Havana.

In all the years he has been in Havana, in spite of his business acumen, he has been unable to recall his past. For hours he sat and tried to call up incidents in the career he had left, but the past was a blank.

In the course of time he went nto the tobacco business. Finally he bought a tobacco plantation in the Vuelto Abajo province, in which the choicest plants on the island grew, and became a tobacco commissioner in Havana.

All the time he retained his photograph gallery and as his business grew in that line he made business connections with dealers in photographic supplies in St. Louis.

The hand of fate wrought this, for it was because of it that he met again and was reconciled to his long deserted family.

For several years he had bought goods from St. Louis houses, and having read of the World's Fair dedication ceremonies he thought it would be a good time to visit St. Louis. He would take a holiday and attend to business at the same time. It was a fortunate thought.

When George W. Posten arrived in St. Louis last week his mind began to awaken. He had often visited this city in the old days when he was a prosperous citizen of Carmi. As he walked about the streets he recollected this spot and that, and with the awakened recollections came the hope that he might connect the present with his past. But in spite of all his mental efforts he could do no more than remember that he had once seen these streets and buildings.

His attempts to groupe with the long past were pitiful.

Sightseeing over, he concluded that he would look up his business friends. He went into a drug store and asked for a directory. When he had found the addresses he desired he thought idly to see if there were any of his name in the city. He found several of the name of Poston, one with the christian name Arthur.

The sight of the name brought a gleam of old memory. There came to him as in a mist a boy's face which seemed to belong to him in some close and loving way. The thought tortured him. He was haunted by dim thoughtts of a past he could not grasp, but that he knew meant much for his happiness. For a day and a night he struggled elusive memories, now almost caught but escaping him. Then he thought to end them by finding this other man who bore his name.

Poston found the house, 2027 Eugenia street. As he stepped upon the porch and pushed the bell his heart beat wildly. A young man answered his summons.

"Is your name Poston?" asked the man.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Arthur Poston?" came the query.

"No; George," answered the youth.

"My name is George Poston," said the man.

The youth looked at the man closely. He took the man's left hand in his. It was the maimed hand of his father. He turned away. His heart was bitter toward the man who had deserted his mother years before.

"Where is Arthur Poston?" asked the man.

"He is here," said the youth, and he sent his brother to the man at the door.

Arthur Poston recognized his father at once, and at the sight of his first born, a great wave of memory overwhelmed George Poston. He recalled at once the old days in Carmi, his young wife, his baby children. He staggered at the blow. It was a terrible awakening. He poured a torrent of questions upon the young man. Where was his wife? What had happened in sixteen years? Where were the other children?

He was told that two were dead. The whole climax of sixteen forgotten years crumbled upon him. It was an avalanche of information, so close to him and yet so remote that its significance overwhelmed him.

Then Poston asked for his wife—the wife of his youth.

The son who looked upon the lost father restored so suddenly did not see the young man's face that was in his boyhood's memory. The man before him was tanned brown; he had the lean face of the man from the tropics; his mustache was streaked with gray. And the boy thought of the change time had wrought in his mother's face, and wondered what the thoughts of each would be at their meeting.

But a strange thing had happened to keep husband and wife apart. Mrs. Poston, who was visiting relatives in Centralia, Ill., was bedridden and from a curious cause. It seemed as if all the wonders had befallen the family at once. For upon his sudden finding of his wife, Poston had at the same moment almost lost her. On the very day that Poston found his sons, his wife had been struck by lightning at the home of her niece in Centralia. By a miracle she was not killed.

Poston hurried to Centralia with his son to see her, but the physicians held him aloof, fearing that the additional shock of his return might result fatally to his wife. When Mrs. Poston learned that her husband had come back, she was inclined to send him away without seeing him, but he was prevailed upon to listen to his story of his past.

That it was satisfactory to her is evidenced by their reconciliation.

Poston, listening to the history of his family, as if he had come back from the grave to learn of things he should have known, is the most bewildered and the happiest man in St. Louis.

Mrs. Poston and her son Arthur will leave for Havana Tuesday night. The photograph gallery and the tobacco plantation will be sold, and Poston and his sons will enter into business in St. Louis. The family will, as all families should, live happily ever after, reunited in the World's fair city by the most unusual chain of circumstances that ever befell any family.

VIOLATE AGREEMENT.

Tallymen and Lumber Inspectors Strike at Chicago.

Chicago, May 11.—A strike of 1500 tallymen and lumber inspectors, which may develop serious trouble for the lumber industry of this city, was inaugurated today. Seventy-five lumber yards throughout the city are involved. Upon refusal of the employers to grant a demand for 30 cents an hour and a ten-hour day, the men walked out with out any warning, although an agreement had been signed Jan. 1 between the Tallymen and Lumber Inspectors' union and the employers, making the wages 22½ cents an hour for one year.

CANADIAN LEADERS

In Wide Breach and Tarte Now Ranked With Tories.

Minister of Customs Goads Former Chief of Public Works.

Ottawa, Ont., May 11.—Independent political observers in parliament, after discussing Mr. Tarte's recent course in the house, and especially on the opposition amendment in the budget debate, are about solid in the view that his vote in the latter case means a widening of the breach between the late minister of public works and the Laurier government.

No matter what Mr. Tarte may have intended when he cut himself free from his former colleagues in the cabinet, it is declared, events are now driving him towards the Conservative ranks. He may desire to consider himself an independent Liberal, but his voting once more with the Conservatives makes a reconciliation between Sir Wilfred and his late most trusted lieutenant more difficult than ever.

"There is an element that claims Tarte is not the strong man he is supposed to be in Quebec, and holds that the tremendous victory gained for Laurier in that province, and the credit of which it has been customary to ascribe to Tarte, is due to others, who are now filling Tarte's place in the party and will do his work at the next parliamentary election better than Tarte could do it himself. The coming appeal to the people will tell whether they have made a mistake or not.

The dramatic scene between the minister of customs and the late minister of public works when the vote above referred to was taken, seems to have escaped general attention. The minister of customs wound up a series of rallies with Mr. Tarte by remarking good naturedly that the late minister of customs' tuition, in tariff affairs, was getting on pretty well, but when he (Mr. Paterson) went to England with the prime minister, Tarte must have taken advantage of their absence to go playing with some bad boys and got a little off the track.

Mr. Tarte jumped with my friend from Ontario (Mr. Rogers) and some of my other friends all around the government benches (indicating several ministerial members). I see a lot of them there and I played with them. They would like to play again the same game if they were free to do so."

This was a thrust that went deep, for it is well known that many members on the government side were only deterred by the certainty of the loss of their seats and political effacement from kicking over the traces and voting for the opposition amendment. In the budget debate speaker after speaker on the ministerial side expressed himself in favor of more protection, the principle of the amendment of the leader of the opposition.

Military men are considering with some attention a statement recently published in a Canadian paper that Maj. Gen. Hutton, formerly general officer commanding the Canadian militia, distinguished himself for his stupidity and uselessness in South Africa. Sergt. F. W. B. Morrison, who is now prejudiced in favor of the general and knows something of his actual work in the field against the Boers, as a fighting soldier there are few better officers in the British army than Gen. Hutton.

Many years before the Boer war, he desires, he demonstrated his far-sightedness by strenuously advocating the idea of the importance of mounted infantry, when that arm had few friends in the service. Later on in the Boer war he handled the first brigade of mounted infantry on service in a manner that reflected the greatest credit on himself and on his command, of which Canadian troops formed a large part. It was his overkeenness and impatience at the red tape restrictions which sough to restrict the mounted infantry to a role secondary to that of the cavalry n the early operations which got Gen. Hutton into trouble with his cavalry superiors.

A few months later the turning of all cavalry into mounted infantry for the campaign vindicated his conception of its role, but in the meantime official resentment of the general's attempt to supplant the cavalry in the advance on Pretoria got in its work. Otherwise he would, in the opinion of many qualified judges, have greatly distinguished himself in the subsequent operation, as, indeed, he did while in active command. As a leader of mounted infantry in the presence of the enemy Gen. Hutton, it is declared, has few superiors, but off the field he is lacking in tact or diplomacy.

This has drawn Col. Sam Hughes, who also served in Africa, to the front, with a letter in which he charges Gen. Hutton on three occasions had his brigade in such hopeless, helpless conditions that capture or defeat was their fate, had they not been extricated. He charges, too, that every man of the Irish brigade would have been captured by the British had Hutton not abandoned his splendid position in the rear of the enemy when the latter was in full flight before a frontal attack of Gen. Pole-Carew, and nothing could have saved them but Hutton's letting them go unmolested in order that he might be at Brandtford before Gen. French.

NEW STORY OF MURDER

Of His Sister Is Told By Cassimir Reichlin.

Lorain, Ohio, May 11.—Cassimir Reichlin, brother of the woman murdered at the home of her brother, Father Reichlin, ten days ago, prints in the Lorain Post, the German newspaper of which he is the editor, his story of the murder. It differs in several important respects from the testimony at the coroner's inquest.

Cassimir Reichlin's entire disposition seems to have changed since the murder. He was formerly jovial, and now he is morose. His hair, which was jet black ten days ago, is now streaked with gray. There is no doubt that he is worrying much about the crime and the mystery surrounding it.

One of the absurd stories in connection with the murder is to the effect that the murdered woman was the cousin and not the sister of Father Charles Reichlin, with whom she lived. Investigation proves it to be without foundation.

Within the last few days much has been made of the theory that the murder was committed by a tramp burglar, the same man, in fact, who attempted to enter several other houses in Lorain on the night Miss Reichlin was killed. This theory is not credited by the police. It has also been suggested that the crime may have been committed by a maniac.

The docket covers almost 1700 printed pages and is confined largely to the testimony. Ex-Attorney General Griggs, Francis Linde Stetson, of New York; C. W. Bunn, George B. Young and M. D. Grover, enter their appearance as counsel for the company. As the call of the docket has been suspended for the present term, the case cannot be called before next October.

HOLLS FOR UMPIRE.

Asked to Act In the Venezuelan Controversy.

New York, May 11.—President Roosevelt has tendered to Frederick W. Holls, of this city, the position of umpire to act in the settlement of the claims of Germany and Italy against Venezuela. Under the terms of the settlement effected by Mr. Bowen the fixing of damages for Germany was to be left to the person representing Germany and another representing Venezuela with an umpire to be appointed by the president of the United States; and a similar method of arbitration was to be adopted in respect to the Italian claims. It is as umpire in each of these arbitrations that President Roosevelt has solicited the services of Mr. Holls. The question of preferential treatment of Germany, Great Britain and Italy is left to the Hague court. Mr. Holls has the offer under consideration and has not yet decided whether he will accept or not.

PARENTS MUST TELL

Why the Young Husband Went to Oregon.

St. Louis, May 11.—Henry M. Borngesser and his wife, of 4125 Russell avenue, will appear before Judge Wood in the circuit court on Friday to tell whether their son, Henry M. Borngesser, Jr., who is now in Pendleton, Ore., left the city of his own volition.

They are defendants in a suit for $20,000 damages brought by Mrs. Jessie Lame Borngesser, wife of their son, for the alienation of her husband's affections.

W. M. Kinsey, attorney for the defendant, applied to Judge Woods on Thursday morning for an order authorizing the taking of a deposition of Borngesser, Jr., to be used for the defense in the suit.

The motion was opposed by Louis Steber, attorney for the plaintiff, on the ground that the young man's parents, the defendants themselves, were responsible for the fact that he is now out of the city and so far away.

After hearing the arguments, the judge directed that the defendants appear in court on Friday to answer his questions in the matter.

It is said that young Borngesser is a cowboy on a ranch close to Pendleton. His testimony is claimed to be of the first importance to the defense.

The young people became fond of each other last winter and finally got married. The bridegroom's parents were furious when they learned of it. They objected on the ground of the difference of social station in the two. A few days after the marriage Borngesser, Jr., left his bride. The latter claimed that his parents had taken him away and were holding him against his will.

Mrs. Borngesser, Jr., then made an attempt to have her husband arrested for wife abandonment. The warrant could not be served, however, as Borngesser was not to be found in the city. The present damage suit against his parents was the next move.

DROWNED WHILE BOATING.

Man and Woman Lose Lives In Kaw River.

Kansas City, May 11.—Alfred Taylor, aged 24 years, and Mrs. E. E. Renney, aged 31, were drowned in the Kaw river off Armourdale, Kans., near here, last night, while boating. The couple started out at 10:30 at night, having hired Roy Von Meter, a boy, to manage the boat. While in the middle of the stream they fell overboard. The boat remained upright, but Van Meter was too excited to render any assistance, and, rowing to shore, notified the police. Up to a late hour the bodies had not been recovered.

Mrs. Renney came here from Coffeyville, Kans., with her husband, who is a railroad employe.

SAW MILL BURNS

Scofield Plant at West Superior Is Totally Destroyed.

Loss $100,000 and Insurance Two-Thirds—May Be Rebuilt.

The Schofield sawmill, located on the bay front in West Superior, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning about 7 o'clock. The fire is supposed to have originated from an overheated saw.

The total loss is believed to be in the neighborhood of $100,000, with an insurance of $66,200.

The fire had gained considerable headway when discovered by the mill employes, who endeavored to put it out with the fire apparatus of the mill. An alarm was turned in and the West Superior fire department and the fire tug Buffalo, of this city, did valiant service against the flames. As soon as it was known that the mill was doomed, efforts were directed toward saving the lumber, of which there was a large stock on the docks and in the mill yards.

The loss was confined to the sawmill, the storage house and the dry kilns.

The loss of the mill at this time of the season will be a heavy blow to the small industry on the Superior side of the bay. The mill was under contract to saw about 150,000,000 feet of lumber for the Edward Hines Lumber company, 50,000,000 feet of which was to be sawed this season. It was not definitely decided up to this morning whether the mill would be rebuilt right away, or whether the Hines company would make contracts with other mill owners to cut the logs. Several offers have been made to the Hines Lumber company representatives since the fire. It is estimated that the mill could be rebuilt in forty days, but it would probably have to have two band saws instead of a two-band gang.

The Scofield mill was owned by ex-Governor Scofield of Wisconsin and was one of the best equipped mills at the head of the lakes. It was built ten years ago by W. E. McCord, of McCord & McDonough, Eau Claire, Wis., and had an annual sawing capacity of about 45,000,000 feet.

The mill was well situated on the main channel of the harbor, so that boats could be easily handled in reaching its docks. The mill yards and docks were lighted by electricity from power furnished by the mill plant.

At the present time the boom adjoining the mill is well filled with the logs belonging to the Edward Hines Lumber company.

POORLY INFORMED.

Many People Little In Touch With Public Affairs.

A member of the late legislature from Duluth has a little story to tell that illustrates how little attention the majority of intelligent people sometimes pay to public affairs.

Within a couple of weeks after his return from St. Paul, where he had been spending the winter in the interests of his "stituents," as Rosenwald, of Lac Qui Parle, used to say, he met on the street an attorney, an old friend of fifteen years' standing.

"Hello," said the attorney, "you have been away part of the winter, haven't you?"

"Yes," responded the legislator, "I have been away."

"Where were you?"

"In Florida," was the answer.

"Is that so?" replied the attorney, innocently. "I thought I had not seen you." And the attorney is intelligent and widewake, and would not pass for a person uninformed in current events. But the odd part of it is that this same attorney went on to tell another story of how ill-informed a lot of other people are. He continued:

"By the way, I thought perhaps you would be able to tell me who the lieutenant governor is."

"It is Ray W. Jones, of Minneapolis," said the lawmaker.

"Well, I am glad to know that. I never heard of him, and I have had an awful time to find out. I happened to be with a group of attorneys one day when I asked, and none of them knew. One of them thought it was a man named Day, but he was not sure. I called up the city, and they told me there that they thought it was a man named Babcock, but they were not sure either. I have not been able to find anybody that knew until I struck you. You are sure you are right, are you?"

The lawmaker was sure he was right, and the attorney went away satisfied.

At the suggestion of the lawmaker there is appended herewith a list of the principal state officers, which anybody is at liberty to cut out and paste in his hat to make sure that he will not be caught uninformed upon so close a subject: Samuel R. Van Sant is governor, Ray W. Jones is lieutenant governor, Samuel G. Iverson is state auditor, Julius Block is treasurer, Peter G. Hanson is secretary of state and W. B. Douglas is attorney general.

Scrofula

It is commonly inherited.

Few are entirely free from it.

Pale, weak, puny children are afflicted with it in nine cases out of ten, and many adults suffer from it.

Common indications are bunches in the neck, abscesses, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, catarrh, wasting, and general debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Eradicate it, positively and absolutely. This statement is based on the thousands of permanent cures these medicines have wrought.

"My daughter had scrofula, with eleven sores on her neck and about her ears. Hood's Sarsaparilla was highly recommended and she took it and was cured. She is now in good health." Mrs. J. H. Jones, Parker City, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

KILLED BY A CAR.

West Superior Boy Struck While Saving His Brother.

Dewey Blaine Hanson, a 5-year-old boy living on Connor's Point, West Superior, was struck and killed by one of the double truck interstate cars yesterday morning while he was endeavoring to get a younger brother from a place of danger near the outer track. The boys were playing in the street almost in front of the residence of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hanson, 253 Main street. The accident was witnessed by several women of the neighborhood, who were too far away to render assistance.

It is said that Dewey Hanson ran across the street and attempted to get his brother to the sidewalk, recrossing the tracks again in front of the approaching car. He was thrown under the wheels and dragged about 400 feet before the car was stopped and he was released. The child was taken to the hospital where death ensued a short time afterward. An investigation and inquest will be held today.

THE STAGE.

In spite of criticism, condemnation and abuse from purists who bar social problems from stage presentation and objurgate Paula Tanqueray, in spite of her weakness in the maintenance of the chief charm of womanhood, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" arouses a sentiment of compassion when portrayed by such an actress as Rose Coghlan. Pinero's play, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," interpreted by Miss Coughlan and a clever supporting company, will be presented at the Lyceum this evening.

Lincoln J. Carter's scenic comedy "The Darkest Hour," drew a small audience at the Lyceum Saturday evening. The play on the whole was fairly good for the class which must have the desperate villain and frequent hand to hand struggles in the dark, etc. The scenic features were good, especially the disappearing train in the third act, where a full sized train pulls out of the depot, gradually disappears around the curve, and reappears in the distance crossing a high trestlework over a deep ravine. Charles A. Gardner as Fritz Hoffmilere, the devoted body servant, and Jack White, as Albert Lawrence, were the comedy feature of the whole show. They were given good support along this line by Blanche Boyer in the character of Kitty O'Shaughnessy, who did some very clever dancing. The rest of the cast did creditable work in their respective parts.

Beginning with a performance tonight at the Metropolitan, the Pearl Stock company will present a dramatization of Jules Verne's great story, "Michael Strogoff," the great Russian play. The entire scenic equipment will be complete, and the cast requires more than the full strength of the company, there being twenty-five characters in this play. "Michael Strogoff" contains many thrilling climaxes, startling situations and great heart interest, pathos and comedy—a play to please all.

The celebrated Robinson sisters will appear for the first time in this city with the Ferris Comedians tonight and the newest and cleverest vaudeville. Bundy and Wilson will also appear in an entirely different act than they have appeared in heretofore.

The Schumann-Heink song recital in the Lyceum Wednesday night promises to be the most important social as well as musical event of the whole season. The subscription list numbers nearly all of Duluth's best society. No one, even the non-musical, need feel afraid of being bored with classics for Schumann-Heink has in addition to her wonderful voice such personal magnetism that she appeals alike to all.

MAY GET IN TROUBLE.

West Superior Young Man Tells Different Stories.

Anxiety to wed the young woman of his choice may cause trouble for Charles Dolan, a young longshoreman of West Superior. Saturday Dolan obtained a license at the office of the clerk of district court to marry Birdie Treloar, of West Superior. They were married later in the afternoon by Judge of Probate Middlecoff.

Dolan made affidavit that both himself and the young woman he married were of the legal age and there was no legal impediment to the marriage. The indications are that he made a misstatement regarding his age, for last Thursday he applied for a marriage license and was refused by Deputy Clerk Liedel, who discovered that the would-be groom was under age. The license was issued by Deputy Clerk Moody, to whom the groom gave his age as 21 years. Under the Minnesota state laws a groom under the legal age, as well as a bride under 18 years of age, must have the consent of his parents before a license can be issued. County Attorney McClintock will investigate the case.

Gun Club Shoot.

There was a light attendance at yesterday's shoot of the Central Gun club, and only one event, the Panton & White high average cup, was taken up. Storey and Cap tied for first place with 47 out of a possible 50, and Storey won on the shoot-off, on the "miss and out" plan. Berry hit 42 birds, Warren 41 and Bob 35. In the shoot-up for the same cup Storey making 92 out of a possible 100 and Cap, 90.

SAWING IS ACTIVE

Manufacturers Are Not, However, Selling Very Much Lumber.

Movement Down Lakes Large—Clark-Jackson Mill to Start.

There is more sawing than selling of lumber in the local market just at present. Attention is being paid particularly toward getting a large output and the manufacturers are not worrying, but are confident that the market this summer will be very satisfactory. Some of the manufacturers are practically out of the market, anyway, for two months to come while others are pushing matters to increase their available stocks for the summer buyers.

The only reported sale during the week was that of nearly 1,000,000 feet by the American Lumber company to Eastern parties.

The lumber movement down the lakes continues heavy and quite an inroad has been made on the stocks already sold. The indications are good for a brisk trade with the lumber carrying vessels throughout the season, although it is not likely that there will be another period this season so large a quantity will be moved at once.

The local demand for lumber has increased and quite a large amount is being sold by the retailers for local consumption. Reports from all over the Northwest indicate a steady building movement that augurs well for the lumber trade.

The Clark-Jackson mill is to be started up about May 25 on its contract to cut 30,000,000 feet for the Brooks-Scanlon company, of Minneapolis. The plant will be started with two crews of men and sawing will go on day and night until the contract is completed. The Brooks-Scanlon company has one of the largest mills in the Northwest located at Scanlon, Minn., but its total log output annually is greater than its mill capacity, hence the company is contracting with nearby mills to cut the surplus timber.

The Brooks-Scanlon company has over 100,000,000 feet of pine tributary to the Cloquet river and on the east side of the Duluth & Iron Range road. It is a part of this timber which is to be railed to Duluth for sawing instead of being floated down the river to the Brooks-Scanlon mill.

One of the locomotives from the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road is to be placed on the Brooks-Scanlon logging road for log haul this summer. The new arrangement is taken to mean that the project of the lumber company to build an auxiliary mill near the crossing of the Cloquet river and the Iron Range road has been abandoned.

The rivers are still high and there is some log driving, but the main drives have not yet been started in this districts. Log towing across from the north shore to Ashland is well under way and the first log rafts from the north shore are expected to arrive in the local harbor some time this week. There has been no particular hurry about the rafts for the reason that the mills had a large supply of logs here with which to start the season's sawing operations. Log owners are not particularly anxious to risk their rafts out on the lake while the weather is unsettled. The increased facilities for log towing have made that branch of the business less liable to loss than in former years. Larger tugs are used and careful attention is paid to weather indications.

TO ELECT SECRETARY.

Commercial Club Directors to Act on Wednesday.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Commercial club has been called for Wednesday for the purpose of electing a new secretary, to succeed A. L. Preston, whose resignation goes into effect May 15. It is understood that while there have been no direct applications for the position three or four well-known local men and a few outsiders are willing to be considered as candidates. The directors have not been in a hurry to appoint a new secretary, as the intention of the board is to select a man that will be conversant with the many duties of the office and who can adapt himself to the conditions.

TANKO STANDS MUTE.

Does Not Plead to the Murder Charge.

John Tanko, who was indicted for murder in the first degree, stood mute when brought into district court to plead Saturday afternoon. A plea of not guilty was entered in his case. He is charged with shooting and killing George Bollich, of Chisholm.

Lunden, who is indicted on the charge of manslaughter in the second degree, pleaded not guilty, as did David Frankfort, indicted on the charge of swindling, and John Ahla, indicted on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree.

John Ponder, who pleaded not guilty to grand larceny in the first degree, changed his plea to guilty of grand larceny in the second degree.

INFIELD IS WEAK

President Bryan Said to Be Looking For Better Men.

High School Boys Give the League Men a Drubbing.

An entire new infield, with Walter Wilmot as a playing manager, is said to be the object of a sudden trip to Minneapolis on the part of President Bryan, of the local team.

The dismissal of Wilmot as the playing head of the Minneapolis team was the surprise of the baseball world last week. While none of the inside facts are known it is believed that the popular player was unfairly dealt with. He has worked hard and it is generally acknowledged that the present tail-end position of the Millers in the American association glad rag chase is due to hard luck and not to any fault of his.

Wilmot is a great player and a great manager, having landed many pennant winners during his career in handling minor league teams and helping materially to win pennants during his early days in the big leagues.

President Bryan and Wilmot are great friends, having known each other when Mr. Bryan was a professional umpire in the major leagues some years ago. The veteran would prove a very valuable man for Duluth, especially in his instruction to young players and general handling of men.

Saturday's game with the High school showed that the present bunch of candidates are not as strong on infield work as hoped for. Leonard, Shinokek, McCoy and Gehring being about the only men in Captain Lambert's candidate-aggregation that gave promise of making good.

In the pitching department the team should rank well with such men as Gehring, Volz, Dellar and Martin. Leonard will probably make the team but another catcher is also desired.

Marean will be found at short when the season opens and with Lambert on first or in center it leaves about four or five other places to be filled with fast men.

Superb battery work by Cummings and Potter and tremendously fast playing by the infield enabled the High school team to defeat the league team candidates 4 to 1, Saturday afternoon.

Five scattered hits was about all the professionals could do with Cummings' twirling. He struck out eight men, fanning two in the final inning. He was supported in fast style by Winters at second, Seeble at short, Sommers at third and Cranner at first. The school team outplayed the big fellows at every stage.

Dodge and Booth were hit freely, but Gehring found the High school batsmen very easy. Two rather glaring decisions on the part of Umpire Dash, deprived the league candidates of two runs and the score should have been 4 to 3.

"Bill" McNeil, the Grand Forks catcher, failed to get away from one of Cummings' inshoots and will be out of the game for some time with a broken nose. Horn, at second for the candidates, is also out with a broken finger, and to top the accident list off, Potter, in running for a foul, ran into a crowd of youngsters on the side lines, fracturing the leg of Stanley Greghan.

The score by innings was:

High School	1	1	0	1	1	0	0	0	—	4 7 3

Pitchers — Dodge, Booth and Gehring; Cummings.

The Superior league team had an easy time with the Universal Millers at West Superior yesterday afternoon. The amateurs could not touch the twisters that were handed them by Tim Keefe's pitching department, and the Badgers hammered Bade, of the Millers, for twenty-two safe hits. Other features of the game are too sad to relate. The score was:

Superior	3	5	2	1	1	0	0	—	24	22 1

Pitchers—Davis, Daniels and Gordon; Bade.

GREATEST GAMBLING RACE.

Chinese Will Bet the Fingers On Their Hands.

The passion for gambling among Chinese is not equaled anywhere in the world. This seems strange, too, in the face of their industry and economy. They have an inordinate desire to possess money. With a few winnings they become inveterate gamblers, and live forever thereafter only for the "game." When their money is gone they will stake their clothing, their homes and even their wives, says the Newark News.

I had no idea to what extent gambling was carried by the average Chinaman until, through business, I was obliged to spend a day and night in Tien Tsin, about eighty miles south of Pekin, and rather pleasantly situated on a small river emptying into the gulf of Pechili. It was in the winter time, and the weather was intensely cold.

My business was with Yon Min, a merchant, was concluded late in the afternoon, and I accepted his invitation to pass the night at his house, on the outskirts of the town. Yon Min would have had me carried in a Sedan chair, but I insisted upon walking, that I might get a better idea of Tien Tsin, which in all probability I should never again visit.

We had just turned into a street that was much wider than any we had yet passed through, when I saw a man who was violently pushed out of a doorway run wildly up the street. He was entirely nude. "Crazy, isn't he?" I suggested to Yon Min. "Not at all," the merchant responded: "he's been gambling until he has parted with everything he possessed, even his clothing. The proprietor having nothing more to get from the fellow, has turned him out in the condition you see."

"But," said I, "won't your authorities punish the proprietor for his inhuman conduct?"

Yon Min laughed heartily as he said: "Everybody gambles here, and no sympathy is wasted upon the losers."

A moment or two later I saw the victim huddling up to a chimney, which in China is built on the outside of the house.

"What are you doing there?" I asked.

"Seeking warmth," was the reply. The poor man must have suffered with the cold, for I was shivering even under my heavy overcoat. I was about to throw the fellow some coin when Yon Min stopped me.

"Don't do that," he said, "for the rascal will only go back and gamble it away."

As we moved off a crowd of men who had been successful at the game came along laughing and chattering. When they saw their unhappy friend they heaped all kinds of ridicule upon him. The man stood the abuse until patience ceased to be a virtue and then darted away again. Yon Min informed me that sometimes men turned out as this one was die from the exposure.

"This evening," said my host, "we will visit one of these gambling houses. I will give you a disguise made up from my wardrobe, otherwise the playing would not go to the extremes that I want you to witness."

A few hours later, when Yon Min and I entered the leading gaming house of the town, I was as much a Chinaman as any of those present. My costume, sallow make-up and swagger were declared by Yon Min to be perfect. I got along all right because I kept my mouth shut and my ears and eyes open.

The lighter games came first. Tseimei was very funny, the stakes being a cup of brandy. A duel to the death between cockroaches caused considerable excitement, the betting being on the length of time each roach would hold out.

During the few hours spent in this place four men had played their clothes off and were sent out into the icy darkness.

The most startling and revolting incident of the night was "the wager of fingers."

Two of the most expert gamblers began bantering each other on their courage.

"Will Lan Ti wager a finger?" asked Fee Lee.

"Lan Ti will wager two fingers," replied that individual.

"Bring the oil, the fire, the hatchet and the stone," exclaimed Fee Lee.

The game was one that I did not understand, but it was fast and furious. Lan Ti was declared the winner.

Fee Lee unhesitatingly placed a finger on the stone, and Lan Ti just as deliberately struck it off with the keen-edged hatchet. Into a vase containing nut oil, which had been heated by a lamp flame, Fee Lee plunged his hand, which act, I was informed, was for the purpose of cauterizing the wound.

"Now for the other finger!" shouted Lan Ti. Fee Lee saved the second finger by paying over to his opponent a large sum of money.

I have always been considered brave and strong-nerved, but I wilted just a little, and, dragging Yon Min after me, rushed out of the house.

We walked some distance before either of us spoke, and I doubt not that we would have been silent all the way home had it not been for another sensation.

We had scarcely set foot on the little bridge spanning the river that skirted Tien Tsin when I heard the wail of an infant. Glancing over the rail, on the lower side of the bridge, I saw a board to which a baby had been fastened floating down the stream. "I must save that child!" I exclaimed, and quickly divesting myself of my outer garments, plunged into the chilling waters. With little difficulty I brought the board and its precious freight ashore.

"What do you suppose this means?" I asked of Yon Min.

"Very common occurrence," was the cool reply.

Yon Min explained that infanticide signified nothing serious to the low caste people. The subjects were almost always female children belonging to poor families, and as the law gives the father absolute power over his offspring, if he quietly disposes of one nobody will interpose any objection. The reason so few boys are destroyed is because the birth of a male child is considered a blessing. A boy will soon be able to work and contribute to the support of his parents. A girl is looked upon as a burden, for she must be shut up until she can be married off; besides, she cannot do any work for money and thus pay the expense of bringing her to a marriageable age.

Despite the remonstrance of Yon Min, I carried the little one to his home, and the next day lodged her at my boarding house in Peking. She was about five months old, plump, and really pretty. A week later she was adopted by a French couple who were about to depart for their native land. She is now about 16 years of age and the idol of her foster parents, who have one of the handsomest houses in Paris.

MINNESOTA'S BIRTHDAY.

The state of Minnesota was created forty-five years ago today. On May 11, 1858, congress passed the act for the admission of Minnesota in the Union. This was accomplished only after a hard fight. Delegates to the constitutional convention were chosen June 1, 1857, and on Aug. 29 a constitution was adopted and George L. Becker, William W. Phelps and James M. Cavenaugh, all Democrats, were chosen to represent the state in the national house of representatives. In the following December the legislature elected Henry M. Rice and James Shields as United States senators. On Jan. 11, 1858, President Buchanan notified congress that he had received from Thomas Medary, governor of the territory of Minnesota, a copy of the constitution for the proposed state, certified in due form, and another fight which lasted four months occurred in congress. Kansas was at that time also seeking admission, and although the Minnesota constitution had been presented first, the Southern senators were successful in holding it in abeyance until the bill for the admission of Kansas, under the Lecompton slavery constitution, had been passed. And when the Minnesota bill was finally taken up for consideration weeks were spent in an effort to defeat it. It was finally passed April 7, 1858. Then after repeated efforts to amend the bill in the house, it passed that body May 11. Then, in due course the senators and representatives of the new state were admitted to their seats.

The opposition in congress to the admission of Minnesota as a state of the Union was based upon various reasons. In the first place, some members objected to the creation of the new state because its people were supposed not to be in sympathy with the majority of the country regarding American institutions. The Southern senators also opposed the admission of the state because it would add two anti-slavery senators. In the third place, opposition was offered because the admission of another state would conflict with a law of 1787 prohibiting the creation of more than five or less than three states out of what was known as the Northwest territory. How puerile and absurd these objections now appear!

Great changes have taken place since Minnesota entered the sisterhood of states. There is no more American commonwealth in the Union, showing what little foundation there was for the assertion that its people would not be in sympathy with American institutions. The development of the state's resources has been marvelous. The Indians were then in possession of the greater portion of the state, and buffalo roamed over its plains and dense forests covered a large section of its territory. There are many people here today who have been witnesses of the wonderful evolution of Minnesota from a wilderness to one of the richest states in the Union, covered with bountiful farms, splendid cities and hundreds of thriving villages. They have seen the most rapid development that has taken place in the world's history. It is indeed a marvelous transformation within less than half a century, and the suggestion that in five years the state should celebrate its golden jubilee by a grand exposition, international in its scope and character, but at the same time drawing special attention to the wonderful changes that have occurred here since Minnesota entered the Union, has met with considerable favor. The people of Minnesota are proud of the North Star state, and it is eminently fitting that its golden jubilee should be celebrated in an appropriate manner.

THE RISE IN SILVER.

For the past few months silver has risen rapidly in price, somewhat to the surprise of those who have been using that metal in any quantity, and particularly to the treasury department, which has been buying considerable silver bullion for Philippine coinage. The price of silver has been abnormally low for the past year or more, and it is now getting back to the old figures. It is scarcely higher now than it was twelve months ago—in fact, it is just about the same. Silver was forced to an abnormally low point by the small demand for bullion from China and the Straits settlements, particularly from China. That market has been dead for a year or more and this caused a sensational decline last fall. There seemed to be no outlet for the silver that was accumulating on the market at that time. Now there is a renewed demand from the East, and coupled with the purchases by this government for Philippine coinage the price has gone up again. The government bought 65,000 ounces last week at 54½ cents per ounce. The market is advancing, however, and the material for Philippine coins may cost more than was anticipated a short time ago.

By the resignation of Mr. Preston, the Commercial club has been left without a secretary, and the directors are now considering the question of his successor. The suggestion has been made to The Herald that in choosing a new secretary the important point that the Commercial club was organized with a view of furthering the commercial interests of the city should not be overlooked. This is the primary feature of the club, and the new secretary should be a man possessing the ability to originate schemes and plans that will advance the commercial interests of Duluth. There are hundreds of men here in Duluth who have the ability to look after the details of running the cafe and other social features of the club, but few possess the other essential qualifications. The directors of the Commercial club should keep foremost in mind the commercial interest when choosing a new secretary.

A great beer war at St. Louis is in prospect. It is said the Milwaukee brewers will expend $1,000,000 at the World's fair.

REVISING FEDERAL LAWS.

For the second time in the history of the country the statutes of the United States are being revised by a commission of experts and the work is rapidly nearing completion. The last revision of the statutes was in 1874, since which time new acts have accumulated with great rapidity. In fact more laws have been enacted since 1874 than were enacted by our government prior to that date. There have been so many amendments and changes in old laws, and so many acts repealing others, that a large amount of work is required in getting at the exact status of a law. Sometimes the work of lawyers on a case is completely overthrown by the late discovery that certain laws have been repealed or modified.

The history of the revised statutes that are used by lawyers all over the country is interesting. In 1866 congress made provision for a revision of the laws of the United States of a general and permanent nature. The work was performed by two successive commissions, and was not completed until 1874. It was submitted in the form of a bill, and embraced the statutes in force on the first Monday of December, 1873. During the session of 1874 the bill was considered at evening sessions of the house, was adopted by that body and also by the senate on June 22. On the same day it received the approval of President Grant and on the following morning printed copies, in a volume of 1000 pages, were delivered to the members of congress. Errors in the revision were discovered from time to time and George S. Boutwell was appointed as a single commissioner to correct the revision and to incorporate in his work marginal reference to provisions which were not amendments in form, but which affected or modified the text. This work was completed in February, 1878, and constitutes what is now known as the revised statutes. This work was never adopted as an act of congress, but was merely promulgated by the secretary of state, to whom it was submitted for approval. It is accordingly only prima facie and not conclusive evidence, which is a fact with which probably few lawyers are acquainted.

The work of revising the statutes is slow and very trying, but the great advantages derived will more than compensate for the labor and expense of the work.

INCREASE OF THEATERS.

Americans are a great race of theater-goers and the habit is rapidly increasing. So great has the demand for entertainment of one kind and another become, that many new playhouses are springing up all over the country. This year will prove the banner year in theater-building. Thirteen new theaters are being erected in New York city and thirty-three in the rest of the country from 'Frisco to New York. More than $8,500,000 will be spent on the New York theaters, and nearly $9,000,000 throughout the rest of the country, which means that $17,000,000 is to be invested in one year in buildings wherein the American people will be entertained. There are already some forty-two active theaters in New York city, and one would almost imagine that there was no place left for further development along that line. Yet of the theaters now building one is designed to be the "finest theater in the world," costing for building, exclusive of the ground, $1,250,000, and another is intended to be the "largest in the world." Four of the new theaters will be controlled by the "independents," namely the Colonial, in Cleveland, Ohio; New Park, in Buffalo; the New Majestic in San Francisco; and the Missouri, in St. Louis. The rest will be controlled by the "syndicate" for the most part, although there are individual operations among them.

There will be many innovations in theater-building, notably in Kansas City, at Saratoga, and in Pittsburg. In Kansas City there is an electric-lighted subway under the street, leading from the fashionable Baltimore hotel to the Willis Wood theater across the way; at Saratoga, the new theater will also combine a clubhouse and a roof garden; and in Pittsburg the Nixon will have no stairs leading to the galleries, inclined planes being used instead. Terra-cotta, brick and bronze will be the material used generally all over the country, combined in the usual way known to Renaissance architecture. The thirty-three or more theaters building throughout the rest of the country from New York to San Francisco are all considerable enterprises. They will average in cost about $125,000. The four largest are $1,000,000-affairs—namely, the Nixon, Pittsburg; the Grand Opera house, Cincinnati; the Iroquois, Chicago, and the Rich & Harris, Boston.

This rapid increase of theaters is a strong indication of the advancement of the people as well as an evidence of prosperity. Wholesome legitimate entertainments are a benefit to the people and should be encouraged.

THE GOLD OUTPUT.

While the output of gold in the Rand district in South Africa is increasing it has not nearly reached the figures of production of four years ago. It was expected by this time that the mines would be working up to their nominal capacity. The war has been over for a year, but there have been obstacles to overcome and the results have not been as satisfactory as hoped for. One great drawback is the scarcity of labor. Men are hard to get, and their cost is high and with the other difficulties, the progress made is perhaps as good as could be expected. The value of the output of the mines in the Rand for April was about $4,600,000, as compared with $4,350,000, in March, this year, and $3,930,000 in February. The production in April of last year was $2,392,000, or but little more than half that of April, 1903. The figures for August, 1899, just before the beginning of the Boer war, when production was at its highest, was $9,190,000.

At the time that mining was interrupted by the war, in the latter part of 1899, the output of the Rand district was at the date of about $90,000,000 a year. That figure, of course, had not been reached in the preceding twelve months. There had been a steady increase in the output, however, and that of August and September, just before hostilities began, was at the rate of $90,000,000 a year. That point would undoubtedly have been reached in 1900 if the war had been averted. There is a chance, moreover, that it will be reached in the calendar year 1904, though the production for April of the present year, which is the highest mark reached since the resumption of mining last May, is only about half of the output of the highest month four years ago.

The mines of the United States and other countries are steadily increasing their output and there is no fear of any shortage in the precious metal.

The Republican press bureau at Washington continues to circulate the old story that the trusts will try to prevent President Roosevelt's nomination next year. Of course, it is only a campaign story.

It now seems necessary for Mr. Cleveland's friends to induce Mrs. Cleveland to give permission to Grover to become a candidate.

And now Chicago expects St. Louis to wash her dirty linen as well as to swallow her germs.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

According to the statements of Hibbing people who were in the city yesterday and today in quite large numbers, the smallpox scare is about over.

"They had the people of that city 'going,' as they say about prize fighters," said a Hibbing man at the St. Louis, who feels that he might have trouble squaring himself if he talked over his name about the situation there.

"I know a dozen people or more who were all ready to move their families out of town if the rumor that was several times rife on the streets that the whole city would be quarantined were ever confirmed or verified. It was kept still and quiet, and the people in the city did not know themselves how the situation was.

"After it was seen what the effect of the suppression of the facts was, it was decided to make public all the facts, and now there is absolutely no feeling of uncertainty in the city.

"There are eight or nine cases, I believe, but everyone knows where they are, and there have been no more cases since the middle of the week."

The fumigating of public places has ceased as a regular thing, and the opera house will be in condition for use in a few days. The opera house was closed on account of the belief of the health authorities that crowds might help spread the epidemic, if it had a good start.

D. Marc, representing the French Metal company, of Paris, is at the Spalding hotel, and is spending some time studying mining and mining systems, and also looking up ore-bearing properties, which his company may acquire in the future. He says that the company he is employed by is considering a plan of building a plant in the United States, probably near Pittsburg, for making metal of a quality for use in making tools. The company is now manufacturing tool steel at its plant in Paris now.

C. A. Wolf, the black diamond salesman, who is at the Spalding hotel, says he is daily expecting a notice of advance in the price of the carbons, from the $50 a carat they are now. The price was $62 a carat within a couple of months, but the demand for the stones at this time of the year caused the loosening of the situation. The demand is brisk now, and the prices are ready to go up. Mr. Wolf received a large consignment of the carbons Saturday and disposed of a large number yesterday. He made one sale to a mining man yesterday at the lobby of the hotel of about $2500 worth of the pebbles.

Miss Coghlan will present at the Lyceum this evening "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," and is very enthusiastic over her accomplishments in it. She has not been in Duluth for some years, but likes the city and is acquainted somewhat here among the older residents.

The Countercheck Quarrelsome.

Woman's Home Companion: Two little negro boys were having a difference of opinion. One was talking with great volubility, while the other was listening. The speaker was pouring into his companion's ear all the vials of his wrath in the characteristic language of his race. Finally he seemed to have exhausted himself and paused for breath.

Said the listener, "Is you done?"

"Yes, I is done," replied the first speaker.

"Well, den," said his companion," all dem t'ings you say I is, you is."

Kept Them to Himself.

New York Times: They are telling a story on Broadway of a certain road manager, who was called to New York to look after booking matters, and was obliged to leave the affairs of his company in the hands of a man whose knowledge of theatrical affairs was extremely limited. He instructed this person to telegraph each night the amount of the receipts, being careful to swell the actual takings by $400. This arrangement would enable the manager to know just where he stood while making a good showing to his friends, for when they asked him how business was it would enable him to flash a telegram showing satisfying receipts.

The first message received read:

"House tonight $1200. Remember, this is increased by $400."

That was bad enough, but when the manager received the following his chagrin was complete:

"House tonight 400 and 375; audience got money back."

How the story leaked out is a mystery, or, needless to tell, the manager did not exhibit the telegrams.

Horrible Possibilities.

New York Herald: "Silas," commanded Mrs. Jonesby, "now you stop your worryin'. What's the matter with you, anyway?"

"I was just thinkin' what a crashin' of nations and wreckin' of worlds there would be if King Edward had kissed the King of Italy four times and the Emperor of Germany had forgot and only given him three smacks, or if the Pope's watch had stopped and he had accidentally let the Emperor stay five or ten minutes longer than the King did."

A Victory For the People.

Minneapolis Journal: The lower house of the Illinois legislature has passed the Mueller street railway ownership bill, the senate was expected to pass it today and Governor Yates will give Chicago the whip hand in dealing with the street railway franchise question. Franchises may be granted for twenty years, or the municipality may take over the lines and own and operate them. It does not follow from this that they are to have municipal ownership in Chicago; it merely means that the city will be in a commanding position in negotiating with the companies. If the latter are disposed to drive too hard a bargain the city can resort to municipal ownership. With that possibility in the background there is little prospect that the city will be gouged. It is a great advance, too, to have the life of a franchise limited by law to twenty years.

Breaking Out In Spots.

Omaha World-Herald: Something must be done by the administration to suppress that man of Fairbanks, of Indiana. Now it is reported that a campaign in his favor has been begun in eKntucky and North Carolina.

Would Start Him Talking Again.

Kansas City Star: Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, overestimates. It is feared, the amount of popular enthusiasm which his nomination for vice president would cause outside of Indiana.

Might Sign a Protocol.

Denver Republican: It will take ten years to complete Mr. Carnegie's peace palace at The Hague. That is a long time for the world to put up with the Bryan-Hill feud.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The most careless thing a girl can do is to kiss a man without making him do it against her will.

It is as natural for a woman to ride horseback a-straddle as for a man to sit down on the floor and put on his stockings.

The devil knew that if he could only get women started to wearing fine clothes he would never have to work any more.

Once a woman went shopping and did not spend all the money she started with, but it was because she lost her pocketbook.

The clever woman always interests a man by talking to him about himself and the clever man a woman by talking to her about the man he suspects she is in love with.

Yells of the Knockers.

Philadelphia Press: District Attorney Folk, of St. Louis, is now accused of slandering Missouri because he persists in prosecuting the boodlers. This is an old and familiar thing. Boodlers is nothing, but exposing it is a great crime.

Only Fault.

Once a ship tried to pass through the Sault
So fast that it really flault;
But so low was the tide,
And the ship was so wide,
It is now quite two weeks overdault.
—Chicago Tribune.

And They Did.

Baltimore American: The prisoner told a remarkably straight story.

All who heard him were impressed.

Many were the comments made about the courtroom, such as:

"Methinks there is something in that story."

"He sounded very much as if he were telling the truth."

All agreed that his words carried conviction with them.

And so it proved.

For the jury, without leaving the box, rendered a verdict of "guilty."

Can't Dam the Flood.

Baltimore Herald: If the tide rises much higher Mr. Cleveland will be compelled to get in the swim.

BESIDE THE BAYOU

By F. H. Lancaster.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

There is a bayou that should flow into False river, but it does not, because just as it had won its way to daylight after that long struggle through swamp and canebrake, and was about to crown its victories by pouring its warm waters into the beautiful blue lake, man put forth his hand and diked the plucky little stream.

It was a pleasant little spot, this tiny, disappointed dell. Great trees stooped over it, green grass covered it, and close to its heart were clover blossoms and sunshine and—sentiment. Ah, yes, it was a spot to make any lover's heart beat the quicker. And there, with the sun sinking into the western end of the water, and all the world turning golden and glad, with its farewell beams, the man found his own heart quickening to a more eager beat, and his thoughts, slipping from their harness of metaphysics and philosophy, rushed away impatient and uncurbed as a boy's.

"So sweet to think of her in this sweetest of places."

One forgot the tense lines of her brow and the hard lines about her lips, and remembered only that the lips themselves were full and red and tempting; that the eyes were wonderfully beautiful—deep, dark, wistful. It seemed beyond believing, now, that there had been a jeer in his breast when he asked her to meet him here in the twilight. She had become suddenly so infinitely dear. Something sacred to be cherished—even above honor.

There was a swish of white skirts on the grass, a little ripple of laughter, a careless "bon soir," and she stood beside him.

"Miss Medeline," he stammered, turning.

"Ah," she murmured, "this beautiful water, it is enough to make even a philosopher dream dreams. Do you know why it is that they call it False river?" Her phrasing betrayed her French blood, though her accent was absolutely pure, and as she told him the life history of the lake before them—how it had once been a bend in the big Mississippi, and had become a cut-off when the river was straightened; how its end were diked and it was dying slowly, he seemed to hear in her voice the quiver of the old poetic provencal heart. "Ah," she ended, "and it is very beautiful, this water darkening softly and the stars slipping out slowly up there. And see, some one has lighted a lamp over there on Cajan Island. Do you not love a lone light in the darkening distance, mon ami? That line of Mrs. Browning's, 'Exaltation in the far light where some lonely cottage is.' Shall I tell you a story about that light, mon ami?"

"Yes," he said quickly. The thought seemed sweet to his softened mood. To lie at her feet in the tender light with her dear voice pulsing in his ears, calling to eager life his dormant manhood.

Madeline nestled costly against the foot of the cottonwood and began to speak with the abandonment of a pleased child—but there were hard lines about her mouth, could he have seen them in the dusk.

"Shall we say that it is an old man who has lighted the lamp? An old man, bent and barefooted, with white hair straggling long about his ears. Or, shall we say it is an old woman, in a skimpy skirt, who has put on an apron as though expecting company? There are plenty of both over there on the island, aged man and women, but this old woman appeals to our imagination because she is expecting something or someone. What? Nobody quite knows. Not even herself does she know clearly what it is she is waiting for while she sits there on her lonely doorstep, with her old bare feet tucked decorously under her skirt and her toil-twisted hands folded patiently in her lap. She has worked hard for many, many years, has this old 'Cajan woman with the scant hair and skinny neck. Worked hard in the home and in the field, and has reared a dozen or more of sons and daughters to wear out their lives in patient toil, even as she has worn out her own. And, mon ami, it is a sad sight, this worn-out old woman, sitting all alone in that feeble ray of light, peering into the darkness with her wistful old eyes. But she was not always old, mon! You would never dream it, but once she was young. Mais oui, younger than you or I could have ever been even in our babyhood. Young and fair and sweet, this old, old woman. And she was ambitious, yes. She would learn to read and write her name in clear, bold letters, even as the priest had written it in the parish register. So they sent her to the public school, because she cried to go. She trudged her four miles daily with a happy heart, and learned fast—the teacher said. Ah, but she grew faster than she learned, and youth is so short for a 'Cajan girl. She is a maiden at 14, a married woman at 15 and—la vieux ever after.

"So it chanced, mon ami, that our pretty young thing was a maiden before she reached the third reader. A maiden sitting just where the old woman is sitting now, listening for a footstep, so strong, so swift, that was sure to come. It came, and that night there was moonlight on the cotton fields—such moonlight as a woman may see but once in all her lifetime, mon ami.

"Ah, well; he was very brave and beautiful, this boy lover of hers. Slow to anger, but blind in his rage when once you roused him—as a true 'Cajan should be. And was there ever a lover so tasteful and fond? So absorbed in the wee-bit home he was making ready for his bride. For they were to be married when another school term had swept its enlightening length across their lives.

"With the new term came a new teacher. A man, so he called himself, and so people supposed him to be—a being of unbounded ambition checked by poverty. At odds with his fate, on the lookout for a bone emissaire. For something to soothe his wounded pride and feed his famished vanity, and his eye fell upon the lovely little girl in the third class—who was 'engaged.'

"Then the girl's ambition began to change color—no longer to read and write, but to wear shoes all day long, and to have white hands; then, too, the 'Cajan lover's brow began to darken. Soon there was only moonshine falling upon the cotton fields, and the little home that was building stood neglected as a deserted nest. But yet the teacher was not satisfied. He must needs boast his triumph 'down to the store.' And then, mon ami, there were hot, panting words in broken English and fierce blows dealt by a bare fist, and presently a pistol shot.

"They carried the boy's body home to his mother. The good priest buried it at the foot of his father's and sprinkled holy water over his grave—but the case was thrown out of court. 'Not murder,' they said, 'but self-defense. And, n'importe, it was only a 'Cajan, anyway.'

"So the teacher returned to his race and rose high—high enough to sit upon the supreme bench. He sits there today, bearing his white head bravely above an august assembly—but he is a hound at heart, as he has ever been. And yonder in the feeble flare of her little tin lamp sits the woman whose life he—lost! Oui, certainment, there was wild weeping and piteous cries, when they told her that her lover was dead. Vain self-reproaches and equally vain prayer for death. But she did not die—ah, que non. She married, and became the mother of many daughters. One of these daughters is now my mother, and it is I, her grandchild, that she is waiting for tonight, scarcely hoping to see me—there is so little strength left for hope in her battered old heart, but— She is my grandmother, even as the man who—the proud old judge is your father. And his blood is in your heart, mon ami. Did I not look into your eyes when you asked me to come here tonight? And, bon soir, mon ami."

The man started up and stretched out his arms. "Madeline! No!" he cried hoarsely. But he was alone, utterly alone, save for the mist walking upon the face of False river.

THINGS THAT NEVER DIE.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
That stirred our hearts in youth,
The impulses of wordless prayer,
The dreams of love and truth;
The longings after something lost,
The spirit's yearning cry,
The striving after better hopes—
These things can never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid
A brother in his need,
A kindly word in grief's dark hour
That proves a friend indeed;
The plea for mercy softly breathed,
When justice threatens nigh;
The sorrow of a contrite heart—
These things shall never die.

The memory of a clasping hand,
The pressure of a kiss,
And all the trifles, sweet and frail,
That make up love's first bliss;
If with a firm, unchanging faith,
And holy trust and high,
Those hands have clasped, those lips have met—
These things shall never die.

The cruel and the bitter word,
That wounded as it fell;
The chilling want of sympathy
We feel but never tell;
The hard repulse that chills the heart,
Whose hopes were bounding high,
In an unfading record kept—
These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love—
Be firm and just and true.
So shall light that can not fade
Beam on thee from on high,
And angel voices say to thee—
These things shall never die.
—CHARLES DICKENS.

The Strike Fever.

"The men are out," he told his wife;
"There's naught that I can do
That will avert this labor strife
That from a trifle grew.

"The men are out because I bowed
To Hawkins on the street,
And that, I learn, is not allowed
By unions held defeat."

"The cook is out," she did aver;
"Our ways she did not like.
The janitor has gone with her,
And both are on a strike.

"The coachman is not satisfied,
And neither is the maid;
They've struck for wages once denied.
And say they must be paid.

"And I won't cook the meals for you;
I am a union wife.
I've got the striking fever, too,
That now is elsewhere rife."

"We have no school," then said his son;
"Our time is all for play
Until the teacher shall have won
The strife begun today."

"If that is so," the man explained,
"And all seek play or pelf,
I do not think I can be blamed
If I should strike myself."
—Brooklyn Eagle.

On the day the bill came up for final disposal a fellow member met Bouck in the space behind the last row of seats, walking back and forth and gesticulating excitedly, bringing his clenched fist down into the hollow of his left hand, to the accompaniment of expletives which would hardly look well in print.

"What's the trouble, Gabe?" inquired his friend. "Why all this excitement?"

"Trouble?" snorted the irate lawmaker. "Trouble enough! That pension bill is up and all the cowardly nincompoops in the house are going to vote for it. It's sure to pass—sure to pass."

"But why don't you get the floor and speak against it—try to stop it," suggested the other.

"Try to stop it?" echoed Bouck. "Try to stop it? Why, I'm one of the cowardly nincompoops myself!"

HOTELS MAY FACE STRIKE

Bell Boys and Porters at Chicago Ask For Advances.

Chicago, May 11.—At last the bell boy, so long so meek and downtrodden, has decided to assert his rights. He is going to strike. The announcement was made to the managements of the large downtown hotels Saturday afternoon. The porters, too, the boys say, are going out in sympathy, and the chambermaids also desire a brief vacation. As a result all the larger hotels will be practically without help by next Sunday, outside of the kitchen and dining rooms.

The "bell hops" organized about a year ago, becoming part of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International union. After giving a masked ball and a picnic, just like other unions, the boys began to feel the need of "recognition."

So on Saturday afternoon the bell boys and porters of the Auditorium, Auditorium Annex, Great Northern, Palmer house, Wellington and Grand Pacific hotels and the Sherman house sent delegates to a meeting of the alliance and told tales of woe that nearly brought tears to the eyes of some of the delegates. When their case had been fully stated a committee of six bell boys, one from each of the larger hotels, was selected, and an hour later the various hotel managements were in receipt of an ultimatum to the effect that wages for bell boys must be raised from $10 to $13 monthly, and that for all calls above the second floor the elevator must be at their service. The porters prepared their demands some days ago, calling for shorter hours and $40 a month salary.

The bell boys and the porters have the cordial support of the chambermaids, who are also members of the alliance, and Tuesday night the young women will meet and probably decide to stand by their fellow employes.

Members of the alliance say that efforts toward organizing the hotel waitresses are progressing rapidly and that when completed they will likely be called out in sympathy.

HE LOSES HIS LOCKS.

Medical Student at Ann Arbor Is Punished.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 11.—Arthur H. Norton, a member of the junior class of the homeopathic department, was surprised by a number of students of the department, principally members of his own class, Saturday afternoon and was shorn of his locks.

The act was committed in the bright glare of the afternoon sun on the lawn in front of the hospital. During the surgical clinic conducted by Dr. Leseur on Friday young Norton leaped over the railing into the pit, and, after a few words with Dr. Leseur, he turned to the first assistant and openly criticised the manner in which the wound was dressed.

An informal meeting of the students was called immediately, resulting in the decision to cut the young man's hair. The affair was distinctly a class affair, in which both fraternity men and independents participated.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free. Regular sizes 50c, $1.00.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION

Discussed By the Senate Finance Committee.

Washington, May 11.—Senator Spooner of Wisconsin has returned to Washington from Hot Springs, Va., where he has been in conference with other Republican members of the senate finance committee on the question of financial legislation at the next session of congress.

Senator Spooner said that the question of financial legislation was thoroughly discussed. No decision was reached except as to the necessity for some such legislation. There will be other meetings of the Republican members during the summer, probably in New York, to continue the consideration of the question.

It is learned from other sources that the basis of the Republican proposition for financial legislation at Hot Springs embraced the main features of the Aldrich bill.

Enough is now known of the opinions of the majority members of the finance committee to state with positiveness that the bill will include provisions for the deposit of all government receipts in national banks, including the customs revenues and the deposits as security for government funds of state, county and city bonds with limitations.

If accepting railroad bonds for such security will probably not be decided until a full meeting of the subcommittee is held.

THE PRINCE BLUSHED

Because Pope Leo Called Him Little Boy.

Rome, May 11.—The pope displayed great interest during the recent visit of the kaiser to Italy and spoke freely about it, especially in regard to the young royal princes. His holiness was particularly affected by Prince Eitel, whom he took by the hand and gently patting him on the head said: "You must be about the age of my grandson, Alphonse, of Spain, whom I shall never see."

He added sadly: "He is a dear boy, but not so strong and tall and bonny as this little boy."

Prince Eitel's skin flushed, much to the amusement of the pope, who laughed benignly. When the visit of the kaiser and his sons was over the pope remarked:

"Those are boys to be proud of. But with six, how is it the emperor can look so young?"

Prince Eitel is now being unmercifully chaffed by his brother, who has told the story, and dubs Eitel "Il Bel bambino," the pretty little boy, which sounds of derision in the ears of a soldier of nineteen, though he may find some consolation in reflecting that the pope referred to the kaiser as a "giovanmotto" youth, and to the crown prince as "Il bambino più grande," eldest little boy.

CARE FOR THE INSANE

Subject of Discussion of Charities and Correction Convention.

Atlanta, Ga., May 11.—At the business session of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections this morning, Dr. J. T. Searcy, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Tuscaloosa, discussed "For What Class of Mental Defectives Should the State Make Provision and in What Way?"

"A hospital for the insane," he declared, "is not a prison, and the inmates are patients, not prisoners." He believed the state should care for all kinds of insane. "State care is, generally speaking, a great deal better than home care, and neighborhood, municipal or country care. These, as a rule, have proved notoriously insufficient, improper and often inhuman," said Dr. Searcy. He thought there was the greatest possible need for a comprehensive investigation, which should take into account most of all the physical status of the children employed in different industries and at different years of life.

"It certainly would appear to me," said Dr. Searcy, "a paramount duty not to legislate along radical lines unless the basis of such legislation is convincing and established beyond the question of a possible doubt."

Professor Charles R. Henderson, of the University of Chicago, presented a brief report of progress from the committee appointed at the Detroit conference last year on "Workingmen, Insurance in Relation to Charity."

DESIRE OF GROVER

To Control Democratic Convention and Name the Candidate.

Belief of Friends That He Would Not Accept Nomination.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four weeks ago a number of Washington correspondents went to Princeton, N. J., to attend the funeral of one of their associates. They took the occasion to visit Grover Cleveland. The ex-president lives in an old-fashioned house surrounded by large grounds filled with handsome trees, and he has evidently everything to make an American gentleman happy. His children are the life of the place. There are evidences of them everywhere. Bicycles obstruct the pathway leading to the front door, decalcomania pictures are scattered about the living room, while children's clothing and children's toys are in evidence everywhere.

All of the six men who called on Mr. Cleveland on April 3 last, knew him in Washington, but not one of the half dozen ever found him before in so affable a mood. He actually seemed glad to see the men who at one time found difficulty in getting near him when business required them to do so. He talked of public and private affairs for half an hour, and he left the impression upon each one of his caller's that he is thoroughly contented with the conditions which surround him and that he really does find life "one long, sweet dream."

Ten days ago this same party, with the addition of nearly 100 others, sat at a banquet table in St. Louis, during the dedicatory ceremonies of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, when Mr. Cleveland was the guest of honor. They had previously heard the Hon. Thomas Carter introduce him to an audience of nearly 50,000 people as the most distinguished private citizen in the world. They had witnessed the ovation which had been accorded to him whenever he appeared in public in the metropolis of Missouri. They had reasons to suppose that he was contented with himself and all the world, and they prepared in consequence to hear from his lips some pleasant utterances on the occasion of the banquet. But they were not prepared for the speech which was forthcoming. Every line of it was humorous and witty. The ex-president took the occasion to pay some compliment to his old-time friends—and enemies—in the newspaper fraternity. He was good natured in the extreme. Each period was punctuated with a pause, and altogether Grover Cleveland, the most distinguished private citizen in the world, won the hearts of all his hearers.

On neither of these occasions did the ex-president indicate by the slightest hint that he had any ambition whatever to again occupy the presidential chair. On the contrary the impression left in the minds of each of his visitors at Princeton and of each of those who visited him in St. Louis was that he had no intention whatever of permitting his name to be used as a candidate for the presidential nomination in the Democratic convention to be held next year.

Grover Cleveland has been talked of as a possibility, even a probability, in most of the states in the Union during the past few weeks. His speech on the negro question, the ovations which he received in St. Louis, and every sentiment which he has uttered in public for some time past, has combined to bring his name more forcibly before the country as a candidate than the utterances of any other man since the days of Samuel J. Tilden. Those who know him best believe that it is his purpose and intention to emulate the example of the "sage of Greystone." It will be recalled that Tilden refused the nomination in 1880 and positively declined to allow his name to be used in the convention of 1884. But it was to Samuel J. Tilden more than to any other man that Grover Cleveland owed his nomination in the later year. Grover Cleveland today unquestionably desires to control the Democratic national convention of 1904, in so far as he wishes to select a man for the nomination who will represent within himself the antithesis of everything that William Jennings Bryan stands for. The best posted men in the Democratic party in this section of the country believe that Cleveland will prefer Gorman. New Englanders, on the other hand, are hopeful that he will cast his mantle upon the shoulders of Richard Olney. But the West, at least the West which was represented in St. Louis last week, is disposed to regard David R. Francis, the head of the St. Louis exposition, as the "heir apparent" to the strength which Mr. Cleveland will develop within the next few months.

Mr. Cleveland was the guest of Mr. Francis during his brief stay in St. Louis. Mr. Francis succeeded in getting the exposition postponed from 1903 to 1904. Mr. Francis is attempting at this very moment to secure the Democratic convention of next year for the city of St. Louis, and although his own campaign for the nomination is being conducted in a very quiet way, it is very well known that he has deep-seated hopes that the combination of a World's fair and a national convention, together with the friendship of the "most distinguished private citizen in the world," will give lead enough over his adversaries to insure his nomination. Mr. Francis has always affiliated himself with the so-called "Cleveland wing" of the Democratic party rather than with the followers of Bryan. And yet he has been so shrewd and so diplomatic in his political conduct that he has avoided antagonizing either element. His nomination would unquestionably be entirely acceptable to the Democrats of the East. It would be pleasing to the South and it will not be antagonized by the West. If, therefore, Mr. Cleveland, who has so recently developed strength as a Democratic leader, should decide to ask his followers to support David R. Francis, the chances are that the Louisiana Purchase exposition will not be without political results, even though it may not prove the financial success which it deserves to be, and which its projectors hope it will be.

On Monday last Washington honored the memory of the late Alexander R. Shepherd, the regenerator of the national capitol, by following his remains, which were brought from Mexico to their last resting place in the beautiful cemetery, known as Rock Creek. Already a fund has been started to erect a substantial memorial to the man who, twenty-five years ago, overturned all precedent, took the reins in his own hands and made Washington what it was intended to be, the most beautiful city in the world. To Alexander R. Shepherd more than all other men combined Washington owes its existence.

It is only fitting that his memory should be suitably honored. But there are two other men, private citizens, who are doing much individually for the capitol of the nation. One of these is Joseph E. Willard, at present the lieutenant governor of Virginia. Up to seven years ago Mr. Willard was comparatively unknown in Washington. He was living the life of a country gentleman in his beautiful home in Fairfax county, Virginia, which was the residence of his mother. His father was one of the wealthiest real estate owners in this city, who allowed his holdings to remain unimproved year after year. When he died his holdings were inherited by his son, who lost no time in improving it. He first acquired the half interest in Willard's hotel, owned by his uncle, and through his efforts a trust company was formed which promptly erected one of the handsomest buildings on one portion of the property. Next he built a fine office building on one of the finest corners of F street, on a lot which had been an eyesore to the neighborhood for twenty years or more. Then he furnished and improved all the minor buildings which he inherited from his father. The old gentleman seemed to prefer that his buildings should be vacant rather than that they should have occupants. The son had adopted a reverse policy, and prosperous business is conducted today in stores and offices which for decades had no occupant. But the greatest of Mr. Willard's improvements consisted in tearing down the historic Willard's hotel, which sheltered during its days statesmen and soldiers by the hundreds. Upon half the site there was first erected a modern fire-proof up-to-date hotel, ten stories high, which has been filled with guests from the day it was opened, and now the remaining portion is being adorned with an additional structure, which, when completed, as it will be within a very few months, will give Washington what it has never had before, an absolutely first-class hotel. Governor Willard is also interested in a company which proposes to erect a new $1,000,000 hotel in the vicinity of the Union depot, soon to be erected within a few blocks of the capitol.

The other benefactor is Thomas P. Walsh, a Colorado millionaire, who brought his wealth to Washington some years ago and has been spending it in beautifying the city ever since he came. Mr. Walsh already has one of the most beautiful residences in the fashionable northwestern section. Today he is pushing to rapid completion a fireproof office building, within a block of the treasury, and quite recently he has acquired by purchase title to another old hotel site, with the property adjoining, which, as soon as the lease expires, he proposes to improve by erecting thereon still another up-to-date hotel with all the conveniences, but which will be less expensive for visitors than the Willard. In other words, Mr. Walsh saw an opportunity to give the traveling public the very latest in the way of hotel facilities at medium prices, within the next five years Washington will in consequence be provided with better accommodation in this direction than any city of its size in the country affords.

Joseph E. Willard and Thomas F. Walsh are comparatively young men. It is to be hoped that it will be very many years before the citizens of Washington will be called upon to pay tribute to the memory of either of them. But there are no private citizens in the national capitol today who are more entitled to the praise of their fellows than these two gentlemen, who have invested their means to much good purpose in the improvement of the character of the architecture of the city of Washington.

The indications are that the new Chinese minister will very soon be as popular in Washington as his predecessor, Mr. Wu Ting Fang. Sir Chen Tung Liang has won the hearts of the people wherever he has appeared in public. He speaks English with even greater facility than did Wu, and he is mixing with the Americans in every possible way. His children associate with American boys and are already popular among them. The members of his entourage are likewise acquiring American ways as rapidly as they possibly can, and the public schools of Washington have enrolled among their scholars quite a number of Celestial children who, while unable as yet to speak the English language of their playmates, are rapidly learning English words and acquiring the knowledge imparted in the kindergartens. One of the amusing sights these spring mornings is the receptions which are daily held by an almond eyed little girl, perhaps 9 years of age, who attends one of the public schools in the vicinity of North Fourteenth street. At first this little lady was accompanied by a Chinese gentleman, wearing the costume of the mandarin. Now she goes alone, and before she gets within a block of the school house she is surrounded by a small army of youngsters of about her own age all eager to do the honors of the morning. The little Chinese lady has already learned all the indoor games with which the American youngsters are familiar, and if she keeps on as she is going at present she promises to become an expert at the American game of baseball, as she has developed great fondness for and some proficiency in that sport of the American youngster.

THE POST OFFICE SENSATIONS.

The latest development in the postal sensations is the preferment of charges by Seymour W. Tulloch, former cashier of the Washington post office, alleging irregularities in that post office during the incumbency of Charles Emory Smith as postmaster general. Mr. Tulloch also involves former First Assistant Postmaster General Heath and other officials. He has brought his charges to the attention of Postmaster General Payne.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Pinkerton Detectives Give Divorce Candidates a Severe Jolt.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Not for years have the gayer members of the divorce colony in this city had such a shock as when information leaked out that a Pinkerton detective has been in the city for about a month quietly securing evidence which will be used to defeat prospective applicants for divorces when their suits come up for legal hearing. It is said the detective was sent here to secure evidence of the character indicated in the cases of two women members of the colony and that in the course of his investigations he secured a great deal of damaging evidence against other members of the colony that he is expected to submit to the husbands or wives of the persons concerned. The discovery of the detective's presence has also created a sensation among some of the Sioux Falls gallants whose names have been connected with women members of the colony. Some of them are married and stand high in local society circles.

Aberdeen—The suit in the United States court of N. P. Frausen & Co., of St. Paul, against the South Dakota state board of regents of education resulted in a verdict for the defendants. The suit was for $13,000, and grew out of theb urning of the main building of the Northern normal and industrial school in December, 1901, as it was nearing completion by the plaintiffs. The contract provided that the regents should keep the building insured, Frausen & Co. to pay the premium. The testimony of the regents was that the member of the firm in personal charge of the work declared after $5000 insurance had been provided that the premium was high and he did not want more insurance, preferring to take the chances, and keep a watchman constantly on duty. The Frausen brother in charge contradicted this. On the night when the fire occurred the watchman was not at the building.

Spearfish—M. P. Ocumpaugh, who has recently been appointed fish warden for Lawrence county, has undertaken important measures for the protection of the game fish in the streams of the Northern Black Hills. He has ordered that screens be placed at the intake of every ditch by which water is diverted from a running stream, which will prevent the fish from escaping from the stream down the ditch to perish when the water is distributed over the agricultural land. He has found a willingness on the part of the farmers to comply with this requirement.

Watertown—Two companies of regulars from Fort Snelling will be here during the state guard encampment, and the cadets from the agricultural college at Brookings, under Capt. McArthur, making a total of 1500 men in camp.

Lesterville—The volunteer firemen are preparing to go on a strike, and all because of differences with members of the town council as to the sum which it shall contribute for the support of the department.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—Fire broke out in a haystack in the rear of B. Larson's residence in the western part of the city, the flames being fanned by one of the worst wind and sand storms known to the oldest inhabitants. The fire carried from the burning hay to barns and other stacks, taking everything in its path for three blocks, so that the entire section of the city was threatened with destruction.

Bucket brigades, several hundred in number, aided the fire department and their work was so effective that the loss will be comparatively small. The following are the larger losses, there being about a dozen small ones varying under $50: Burger Larson, $225; Ole Dahl, $100; Nels Abrahamson, $350; J. Whitlock, $75; P. Anderson, $65.

Armour—The board of health of this county has commenced a war on dogs. It has ordered all curs to be muzzled, and the sheriff and his deputies are out with rifles, shooting all dogs when the order has not been complied with. The order is the result of an epidemic of hydrophobia. J. J. Walsh, a prominent farmer just south of Armour, has lost thirty head of cattle and two head of horses, and some other losses are reported.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Three-Year-Old Boy Horribly Mangled By a Train.

Houghton—Mich., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Clyde, the 3-year-old son of R. H. McDonald, Quincey Mills, was so horribly mangled by being run over by a Copper Range train that he died at the hospital after both legs had been amputated. The boy was playing about the gravel train and was caught when it started to move.

Iron Mountain—It is reported at Iron Mountain that John Carey, the missing treasurer of Breitung township, has been located and that in a short time he will be back in Dickinson county. It is also learned that Carey is not the only person who is to blame for the alleged shortage. It is stated that there are several persons implicated in the deal, and that soon some startling surprises will be sprung.

Norway—The Wisconsin & Michigan road has made a survey for a branch from its main line, south of the Northwestern road at Sturgeon River, to run into Norway on the south side, and will immediately begin procuring right-of-way therefor. This will give the company connections with both sides of the city, and also with the mines lying south of the Northwestern tracks at Norway. The high grade established by the Northwestern and the hill on the south side has made a crossing or tunnel impracticable.

Menominee—The drive of Crawford & Sons on Cedar river has been finished. Twelve or fourteen million feet of logs of all kinds, besides a large number of posts, poles and ties, came down. There were about 2,000,000 cedar logs and 30,000 poles in the lot. Mr. Crawford says that the driving conditions were exceptionally good this year, and some runs were made which were never equaled before on Cedar river. There were from fifty to eighty men employed on this drive. Crawford & Sons' mill, at Cedar River, Menominee county, is now running full blast, and the only hindrance is the scarcity of men.

Escanaba—Escanaba lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks is planning an event which is expected to eclipse anything held under the auspices of that order in the upper peninsula. The date has been set at May 28, and at that time there will be initiated into the mysteries of the order over 100 applicants. The ceremonies will commence at 2 o'clock in the afternoon on the 27th and will probably not be concluded until noon on the following day. On the evening of the 28th a grand banquet will be held at which many prominent Elks from throughout the state will respond to toasts. Visiting delegations are expected from all cities in the upper peninsula where lodges are found.

DID NOT WEAR A CROWN

And Little Italian Princess Was Disappointed.

London, May 11.—An amusing story comes from Rome apropos of the king's recent visit.

"King Edward," writes the Rome correspondent of the Westminster Gazette, "has come, seen and conquered with one exception, the Princess Yolanda. She is the eldest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel and had imagined that King Edward was coming especially for her benefit. So her disillusionment easily can be imagined, when not only did he prove to be old, but she was shut in her nursery and not allowed to come out without special permission.

"The princess, however, decided not to endure any such injustice, but the nurses were vigilant. However, one morning, while papa and mamma were much occupied, she found the door open and slipped out quite unseen. But mamma's eyes were sharp. She discovered her daughter hiding behind a huge chair. 'Yolanda, why did you run away?' asked the queen.

"'I didn't,' she replied, 'I only wanted to see King Edward's crown, and Miss Dickens kept me in the nursery. The nasty man hasn't got a crown after all.'"

LORENZ DENIES

He Claimed Surgery System as His Own.

New Orleans, La., May 11.—Dr. Lorenz replied to his critics Saturday. He said: "It is charged that I claim to be the originator of the method I use, but I do not claim the priority of the treatment at all. Some smart midwife of the middle ages probably first tried this method. I only claim to have introduced more system, more technique and thoroughness into an old method which was long neglected, although without sufficient reason. I am now only trying to make this method popular for the benefit that will accrue to all mankind from it, and I think I have incidentally made quite a success of it. The dissecting knife is being played out in the treatment of congenital foot and hip trouble."

SUPPORT IS PLEDGED

Union Meeting In Interest of the Bethels Is Held.

Rev. W. E. Spoonts and Rev. C. W. Estes Given a Welcome.

At the Pilgrim Congregational church last evening a union meeting of the Bethel workers of the city to welcome Rev. W. E. Spoonts and Rev. C. W. Estes, who have recently arrived in Duluth to take up the Bethel work, was held.

The different branches of the Bethel work were also described to the large congregation present.

Rev. T. H. Cleland, in a short address, welcomed Rev. M. Spoonts and Rev. Mr. Estes to the city and assured them of the support of the pastors of Duluth in their work.

After a short Scripture reading by Rev. S. C. Davis, Miss Emma F. Anderson discussed the Sunday school work as conducted in the Bethels.

"Sunday schools are an important feature in Christian work," said Miss Anderson. "There are about 400 children attending the Sunday schools in the two Bethels. They are not all from the poorer homes of the city, but the majority are and this is the class we desire to reach.

"The strongest impressions of good are often received in the Sunday echools and there is often too much indifference on the part of the parents in regard to the work done by them."

Mrs. Asher gave a description of the general missionary work being conducted by the Bethel association and pictured two or three instances in which the Bethel workers had been instrumental in saving whole families from starvation during the past winter.

Rev. W. E. Spoonts then replied with a few brief remarks to the address of welcome of Mr. Cleland, taking as the subject for his address the text "As You Sow, so Shall You Reap."

"This text is proven by ancient history, by modern history and by the history of the church," said Mr. Spoonts. "We are now reaping in religious liberty the fruits of the work of our forefathers in Pilgrim times. Let us sow individual righteous lives and we will reap a clean moral society. Great faith is necessary for great works. Let us fingly believe in the future of the Bethel work and it will accomplish great things."

Rev. Mr. Spoonts comes to Duluth from Washington, Ind., where he has been pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church for four years. He has had a very wide and varied experience, including that of a cowboy, farmer, cattle trader and general merchant. He was educated at Trinity university, Tehuacana, Texas, and at Lebanon Theological seminary, Lebanon, Tenn.

Rev. C. W. Estes followed Mr Spoonts with a brief address, thanking the pastors of the city for the welcome extended himself and Mr. Spoonts and telling of the work which lay before them at the Bethel.

Miss Mary E. Shannon described the work which is being undertaken by the Bethel Rescue home and told of the needs of the institution and of the good which it is accomplishing.

During the course of the evening vocal solos were rendered by Mr. Estes and Mrs. Asher.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

The Duluth Y. M. C. A. will tender a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Gilbert and Norman MacLeod, the junior secretary of the organization, Tuesday evening, in the association parlers. One thousand invitations have been issued for the reception.

Mr. Gilbert has but recently returned from his wedding tour and the reception is being given partly in honor of his wedding.

As no public function has been given by the organization since the arrival of Mr. MacLeod in Duluth to take charge of the junior department the reception is being given partly in his honor.

The association orchestra will furnish the music and a number of young ladies closely connected with Y. M. C. A. work will furnish the refreshments.

NORSK RESIDENTS

Of Fosston to Celebrate Norwegian Independence Day.

Fosston, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—May 17, the anniversary of the drafting of the constitution of Norway, and recognized as Norwegian independence day, will be appropriately observed by the Norsk residents of Fosston by a patriotic celebration at Ouff lake, about two miles west of the city. The celebration will be under the auspices of Fylking lodge, I. O. G. T., of Fosston, and the program arranged for the day includes music by the Fosston band and speeches to be delivered by Professor Asker, of Concordia college, Moorhead, and Hon. B. S. Bennett, representative from this legislative district. As a large proportion of the residents of Fosston and vicinity are of Scandinavian origin, it is expected that there will be a very large attendance at the celebration, both from this place and from outside points. Much enthusiasm is evinced over the proposed celebration and that it will be a success is assured.

INFERNAL MACHINE.

The Officers Do Not Think It a Hoax.

New York, May 11.—The police so far have failed to solve the mystery surrounding the leaving of a box of dynamite on the Cunard line dock Saturday. There is a difference of opinion among the officials as to whether the matter was intended to be a hoax or not but all agree that the possibilities of a great explosion and a great loss of life were many.

Superintendent G. E. Murray of the bureau of combustibles said that there was no detonating caps attached to the dynamite sticks, and that without these caps it is not likely that the dynamite would have exploded from a fuse. He says, however, that if the box had been given a sudden jar at the time the fuse burned down to the dynamite an explosion might have resulted. He also said that he has experimented with the clock work and concludes that it had run about five hours when found and that it had about thirty hours to run before operating the firing of the fuse. He does not believe that a hoax was intended.

Inspector McCluskey can advance no theory on the case. He said he would have to wait until the results of his efforts to learn who sent the box had borne some fruit. He had a score of men at work all day endeavoring to locate the wagon in which the box was carried to the Cunard pier.

Police Commissioner Greene said that it had been suggested to him that the whole thing was a honx, but that the suggestion would not divert him from his purpose of having the matter sifed to the bottom.

JUMPED THE TRACK.

Several People Hurt In Accident In Tennessee.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 11.—Southern passenger train No. 12, which leaves Knoxville at 9:35 a. m. for Asheville, N. C., jumped the track about noon yesterday, one mile west of White Pine, Tenn. The train consisted of an engine, combination express and mail cear, baggage car, two day coaches and two sleepers. All were derailed, except the sleepers. Engineer Robert B. Holloman, of Knoxville, was caught beneath his engine and crushed to death.

The injured: Ed. Braseleton, fireman; W. S. Staley, express messenger; Ben Whiteside, baggageman; F. P. Abernathy, postal clerk; R. E. L. Mouncey, postal clerk; Sylva Smith, colored, passenger, White Pine, Tenn.; Horace Webb, colored, passenger, Knoxville, Tenn.

Of the injured, all of whom are painfully hurt, Sylva Smith is the worst injured. She may die. The train was running thirty miles an hour when the accident ocurred. No cause can be assigned for it. The rails were torn up for 200 feet and a delay of over six hours occurred to travel.

YELLOWSTONE CRIME.

Woman's Corpse Is Found In the River.

Butte, Mont., May 11.—Portions of the body of a woman were found on Saturday in the Yellowstone river near Pardine, Mont., and indicate that a murder was committed in the national park, and the body of the victim dismembered and thrown into the river.

The story of the discovery was brought to Jardine by Mrs. Annie Paul, wife of a rancher, living several miles below Jardine. She says her doughter saw a strange object floating in the river near the bank and called Mrs. Paul's attention to it. The latter investigated, and pulled the object out of the water, but was so horrified on discovering that it was the head and upper part of a woman's body that she allowed it to drop back into the water and it disappeared. That the head was that of a well-to-do woman was evident by the fact that it were large diamond ear-rings and the hand had several rings on its fingers, one of which was a diamond.

Without an effort to recover the head Mrs. Paul ran to Jardine and notified the authorities. A party of men at once went to the river and began a search for the remains. It was evident from the condition of the head and arm that the woman had not been dead many days, but no disappearances have been reported lately. The officers surmise that the woman was a tourist in the park.

CHICAGO WARD CLEANED.

Well-to-Do People Do Work of Laborers.

Chicago, May 11.—In overalls and jumpers well-to-do members or the Twentieth Ward Improvement association worked like day laborers on the streets in their district Saturday. Shovels, hoes and brooms were wielded as they have never been wielded before in the ward. Bonfires blazed in every alley and on every vacant lot. Eighteen garnage wagons assisted in the removal of the accumulation of rubbish and at nightfall both streets and alleys were as clean as a floor.

The street cleaning department "skimmed" over the ward once before early in the spring, but the result was not all that the property owners thought it might be, nor did they feel that one cleaning, no matter how thorough, was enough for the entire season.

COLONIES' AREA

Occupies Two-Fifths of Land Surface of the Globe.

Colonies Contain One-Third of the World's Population.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The area, population, commerce and methods of government of the colonies of the world are discussed in detail by a monograph just issued by the treasury bureau of statistics, entitled "Colonial Administration, 1900-1900."

It shows that the colonies, so-called, of the world, including in this term all territory not contiguous to the country by whose government it is controlled, occupy two-fifths of the land surface of the globe and contain one-third of the world's population, or about 500,000,000 people. Of this colonial population of 500,000,000, only three small groups, numbering less than 15,000,000 population, or 3 per cent of the whole, are composed in any considerable degree of the people of the governing country or their descendants. The principal colonies composed of people from the governing country or their descendants are the English colonies of British North America, Australasia and South Africa. The remaining 485,000,000 people, governed by countries not contiguous to that which they occupy, are of different stock from that of the governing country, and less than 1 per cent of their population is of the nationality which administers the government. Practically all of Africa, Oceania and Southern Asia are governed by countries not contiguous to the territory in question. All of the governing countries are located in the temperate zone, and practically all of the territory governed as colonies is, with the exception of Canada, Southern Australia and New Zealand, tropical or subtropical.

The 485,000,000 people of stock different from that of the governing country, and located in the tropics, are divided into three great groups, East Indian, West Indian and African. The East Indian, or Oriental, group includes the British colonies of India, Ceylon, the Malayan peninsula, Fiji and Borneo; the Dutch colonies of Java and Sumatra, and the French colony of Indo-China—all located comparatively near to the Philippines and having o population, climate and other conditions somewhat similar to those of the Philippines. The second group, the West Indian, includes colonies governed by the British, French, Dutch and Danish governments; the third group, Africa and adjacent islands, includes territory governed by Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Portugal and Belgium.

The population of the British colonies is, in round numbers, 350,000,000; that of the French colonies, 56,000,000; Netherlands colonies, 35,000,000; Belgian colonies, 30,000,000; German colonies, 15,000,000; Portuguese colonies, 9,000,000, and Spanish colonies, 135,000; while the non-contiguous territory governed by the United States has a population of about 10,000,000. Of the population of 350,000,000 thus governed by Great Britain, nearly 300,000,000 are in the East Indian group, 35,000,000 in Africa and less than 3,000,000 in the West Indies. Of the Dutch colonies, 55,000,000 are in the East Indian group and 50,000 in the West Indies. Of the French colonies, about 25,000,000 are in the East Indian group, 25,000,000 in Africa and 300,000 in the West Indies.

The report shows that the commerce of the colonies amounts to about $3,000,000,000, of which about one-half is imports, and a large proportion drawn from the governing country; while, in turn, the colonies supply a large proportion of the tropical and subtropical products required by the countries which administer their government.

On the question of the government of colonies, to which the study is especially devoted, the report shows that in the colonies composed of people of the governing country, or their descendants, the administration of government is left almost exclusively to the people of the colonies themselves; in the colonies whose population is chiefly of a race, customs and climatic conditions differing from those of the home country, the governor and other executive officers are usually appointed by the home government, and these, with the aid of natives (usually in the form of a legislative body, one branch of which is elected by the people), frame the laws and regulations, which are administered by the officers appointed by the home government. Local and municipal legislation and administration are left to the natives wherever practicable, and they are encouraged to assume the duties of administering law and improving and developing the community commercoally and otherwise. The construction of orads, railways, telegraphs and other methods of communication by which the natural products of the colony can be sent to the markets of the world is encouraged by the home government, and in most cases the cost is borne by the colony itself; and the development of the colony is usually coincident with the development of the facilities of transportation and communication. Funds for the conduct of the colonial government are raised in practically all cases in the colony itself and by methods usually adopted in other parts of the world, though in the newer colonies customs duties are the chief reliance for this purpose.

The commercial relations between the colonies and their governing countries are also discussed at considerable length, showing that the colonies in practically all cases take a larger proportion of their imports from the governing country than from other parts of the world, and that the demands of the governing country (located as they are in the temperate zones) for the products of the colonies (located as they are in the tropics) are constantly increasing and thus commerce between the colony and the governing country is rapidly growing.

CONVICTS ESCAPE.

Birmingham, Ala., May 11.—A portion of the kitchen of the state prison at Flat Top mines, twenty-five miles from this city, was burned Saturday night and nine convicts escaped. Going to the railroad station nearby the convicts robbed the telegraph operator and left him bound. The signal light was turned, causing the next train to stop. The operator was found and released. One of the convicts has been captured, and it is expected the balance will be captured within twenty-four hours.

HE KNEW TOO MUCH.

Simonds' Partners Wanted Certain Papers Very Badly.

New York, May 11.—That the murder of E. Morris Simonds, of this city, in Chicago, on April 28, was the direct result of his effort to obtain his share of the booty of the defunct New York "get rich quick" syndicate of C. E. Mackey & Co., seems to be established beyond a possibility of a doubt. That Mrs. Simonds knew the purpose of her husband's visit to Chicago also seems clear.

Information gathered by the police of New York and Chicago has thrown a great deal of light on Simond's affairs, although the actual murderers have not been apprehended. That they were employed by some one with a powerful financial motive of putting Simonds where he could make on trouble is the police theory.

Detectives who have been investigating the crime believe that Simonds was drugged and assaulted for the purpose of robbing him of papers which he always carried with him and on which he had expected to realize a large amount of money in Chicago. Just what these papers were is to some extent a matter of conjecture.

THAT WAS TOO MUCH.

Girl Candidate Could Not Dine With Men.

Paris, May 11.—A recent dispatch told how for the first time women were permitted to compete in the preliminary examination to qualify for the final competition for the grand prix de Rome.

One of these, Mlle. Toutain, a student in music, should have entered on loge on May 2. But on learning that as it was the first time where women had competed and that no new regulations would be passed in regard to the manner in which she should be treated during her detention, that she would be surveyed by a man and would take her meals in the same room as males, she applied for permission to take her maid with her and have their meals together. This permission was granted, but it was received too late. Mlle. Toutain has now appealed to the government, asking that either the examination, which is now going on, be annulled, or that she should go on loge immediately and remain for a period equal to the other competitions.

FOUND BIG CHECK.

Rahway, N. J., May 11.—It became known today that Patrick Moore, a flagman at the New Brunswick avenue crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad, found on Wednesday a check for $21,000, which fluttered out of a window of the Long Branch express as it passed through here. The check was drawn on the Merchants' National bank of Chicago, in favor of Mrs. Isabella Stewart, but the name of the maker was undecipherable. The check was turned into the lost property department of the railroad.

TREATY OF PEACE

Has Been Arranged Between Chile and Bolivia.

New York, May 11.—Although not officially confirmed, several newspapers publish a statement that a definite treaty of peace, friendship and boundaries has been signed at La Paz between the Chilean minister, Mathieu, and the Bolivian secretary of foreign affairs, cables the Valparaiso, Chile, correspondent of the Herald. According to the treaty, Chile obtains perpetual possession of the coast extending between the provinces of Tarapaca and Atacama. In exchange Bolivia will receive 30,000,000 pesos, in half yearly installments, to be applied to the construction of the railroad from Central Bolivia to the Pacific coast. Chile will also pay 17,000,000 pesos owed by Bolivia to Chilean creditors.

The government shows the greatest reserve regarding this important treaty, which is considered here as a shameful defeat of Chilean diplomacy.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Herman M. Blasdell, of North Collins, a former assemblyman, after whom the town of Blasdell, N. Y., is named, and his wife, were so badly burned in a fire which started from an explosion and which destroyed their home Sunday that they died a few hours later. An apoted son, who was the only other occupant of the house at the time of the explosion, was slightly burned.

Work was received at Vincennes Sunday that Charles Poor, who sold his farm in that county and started to the Northwest last week, had committed suicide at Watertown, Wis., while on his way to Aberdeen, N. D., in charge of a car of horses and household goods.

One man was killed, another crushed and a third badly hurt as the result of a street car collision on the road to Euclid beach, Cleveland, Sunday night. The dead man's name is Galvin. The fatally injured is a young man named McSweeney and the third is said to be Frank Riley. The trio were riding on the rear of a crowded car when an oncoming car crashed into the footboard.

During a sudden squall Sunday a sail boat containing four men and four women, students of the University of Wisconsin capsized at Madison. The occupants clung to the boat until rescued and narrowly escaped drowning.

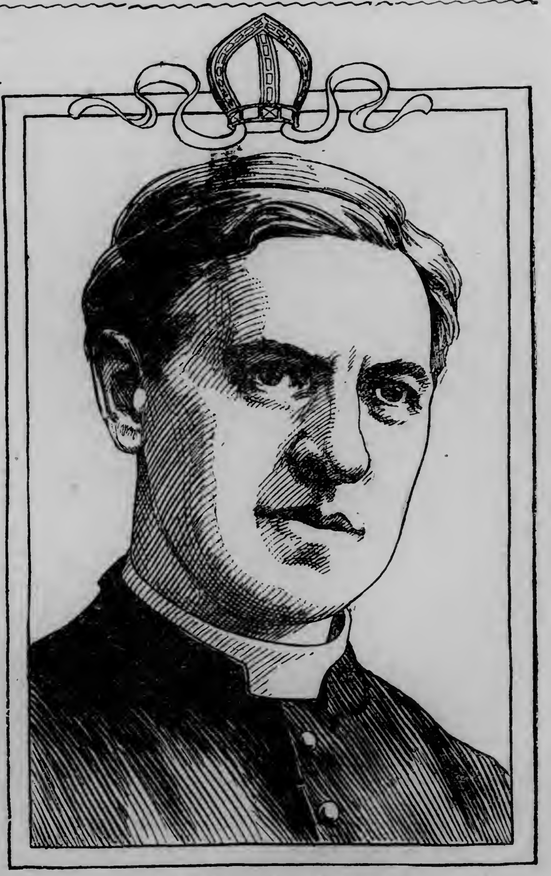
ANTIQUES ARE BOGUS.

Many Bought Curios Made By a Russian.

London, May 11.—Paris seems hitherto to have not known that the Russian craftsman, Ruchomowski, the maker of the much discussed tiara of Sataphernes, is the author of other curious which have been fondly imagined by the owners to be genuine antiques.

For instance, Reitinger, son-in-law of Cattini, the financier, who lost his suit against Mme. Humbert of "Crawford millions" fame, owned what he thought were four valuable antiquities, which Ruchomowski has now identified as his work. Reitinger has been partly consoled by finding that he paid less for them than the price originally given to Ruchomowski.

A euro now in the salon in the Ruchomowski collection, which is attracting considerable attention, is a small human skeleton about three inches high, made of gold. Every detail is carried out with minute accuracy which can only be appreciated by the use of the magnifying lenses fastened outside the glass case.



THE NEW BISHOP OF BUFFALO.

Father Charles H. Colton, of St. Stephen's parish, New York city, whose appointment as bishop of Buffalo to succeed former Bishop Farley, of Buffalo, now archbishop of Chicago, was announced a few days ago, has made an enviable record in his present charge. Born in New York in 1848, he was ordained priest in 1876. Since then he has been connected with St. Stephen's parish. In 1894 Archbishop Corrigan appointed Father Colton vice chancellor of the archdiocese, and a little later he was elevated to the chancellorship, a post which he has since retained.

IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

The Alleged Slayer of Marcum Arrested Without Trouble.

Lexington, Ky., May 11.—Curtis Jett, charged with the assassination of J. B. Marcum in Jackson, Monday, was arrested without bloodshed at 3 o'clock Saturday morning. He is now in the Clark county jail at Winchester.

Bearing a warrant which had been sworn out by Samuel Jett, uncle of the accused, Sheriff McChord and a posse of seven left Winchester at midnight Saturday. Reaching Jackson's Ferry, ten miles distant at 2:30 a. m.

They put away their buggies and crossed the Kentucky river to Madison county in canoes. They proceeded on foot to the home of Mrs. A. Haggin, Jett's mother, two miles from the ferry.

Six of the posse were stationed around the dwelling and Sheriff McChord and Deputy Stokelly approached the front door and knocked. Jett's mother answered and after some parley admitted that Curtis was within. They were admitted and found Jett awake, but still in bed. He shook hands with the sheriff and said that he would give no trouble.

Reaching under his pillow he drew out his pistol and turned it over to his mother to keep. He made no show of resistance and was landed in jail at Winchester at 6 a. m.

Jett's step-father, A. Haggin, charges that when Jett reached his house last night from Jackson he proceeded to draw his pistol on him and ordered him to get out of the neighborhood. Haggin went to Richmond and swore out a warrant, charging Jett with breach of the peace by assault with a pistol. In the jail today Jett was communicative on all matters save the killing of Marcum.

"I got out of this all right" was the only statement he would make that could be construed as a reference to the charge. He said he wanted to be tried in Breathitt county. He was bitter in denouncing his uncle, who had him arrested and said the score would be evened when he was at liberty. When asked in reference to the statement that five men would testify that he killed Marcum he simply sneered and replied, "what's that to you?" To Sheriff McChord he was equally non-communicative as to the Marcum tragedy.

Jett is 28 years of age, athletic in build, with deep set keen eyes and bushy red hair. That he submitted to arrest was an unpleasant surprise to the officers, who feared an encounter. Jett denied that he drove his step-father from his home. He will be arraigned Tuesday and it is supposed will be transferred to the Jackson district for trial.

DEATH BY FIRE.

Explosion of Lamp Caused Fatality at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Ind., May 11.—Mrs. N. A. Long and her 5-year-old son is perhaps fatally burned as the result of an oil lamp explosion early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Long and her children were sleeping at their home when a small oil lamp exploded. The oil was hurled over Mrs. Long but she frantically rushed to the other room to rescue the children. Instantly she was enveloped in flames and as she seized the children their night robes took fire and all three were aflame.

The mother then attempted to get out of the house but was overcome and fell in an adjoining room. Passersby discovered the fire and burst in the doors. They found all three frightfully burned.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Young Man and Four Horses Meet Instant Death.

Albert Lea, Minn., May 11.—During a severe electrical storm which passed over this country Saturday afternoon a bolt of lightning struck John Guirtman, a young farmer, living in Conger, on the farm of August Richter, killing him and the four horses which he was driving at the time. Although the storm was very severe in this section this is the only fatality reported, nor were any buildings damaged so far as is known.

The tragedy is remarkable from the fact that although Guirtman was stricken within 100 yards of the house which was occupied at the time by a number of people nobody noticed that any bolt had struck near them or remembers any particular heavy peals of thunder.

It was not until the storm was over and the skies partially cleared that a member of the Richter family went out to call Guirtman and was horrified to find man and beasts motionless upon the ground. The rest of the family and neighbors were hastily summoned but there was no life in man or beasts.

Between the body of the man and those of the horses the ground was torn up to a depth of ten feet by the awful force of the deadly fluid. But upon the body of the dead man there was no mark to tell how he had died save a slight contusion on the face. The horses, outbuildings and the many high trees on the farm were unscathed.

Guirtman was about 21 years of age and was brought to Conger two years ago from an orphan home in Indiana. He had not relatives here but has a sister in Winona and a brother in the northern part of the state.

RHEUMATISM

An All the Year Round Disease.

Rheumatism does not come and go with winter time always; in fact some suffer more during the Spring and Summer than at any other season. When the blood is charged with Uric Acid, Alkali and other irritating poisons, then the system is in the right condition for Rheumatism to develop, and an attack is liable to come at any time, Winter or Summer.

Rheumatism, because it attacks different parts of the body, and is sudden or slow in its action, is given various names such as acute and chronic, muscular, articular, inflammatory, mercurial and sciatic, but it is the same old acid blood that causes all. Some are constant sufferers, while others have only occasional spells of Rheumatism, but either kind is wearing upon the constitution, and in time produces stiffness in the muscles and joints, and sometimes the acids thrown off by the blood settle upon the valves of the heart and ends suddenly and fatally.

It won't do to let Rheumatism run on. It is a dangerous disease, and you can never tell where it is going to strike. Home remedies, plasters, liniments and such things as produce counter-irritation, are soothing and may relieve the pain temporarily, but the polluted, acid blood cannot be reached by external applications.

Rheumatism must be treated through the blood, and no remedy brings such prompt and lasting relief as S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the blood, neutralizes the acids, and removes all irritating poisons and effete matter from the system.

S. S. S. strengthens and enriches the thin acid blood, and, as it circulates through the body, the corroding, gnawing poisons and acid deposits are dislodged and washed out of the muscles and joints, and the sufferer is happily relieved from the discomforts and misery of Rheumatism.

SSS

S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, does not contain any Potash or mineral of any kind, and can be taken with safety by old and young.

Rheumatic sufferers who write us about their case will receive valuable aid and helpful advice from our physicians, for which no charge is made. We will mail free our special book on Rheumatism, which is the result of years of practical experience in treating this disease. It contains much interesting information about all kinds of Rheumatism.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Portland, Ind., Jan. 10, 1903.

After being terribly crippled for three years with Rheumatism, and having tried well known remedies I could get no relief. And having read of the wonderful effects of S. S. S., I concluded to try it, and am happy to say that I was entirely cured, and am able to work as well as I ever did.

I cheerfully recommend S. S. S. to all sufferers of this terrible disease, and will say that if they will continue the treatment, as per directions, they will find a permanent cure. H. W. SEES.

SWEPT BY FLAMES

Ottawa Is Again Visited By a Destructive Fire.

Over Two Thousand People Have Been Rendered Homeless.

Ottawa, Ont., May 11.—A fire, suspected of being incendiary in origin, yesterday afternoon and evening, destroyed hundreds of houses and millions of feet of lumber in this city. John White, who has just been released from the penitentiary, after serving a term of imprisonment for arson, was caught near the place where the fire was first discovered. He was taken to the police station and will be charged with starting the conflagration.

The fire originated within a stone's throw of where the great Hull fire of April 26, 1900 was checked. The Hull fire started on the opposite side of the river and spread to the Ottawa side, destroying millions of dollars worth of property. It burned out near where the Ottawa & Parry Sound railway enters the western part of the city and it was in the lumber yards near the railroad that yesterday's fire originated.

Two hours before the principal fire started, two smaller blazes were discovered and quickly extinguished in the lumber yards near the Canadian Pacific railroad. It was 3:30 when the third was discovered. When the brigade arrived at the scene it was found that the water main had been damaged and no water could be obtained. When the brigade did get water the fire was utterly beyond its control. It swept along over the same ground that the former fire had gone, the only difference being that it was going in the opposite direction.

There is a large cliff which extends from the Ottawa river into the corner of Margaret and Preston streets. The fire was now on the flats below the cliff.

At two or three points it came very near getting into the cliff and had it done so, nothing would have saved the city. At 9:30 o'clock the fire was under control and was confined to the following area:

The Ottawa & Parry Sound railway on the south, Division street on the east, First avenue on the west and the Richmond road on the north. From the Parry Sound road to the Richmond road is about one mile, and from First avenue to Division street is about one quarter of a mile.

While the fire was burning fiercely among the lumber piles the whole brigade of the city, which had been summoned, were forced to remain idle.

For an hour not a drop of water was thrown on the flames. A stiff southwest wind was blowing and by the time the water main had been repaired the lumber yards were a mass of glowing embers. From the lumber yards the flames spread to a group of frame houses on the outskirts of the city, formerly known as Rochesterville, but which is now united to the city. Every house in the little settlement was destroyed.

Another lumber yard, in a thinly settled section, northeast of Rochesterville, was swept by the fire in an incredibly short time. This brought the fire to the more thickly settled sections.

After leaving the lumber piles the flames swept over to Hull street, which runs east and west, down Willow, Poplar and Erson, Eckels, Somerset, Spruce, Elm, Maple, Albert and on to the Richmond road, or properly speaking, Wellington street, where it was stopped, a short distance from the Canadian Pacific railway depot.

At 6 p. m. it was feared the fire would get over the cliff, on the top of which is St. Jean Baptist church. In the rear and a short distance from this church is the residence of the late Hon. David Mills. The family began moving out at 6 p. m., and the hearse was in readiness to move the remains of this distinguished Canadian, should the necessity arise. The firemen, however, succeeded in keeping back the flames.

Fifteen million feet of lumber were destroyed. It belonged chiefly to J. R. Booth, and was sold. The loss on the lumber will be about $300,000. The buildings burned were principally dwelling houses and stores. They were built since the last great fire, and were either solid brick or brick veneered, as the city council would not permit of any other kind being erected. Mayor Cook said there were from five hundred to six hundred families homeless or about 2000 individuals. Of these parties are supposed to be well insured.

The mayor said the city would oppose any aid being asked from outside Canada that personally he thought that the city should grapple with the situation without any appeal for outside help.

BOY KILLED IN A BALL GAME

Ashland Lad Struck In Neck By the Sphere.

Ashland, Wis., May 11.—A game of baseball between juvenile nines ended in a fatality here yesterday afternoon, when little Martin Lyon was struck by a ball and died before help could be summoned. His is the first death here resulting from athletic sports, and it created considerable of a sensation.

Martin, who is only 15 years of age, and a son of Martin Lyon, a longshoreman, was catcher of a team composed of playmates his own age, which was engaged in play with another team of boys. The game was being started in a vacant lot in the east end of the town, near the ore docks, and had progressed along several innings when the accident occurred.

Lyon was playing well up behind the bat and handling the delivery of a pitcher no older than himself. He wore no mask or body protector. A pitched ball was tipped by the batsman greatly accelerating its speed and raising its elevation. Young Martin had no time to lift his hands or dodge. The leather struck him in the neck just as he partially turned in an effort to avoid it.

Without any outcry the lad dropped to the ground and was surrounded by his frightened companions. They thought he was only stunned and kneeling by his side the batsman and pitcher chafed his hands and spoke to him. But as he showed no signs of life they realized that he was seriously hurt.

Some of the players went for a doctor while others carried him to a saloon half a block away. A physician arrived within a few minutes, but in spite of his efforts the boy died.

The ball had struck the neck, opposite the main or jugular vein, in all probability rupturing it and bringing about death from strangulation, following the severe hemorrhage.

STRUGGLE WITH MUSKALLONGE

Captured In Ouff Lake, Two Miles West of Fosston.

Fosston, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fame of Fosston as a fishing resort will henceforth go abroad in the land, and the many lakes and streams hereabouts will undoubtedly be besieged by anglers during the balance of the summer, if the events in the fishing line here during the past week are any criterion. A giant muskallonge weighing 42 pounds was captured in Ouff lake, about two miles west of Fosston, and the event was marked by an exciting struggle that is the talk of the town. A party of fishermen, including Mayor J. E. Campbell, J. S. Leary, superintendent of the electric light works, Representative B. S. Bennett, A. Kaiser, vice president of the bank of Fosston, went out to the lake on Thursday of last week, and were the ones who caught the muskallonge. About ten years ago, this lake was noted for the elegant strings of fish that were caught there, but it has been supposed of late years that the supply of finny ones had been exhausted—but not so.

During the past four years, unbeknown to his fellow anglers here, Hon. B. S. Bennett, representative from this district, and an authority on matters pertaining to piscatorial, has secured a quantity of small fry from the state hatchery in St. Paul and has been secretly stocking Ouff and adjoining lakes therewith, and his laudable work has borne fruit such as he little dreamed of. After considerable persuasion on his part, Mr. Bennett succeeded in getting the party above to go out to Lake Ouff for a fishing trip, although they firmly believed that there was not a fish of any description in the lake. A rowboat was taken along, and several kinds of fishing tackle and refreshments. A half hour of fishing resulted in catching a good sized quantity of small pickerel, when there was an event not on the program, which furnished excitement for fully an hour.

Bennett had been trolling, and was just telling the boys how the last three days of the session of the legislature were spent, when there was a frightful tug at the line which he was holding that nearly pulled the genial lawmaker into the lake and came very near upsetting the boat. "Give us a lift," yelled Campbell, as he grabbed the line, and all in the boat took hold and pulled with all their might. Suddenly something smaller than a whale went into the air alongside the boat, with a swish that threw water over all. The entire party was almost capsized the boat. As there was about 100 feet of the line the boys decided to allow the monster on the other end to have all he wanted, while they started for the shore, about twenty-five feet distant.

When the boat was ashore, Leary jumped to the bank and grabbing a tree, gave the line a half hitch around the limb and secured it fast. All hands took hold again and tightened the line, whereat there was a struggle for supremacy that finally ended in bringing the fish near enough to the shore so that it was dispatched by a shot from a revolver in the hands of Kaiser. Investigation showed that the catch was a giant muskallonge, and that the fish had swallowed the bait and hook, which were deeply imbedded in its stomach. The party brought their catch to town, where it was weighed, tipping the scales at exactly 42 pounds. The head of the monster has been preserved and is now in the possession of Mr. Leary, who exhibits it as a souvenir of one of the most exciting times of his career.

About the Sale of the Chippewa Reservation Pine.

Will Be Sold In Time For Cutting Next Winter.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ex-Governor W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office, when interviewed at the Endion hotel last evening, said that there was not the least doubt but that the bulk, if not all, of the pine on the ceded Chippewa reservation would be sold by sealed bids and work begun before or about December. "There will be logging near Cass Lake next winter," he said. "Our purpose in coming to Cass Lake is to see the town and to see the land to be selected as a forest reserve. We want to act intelligently and have actual tests of what reforestration can do. The 225,000 acres of land reserved from settlement on which there will be left 5 per cent of the standing pine will give the forester of the bureau an opportunity for practical test of the advantages of reforestration. Ten sections will neither be cut nor settled upon; these will protect the beauty spots. We are also making a personal inspection of the work done under Chief E. L. Warren in examining the land and classifying it as pine or agricultural land. This personal knowledge will make it possible to put the pine on sale immediately we return to Washington. We want to put the whole tract of pine land or the pine on the entire land on the market at once and at the same time. We want to make the sales immediately. It will be unwise to throw open the agricultural lands among the pine lands until the pine is cut off, because it would be an incentive to the settlers to cut the pine near and would create a greater danger through fire. We shall cut the pine and then put that land and lands near it on the lists for homesteads. There are tracts north of Cass Lake which are entirely agricultural lands, either prairie or swamp lands, and near the Rainy river, and these lands will be open as soon as classified. Up there 80 per cent is agricultural land. We found a great amount of pine timber near Cass Lake, and think this we shall advertise at once, and it will be cut next winter. This will be advertised first. I see no valid reason why the whole amount of pine should not be sold next winter.

"There is no question about the land office at Cass Lake, and while we generally send a special agent about its location, I shall look over the town and the proposition about a site from any person. The office must be centrally located and for the convenience of the majority of the people. There must be in it a proper safe to keep the records. The office will open on the 1st of July. The officers have not been officially selected. In regard to the location of the office at Cass Lake, the question was left open long enough, and I had all the delegation to see me in the general land office before making the changes. The representatives were all satisfied. Cass Lake land office will be a very good one and will be permanent and valuable."

The commissioner's party will be banqueted by the Commercial club this evening and the commissioner and Forester Pinchot will make speeches. The banquet will be in the Endion hotel. Maj. G. L. Scott, who was accompanying the party, was taken home sick, and the party left here for Winnebigoshish and Leech Lake and then returned to Cass Lake. They leave here for St. Paul and Washington tonight.

BIG WHALE SPLIT

Into Two Parts By Steel Tank Steamer.

Philadelphia, May 11.—Capt. C. Jensen, a veteran mariner, in command of the German tank steamship Hellos, in port from Shields, has never been inclined to place much credence in stories of whales being run down and cut in half by ships at sea, but he had an experience upon the voyage just ended with a huge finback whale which caused him to change his opinion.

Capt. Jensen's encounter with the monarch of the deep occurred last Friday about 500 miles east of the Delawares Capes. The Helios was plowing through the heavy seas at a speed of ten knots an hour, when the lookout sighted the whale heading on a direct course for the ship.

As the finback was traveling at the same rate of speed as the Hellos, it did not take long before they both met, and as a result a collision happened, in which the whale came off second best. The sharp steel prow of the steamship cut it fairly in two. The death of the leviathan was witnessed by the entire crew. All about the ship the sea was dyed a deep crimson. The whale disappeared beneath the waves soon after being struck.

SAVED BY HIS DOG.

Animal Brought Men and Banks Was Rescued.

Harrodsburg, Ky., May 11.—Joseph Banks, who lives on Dick's river, owes his life to the sagacity of a shepherd dog. He started early in the morning to the back of his place, where the cliffs are precipitous, lost his balance and fell over. He would have been killed but for a bush which had grown out from between the jutting rocks, and to which he held.

On hearing the canine whine he called to the animal in his despair.

Banks did not appear in his home at noon, but no fears were entertained until the dog came home alone. His peculiar actions induced someone to follow him to the spot where his master was suspended in midair. When he reached the place where his master was he barked, and a response from Banks apprised the party, composed of two hired men, of the awful predicament of their employer. Ropes were employed and Banks was rescued.

STRUCK BY LOCOMOTIVE.

Two Brothers Killed While Sleeping on Track.

Henning, Minn., May 11.—Erick and Andrew Anderson, brothers living on the outskirts of this town, were struck by the 11 o'clock Northern Pacific passenger train Saturday night, with frightful results. Erick was instantly killed and his body mangled almost beyond recognition by the pilot of the locomotive. Andrew was hurled into the ditch by the track and injured so he can hardly recover. Both men, the dead and the dying, were placed in the baggage coach and brought here where Andrew was given every care and attention possible.

The two men live in a house by themselves just off the line of the railroad two miles from the station. Yesterday they came into the town, where they drank considerably, leaving early in the evening in an intoxicated condition. They had provided themselves with liquor before leaving and after proceeding a mile down the track sat down on a rail to drink. They fell asleep with a bottle between them.

There is a curve in the track where the fatality occurred and the engineer was unable to stop his heavy train after the glare of the headlight disclosed the sleeping and helpless men. He reversed his engine and blew his whistle repeatedly, but in vain. At but slightly reduced speed, the pilot struck the two brothers hurling them down the steep bank.

The train was stopped within a few rods and the train crew returned to the scene. Erick was dead, but Andrew revived on being taken into the car and although badly injured, there is a possibility of his recovery.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH.

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with a healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed and it remained for R. T. Booth, that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and is today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membane of the air passages, prevents irritation and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance Company, J. S. Nugent, of New York city, writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In Duluth there are scores of well-known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, S. F. Boyce will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the stronest evidence that can be offered as to his faith in the remedy.

SLIGHTLY HIGHER

Wheat Rather Sluggish and Uninteresting, But Closes Up.

Chicago Weakest Market —Flax Is Erratic and Closes Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 11.—The wheat market was a rather quiet affair with Chicago the weakest market, there being a decline in the July there against small advances in the other markets. Cables were disappointing and Liverpool cabled that its market was quiet owing to large Russian shipments. The world's shipments for the week were large. Weather in the wheat growing sections was generally good. There was some export business and Duluth shippers found a fairly good tone to the foreign inquiry and a few loads of wheat were worked here for export. Minneapolis reported the mills as good buyers. There was more or less disposition to await the government report which was to be issued in the afternoon.

The Liverpool market closed 1¼d higher to unchanged. Paris 1c to 1¼c higher; Antwerp unchanged; Berlin ¾c higher and Budapest ¾c lower.

The world's shipments were 10,922,000 bushels last week, which was a little above the estimate. Of the total, Americ'a furnished 3,262,000 bushels; Russia, 2,944,000 bushels; Argentine, 2,568,000 bushels, and the Danube 1,384,000 bushels. The previous week they were 8,800 bushels and last year 7,704,000 bushels. The amount on passage decreased 1,480,000 bushels. The visible supply of wheat decreased 1,076,000 bushels last week and is now 52,446,000 bushels against 35,362,000 bushels a year ago. Primary receipts of wheat were 464,000 bushels; last year, 548,000 bushels. Shipments, 808,000 bushels, last year, 725,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 477,000 bushels.

In the Liverpool market corn was ¼ to ½d lower. Chicago July corn was also weaker, declining ½c, and July oats fell off ⅛@¼c. The world's shipments of corn last week were 3,780,000 bushels, of which America furnished 1,652,000 bushels and Argentine 1,350,000 bushels. The previous week they were 4,079,000 bushels, and last year 4,257,000 bushels. The amount on passage increased 855,000 bushels. Primary receipts of wheat were 471,000 bushels; last year, 328,000 bushels. Shipments, 865,000 bushels; last year, 818,000. Clearances were 266,553 bushels. The visible supply of corn decreased 249,000 bushels last week and is now 6,210,000 bushels, against 5,885,000 bushels a year ago.

The Duluth market was dull and uninteresting. July opened 5c up at 72½c, sold at 73¼c at 9:40 and advanced to 77¾c at 11:40. After that it fell away to 75¾c at 12:14 and again rallied, closing at 77⅝c. This was an advance of ⅝c. May was stronger than July, advancing 1c, and Chicago May advanced 1c and July declined ⅝c. In Minneapolis May advanced ⅝c and July ⅜c. New York May was unchanged and July advanced ⅜c.

Cash business was very light and prices were unchanged, continuing at May prices for No. 1 northern and 2c under for No. 2.

Flax was not very active, but erratic. July opened ⅝c off at 73.8, sold at $1.16½ and fell to $1.15¾, all within a dozen minutes. After that it rallied to $1.16, fell again to $1.15¾ and closed at $1.16. This was a decline of ¼c. May was unchanged, as was also September.

Oats on track and to arrive advanced ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 80½c; No. 1 northern, 78½c; No. 2 northern, 76¼c; May—No. 1 hard, 79½c; No. 1 northern, 78¼c; July, 75¾c; September, 70⅝c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Opening Prices In Wheat Were Rather Weak.

Chicago, May 11.—Opening prices in wheat were rather weak on selling by commission houses and local bears, July being off ⅜c to ⅓c at 72½c to 72⅝c. Trading was light and with no support. Market continued easy, July selling down to 72¾c. Minneapolis and Superior-Duluth reported receipts of 198 cars, which, with local receipts of 47 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 245 cars, against 76 cars last week and 261 cars a year ago.

The dullness continued throughout the session, traders being disposed to await the government report and on liberal selling by longs the market held weak. After selling down to 72¾c. July closed ⅜c lower at 72⅝c.

Corn opened easier on the weakness in wheat and local selling, due to increased receipts with July unchanged to ⅛c lower at 44⅜c to 45c. There was no feature to trading and volume of business was light, while prices remained easy. Local receipts were 259 cars, with 26 of contract grade.

The market was steady the remainder of the day and July closed ⅛c lower at 44⅜c.

Oats were easier along with other grains, July being a shade to ⅛ lower at 32½@32¾c to 32¾c at the opening, and there was practically no change in values the first hour of trading. Local receipts were 151 cars.

Liberal hog receipts caused an easier opening in provisions. There was some selling by outsiders but the offerings were well taken and prices showed little change. September opened 10c lower at $16.62½. September lard was off 2½c to 5c at $9.02½ to $9.05, while ribs were down 2½c to 5c at $9.22½ to $9.25.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: The selling out of the Armour July was the feature in wheat la t week. This liquidation culminated on Thursday and sent the July price as low as 73½c. But there was so much that seemed bullish from abroad, and so much from the Southwest as to crop damage, that the market took the millions sold by Armour and closed the week only a fraction under the top. It must started what had become apparent before that the general sentiment had been muddled. From being very bearish because of the extraordinary crop prospect indicated by the April report, the trade had been converted to a moderately bullish view by the persistent claims of scarcage abroad and finally by the indication of some impairment of the prospects at home. The Armour selling did not dismay the market. There was an army of buyers who had been deterred by the huge line and had not been disposed to become owners while the ewe-inspiring holding was in existence who were ready to buy when it became apparent that the big line had been liquidated and the market had become a natural one. A two days' test is not a conclusive one. A line of perhaps 10,000,000 bus has been distributed around among the different interests in the market. Some of the wheat is very well held and some is owned by traders, who would not stand much punishment. It was happened that, from the time the Armour selling began, the news was bullish. The government crop report today will be a crisis for those who are long on wheat. If the May condition is dropped considerably, or if the huge area of 34,000,000 acres announced last December is reduced materially, the bulls' position will be confirmed and this would put those who bought their wheat last week in a comfortable situation.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—Wheat: The market was a little easier and only moderately active. Patten was evidently a short seller of July and the pit thought Armour was a moderate buyer. Minneapolis reports good cash demand from mills but elsewhere the cash business was light. No rain yet in California. The government report this afternoon tends to hold everything in check. Not much in the way of crop damage reports heard today. Estimated cars 85.

Corn: The market was quiet. It developed an easier tone on more seasonable weather through the West. There was a good cash inquiry for No. 2 corn and liberal sales were made at 5c over the May price. The movement from the interior increases only moderately so far. It is mainly a waiting market. Estimated cars 495.

Oats: The market was very dull and steady. Moderate weather was offset in its influence to some extent by quite heavy rains in Iowa. The bulk of the seeding however, is done. The cash position is still slow. Estimated cars 220.

EXPORT OF GOLD

Had Very Chilling Effect on the Stock Market.

There Was an Irregular Recovery and Close Was Firm.

New York, May 11.—The opening dealings of the week showed no change from last week's narrow and sluggish conditions. National of Mexico advanced 5% and the preferred a point, which measured the widest change in the list. Missouri Pacific, Manhattan and Amalgamated rose ½. There was a fair sprinkling of small losses in the list.

The scarcity of selling orders after Saturday, disappointing bank statement encouraged some rebuying. The local tractions and Amalgamated advanced sharp fractions, and Missouri Pacific and Wabash preferred point, but the improvements otherwise were slight. Metropolitan Securities developed renewed weakness and lost 2 points, and New Haven 1. Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred gained 2¼, and the second preferred 1⅝.

Prices sold off on the prospects of gold exports, but only a few prominent stocks lost as much as a point. There was some large blocks of United States Steel sold at a fractional decline. Metropolitan Securities extended its decline to 3 and St. Paul and Omaha preferred lost 4. Colorado Southern, the second preferred, St. Louis & Southwestern preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Chicago Terminal, General Electric, Pacific Mail, Tennessee Coal and Virginia-Carolina Chemical were depressed 1 to 1½. Illinois Central lost a point, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred 3½ and the second preferred 2⅜. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Reports of arrangements being made for the export of $30,000 gold tomorrow had a chilling effect on the market, but there were few movements of importance, outside of a rise of 2½ to 13⅝ in Illinois Central. Southern Pacific rallied from the lowest and Copper, Hocking Valley preferred and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred were 1@1¼ higher. Sugar was not dealt in up to 1 o'clock which illustrates the dullness of the trading.

The formal engagement of the export of $1,500,000 gold for shipment tomorrow was without effect on the market, the earlier decline having pretty well discounted the news. Business, if anything, was duller and there was no inclination to move prices either way. Hocking Valley advanced 1⅝.

There was a general recovery in the final hour, prices reaching about the highest of the day. The rise seemed due to short covering by bears, uncertainty over the crop report to be published this afternoon and the fact that on Saturday were made by L. & N., Erie first preferred, Brooklyn Transit and Sugar, Colorado Fuel rose 2. The general level was a fraction over Saturday. Iowa Central fell 1⅜, and Lackawanna 3½. Prices ran off at the last and the close was active and easy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Town Topics: Irregularity seems likely in the stock market today on account of the unfavorable bank statement and the Southern Pacific strike. The Russian situation in China is temporarily removed from consideration and as that was apparently the principal reason for the bear attack Saturday morning in the early trading there may be some short covering at the opening today. Southern Pacific will probably be affected adversely by the strike talk but do not hesitate to buy it for a turn in case of a slump. Our information indicates that the bear clique will again make an attack on the list today and in view of the strong bear party that is at work we believe it will be well to be conservative and follow the general principle of buying good stocks on weak spots after reactions, taking moderate profits. As we understand the Gould plans will go ahead regardless of other deals, we recommend the purchase of Missouri Pacific and Wabash Pacific preferred should be bought on any decline. We believe Amalgamated Copper good for a small profit. Do not ignore the Erie issues. Manhattan has been holding up very well and we are bullish on it. The passenger traffic of the "L" is heavily increasing and there is hardly any doubt that 7 per cent will be the rate maintained for the stock. The demand for Pennsylvania in the loan crowd after the close of the market on Saturday was taken to indicate that a large genuine short account exists in the stock which lent at 1 per cent and 1½ per cent which general rate was 2½ per cent.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is a shade better, but very dull. There is almost no outside business and the traders are doing the buying. There is a rumor that Illinois Central will go on a 7 per cent basis. On the whole there is no change in the quality of the market. Further labor troubles are imminent in many quarters, the public is indifferent, and we think stocks should be sold on the rallies.

* * *

New York to Coe Commission Co.: Saturday was the fourth successive day of a falling market, following an entire week of improvement. The declining market has progressed a little farther than the usual reaction and an improving time for such reaction seldom extends over the third day. During the last two or three days the market has suffered more or less from a process of readjustment of prices of inactive stocks, which have not been quoted for six months. Busines is extremely dull, however, and the day's range in prices are easily brought about having record of net too much intrinsic importance. The bank statement aided materially in the creation of the reaction although as a matter of fact, it makes very little difference with the money market practically certain to continue at 2½ per cent month in and month out.

* * *

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The engagement of $1,500,000 gold for Paris on tomorrow's steamer must have been known before the opening, but was not announced until after noon. The bears attacked the market after the first hour but were not successful in dislodging any stocks and found their efforts in vain. Southern Pacific felt the brunt of the attack. Among the industrials Amalgamated Copper continues to be the leader and was advanced by the pool to best prices in some time. The market has acted splendidly today. We believe that today's market foreshadows a higher range soon.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was very dull and in the early trading there was a good deal of profit taking and prices sagged off again, but in the afternoon they stiffened up and made good most of their losses. The close was steady and without incident.

* * *

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been dull today, but the general list has shown improvement. After a period of weakness due to professional selling, leading stocks turned strong and there was an irregular recovery which put prices above Saturday's close. The closing was firm. Gould buying made Missouri Pacific the strong feature. Colorado Fuel ran up on what looked like inside buying. Louisville was another strong feature. U. S.Steel stocks were heavy. Further selling of Metropolitan securities was believed to have been by holders who do not want to pay the 25 per cent call.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 11.—The wildest excitement in cotton this season occurred today when an enormous covering movement was started by an unexpected advance of 11 to 14 points in Liverpool attended by heavy sales of spot cotton in the English market in which the local trade joined, resulting with an advance of 15 to 24 points on the mere active months, new high records in all cases being made. The bull clique realized heavily in order to avert a bear panic, which at one time appeared inevitable. The local advance was accelerated by sensational reports from New Orleans which made an advance of 57 points on July. A reaction of 10 to 14 points followed selling by the bulls at this point, whereupon the market became more pacific. The heaviest transaction recorded this season during the same time was reported today. Towards noon the market became less active, it having become apparent that the bull party was not disposed to force the situation. Public operations were not an active feature, owing to the abnormal conditions now governing the fluctuations in prices. There were, however, some selling for short account as to the new crop positions on the favorable showing made by the weather, the cotton belt and the general flattering character of the crop advices now current.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS

Busily Engaged In Switching Cars at Mobile.

Mobile, Ala., May 11.—Mobile & Ohio railroad officials and clerks went to work this morning switching cars in the yards here to make room for incoming freight. Ten cars containing dynamite were moved by the clerks to a pier from which it could be loaded for Mexico. Ten non-union men, who arrived yesterday from St. Louis, were met by a committee of the strikers and prevailed upon not to go to work. Two of the men applied to General Manager Clark for transportation back to St. Louis and received it. This morning five of the men went to work under the protection of special officers. The company has posted this notice: "You are hereby notified that the trains of this company are engaged in carrying the United States mails and interstate commerce."

The vessel was towed into the middle of East river, where the flames were extinguished. John Quinn, the mate of the boat, is thought to have been killed. IN MARINE CIRCLES

Steamer Argo Found to Have Badly Damaged Bottom.

Ran Nearly All of Last Year In That Condition.

On being docked for slight repairs before being put into commission for the season, serious damage to the hull of the steamer Argo was discovered at Chicago last week.

On June 10 of last year, while bound from Duluth to Houghton, the Argo struck seven miles north of the Portage Lake ship canal. The tug Ward from Houghton was sent to her assistance and she was released.

Upon examination the boat was thought to have sustained but little damage and she was operated until the close of the season, when she was traded to the Graham and Morton line, to be operated between Chicago and Holland.

Before going into commission this season the Argo was docked for some slight repairs and it was discovered that what was thought to have been but a slight injury might have proved fatal to the steamer at any time. Three large plates had been cracked and a number of others badly bent. Her stem had also been crushed and twisted by contact with the rocks. It is said that her repairs will take several weeks and will cost several thousand dollars.

The Argo is at present in the Ship Owners' dry dock in the North branch of the Chicago river.

A thorough examination has also been made of the steamer Saranac, which reported rowdy speed loss by collision with a sunken object in lake Michigan about a month ago. The hull of the vessel will have to be almost entirely rebuilt at a cost of about $40,000.

DREDGING COMBINE

Opens Chicago Office With F. B. Daugherty as Manager.

Chicago, May 10—Twenty dredging companies of the great lakes are combined in an association and tomorrow will open offices in Chicago, with F. B. Daugherty, of Duluth, formerly a member of the Minnesota senate, as manager. The companies interested are the biggest on the lakes, including those which dug the big channels at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and the Chicago drainage canal. Government contracts amounting to $10,000,000 for harbor work on the lakes are in progress, under direction of the associated companies.

The chief object of the association is to oppose legislation unfavorable to the industry. Formation of the association was hastened by the decision of the government to enter the dredging business on the lakes.

The Great Lakes Tug Owners' Protective association will be the name of the association.

Increased scale of wages agreed upon previously.

Agreement to be for the year 1903.

Abolition of independent labor bureaus.

By the terms of the agreement the independent labor bureau is abolished and the men will receive an increase of about 20 per cent in wages, which will be 27½ cents per hour in the day and 30 cents per hour

CRIMINAL CASES

Jake Zimmerman Is Indicted on Harboring Gambling Devices.

Is Result of County Attorney's Search For Gamblers.

Jacob Zimmerman, a saloonkeeper at Chisholm and formerly an old resident of this city, has been indicted by the grand jury for suffering a gambling device to be operated in his place of business.

Zimmerman appeared in court this morning, waived the reading of the indictment and will plead tomorrow morn. The indictment against Zimmerman was one of those returned Saturday noon by the grand jury, but not made public.

The fact that the grand jury investigated alleged gambling cases and returned an indictment or indictments is likely to come in the nature of a big surprise to the range gamblers, as no such indictments have been previously returned in district court since the January term. During that term a large number of range gamblers were indicted, who pleaded guilty and paid fines aggregating over $6000.

It is understood that the county attorney has been prosecuting a vigorous though quiet warfare against the range gamblers, some of whom are said to have been lulled into a feeling of security from prosecution after the January indictments.

Martin Moore, one of the trio of Minneapolis "big mitt" men, has entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of swindling, for which he is indicted.

Louis Carlson, against whom there are two indictments charging assault in the second degree, pleaded not guilty this morning, as did Marco Luigi, charged with assault in the first degree, and Gust Hemming, John Salon and Andrew Matson, who are accused of holding up and robbing Matt Ark on Lake Avenue.

Charles C. Harris, who is charged with forgery in the second degree, will plead this afternoon.

A bench warrant was issued this morning for one of the parties indicted by the grand jury who is not yet in custody.

The case of Martin Brosius, who was indicted for grand larceny in the first and second degrees, will be the first called for trial. Trial of criminal cases is not likely to begin tomorrow, as County Attorney McClintock does not wish to take them up until all is ready to keep continuously at them until the criminal calendar is cleaned up.

David Wright, Frank Callahan, Thomas Doran, Frank Bodine and Michael Morrison, the striking freight-handlers who were indicted on a charge of rioting, waived the reading of the indictments and will plead tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Slipped on the Stairs.

While waiting for his dinner in M. Prendergastz's this afternoon, Capt. William Hagan, of the steamer Roumania, started for the toilet room in the basement. He slipped on the steps and fell heavily on his head, striking on a step and the concussion caused an internal fracture of the skull at the base of the brain. Capt. Hagan was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where Dr. Horace Davis attended to his injuries. At a late hour this afternoon Capt. Hagan had recovered consciousness and it was not thought that his injury will prove serious.

FORM LEAGUE OF SIX CLUBS

Baseball Nine of Wholesale Houses Organize Association.

Baseball teams of six wholesale houses in Duluth have organized a league and will play a scheduled series of games through the summer.

The advantages sought to be gained by the formation of a league are that the clubs will have regularly arranged games and not be dependent upon occasional challenges as has been the case in the past. It will also serve to give a better rivalry, for by the arrangement of a series of games, each club playing each other a certain number of games, the championship will be clearly settled.

A meeting to organize the league was held Saturday evening and B. P. Neff, of F. A. Patrick & Co., was elected president, and Norton Mattocks, secretary and treasurer. An adjourned meeting will be held Thursday evening to further complete arrangements.

The houses in the league are six in number: Stone-Ordean-Wells, Marshall-Wells, Kelley-How-Thomson, Gowan-Peyton-Twohy, Lellthead drug and F. A. Patrick & Co.

SPECIAL SESSION

Of the Colombian Congress Has Been Called.

Washington, May 11.—Mr. Beaupre, the United States minister to Columbia today confirmed by cable that report that a special session of the Colombian congress had been called for June 20. The state department knows nothing officially of the reported offer of the Colombian government to ratify the canal treaty upon the payment to it by the Panama Canal company, of a sum variously stated at $10,000,000 and $12,000,000. An impression has prevailed here for sometime that the Colombians have felt that the French company was getting the best of them in securing $40,000,000 for the franchise and properties. The United States government does not feel called upon to interfere between these parties.

THAT INFERNAL MACHINE.

Battery Was Connected and Firing Device Set.

New York, May 11.—Later investigations says the Herald, have established these important points bearing upon the solution of the mystery of the infernal machine found on the Cunard line's dock.

It was on Jan. 2, 1903, that the two powerful standard dry cell batteries used in the device left on the steamer Umbria were shipped from the factory of the National Carbon company, of Cleveland.

Despite the contrary statements in the post correspondent of the mysterious "Mafia" letter, the battery was connected and the current effective, and the igniting device was set for action and not yet sprung, when the box was opened. Though of a high grade and potential for disaster, the dynamite probably is of a quality containing not more than 60 per cent nitro-glycerine. It is believed that neither the dynamite nor the battery cells used were bought in New York.

A handwriting expert of this city expresses the opinion that the author of the warning letter was a man, an American accustomed to writing rapidly, highly intelligent, and who previously disguished his handwriting.

JUMPED INTO NET.

Several Girls Hurt In a Pittsburg Fire.

Pittsburg, May 11.—During a fire in the Pittsburg Bedstead and Bedspring company building, 133 Water street, this afternoon, a number of girls at work on the fourth floor became panic-stricken, and three jumped from the window into a net held by the firemen. All were seriously injured and were taken to the hospital. It is reported that several are missing, but all have been accounted for. The damage to the building and stock was about $50,000.

DIED ON TRAIN.

St. Louis, May 11.—Capt. Frank Pennel, chief of police of Quebec, Canada, on a Wabash train between Toledo and St. Louis today while on his way to New Orleans to attend the convention of chiefs of police. Acting Chief of Police Gillespie has taken charge of the body and has notified the Quebec authorities.

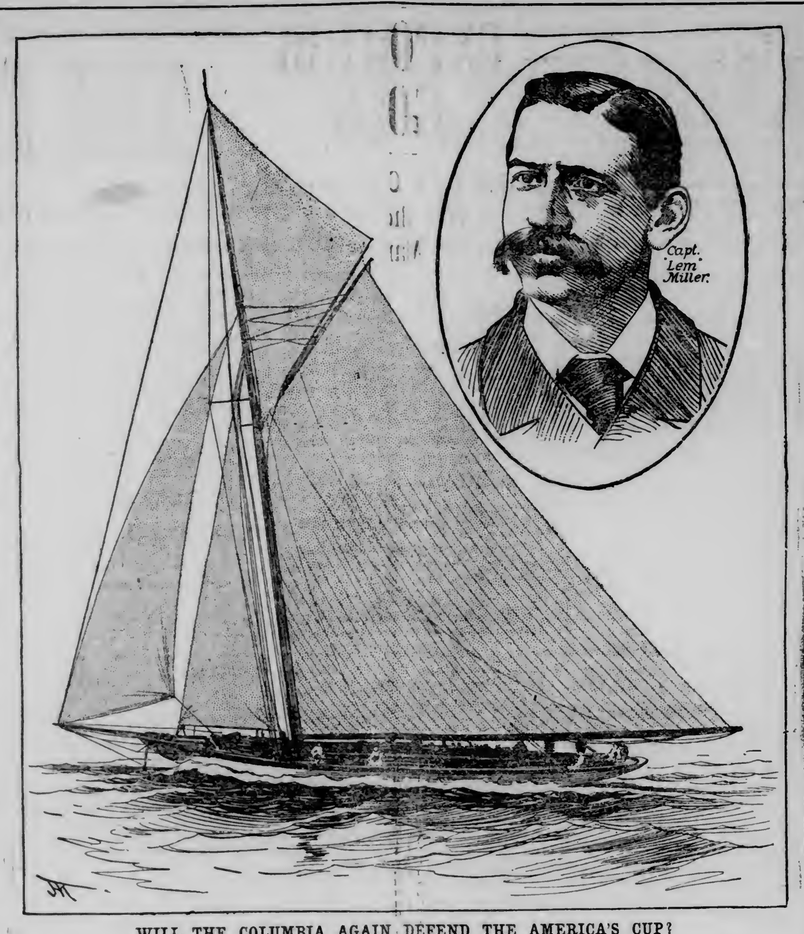
CONDITION OF WHEAT.

Washington, May 11.—The monthly crop report shows that the average condition of winter wheat was 92.5 against 97.3. The area of winter wheat is 32,107,000. The last report on acreage, made in December, gave 31,000,000 as the amount sown, the largest on record. The April condition was 97.3.

LAYING A DUPLICATE CABLE.

Berlin, May 11.—The laying of a duplicate German-Atlantic cable was commenced today at Borkum, an island on the North sea, twenty-six miles from Emden.



WILL THE COLUMBIA AGAIN DEFEND THE AMERICA'S CUP?

Has the highest type of yacht building been reached in the Columbia? There are competent judges who incline to that opinion. Two years ago when, under the skillful handling of Captain Charles Barr, she was chosen over the new boat, Constitution, commanded by Captain Lem Miller, every one declared that the selection was more of a tribute to Barr's ability than to Columbia's speediness. At any rate Columbia beat Shamrock II. as she had previously beaten Shamrock I., and Barr was employed to handle the new Reliance this year. Now, in the first brush between Reliance and Columbia, the latter, in charge of Captain Lem Miller, handicapped by a light air and a miserably fitting mainsail, runs away from the $300,000 Reliance in hollow fashion, making it possible that for the third time the defense of the cup will be intrusted to Columbia.

SHAMROCK III WORKS WELL

New Boat Again Runs Away From the Shamrock I.

Gourock, Scotland, May 11.—The conditions this morning gave promise of a fine, light weather trial when the two Shamrocks, under club topsails and jib topsails over their lower canvas, left Gourock in a three-knot northerly wind. The Shamrock I drifted quite as fast as the cup challenger and had a long lead as they started down channel. Off Holyloch the boats got a six-knot breeze from the northwest and soon as the Shamrock III was perceptibly heeled she started to overhaul her opponent and soon closed upon the latter. The Shamrock III easily passed the older boat in the steadier breeze. Below Dunoon the boats started afresh on a beat out to windward and the challenger made better work than she has yet shown. As the wind strengthened and at the end of the windward run the challenger had a lead of about four miles, which was considered to be an extraordinary performance, even allowing for the advantage of the wind.

The boats having rejoined one another finished the day's work with a strong reach up the firth in a fresh nine-knot breeze. At the start the Shamrock I was to windward, on the weather bow of the challenger, but the latter caught up and passed her, going clear through her lee, reaching home, off the Gourock Yacht club house, a minute and thirty-five seconds ahead.

BIRD MAN IS DEAD.

Morristown, N. J., May 11.—Carl Gruno, the bird man and warbler who was known as an able ornithologist, is dead. He had been employed recently at an aviary at Morris Plains, and was on his way there when he stumbled and fell against the bank, dislocating his spine at the neck. He was about 45 years old. He was born in Germany, but he had lived in this country many years. He claimed to know more about birds, their life, habits and anatomy than any man in this country. He spoke half a dozen languages and he could imitate the warble or whistle of any bird. He told friends that he had been in the employ of George J. Gould, John D. Rockefeller, and others.

THE TEACHER

The Uncrowned Queen of the Unexplored Domain Which Is Bounded Only By a Scholar's Hopes.

She must know more, do more, be more, and endure more than any other bread winner. She must know everything in heaven above, the earth beneath and the waters under the earth. She receives no special credit for knowing them, but woe be to her if she knows them not.

She must teach the three "R's" as in the olden times, but mark the additions. She must teach physiology with all the skill of a physician, but without his opportunity for hiding his mistakes.

She must teach civics with all the learning of a lawyer, but without his library.

She must teach virtue and godliness with all the zeal of a minister, but without his Bible or his sectarian bias.

Under the title of "Nature Lessons" she must teach the elements of all the sciences known to man, and often, too, without a text book.

She must teach music, drawing, penmanship and physical culture with the ability of a specialist, but must give the supervisor all the credit for success attained.

She must give direct instruction in morals and manners or the schools will go to the demition bow-wows.

She must teach the effects of alcohol and narcotics with all the enthusiasm of the original investigator, under the laboratory methods of the expert chemist, and the blind devotion of the religious zealot, or the women of the W. C. T. U. will have convulsion fits.

She must teach business forms, business usages, short cuts, and commercial law with all the knowledge of a bookkeeper and a corporation attorney combined, or the schools are impractical.

She must teach spelling of old, but must make her own book, having the pupils copy it each day as she goes along with no knowledge of what has preceded or what is to follow, to the end that all of her hours out of school may be fully employed, and that she may have no time for recreation or frivolous amusements.

She must do a continuous performance in the line of new and untried theories which she well knows are impractical and worthless, to keep things stirred up for fear someone may be called an old fogy.

She must spend from eight to ten hours a day in the unwholesome atmosphere of a poorly ventilated schoolroom, and one or two hours more in selecting material and copying it on the board, to be again copied by the children, thus exhausting her vitality and ruining the eyesight of her pupils to please the fool fancy of some sap-headed superintendent who thinks he is carrying out an original scheme.

She must put old heads on young shoulders, give maturity of judgment to infant minds, cover the ground outlined in the course of study, regardless of the age or capacity of the children and have them pass their examinations without worriment to them, annoyance to the parents, or concern to the officials, or she will never rank "A" in the inspector's books.

She must try and continue to try silly experiments of young and callow principals who are learning the business empirically, and with whom she dare not differ.

She must be present at innumerable teachers' meetings; called often without plan or purpose, without leadership or direction, without beginning or end, and with no visible earthly object except to consume time and "have a meeting."

She must be wisely conservative and thoroughly up-to-date. She must buy books, subscribe for magazines, attend summer schools, keep up her pedagogical studies, select the wheat from the chaff in educational discussions, adapt university theories to common school conditions and apply psychological principles to the hum-drum details of every-day work.

For the benefit of authors and publishers, she must conduct an experiment station with the latest efforts in text books, whose only merit oft-times, is that they are new and different, are highly recommended by the book agents and will give the schools a reputation for keeping "up with the times." In the event of failure, the fault, of course, is always with the teacher.

She must at her own expense attend institutes and associations, listen to long-winded theorists, dry-as-dust professors, sentimental idiots, enthusiastic promoters, visionary reformers, shrewd self-advertisers, persistent hobby-riders and educational mountebanks only to attend the next meeting and hear a new crop of theorists with a job lot of contradictions, a series of orders and counter orders which would bewilder the most astute philosopher.

She must contribute of her time and money to charitable enterprises, church suppers, Sunday school sociables, reading clubs, sewing circles, mothers' meetings, literary societies and to her parties of every description. She must visit her pupils in their homes, kiss the babies, pet the cats, pat the children, flatter the mothers and be kind to the husbands without arousing the jealousy of their wives. She must be all things to all women—and some men, or she need not expect to retain her position.

She must govern wild and wicked children, even when parents fail. She must be wise as Solomon, patient as Job, strong and enduring as Caesar, tender as Maecenas, and more even-tempered than the Almighty himself, for we read in the book that the Almighty "was wroth with the wicked" when he punished them, but a teacher who punishes in anger is guilty of assault. She must be a model of propriety in all things, for are not the eyes of the whole community upon her? She must know the usages of the world and of society, but must stand aloof from both. She must have humility, confidence, infinite tact, perfect health, common sense in abundance, a modicum of wit, a world of wisdom, and a little wickedness.

She must be little less than angel and more than woman to endure the foul air, the nerve racking confusion, the disappointment in results of hard work and conscientious effort, and the thousands of petty, but soul-killing annoyances of the school room. She must submit with good grace to the thoughtless criticisms of the ignorant, the incessant nagging of sophomoric novices, the unjust abuse of disappointed parents, the more distasteful blandishments of those who seek favors for their children by patronizing attention to the teacher, and the domineering dictation of self-seeking politicians, and then for it all she receives a salary which enables her to live in poverty, on the charity of her friends, on a rare and hard-earned pension, or on the bequest of some philanthropist, when she grows old, falls ill, becomes a nervous wreck, offends the powers that be, or loses her pull.

She must spend hours upon hours devising lesson plans, making reports, compiling statistics, striking balances and averages, figuring standings, correcting countless papers, and tabulating foolish answers to silly questions with the machine-like expertness of a trained accountant to make more formidable and less readable the superintendent's report, and impress a confiding and gullible public with the complicated machinery necessary to a system of public schools.

She must deny herself the happiness of home, the pleasures of family life and the joys of domestic felicity, that, like the priests of the church, she may sacrifice all other interests to those of her calling, and then she is barred from the good positions because she isn't a man.

I know the pupil who annoys her, on the superintendent who overworks her, on the parent who ignorantly criticises her, on the politician who patronizes her, on the paragrapher who satirizes her, on the alleged funny man who makes sport of her, on the school board that undermines her, on the university professor who libels her, and on the thousands of single fools who do not marry her.

TO TEST FLYING MACHINES.

Capt. Ferber has built at Nice, France, the only aerodrome in the world. This is a structure where flying machines can be tested without danger, says the New York Sun.

It consists of a skeleton-like frame from which airships can be suspended. Then the inventor can put them through any desired maneuvers, with the assurance that no matter what happens there is no danger to him.

Capt. Ferber, who commands at Nice the Seventeenth Alpine Battery, is an expert on military aeronautics and a member of the Aero club. He holds it the least part of his achievements that he is an inventor. He considers that he is entitled to most credit for the willingness with which he makes tests of the airships invented by others. As he himself puts it:

"The man who invents an airship is nothing, the man who constructs it is something more, but it is the man who operates it who is your real hero."

Ferber was a pupil of the unfortunate Lilienthal. Along with five other enthusiasts, four of whom, Messrs. Chanute and Hering, of Chicago, and Orville and Wright, of Dayton, Ohio, are Americans, he studied the theory of aeroplanes under him. The sixth of the group was an Englishman named Pilcher. He has been dead since 1899.

Experts have sometimes charged it against Ferber, as they did against Lilienthal, that his experiments merely dealt with a form of the parachute, that they could never have any permanent value as far as providing a solution of the problem of aerial navigation goes. This Ferber denies. He points out that at the present time there is not in existence any parachute that descends otherwise than vertically, while the aeroplane of his invention come down obliquely, and can be steered and turned at the will of the manipulator. He does not pretend that in its present condition it represents the final airship, but he does insist that it is a stride forward.

He believes in his form of flight because, as he points out, when men start to imitate the birds that fly in the air, the most graceful and the swiftest should not be selected for models. Rather the first efforts should be toward imitating the slower ones. The rest can come afterward. This is why he thinks his descending plane has such conspicuous virtues.

But Ferber is liberal. He is not confined to any one system. His whole aim is to help men to navigate the air, not to prove his judgment better than that of other people. His aerodrome is free to all inventors. They are welcome to use it to try the practicability of their designs.

The aerodrome consists of a steel truss sixty feet high. Across the top of this is laid another steel truss, more than ninety feet long. This moves on pivots, and is exquisitely balanced.

A flying machine can be suspended to one arm, and counterbalanced by a weight on the other. Then in this position it can be maneuvered without danger. By having the steel arm set on a pivot it is possible to adjust the mechanism so that it will bear ships of any weight.

Capt. Ferber has now in course of construction the largest aeroplane he has attempted. In it he included many new ideas that have been evolved in his years of study. It is confidently predicted that it will be advanced on previous mechanism of the kind. It will be tested at the aerodrome within the next few months.

The French minister of war is deeply interested in the experiments of Capt. Ferber, and has had him decorated for his services to the French army.

PAYNE MAKES SECOND REQUEST TO TULLOCH

His Statements Reflect On High Officials of the Department.

Wants Any Information He Has Concerning Irregularities.

Thus Far He Has Neglected to Make Charges Good.

Washington, May 12.—Postmaster General Payne today made public a letter making a second request upon S. W. Tulloch, former cashier of the Washington city postoffice, who alleged irregularities in the service, for information in substantiation of his charges.

The letter is addressed to Mr. Bristow, first assistant postmaster general, and says:

"Sometime since there appeared an interview with S. W. Tulloch, formerly cashier of the Washington city postoffice, which reflected upon the official conduct of certain high persons in the government service and others holding office.

"On the 5th inst. I wrote Mr. Tulloch, stating that I should be pleased to receive any statement confirmatory of the charges. This he has failed to furnish.

"I therefore request that you will call upon him and ask him to give you any statement which he is willing to make in writing, accompanied by any papers, documents or evidence confirmatory of the charges which he has made, to the end that they may be inquired into, and if it is found that any irregularities exist, that they be corrected."

The postmaster general says that Mr. Tulloch has promised to submit a statement on Friday. He says there is no intention of furnishing Mr. Tulloch with copies of replies from those whom the postmaster general addressed regarding Mr. Tulloch's charges.

A. W. MACHEN, HEAD OF FREE DELIVERY SYSTEM, RELIEVED FROM DUTY.

Augustus W. Machen, general superintendent of the division of free delivery of the post office department, temporarily relieved from duty pending investigation, declares that he courts the fullest inquiry into the conduct of his office. He will remain in Washington until his case shall have been finally disposed of. Mr. Machen was thirty-two years of age when, in 1893, he was appointed by President Cleveland to the position which he has since held. Under him he has had an army of 15,000 men.

CONDUCTORS IN SESSION

Five Thousand Delegates and Friends Meet at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, May 12.—Nearly 5000 delegates and their friends were present in old city hall today when Grand Chief Conductor E. E. Clark called to order the twenty-fiftieth biennial convention of the Order of Railway Conductors of the United States, Canada and Mexico. Little business was transacted at the opening session other than perfecting the organization, addresses of the officers and the reading of the reports of the various standing committees.

Grand Chief Clark in his address reviewed the work of the past two years and spoke encouragingly of the prospects for the future.

This evening there will be a public reception in Carnegie hall, when addresses of welcome will be made by the city officials with responses by Grand Chief Clark and Mrs. J. H. Moore, grand president of the ladies' auxiliary.

Addresses will also be made by P. H. Morrissey, grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; F. H. Sargent, United States commissioner of immigration and others.

Alvin theater was crowded at the first session of the convention of the ladies' auxiliary. Mrs. J. H. Moore, of Toledo, grand president, had charge of the exercises. Addresses were made by all the grand officers and a welcome extended by local women. One of the most important subjects to be considered by the auxiliary will be the increase of death benefits from $300 to $500.

The contest for the next convention is a warm one. Salt Lake City, Utah, Denver, Boston and Buffalo want it. Business men of each city have representatives here trying to influence the delegates to vote for their places.

WANTS DAMAGES.

New Jersey Man Sues Vigilance Committee.

Freehold, N. J., May 12.—A former state senator, Henry S. Terhune, is the defendant in an action begun by Charles Herbert, of Matteewan, for $25,000 damages sustained, he alleges, at the hands of a vigilance committee led by Mr. Terhune. A series of supposed incendiary fires, of which Herbert was suspected of being the author, occurred in Matteewan two years ago. He testified that on the night of Feb. 24, 1901, Terhune roused him from his bed and took him to a cowshed, where, after being urged to confess, he was twice strung up to the rafters with a pair of plow lines. He also alleges that he was badly beaten.

FOURTH DAY OF RAIN.

Lincoln, Neb., May 12.—This is the fourth day of general rain that has extended over the state. The creeks and rivers in the southern and southeastern portions of the state are rising rapidly and at Superior, where nearly nine inches of water had fallen up to this morning, the pier under two large bridges are in danger.

JUSTICE ARMOUR ILL.

Toronto, May 12.—Justice Armour, one of Canada's Alaska boundary commissioners, is ill and may not be able to act on the commission. He had intended leaving for England on May 22.

MANY BOER FAMILIES WILL FIND NEW HOMES IN MEXICO

Generals Viljoen and Snyman Have Secured Thousands of Acres of Land In Chihuahua State and Will Bring Over Many Burghers at Once.

New York, May 12.—Gen. Benjamin Viljoen, former assistant commander general of the burgher forces in the Boer war and member for Johannesburg in the Transvaal volksraad, and Gen. W. D. Snyman, a Boer commander, have arrived in this city from Mexico, after completing arrangements with the Mexican government by which 82,000 acres of the best land of that country has been secured for a home for immigrants from South Africa.

Gen. Snyman will await here the arrival of his family, and Gen. Viljoen will sail for South Africa on May 17 to conduct the first expedition to the new country.

"I expect," said Gen. Viljoen, "to bring fifty families immediately and that others will follow soon. Fully 1000 families will join the movement to seek freedom on the American continent. The land secured by us is a beautiful fertile strip known as Santa Rosalia, in the state of Chihuahua, and near Ortiz station, on the Mexican Central road. Already men are at work there sowing corn. The new comers will be landed at Vera Cruz. We would have liked to bring them to the United States, but the immigration laws are too strict to allow of that.

"We Boers are now practically a people without a home, but we hope to find one in the new country. Our success in getting this tract of land was in great part due to the assistance of President Diaz, Enrique Creel and Mr. Limontour, the minister of finance.

POPULATION OF NEW YORK INCREASING VERY RAPIDLY

Births Are Far In Advance of Previous Years and the City Has Also Gained Enormously By Reason of Foreign Immigration.

New York, May 12.—Statistics compiled by the board of health show that the population of the city of New York is increasing at a remarkably rapid rate. The births reported in Manhattan borough alone during the first four months of the present year were 2009 in excess of those reported in the same period last year.

It is pointed out that the cosmopolitan population and the large proportion of foreigners in the city may account for the high birth rate.

E. J. Lederle, president of the board of health, says one reason for an increase in the number of births reported over former years may be due to the fact that the health department now holds any physician accountable when he neglects to report a birth. At the same time that an increase in the birth rate is shown there has been a falling off in the percentage of deaths.

In 1900 the total number of births in the city was 81,721, and the birth rate in each thousand of population was 23.75. Last year the births were 85,643, and the rate 22.68. During the first four months of this year there were reported an excess of over the same months last year of 1000 births in Brooklyn and of 500 in the Bronx.

The city has also gained enormously by foreign immigration. Taking all things into consideration, the board of health has estimated that the population of the city has grown frm 3,437,202 at the time of the last federal census in 1900 to 3,732,520 at present.

KOLB FOUND HIMSELF IN 'FRISCO

San Francisco, May 12.—George A. Kolb, business manager of the Marine Engineers' union, who so mysteriously disappeared from New York a week ago, was located today in San Francisco. Kolb reached San Francisco in the early morning, having come from the East by way of El Paso. The first person he called upon was Coroner Leland, who has known him for some time. To the coroner he said he remembered nothing from the time he left New York until he reached El Paso on the westward trip. Then he came to himself and began to realize where he was. Acting on the coroner's advice, Kolb immediately telegraphed his wife at New York of his safety and he will return to his home today.

MEN ARE IN DANGER

Several In Brooklyn Are Hurt By the Strikers.

Company's Ultimatum at Mobile Fails to Move Them.

New York, May 12.—Strike violence was resumed in Brooklyn early today. Peter Voedsker, a foreman in the Meyer & Anson Iron works, who refused to go on strike when the other men quit, was pounced upon by three men while on his way to work, badly cut about the head and rendered unconscious by blows from some blunt instrument. A Brooklyn carpenter, who had been warned to quit in peril of his life, was knocked down with a blow from a hammer while on his way to work.

One contractor had 400 men at work in places of the strikers on the upper One Hundred and Fifth street subway.

The demoralization of building operations all over the city became more complete today, as the material on hand is about used up. Former Judge Samuel McConnell, president of the G. A. Fuller Construction company, said that his company was one of the sufferers. Through the lockout of the building material and lumbermen, and the strike of the truckmen," he said, "our work is substantially at a standstill."

The big truckmen have not consented to the demands of the strikers, although about a score of smaller truckmen have.

Kansas City, May 12.—A new feature in the waiters' strike in this city is the refusal of the bakery drivers to deliver to non-union restaurants. The order will affect every member of the Restaurant Men's Protective association, of which there are forty-eight. Small restaurants, who buy all their pastries from the bakeries, will suffer most, as the large concerns bake most of their own supplies.

Erie, Pa., May 12.—At a special meeting last evening, attended by 600 molders, it was unanimously ordered that a strike be inaugurated, to begin today. Six of the largest shops in the city are affected at present, and it is expected that the trouble will be extended to several others before night. The conference of the international officers and local committees, which was in session here for three days last week and adjourned to Buffalo and Geneva, N. Y., failed to settle the grievances of the men, the most important being a small increase in wages.

Mobile, Ala., May 12.—The ultimatum issued by General manager Clark, to the effect that all striking employes must return to work this morning or lose their places, failed of effect here, as none of the men returned. A freight train left this morning and was manned by non-union men and guarded by officers. Eight non-union men arrived last night fro Meridian and West Point, Miss., and are awaiting orders of the company. J. J. Anderson, of West Point, head brakeman of the freight train which arrived last night, claims that he was shot at three times as the train passed through Whistler, five miles north of Mobile. Anderson is a non-union man.

FATALLY HURT IN BASEBALL GAME

Chicago, May 12.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from Springfield, Ohio, says: In a baseball game between Cedarville college and Wilberforce university, at the Wilberforce grounds, Charles Glenn, center fielder for the Cedarville team, has been fatally injured. A short fly was struck and the shortstop and center fielder both made a rush to get it. Neither saw the other and they collided with great force, both being knocked unconscious for a few minutes. Glenn's skuli was fractured, while Claude Phillips, the short stop, has an ugly gash over the eye.

PASTOR CANNOT COLLECT SALARY

Chicago, May 12.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Kansas City says: The Western Missouri court of appeals has decided that a member of the church congregation is not liable in law for the payment of the pastor's salary, and that a minister of the gospel must depend upon the good consciences of the members of his flock for his pay, and has no legal hold upon them for it. This decision was made in the suit brought by Rev. J. H. Riffe against the congregation of the First Baptist church of Monroe City. Rev. Mr. Riffe was engaged at a salary of $800 a year, but was not paid that much, so he sued for the balance. The clergyman won his case in the trial court, but the court of appeals reversed that judgment.

SAYS NOTHING BUT STILL FISHES

Middlebrass Island, Ohio, May 12.—Former President Cleveland and Capt. Lamberton, United States navy, who recently arrived here to fish, have been joined by several other distinguished visitors. Among those now in the party are former Governor Foster, John Uri Lloyd, of Cincinnati; J. G. Mitchell, of Toledo, and others. Mr. Cleveland steadfastly refuses to discuss his possible candidacy for the Democartic nomination for president next year and politely informed newspaper men he is here to fish and not talk politics.

FAINTS WHILE DENOUNCING VICE

Philadelphia, May 12.—Mayor Weaver fainted before 300 guests at a banquet of the Methodist Social union last evening and remained unconscious for about ten minutes.

At the conclusion of a bitter denunciation of the octopus of vice left to his administration as a legacy, and just as he repeated a pledge that the present efforts to purify the city were not to be spasmodic, but initiative of an aggressive campaign that would be continued with vigilance, the mayor paused abruptly and leaned on the back of a chair. For a time he seemed to be at a loss for words, then he closed his eyes and sank into the arms of his secretary, who was at his side.

BULLETINS CUT OFF

Regarding New Rural Free Delivery Routes.

Washington, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has been the custom for many months of the postoffice department to announce, through daily bulletins issued to the press, the character and number of the rural free delivery routes established. This avenue of information was today cut out and now the officials of the postoffice repartment work in the night and cover up their tracks by the suppression of information as to what they are "at." Today one is confronted with this bulletin: "By direction of the fourth assistant postmaster general, no further bulletins will be issued and no additional services ordered established for the present."

GREAT NORTHERN MEN AWAITING AN ANSWER

COLOMBIAN DELAY

On the Canal Treaty May Cause Abandonment of Route.

May Resume Negotiations With Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

Washington, May 12.—Thomas Herran, Colombian charge d'affaires here, said today that he had not been advised by his government that President Marroquin had resigned as reported in dispatches from Panama. If it shall appear shortly that the Colombian government is unwilling to consummate the treaty, or is disposed to defer final action beyond "the reasonable time" mentioned in the Spooner act, the state department will at once endeavor to re-open negotiations with Nicaragua and Costa Rica with a view of securing control of the alternate route for a canal through these countries. In fact, Secretary Hay has already within the week talked with Senor Corea, the Nicaraguan minister, and Senor Calvo, the minister from Costa Rica. It is said by parties to the negotiations that if they are resumed it will be upon the distinct understanding that the United States government definitely abandons the Panama route. So much ill feeling was excited in Nicaragua and Costa Rica by the dropping of the Nicaraguan route after the protocols had been drawn, looking to its acquisition, that the resident ministers of the two countries here are very loath to take up the subject again without an express agreement that they are not to be used to club the Colombian government into terms. Officials here, however, feel very confident that it will not be necessary to resort again to the Nicaraguan route for they believe that the present difficulties in the Panama negotiation are solely attributable to efforts on the part of the Colombians to make the most of the opportunity to induce the Panama canal company to divide with it some part of the $40,000,000 to be received by the company from the United States.

CREW SAVED.

Paris, May 12.—The crew, numbering thirty-one men of the French three-masted schooner Star of the Seas, bound for Newfoundland, has been rescued by the Russian steamer Capella and taken to Cherbourg. The French sailors were many days without food. The Star of the Seas was abandoned and subsequently foundered.

NEWMARKET HANDICAP.

London, May 12.—At the second spring meeting at Newmarket today, the Newmarket handicap was won by Bostonian. Patron Saint was second and Valenza was third. Ace Full, the American derby candidate, was not placed, which was considered as extinguishing the horse's chances of winning the the derby.

No Reply Yet Received From Manager Ward.

Both Sides Are Hopeful as to the Situation.

St. Paul, May 12.—The situation as to the Great Northern trainmen remains unchanged. The men have not yet received an answer to the reply sent to Mr. Ward yesterday afternoon rejecting his proposition to restrict double-headers to 3 per cent of the trains run, but they expect to hear from him some time today.

It was generally conceded that the matter would be decided in one way or other today, as both sides were hopeful of a peaceful settlement, but each were looking to the other party to make the concessions which would secure pease.

Today the feeling was much the same, although predictions of a strike were heard.

There is a split in the ranks of the employes of the Great Northern railway. The action of the switchmen at the meetings of their unions Sunday afternoon, at which they voted not to favor a strike on the Great Northern, is a very significant feature of the present trouble. The reason is twofold. They are under contract with the road for two years—as the trainmen and conductors are not—and they have a grievance against the trainmen on account of the Debs strike in 1894, when the latter went back to work before the demands of the switchmen had been granted.

YALE COLLEGE MAKES ENTIRE FOUR YEARS COURSE ELECTIVE

Corporation Makes a Radical Change, Allowing Freshmen In the Future to Pick Five Courses Annually Out of Set of Eight.

Chicago, May 12.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from New Haven, Conn., says: The Yale corporation has made the entire four years of the college course elective by allowing freshmen in the future to pick five courses annually out of a set of eight, dropping any three of the eight they wish. The vote makes it possible for the freshmen to drop Greek, Latin and mathematics if he wishes.

Greek, as a required subject for entrance examination, was abolished, the change taking effect June, 1904. Advanced mathematics and modern languages will be accepted as substitute for Greek hereafter. The change will make a large difference in the preparatory schools of the country.

Yale professors will be retired at the age of 68 years, except when specially required by the corporation to continue in active service, according to a vote passed by the corporation. This rule will take effect three years from date and will apply to all officers of the university who hold permanent appointments. Several years ago the corporation voted to allow professors to retire voluntarily at 65 years of age. Gifford Pinchot, national forester, appointed professor of forestry in the school. EXHAUSTED PRAY FOR [illegible] TO HELP THEM

By Almost Superhuman Efforts They Have Kept the Flames From Several Villages, But Cannot Do So Much Longer Without Rain.

Johnstown, Pa., May 12.—After fighting fire without rest for sixty hours, exhausted and choked with smoke, the lumbermen and mountaineers of Cambria, Somerset and Westmoreland counties are praying for rain to quench the forest fires that have been raging for a week. By almost superhuman efforts of the inhabitants, and with the aid of fire companies summoned from Altoona and Johnstown, the villages and mills at Dunlo, Vintondale and Twin Rocks have been saved. On the Laurel Hill, in Westmoreland county, several houses have been burned and loss of life was narrowly averted. Guards surround the Conemaugh powder plant at Seward, to prevent the flames reaching that establishment.

The relays of mountaineers and lumbermen work about two hours each, when a new body of fire fighters takes the place of each retiring brigade.

Latrobe, Pa., May 12.—The most destructive forest fire in years is sweeping the ridge and threatening the destruction of Waterford and Laughlintown. The fire commissioners have a large force of men fighting the fire.

DIES LISTENING TO FAVORITE AIRS

Newark, N. J., May 12.—Carlo Brizzi, who came of a distinguished Italian family of composers, and who was the author of several operas, is dead. For the last six years he lived in this city. For half an hour before he passed away his son sat at the bedside and played the dying man's favorite airs. While the violinist was playing a simple folk-song with a gentle harmony and plaintive melody, his father raised his head from the pillow and reached out as if to take the instrument from the hands of the player. Then he sank back again on the bed dead. Pneumonia was the cause of death. Brizzi wrote, among others, the opera "Christopher Colombo," in which Adelina Patti sang when the work was produced for the Chicago exhibition. The prayer at the funeral of King Humbert was composed by Brizzi.

BURNING HOUSE STARTED LAUGH

Glassboro, N. J., May 12.—For three days Lewis Kreichmer, of Monroville, laughed and laughed. The doctors who attended him said it was hardly possible for him to recover, but Kreichmer has finally stopped laughing and will get well. Kreichmer was seized with laughing hysterics in the midst of the excitement of the burning of his home, Friday night. Relatives and friends did all they could to stop him, but did not succeed. The sufferer kept on laughing at intervals of a few minutes until he was weak and practically helpless. Many doctors were called in consultation, but their efforts were vain for a long time. Finally, however, the paroxysms became less violent and finally ceased.

FIFTY BROWNSTONES TO BE RAZED

New York, May 12.—Tenants of more than 100 residences and apartment houses in the streets adjacent to the New York Central railroad yards have been notified to vacate the premises they occupy before June 12, when the work on the new $20,000,000 terminal is to be begun. Formal notices were served last week on lessees of property from Forty-fifth to Fifty-first streets, and extending from the present car tracks on the east to Lexington avenue and on the west to Madison avenue. One church and more than fifty brownstone dwellings are among the buildings which will be raized.

W. F. Lohnes, a prominent business man of Springfield, Ohio, writes the following strong endorsement of this great kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, to the Editor of the Springfield, Ohio, Republic.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 21st, 1903.

"Having heard that you could procure a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and it was promptly sent. I was so pleased after trying the sample bottle that I sent to the drug store and procured a supply. I have used Swamp-Root regularly for some time, and consider it unsurpassed as a remedy for torpid liver, loss of appetite and general derangement of the digestive functions. I think my trouble was due to too close confinement in my business. I can recommend it highly for all liver and kidney complaints. I am not in the habit of endorsing any medicine, but in this case I cannot speak too much praise of what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root has done for me."

AT WEST DULUTH

The body of James Pitman, who died Saturday at the Red Cross hospital, still lies unclaimed at the undertaking rooms of M. J. Filiatrault. His name was all the information concerning him that was learned by the hospital authorities before his death. He was brought to the hospital from the Denver lodging house in Duluth, suffering from an attack of pneumonia.

On his coat was found a button bearing the letters N. U. C. Co., which may signify that the deceased was a member of some organization.

The deceased was 25 years of age and of a good appearance, although meanly dressed. He is believed to have relatives living in Wausau, Wis., and also a cousin living in either Duluth or Superior.

No funeral arrangements have been made, awaiting the arrival of friends or relatives to identify the body.

HIT WRONG PLACE.

John La Favrier, of 5810 Main street, was aroused at an early hour this morning by a loud commotion in the lower part of the house. With visions of midnight prowlers floating before his eyes, he descended the stairs, and discovered Andrew Peterson, a neighbor, lying on the floor in a state of helpless intoxication.

Upon being interrogated as to what he desired, Peterson replied that he was looking for a situation. La Favrier told him he had no openings for night watchmen and the man left.

On being arraigned before Justice Stone this morning on a charge of trespass, Peterson pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, which was promptly paid.

SMALL BOY ARRESTED.

Benerd Doyle, an 8-year-old West Duluth lad, appeared before Judge Stone last evening to answer to a charge of petty larceny. It was claimed that he, with three other boys of about the same age, broke into a boat house on the bay front on Sunday, May 3, and stole some fixtures belonging to a boat.

His father pleaded guilty in the boy's behalf and paid a fine of $5 and costs.

The lad is one of a number who have been committing petty depredations in the neighborhood for the past two weeks and causing a great deal of annoyance to citizens and the police. Further arrests will likely follow.

RICHARDS BACK

General Land Commissioner Returns From Cass Lake.

Went Over Cass Lake District With Forester Pinchot.

W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office, returned to Duluth this morning with Gifford Pinchot, after visiting the Cass Lake district.

Mr. Richards visited the local land offices and was the guest of Judge Page Morris at the Kitchi Gammi club for luncheon. He talked about affairs in general with visitors and officials at the land office, leaving the city at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Richards was met by the Rev. Sidney C. Davis, of the First Baptist church, of this city, who was formerly a pastor at Cheyenne and well acquainted with the Richards family.

"The country appears to me," said Mr. Richards, "after our inspection, to be possible for large development, though I am not experienced in this kind of lands. Property I am thoroughly at home on hasn't so much water and timber. But the tract will accommodate a large number of settlers without a doubt.

"Mr. Pinchot has gone over the property to secure a basis for the sequestration until he reaches Washington.

"The Indian allotments have all been made, but there is another difficulty in the way of an instaneous allotment of the lands for settlement. That is the flowage line, which is not finally fixed, and must be before we can go ahead with our selections.

"We will take all our data to Washington and there, in connection with representatives of the war department, the forestry divilson of the agricultural department and the land department, will apportion the lands and make arrangements for the opening.

"The principal object of the trip was to become personally acquainted with the lands, and we covered about the whole reservation on our trips after we got to Cass Lake. We ascertained the Indian allotments had been finished April 20, but the exact boundaries of the land cannot be fixed until the departments get together. We have gone over the property thoroughly, and when it comes to the sale of the timber and lands, I will be able to see that the transactions are honestly and intelligently made."

Mr. Pinchot missed his early train to St. Paul, and went down this afternoon at 1:25 o'clock. He will return to Duluth in a few days to finish up some work connected with the notes and diagrams he secured while making the trip over the reservation.

Mr. Richards spent this morning chatting in the land office in the federal building, with the officials and some visitors who came in. There was some discussion of the advisability of the division that has been made, but Mr. Richards defended his action, saying that the congressional delegation of the state and the senators had made the recommendation he had followed.

Mr. Richards said Congressman Adam Bede, of this district, had visited him several times in regard to the proposed change.

Mr. Richards pursued a conciliatory tone in explaining how well Duluth would do under the new division, and was tickled when it was suggested that the people from the northern part of Itasca county would have to come through Duluth to get to the Cass Lake office. He said that in Big Horn county, Wyoming, where he is the mooch de facto, he used to drive seventy-five miles to get to the county seat and didn't think the business of the settlers in the northern part of Itasca county would suffer much at making a trip to Cass Lake.

He also expressed his belief that the Duluth land office district would not suffer through the re-division, and that it would be some years before the office would fall off in importance.

He was assured, however, that after the next proof, there would be a material falling off in business, and while it might be three or four years before the salaries of officials would be reduced or affected, the immediate results would be felt in a few months.

Mr. Richards went to Chicago on the Omaha train late this afternoon.

BANQUET AT CASS LAKE.

Speeches By Richards, Buckman, Pinchot and Others.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A banquet was given by the Commercial club last evening at the Endion hotel to Hon. W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office; Hon. C. B. Buckman, M. C., and Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry. There were also present Chief Classifier E. L. Warren, Lumberman Eugene S. Bruce and Edward Hamilton and Griffen, of the forestry bureau. The banquet was a sumptuous affair. A. G. Bernard presided as toastmaster and did excellent service.

Ex-Governor Richards said: "You speak of sacrifice in our coming here, but it is a picnic to the work done at Washington. The Nelson law was not well applied, and now we want to make the Morris law effective and carry it out intelligently. We want it carried out in detail and to work it successfully. It is our earnest desire to get all the timber sold and immediately. There will be fair measurement by bank sale. We want pay for what the lumbermen get and the Indians will get the money. It will be fair to the lumbermen, the Indians and the people. There is a great difficulty to get rid of the water in this vicinity. We want to investigate the flowage line, and I asked what a flag represented and they said it is over an Indian grave. That is what I know of flowage. It is the determination of the bureau of forestry, the war department and the interior department to put the Morris bill into effect, and the timber will be cut off the land as fast as we can possibly do it. The Indian allotments have all been taken and they have been mailed to Washington. When they are determined we shall put the pine on sale about or before June 1. The land office will open her the first of July."

Congressman Buckman spoke eulogistically of the state of Minnesota and its rapid development and growth. He gave an eloquent speech.

City Attorney Stanton spoke of the past, present and future of Cass Lake. He gave a very glowing address.

Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry, said: "Our work is of the greatest interest to Cass Lake and the state. We shall recommend that the 5 per cent of standing pine to be left for reforestration shall be young and vigorous trees, so we and the lumbermen will agree. They want the mature pine and do not care for the young trees. We will keep them for our practical test of forestry. The area of the forest reserve from which we choose our first selection for the reserve will take in Cass Lake and the adjoining land, so we shall have the pine cut this winter from land very near Cass Lake. The final selection we cannot make because of the non-delineation of the flowage lines, but these will be made in June. Outside the boundary we select, all lands can be opened or the pine sold off. Reforestration will be the best thing for Cass Lake and will make it a permanent city of growing importance. Mr. Bruce has done his work well and we accept his conclusions."

Governor Richards, when seen last evening, said: "Our trip was entirely satisfactory. We followed the itinerary mapped out by Lumberman Bruce, and we saw a great deal of the country, more than we could have done in any other way. We went from Cass Lake by land and water, practically over the whole ground necessary for our work. We traveled from Thursday to Monday evening and with very little rest. We passed through the big belts of pine, and there is some fine pine, and plenty of it in good condition. The 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 feet of pine blown down we inspected, and it is scarcely hurt or injured. It will be advertised with the rest of the standing pine, and is as good now as before it was blown down. The only damage was by the fall and not the fire. It is better to cut than the standing pinet and has not depreciated any. The work has been done honestly and intelligently, and E. L. Warren and Bruce have done good work. The land north will be thrown open first for settlement immediately it is classified."

NO EXTRA CARS

Regular Schedule All That Can Be Supplied For Few Days.

Breaking of an auxiliary engine in the power house of the Duluth-Superior Traction company will interfere with the street car service during the rush hours for three or four days.

Manager Warren says that without this engine it will be impossible to get up sufficient power to operate extra cars but the tie-up will not last more than three or four days and the regular cars will be run as usual.

The power for the extra service morning and evening was generated by a 600-horse power engine which is auxillary to the big 1600-horse power machine used in generating power for the regular service.

As soon as the break occurred the long distance telephone wires were kept busy with conversation between Duluth, Milwaukee and Chicago in an effort to get the necessary repair parts here without delay. In speaking of the accident Manager Warren said today:

"It was a most unfortunate occurance, but it is one of those things likely to happen in the best regulated business at the most unexpected time.

"The breaking of this engine will cause great inconvenience as it means the temporary withdrawal of our extra car service which we were just getting adjusted to the rush of traffic morning and evening. We hope to have the engine repaired in three days if everything is favorable, and in the meantime it will be necessary to depend entirely on the regular car service."

CANNOT COUNT BALLOTS.

Therefore Robert McLane Is Mayor of Baltimore.

Baltimore, May 12.—The board of election supervisors decided today that it has no legal right to count the ballots in the four precincts which the election judges failed to count on election day and which are now locked up in the boxes. This decision was based on the opinion of the legal counsel to the board that there is no authority for opening the boxes. This leaves Robert M. McLane, Democratic candidate, with a plurality of 8886 and Mr. McLane will receive the certificate and be inaugurated mayor on May 19. The Republican managers still declare their purpose to contest the right of Mr. McLane to hold the office and an effort will be made to secure the recount of the entire vote.

TEAM IS IN SIGHT

The Duluth Baseball Team Is Gaining Good Recruits.

Walter Wilmot Will Get Some Players at Chicago.

Dauntlessly putting forth strenuous efforts to land a winning ball team for Duluth, the local club managers are now trembling on the brink of success.

To begin with the bunch of candidates defeated by the high school team have been released, Gehring, McCoy and Leonard being the exceptions in a squad of about fifteen.

Walter Wilmot, the veteran player and manager, has been engaged as a sort of business agent to pick up some speedy youngsters for Duluth. Mr. Wilmot is now in Chicago, where he has a line on several very fast men.

President Bryan made Wilmot a good offer to take charge of the Duluth nine, but he says he is out of baseball for good, and after getting Duluh a good team, will retire from active participation in the national game.

The next step in securing a fast team was the trading of Dellar to Crookston for Mueller, the big University pitcher. This deal was made on Wilmot's recommendation. He has seen Mueller at work and says he is little short of a "phenom." Dellar, while leading the Northern league pitchers last season, does not seem to appreciate the advantages offered an ambitious young player in this city and the local managers will not trifle with him any longer, since assured the services of Mueller.

The former university pitcher was awarded to Crookston by President Laxdal, but he says he prefers to quit the diamond than play anywhere but Duluth, and the deal for his coming here is practically closed.

This gives Duluth three unusually strong pitchers: Volz, Mueller and Gehring.

On advice from Wilmot, President Bryan has also secured a new catcher, named Morris, and a second baseman, named Kerman. They reported here this afternoon, and certainly look like good men. In his Chicago trip Mr. Wilmot will pay particular attention to infielders, escepially a short stop and third baseman.

Kennelley, the big first baseman now playing with Rockford, signed a Duluth contract before he thought of playing in the Three-I league, and Manager Van Praagh wired him today to report here in time to go to Stillwater with the team for next Sunday's practice game.

The outfield of the Duluth team is practically picked. McCoy, who was sixth in Northern league batters last season, will play left field. Bill Lambert will play center and Lagger will be in right.

An impression seems to have gone out that the team defeated by the high school last Saturday was the regular Northern league aggregation. This impression is decidedly wrong. The players were simply men that applied for places on the team, and the game was nothing more than a try-out. Gehring, McCoy and Leonard made good, and the others will now seek places elsewhere.

Manager Reynolds and his Fargoites that have been giving Three-I teams their thumpings in preliminary practice were handed a large and joyful reception when they returned to Fargo Sunday afternoon.

The Houston team of the Texas league is claiming Ross, one of the best men on the Fargo team.

Winnipeg beat Chippewa Falls by a score of 10 to 2. O'Connor pitched a great game for the Canadians until the eighth.

A second baseman named Whelen, now with Terre Haute, is anxious to get on the Duluth team.

BIG CIRCUS ON THE WAY

Fourpaugh-Sells Shows to Be Here on June 29.

The circus is coming!

The small boys of Duluth may begin to watch the billboards for the announcements, for the big Forepaugh-Sells combined circuses, the greatest on earth, according to a wireless telegram quoting the bills that will soon blaze forth over and about the city, will spread their tents at the fair grounds June 29 for two performances, rain or shine.

The first representative of the show to reach here was the man to arrange for the grounds, who arrived yesterday and amde arrangements to have the shows given on the fair grounds in the West End.

Then he went on to the next place, and in a short time a procession of advance cars with bills and posters and eighteen-sheet stands will begin to arrive.

For many years the circuses have all been held on the vacant property on Twenty-eighth avenue west, just above the street car tracks. The march of progress has cut off this place, however, for several houses have been built just where they spoil the grounds for circus purposes, and it was necessary to secure the fair grounds which the Buffalo Bill Wild West show has used for several seasons.

CITY MAY BUY

It May Purchase Its Own Water Extension Bonds.

May Prefer to Do That Rather Than Sell at Par.

The city will probably buy its own bonds rather than sell at par.

Last evening $40,000 worth of 4 per cent bonds were offered for sale and the best bid was par.

Such bidding on an acknowledged gilt-edged security was disappointing to the city officers. This morning City Clerk Cheadle hit upon a scheme to invest $40,000 from the $80,000 sinking fund balance in this security and his plan is meeting with general approval.

The charter names the mayor, comptroller, treasurer, and city attorney as a sinking fund commission, which may, with the consent of the council, invest such fund in bonds of the city of Duluth or in such other security as is permitted for the investment of the permanent school fund of the state of Minnesota.

Mayor Hugo says he will present the matter to the sinking fund commission just as soon as he can get the commission together—the absence of several members from the city today making such action impossible before tomorrow or the next day.

As it is $80,000 balance in the sinking fund is likely to lie idle in the treasury for three or four years. The sinking fund is for the purpose of taking up bonds or other funded indebtedness which the city is obligated to pay, and there will be no call on the fund until 1909, when $256,000 worth of old Duluth Gas & Water 6s become due. This issue will likely be refunded and the next issue of any size is $160,000 permanent improvement 5s and $100,00 of general fund 5s issued August 15, 1887.

All the aldermen informed of this proposition for taking care of the $40,000 issue expressed themselves favorably in regard to it and the council will probably reject both bids submitted last evening.

Former Resident Writes From New South Wales.

The Herald is in receipt of an interesting letter from Louis Roos, formerly a resident of Duluth, but now in business in Inverell, New South Wales, Australia, in which he takes occasion to extend to The Herald his hearty congratulations for the efforts which resulted in the erection and completion of its new home. Referring to the country he says: "This country would be O. K. were it not for the uncertainties of the seasons. It will take several years to make up for the enormous losses brought about by the most disastrous drought, ever experienced here. It was only a short time ago that we had the first beneficial rains since many, many months, but nothing short of a flood will insure permanent results for one or two seasons."

BACK FROM GUAM

A Battalion of Regular Infantry Passes Through Duluth.

Going From Philippines to Fort Brady at Sault.

Whatever resemblances of the soft and fragrant tropical breezes of the Philippines there might have been with the boys of the First battalion of the First United States infantry were dispelled with a shock and a lot of shivers and shakings when the four companies comprising that body of men arrived in Duluth at 9 o'clock this morning and mingled with the moisture-laden, raw lake breezes and the mud of Superior street.

The ringing tones of the bugle sounding the assembly call, combined with consistent weather of Duluth, started the khaki uniforms scurrying toward the dingy train made up of nine coaches and three freight cars at the Union station at 11 o'clock.

The boys who faced the dangers of ambuscade and the treacherous and diminutive white-coated bushwhacker without a change of color, turned pale, shuddered—and sneezed, when brought face to face with the atmosphere of the Zenith City this morning.

But they stretched their limbs for an hour around the streets—that is, Superior street—and bought fruit or bakery goods, and one or two got shaved. The boys looked very well, excepting for a prevalence of fever sores, which the surgeons told them would leave before they had been at Fort Brady, Mich., where they go for garrison duty, very long.

The troops which stopped in Duluth this morning were Companies A, B, C and D of the First regiment regular infantry. They went to the Philippines in September, 1900, with 500 men and officers. The return was with 272 men and eleven officers. The detachment was in charge of Maj. R. N. Getty, with Capts. Pegram, Whitworth, Herschal, Tupes and J. S. Dickering.

The battalion left La Guam, in the province of Samar, March 20, on the transport Kilpatrick, and came by the way of Nagasacki to San Francisco on the transport Logan, arriving April 28. They have been on the road from San Francisco since May 7.

The dingy-looking train was composed of a Pullman for the officers and seven tourists' cars for the enlisted men, a baggage car and three boxcars, in which the arms and accoutrements were carried.

The officers and men were all glad to get their feet back on United States soil, even though they have been having a time of inactivity for many months. The officers breakfasted at Boyle's hotel upon their arrival, and were entertained by Lieut. George A. Delss, Maj. J. H. Upham and Capt. George Gibson. The train arrived unexpectedly, and Duluth Great Northern officials were not notified of its coming until the train was on the trestle, waiting for the bridge to close, an operation that took about ten minutes.

The battalion has been quartered at Guam, doing duty as a military government, and for nearly a year, it was said, there has been no fighting. An occasional street fight or some minor trouble was about all there was for excitement, and the garrison was maintained for appearances, mostly. The detachment from the Fourteenth infantry, which passed through here in February, arrived two days before this battalion left, to keep the station.

Capt. Woodworth, one of the officers of the party, said that at the time they landed in Manila there was fighting going on about fifteen miles from Manila, but he believed it a spasmodic outbreak and nothing serious, though such occurrences were harrassing the army often and with dire results in the island of Luzon.

The train left the Union station at 11 o'clock over the South Shore for the Soo, and the men will be at Fort Brady some time tomorrow morning.

There were but two men ill with fever on the train, though there were a score of convalescents among the soldiers.

THE HOME IS A SUCCESS

Bethel Home For Fallen Women Doing a Good Work.

The expenses of the home for the Bethel Home for Women, just out, shows that that institution has made a successful start and that it is doing a good work along the line of reclaiming women who have been led apart from the paths of virtue. The police department has been an aid, using the place instead of the jail whenever possible.

The statistical report for the period from Jan. 15 to April 15 is as follows: Remaining in home, Jan. 15, 12 adults and 5 infants; admitted during the quarter, 12 adults and 2 infants; dismissed, 9 adults and 4 infants; born in the home, 5 infants; remaining in home April 15, 15 adults and 8 infants. Of the 9 women dismissed 4 returned to their homes, 3 went to work, taking their babies, 1 went to work, leaving her baby in the home nursery, and only 1 returned to evil life. Aside from the regular inmates the home sheltered 11 women temporarily out of employment and assisted them in securing work.

The second quarterly report of the quarter were $980.56, of which $123.35 was received from board and sale of articles made in the home, $421.82 was received through general subscriptions for maintenance, and $435.39 was advanced by the Bethel.

The home can use donations of all sorts, and assistance in placing inmates where they can earn their own livings is gratefully received.

PRESIDENT AT 'FRISCO

San Francisco, May 12.—President Roosevelt left San Jose at 8:30 this morning on his way to this city. A half hour's ride through orchards and fields brought the train to Palo Alto, the site of the Leland Stanford, Jr., university. Here the president left his carriage and was driven up a palm-lined avenue to the famous university quadrangle, formed by the grouping of tile-covered buildings in Mexican style of architecture. President Roosevelt was greeted by President Jordan, the faculty and assembled students, to whom he dellvered a brief address.

After an inspection of the campus and buildings, including the beautiful Stnford memorial church that he declared was one of the most artistic religious edifices in the world, the president was escorted to his car by the entire college body. Hundreds of residents of Palo Alto and the adjacent country had assembled at the depot and as the train pulled out there was enthusiastic cheering. Shortly before 12:40 o'clock the presidential party reached Burlingame, the picturesque home of the Country club, where a stop was made for luncheon. For this event President Roosevelt was the guest of Henry T. Scott and many prominent citizens of California were present at the informal repast.

After a rest under the trees and a stroll about the grounds, the journey was resumed, Milbrae, San Bruno and South San Francisco in succession were passed an dat 1:15 p. m. President Roosevelt reached San Francisco. The arrival was announced by a presidential salue fired by the naval reserve. The party was met by the citizens' executive committee, whose president, M. H. DeYoung, greeted President Roosevelt in the following words:

"Mr. President: In the name of the citizens of San Francisco I extend you a hearty welcome. In the days of old, when our land was owned by the Spaniards, who were noted for their hospitality, when they received a guest they generally saluted him with the remark, 'Our house and all that is in it is yours.'

"We say to you today, 'Mr. President, our city and all that is in it is yours,' and with it we give you our hearts, and you will have evidence as you pass through our decorated streets of the hearty sentiment for you that prevails in the bosom of all of our citizens. We will try to make your stay with us pleasant, and we hope that when you leave us you will do so carrying with you the memory of one of the most delightful visits of your trip throughout the West. Mr. President, you are welcome."

To this cordial address of welcome President Roosevelt made a brief response expressing his gratification at having reached the metropolis of the Pacific coast.

The president and his party were then escorted to carriages in the places in the military procession already formed under command of Maj. Gen. MacArthur, U. S. A., and Maj. Gen. Dickinson of the National Guard of California. The line was a long one, including cavalry, infantry, bluejackets from the war vessels in the harbor, detachments of the naval reserves and several semi-military organizations. Up Third street, one of the least imposing thoroughfares of the city, to Market street, where modern skyscrapers abound, the president passed through a lane lined by thousands of cheering citizens. At Market street the elaborate decorations, the fluttering flags, the swinging wreaths of green and the maze of pendent electric globes at once attracted the president's attention and he expressed in hearty terms his appreciation of the general effect. The sky was cloudless and probably 200,000 people were on the streets through which the party passed. On Van Ness avenue the president's carriage halted while the parade passed in review. The people cheered constantly, and innumerable flags were waved.

Immediately after the review the president participated in the dedicatory exercises of the Y. M. C. A. building, one of the finest structures of the kind in the United States. Then, after a brief stop at the Press club, where he inscribed his name on the register, he received the consular service, military officers and others at the Palace hotel.

This evening he will be the guest of honor at a banquet tendered by the citizens of San Francisco, for which elaborate preparations have been made.

San Jose, May 12.—President Roosevelt passed the night at Campbell to avoid the noise at the depot in this city. He arose refreshed and ate a hearty breakfast. The train arrived here at 8:30 this morning. There was a large crowd at the depot and as the train pulled out for Palo Alto the president stood on the platorm and waved his hands.

SMITH HAS SKIPPED

Blacksmith "Millionaire" Leaves a Horde of Anxious Creditors.

Husband of the "Pretty Widow" Arrived on the Scene.

Springfield, Mass., May 12.—Charles H. Smith, once credited with being the possessor of $2,000,000, has vanished, and there are no assets to appease a horde of creditors. Smith came to Springfield last fall as a hostler. Later he found employment in a blacksmith's shop in Union street and lived in obscurity.

A few weeks ago he announced that, although he had been a laborer since he was old enough to work he was a millionaire, and that his money, which had been deposited to his credit more than thirty years ago, had passed the $2,000,000 mark. Smith acknowledged but 33 years, though he looked to be 50. The sum which he claimed to possess was realized, he said, from the sale of gold mines which his father had "staked out" in California.

The fact that he was a millionaire, Smith said, would probably have remained a profound secret until his death had it not been for the tender passion which he felt toward Mrs. Timothy Dooley, with whom he boarded. Smith said that in the fall he was to marry Mrs. Dooley and then acquired unlimited credit with the announcement that he was a millionaire.

The simple furniture in Mrs. Dooley's parlor was relegated to the attic and the front door steps creaked beneath the weight of the men who carried in a $600 piano. Smith bought a span of horses and a fine carriage for himself, and a driving horse and rubber-tired buggy for Mrs. Dooley. He bargained for a $10,000 farm in Feeding Hills, and ordered $1500 worth of furniture of a Main street firm. He viewed the finest assortment of diamonds in the city and set aside a score of the choicest stones. Not a single transaction, however, represented any expenditure on the part of Smith.

Matters progressed smoothly until Smith's creditors began to ask for their money. Smith said he would go to Hartford and draw $20,000 to pay his bills. He did not return that day, as he had promised, but the next morning Mrs. Dooley received a telegram, which read: "Home at once."

Smith made the return journey of twenty-six miles in safety and brought with him the distressing news that his aunt had the keys to his safety deposit vault and had died "about thirty miles from Florida." Then Smith left the city, borrowing $14 from relatives of Mrs. Dooley.

The following day the transformation of the Dooley home began. The piano dealer took away the piano, and the furniture dealer despoiled the parlors. A woman called with a board bill, which she alleged Smith should have paid last fall, and a credit clothing concern wanted its money for a $3 suit of clothes.

Saturday Timothy Dooley, the husband of the pretty "widow," who caused Smith to lose his head, arrived in Springfield from El Paso. He had read newspaper accounts of the intended marriage of his wife and Smith, and had traveled from Texas to Massachusetts to bring suit for the alienation of his wife's affections.

HE NOW LIKES REPORTERS

Cleveland Apologizes For Former Treatment of the Press.

Washington, May 12.—Grover Cleveland has made ample public apology to reporters and newspaper correspondents for his treatment of them during his eight years' stay in the White House. During the two terms he was president it is notorious that he was not on friendly terms with them. Now he wants Mark Hanna and John Mitchell to arbitrate between him and the press.

The ex-president's apology was made in a speech to newspaper men at St. Louis, and the stenographic report only reached Washington yesterday. No public man or private citizen has made a speech in recent years that has created such a sensation among newspaper men. He said:

"I attended today a meeting of the Civic federation, and at that time a thought came to me. Remembering the grand principles of justice and humanity which that eminent body stood for, the character of such men as Senator Hanna and John Mitchell, both men of power and influence, it was suggested to my mind that it was about time to get the Civic federation to arbitrate between me and the press.

"It has been my observation that the members of the press are always industrious. I recall at the time of my wedding trip some examples of that characteristic zeal. I am told that one genius climbed into the windows of my car, and even clung to the brake beams in his anxiety to serve his paper and gets news to the American reading public.

"I can assure that gentleman, if he is present incognito this evening, that he would have been welcome in my car, although it was a time of all times when a man does require some privacy.

"I believe that it would be a good thing to get up an agreement with the newspaper men, so that we plain citizens might become their clients or patrons. Then we might give them just what we chose to surrender of our official or private secrets, I think that by this means we might work up a greater interest in the press, but, gentlemen, let me advise you that they are good friends to have. They are men of broad and catholic sympathies and full of understanding of the weaknesses and frailties of the race, and quick to recognize and support its virtues. Therefore, the man who is in the business of harboring no good will toward the newspaper man is in a losing business."

As Mr. Cleveland took his seat he was given a demonstration, and newspaper men around the board sang that well known campaign chorus: "Grover, Grover, four more years of Grover."

When quiet was restored a big voiced member of the Gridiron club present arose and solemnly proposed "that in view of the humble confession just made by the most distinguished private citizen in the world, he be forgiven." The motion was carried.

Senator Hanna, in his remarks, said that he had no confessions to make to the Washington newspaper men, and no apologies to offer to them. "It did not take me long," he added, to reach an understanding with the Washington correspondents generally. It did not require eight years of public life in Washington for me to understand and comprehend the mission of the representative newspaper men of the country."

MUNICIPAL PAVILIONS

Will Be Maintained By Many Cities at World's Fair.

St. Louis, May 12.—It is likely that a considerable number of American cities will maintain a municipal pavilion as part of the general exhibition of the Louisiana Purchase exposition. The committee on legislation has begun a movement to induce the municipal law making bodies to make appropriation to this effect. New York city has already made an appropriation of $10,000. Boston is already at work on a similar appropriation, and preliminary steps have been taken in Washington. Charles E. Reeves, of the committee on legislation, has addressed to the mayors of twenty-five large cities of the United States a letter urging that each city make a representative exhibit as a part of the general municipal exhibition. It is the purpose of the exposition to install the most comprehensive municipal exhibits possible, illustrative of the civic development and progress of a selected number of the largest cities in the United States. These city exhibits will be arranged according to their proper classification in the departments of social economy or liberal arts, or in the case of a city, which is a great industrial center, its exhibit may be placed with that department of the exposition to which it is most closely related.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Little Girl Burned to Death In a Prairie Fire.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Minot—A report was brought to Minot of the burning in a prairie fire, fifteen miles from here, of the 3-year-old daughter of a farmer, Benjamin Gransadt. A terrible gale was blowing and the child was placed in a fire break while the father and mother tried to save the home. Sparks set fire to the little girl's clothes, however, and she was burned beyond hope of recovery.

Grand Forks—Last week the northern part of this state and a portion of the Western part suffered a series of the worst prairie fires experienced in many years. All the fires occurred when a perfect gale blew from the south. The grass that had not been burned last fall was as dry as tinder, and the flames fanned by a wind with a velocity of about forty miles an hour traveled at a terrific rate of speed. In the early days when there was more danger from prairie fires, greater precautions were taken to protect property. For the past few years, however, there has been little done in this direction by either the farmers or the villagers, and from the reports the losses were very heavy in many localities.

Cannonball—The Indians have had a big council with their new agent, Major Carignan. They told him their grievances and made many recommendations as to the removal of some of the present employes. They made strong objection to a pasture which it was purposed to build in this district. As a compromise, it is probable that a fence will be built along the Cannonball river, thus preventing what has long been a source of trouble, white men's stock straying on the reservation and Indians' cattle on the white men's side. They objected to the appointment of the new cattle inspector, contending that an Indian or mixed blood should have the job. Agent Carignan, in a sensible speech, told them he had only been in office a few days and they must not ask too much of him all at once. The proceedings of the council were taken down by a government reporter and will be forwarded to the department.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Lake Preston—Mathew McMurray and Benny Needham, both about 14 years of age, left home Thursday night and no trace has been found of them. One of the boys left a note in his bed stating they were going West to become cowboys. They were treated well at home.

Sioux Falls—A large delegation left to attend the grand lodge meeting of the A. O. U. W. at Lead in the Hills. Chief interest centers in the contest for grand master and grand recorder. Grand Master Smith and Grand Recorder Lavin formerly were friends, but differences have caused an estrangement. Both are candidates for re-election and Grand Master Smith is said to have formed an alliance with those who are opposed to the re-election of Mr. Lavin.

Spearfish—Ernest Millard, arrested for cattle stealing, was held to appear at the circuit court under bonds. He had stolen an animal belonging to Jesse Porea, of Blacktail gulch. It is also alleged he had other cattle in his possession at the time of arrest that belonged to various other men.

Telegrams received here Sunday solve the mystery of the whereabouts of Charles G. Spore, the Vincennes, Ind., immigrant, who had been missing for several days. His body was found in the weeds about a mile from Watertown, Wis., Saturday afternoon, every indication being that he had committed suicide. He started with a car of immigrant moveables for Aberdeen. The car reached here on May 2, and no trace of him could be found except that he was in Chicago, April 30. A brother who had come through by passenger train feared foul play, and telegrams were sent to all stations through which the car passed. Spore had about $70 in cash and $2500 in a bank in Indiana. No cause for his suicide has been found. Part of his cash was found on his body, and telegrams from the bank shows the money on deposit was untouched.

Doland—J. M. Johnson, one of the oldest settlers of Doland and Spink county, was found dead in bed Sunday morning. He retired the night before in his usual health and death came while he was sleeping. The funeral was held under the auspices of the Masonic order.

THE SIDE OF THE BLACKMAN

"United States Should Protect Him or Be Damned."

New York, May 12.—At the Methodist preachers' meeting Rev. Charles R. Morris speaking on "The Blackman's Side of the Negro Problem," declared that the charges of criminal assault against negroes in the South were one phase of a preconcerted and determined assault being made and said as systematically abetted by Southern men in the pulpit, in the press and in public addresses with the avowed purpose to so blacken the good name of the negro as to get the North to turn the whole problem over to the South to solve as the South sees fit," declared Mr. Morris.

"If the United States does not protect the negro in his right to the ballot they deserve to be damned," cried a voice in the audience.

"If they do not they will be damned," the speaker replied. Irving G. Penn, of Georgia, assistant secretary of the colored Epworth league, declared it would not be safe to make such an address down South, nor would it be safe for one living in the South to make such an address if he expected to return to his home.

LAUNDRY WORKERS

Buy Plants of the Employers at Chicago.

Chicago, May 12.—Higher prices for laundry work, and one plant, with a probability of two more, managed by the Laundry Workers' union on a co-operative basis, are two results of the strike in that industry.

Not only are cut rates, which prevail generally over the city to be abolished when the strike is settled, but the regular prices probably will be advanced from 10 to 13 cents for shirts, from 2 to 3 cents for collars and from 4 to 5 cents for cuffs.

Proprietors have decided that only the Chinese laundries can do the work at prevailing prices and find a profit. Union members, however, who have purchased the New Process laundry for $6500 and secured options on two other plants, expect to prove that the business is profitable.

MURDER SUSPECTED.

Disappearance of a Charles City, Ia., Man.

Charles City, Iowa, May 12.—Sheriff Fluent and County Attorney Miles were called to a community some twelve or thirteen miles northwest of this city to investigate a rumor that a murder had been committed and the body of the murdered man concealed about the premises. The story told the officers was to the effect that one Clarence Walker, a well known farmer of Cedar township, had disappeared. He left on Jan. 10 and since then nothing has been heard of him. A young man by the name of Raymond, a near neighbor, took Walker to the town of Osage, and says he boarded the train for that city.

Since Walker's departure young Raymond has been living with Walker's wife, and goes heavily armed, and has threatened violence to any one who should attempt to molest him. When warned by a friend that should Walker return he would find himself in a predicament, he replied that Walker would never molest him any more. This gave rise to the murder theory and the officers searched the premises, pumped the cellar dry and dug around in various suspicious looking places about the farm without results.

Most of the neighbors still cling to the belief that there has been a foul crime committed, and purpose to probe the matter to the bottom. If nothing results from these investigations, it is said they intend to proceed against the young man on another criminal charge. Indignation against the couple has become so strong that Mrs. Walker left and took refuge with a sister, near Clear Lake.

TECHNICAL SUBJECTS.

Discussed By the American Therapeutic Society.

Washington, May 12.—The session of the American Therapeutic society today was devoted to the reading of papers by members, including the following:

"Cardiac Drugs in Heart Disease," by Dr. Oliver T. Osborne, of New Haven, Conn.; "Altitude Treatment," by Dr. J. N. Hall, of Denver; "The Cure of Morbid Growths by the Use of the X-ray," by Dr. Robert Reyburn, of Washington; "Gall Stones," by Dr. George Fowler, of New York, and "Control of the Purity and Standard Quality of Drugs," by Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the agricultural department. Dr. Wiley took the position that the failure of drugs to cure is often due to their lack of purity.

Dr. Reyburn in the course of his paper on the "X-ray" expressed the opinion that in the treatment of cancer it is only useful in dealing with the superficial variety and that its beneficial effects are similar to those of a caustic. Dr. Morton, of New York, took issue with this view, contending that the division between cases benefited and those not benefited is along other lines. He also maintained that the Finsen rays is by means as useful an agency in the treatment of disease as the Roentgen rays.

REMARKABLE MAN.

Eighty Years Old and as Young as Ever.

Louisville, Ky., May 12.—A telegram from Lexington, this state, to the Courier-Journal says that E. C. Cornett, a wealthy land owner of Hazard, Perry county, was at the Palace hotel in that city Monday night. He is one of the most remarkable men of the Eastern Kentucky mountains and has relatives all over that section of the state. Mr. Cornett is over 80 years old and was born in the mountain fastnesses at the same place where he now resides. He lives fifty miles from a railroad, Jackson being the nearest point to one.

Mr. Cornett says that he has frequently walked from Hazard to London, a distance of seventy-five miles, and has done it in the last three years, making the journey in two days. He owns 1800 acres of land, which is covered with fine timber. It alone is worth $50,000. Mr. Cornett said that he believes there is plenty of oil underneath. He is here to get repair material for a sawmill which he owns.

Although a wealthy man, he does not dress extravagantly, but wears the same clothes that he is seen in at his mountain home.

He said that he had eighty or ninety grand and great grandchildren. His eleven children are all living and married.

SITUATION IS COMPLICATED

New York's Highway Commissioner Is Facing Many Troubles.

New York, May 12.—With 400 miles of streets of the city calling for new asphalting and 129 new contracts let, Commissioner of Highways Livingston finds himself entirely helpless because of the great labor war now on. To complicate the situation, Mr. Livingston says a company has obtained contracts to connect every substation of the city with the general office by pneumatic tubes. This company has also obtained from the state legislature the right to run these tubes without obtaining a franchise to use the streets, and is said to be on the point of starting work, and as it will have to remove the asphalt on forty-five miles of streets in order to lay the ninety miles of tubes, this will mean more litter and obstruction until the war is over. Another serious problem confronting the administration is the disposition of $6,500,000 allotted by the board of estimate and apportionment recently for entirely new asphalting. As it stands now, Mr. Livingston says there is a strong likelihood that the repairs for the city will take all the time of the asphalt companies until next January, to say nothing of the completion of the new 129 contracts already let. This will leave the $6,500,000 to be spent by the next administration.

MESSENGER AS ESCORT.

Chaperones Girl on Visit to Her Sweetheart.

New York, May 12.—Miss Wayne, who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fee, at 253 West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, has a sweetheart who is an officer on the cruiser Olympia. She got a message from him last week saying that he would not be able to come to New York, and suggesting that if she wanted to see him she should go to Boston. She was afraid to make the trip alone and a friend suggested that she engage a messenger boy to go with her.

A messenger was called from the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street office of the Western Union and Miss Wayne was told that his time was worth 30 cents an hour, not including his expenses. The trip was made and Miss Wayne saw her sweetheart.

Best Spring Remedy Ever Formulated

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Miss E. M. Swan Completely Cured of Terrible Blood Troubles That Doctors Could Not Relieve.

In the month of May it is an absolute necessity that the body should be furnished with a richer and purer supply of blood for the establishment of a health that can successfully cope with the enervating effects of hot summer weather. Poor blood in May produces listless, ambitionless, sleepless and sallow-faced men and women, who quickly become victims of some organic disease that ends life.

Intelligent people recognize the necessity of cleansing and fortifying the system in May by using Paine's Celery Compound, which speedily removes all poisons from the system, and gives to the thin, watery blood a larger proportion of red corpuscles, and arouses all the organs of the body to healthy action. Paine's Celery Compound does a work for victims of impure blood that commands the attention of the most eminent men in the world. Miss E. M. Swan, Stamford, Conn., says:

"Before I began taking Paine's Celery Compound my blood was in a very bad state, and I had three large abscesses under my right arm, which completely disabled me from work, or even dressing myself. At last I was compelled to have the abscesses opened, when my eczema became worse than ever before. I tried everything that I could hear of, and also had several of the best doctors, but they did not cure me. I then commenced the use of Paine's Celery Compound, and before I had finished the second bottle my abscesses had all healed, and the eczema was almost gone. I am now on my fourth bottle, and am more than happy to say that I have not a pimple or any sign of eczema on my body. I am thankful for the great work that Paine's Celery Compound has done for me."

SWINDLER IS IDENTIFIED

In the Fergus Falls Jail By Girl He Duped.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 12.—Miss Emily Anderson came in from Parkers Prairie Saturday and positively identified the notorious swindler now in jail here as the man who, under the name of Harry Benrose, betrayed and robbed her a few weeks ago. This means that at least two charges can be brought against the prisoner in this county, either of which is good for a ten years' sentence, and accounts for his desire to go back to South Dakota, where he broke jail rather than to come here.

Penrose appeared in Parkers Prairie as a postoffice inspector, and on meeting Miss Anderson there he at once pretended to be greatly infatuated with her. He had apparently learned that she had considerable money and at once made himself agreeable both to the girl and her parents. He stayed several days and on leaving induced her to accompany him to Minneapolis, stating that they would be married at the home of his sister on their arrival there. The girl took Ben with her, and her parents are said to have been anxious to give her take parents as they were apparently very much pleased with the match. He had convinced them that he was a wealthy man and had a beautiful home in Spearfish, N. Y. When he deserted her at Cold Springs he took her money and induced her to give him her watch and chain, two rings and a brooch, saying that he wished to have them engraved. He also took a pair of her shoes and a bottle of perfumery, and these articles were found in his grips on his arrest here, together with a great many other little articles of ladies' wearing apparel, mute memmentoes of other victims.

When the girl entered the jail to identify him he stepped briskly into the corridor and greeted her with the familiar salutation of "Hello, Emily." There was no occasion for further identification. The county attorney received word Saturday that two other victims have just made known their troubles at Lowry, Pope county.

FATHER AND LOVER FIGHT

Over Girl and Both Are Wounded In the Duel.

Roanoke, Va., May 12.—A sensational shooting took place in a passenger train at Salt Rock, W. Va., when Henry Pinson and John Smith fought a duel at short range with pistols. Both men were shot, Pinson in the neck and left arm, and Smith in the groin and right leg. Both Smith and Pinson live in Hamlin. Both Smith and the latter has the reputation of being somewhat of a bad man to anger, but he has a pretty daughter named Rosa, who is quite a belle, and with whom Smith was in love, but the father had a great dislike for Smith and forbade his daughter seeing him.

The young people were not to be frustrated, however, and they planned an elopement to Huntington, and decided upon circus day for the accomplishment of the affair. They left Hamlin early in a buggy that belonged to Smith, and drove to Salt Rock, where they got aboard the train for Huntington. They were delayed by a freight wreck ahead, and in the meantime the father learned of the elopement and set out for Huntington to prevent the marriage. He went to West Hamlin and awaited there till the train delayed by the wreck was ready to start. On reaching Salt Rock he walked into the coach, where they were and immediately the fun began. Smith knew what was coming and pulled his revolver. The father of the girl did likewise and they began blazing away. The girl screamed and the passengers ran from the car. After the battle of bullets was over and each man had been wounded, Pinson sprang upon Smith and beat him about the head with the butt of his revolver. Both men were arraigned. Pinson waived an examination and went on to the criminal court. Smith, it was decided, fought in self-defense, and he was only fined for carrying a weapon. The girl was taken back to her home at Hamlin.

"No Sunday night suppers will be prepared.

"No work will be done in the kitchen after 2:30 p. m. until 5:30 a. m.

"No babies will be minded between acts of ordinary housework.

"No children will be allowed in the kitchen.

"No girl will work for less than $5 a week.

"Each girl shall have three nights out each week."

Another stipulation is that the servant shall be allowed the use of the front door and of the parlor or other room more suitable than the kitchen in which to entertain male "cousins."

GREAT AID TO NAVIGATION

Stetter Azimuth Machine Has Proved Very Successful.

San Francisco, May 12.—The stellar azimuth machine, invented and patented by Capt. R. T. Lawless, of the Oceanic Steamship company, has been given the test of practical use and has proved a most valuable addition to the mariners' aid in navigation. One of these machines was used on board the flagship New York during the just-ended cruise of the Pacific squadron and the trial not only proved its value but demonstrated the wonderful possibilities of Capt. Lawless' invention.

According to the navigating officer of the New York, the stellar azimuth machine is an advanced step in the direction of a mechanical navigator, which will solve the problems of position and courses with absolute accuracy, the factor of mental miscalculation being entirely eliminated.

Rear Admiral Glass speaks very highly of the machine and the one that went with the fleet will be sent to the navy department at Washington to be tested in conjunction with the navigating officer's report.

BAD BOY GOT EVEN.

Revenge on Man Who Had Him Thrashed.

Berlin, May 12.—Many a thrashing did 14-year-old Alfred Fuchs receive from his parents, as the result of complaints filed against him by his next door neighbor, one Herr Kline, and the boy yearned for revenge. He finally hit upon a plan of campaign and equipped himself with a rubber stamp having the signature, "Dr. Lang." His first attack was the sending of a large number of open post cards to Frau Kline. They contained gross insults to her husband, and that gentleman was furious, the more so because he could not find "Dr. Lang."

Not long afterward Herr Kline was summoned to court, to answer to an action filed by "Dr. Long" for the collection of a debt. Of course, the plaintiff did not appear. The next feature annoyance was the arrival of an ambulance in front of the residence of Herr Kline, with instructions from "Dr. Long" to remove him to the hospital for insane, and finally a hearse and mourners came to bury the persecuted man. Frau Kline was thrown into hysterics, and her husband was on the road to delirium tremens, when young Fuchs betrayed himself by boasting of his deeds to another boy. He has been arrested.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says, "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

TOT NEARLY KILLED

While Asleep In Same Room With Father.

West Medford, Mass., May 12.—A baby's narrow escape from death through inhaling its father's breath caused a sensation here.

Franklin S. Furr, a carpenter, living on Jerome street, visited a dentist and had fourteen teeth pulled. A large quantity of a powerful anaesthetic was used to deaden the pain of the operation.

When Mr. Furr went to bed in the evening he slept with his face toward a crib wherein lay its 3-months-old baby boy, Ernest Adolphus.

So heavy with ether particles was the father's breath that the infant, inhaling the saturated air, lapsed from natural sleep into a heavy artificial slumber.

Mrs. Furr worked over the body in the fresh night air until the benumbed senses responded, and after several minutes the infant had so far recovered consciousness as to begin to cry.

Within half an hour the child was quite well over the influence of the ether so strangely administered by its unsuspecting father.

PAINT THE CANS

Red Is Prescribed For Gasoline and Benzine Receptacles.

Law Directs That After July 1 They Must Be Painted.

After July 1 kerosene, gasoline and benzine cans must be painted a bright red and plainly labeled with with their contents, or there will be trouble for somebody.

One of the laws passed at the recent session of the legislature was designed, apparently, to lessen the liability of dangerous explosions. As soon as the people get used to the fact that bright red cans contain gasoline, there will be little likelihood of anybody throwing a lighted match down near a bright red can, always assuming that people devoid of ordinary intelligence are excepted.

At present cans containing these oils can be painted any old color, and they need not be labeled. After July 1, however, when the new law goes into effect, no dealer can fill or sell cans containing more than a pint or less than six gallons of kerosene, gasoline or benzine unless the cans are bright red and plainly labeled.

Any dealer failing to comply with this law is to be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction is to be fined not more than $100.

After the law goes into effect both dealers and patrons will be bothered to some extent, as they will either have to get new cans or have their old ones painted. It affects buyers as well as sellers, because no dealer will dare fill a can belonging to a buyers unless it complies with the provisions of the law.

MOVEMENT TO THE POINT

So Large This Year That Cottages Are Hard to Get.

The rush of campers to Minnesota Point is beginning much earlier than usual this year, and already so many people have moved down there that there is scarcely a vacant cottage left.

Minnesota Point has progressed so that it can no longer be called "camping" to spend the summer there. Some people still camp out there, but most of them build or buy or rent comfortable cottages, and many of them are quite elaborate. Some of them represent a cost of as high as $2000.

The growth of this movement to Park Point has been remarkable. Up to half a dozen years ago there were but few campers there, and they were really campers. Every year since the movement really started is has grown, and the summer population of the Point has been larger each year than it was the year previous.

The spring exodus of Park Point campers from the city always relieves the house situation a little. It is so strained, however, that the relief is not greatly marked, and when th ecampers come up town again in the fall the cause is again severe and houses are at a premium.

There will be merry times on the Point this summer. A permanent orchestra of eight pieces has been retained, and it will furnish music for the dances which are a feature of life down there. The usual Sunday band concerts will be given, of course, in addition. The formal opening of the auditorium will be on May 30.

Realty Tax Sale.

County Auditor Halden began yesterday the sale of St. Louis county real estate on the delinquent 1902 realty taxes. The sale was attended yesterday by about a dozen persons and was held in the commissioners' room off the county auditor's office. It is not expected that the sale will close before tomorrow night as there are a great many descriptions to cover in spite of the usually rapid manner in which the auditor conducts the sale.

LONG AUTO TRIP

In Great Britain Made In Quick Time.

London, May 12.—Capt. Henry H. P. Deasy, late of the Sixteenth Lancers, has accomplished an automobile journey by a run from London to Glasgow without a stop in twenty-one hours and sixteen minutes, in the face of rain and a gale of wind. The condition of the journey was that 127 miles should be covered in one day without stopping the motion of the engine or the car. The roads were greasy and the traveling difficult. Capt. Deasy also was impeded by heavy head winds, and the mud and the weather became worse as the car traveled north.

After reaching Scotland the conditions were more favorable, save for occasional patches of greasy road. Nearing Edinburgh the roads were firmer, and the automobilist had a slightly favoring breeze.

ITALIANS STRANDED.

Vessel Captain Tried to Sneak Them In.

Hatteras, N. C., May 12.—Four hundred Italian immigrants on the Italian barkentine Vera Cruz are stranded in Ocracoke inlet, near Portsmouth, N. C. The captain has abandoned the ship, crew and passengers, making his way inland. The ship is destitute of provisions.

It is reported that the captain took the vessel into the inlet for the purpose of landing the 400 immigrants, thus evading the payment of the usual fees at their port of destination, New Bedford, Mass. He ran the barkentine too close, and it went aground. The immigrants are in danger of starvation unless speedily relieved.

THE STAGE.

Is the problem play immoral? The production of the Pinero play "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" at the Lyceum last evening, has again brought up the question. It is a morbid, brutal play, dealing with degradation, dissipation and debauchery in a very frank way, and its only excuse for being must lie in its teaching of the old moral "the wages of sin is death." This particular play is one of the greatest of the problem plays. It is consistent, open, and there is none of that mawkish sentimentality which characterizes some of the plays of this class. It is of a far finer type than "Zaza," "Sapho" and others of that ilk for Paula Tanqueray is not a harlot, but a woman of intelligence and brains, who became wayward largely through force of circumstances, and in whose soul there lives a desire to pass into a better life and bury the past. When that opportunity comes through the desire of a man whom she truly loves to marry her, she deals fairly with him for she goes to him before the marriage with a full history of her wicked career that he may know it in full. He tells her he knows all and tears up the letter without reading it. It is this point which is one of the greatest elements of strength in the Pinero play. There is no concealment of past misdoings, no sin hidden in the breast of the woman to torture her conscience and keep her in never ending dread of discovery. There is absolute frankness, the husband knows fully the step he is taking and for the trials come to him afterward he can bring no accusation against anyone but himself. Then begins the struggle of the woman to obtain that place which she covets, the recognition which the world and society gives to a woman it respects. But it does not come to Paula as she expects and she grows irritable and desperate with the loneliness of her life. The daughter of her first husband's first wife Ellean, lives with them, but she is a constant reproach to Paula, who strives as she may cannot break into the girl's affections. Finally Ellean becomes engaged and as Paula meets the man she discovers in him a young man with whom she once had a liason.

Te young man pleads with her to maintain secrecy and finally dares her to tell it, but she never swerves from what she believes to be her duty and tells her husband that this young man's name was in the letter which he destroyed with reading the night before they were married. When the father seeks to force the girl to give him up and she learns that it is because of his indiscretions, the knowledge comes to her that Paula alone can have given him the truth. Ellean tells Paula to her face that she has always known within her just what her stepmother knew. It is the final blow and the woman despairing of living down the past ends her life. The broad mantle of charity never once falls over the woman's life until the end when Ellean reproaches herself for what she might have done and did not.

The play unquestionably has a moral and teaches mercilessly the consequences of sin, but on the other hand what can it offer to the sinful but despair?

Miss Rose Coghlan plays the everchanging character of Paula with a fine appreciation of its requirements and with that excellent ability which has always marked her career. Throughout the many places of character and emotion which she is called upon to portray, there is artistic finish and intelligence.

The support is excellent.

A good sized audience witnessed the Ferris Comedians' production of Jules Verne's great Russian play, "Michael Strogoff," despite the continued rain and storm. It is a play which is bound to appeal to the interest of all—full of strong climaxes, intense feeling and heart interest, deep pathos, and extremely laughable comedy. "Michael Strogoff" was truly a brave and noble character in the hands of Gus Forbes; William Land as the English correspondent was good; Albert Dorris was a typical American correspondent; J. J. MacDonald, a new member of the Ferris company, proved himself a valuable addition in the heavy role of Ogariff; Harry Langdon was impressive as the czar of Russia, and Fred Clarke, a dignified Emir and grand duke. Miss Carrington as Nadia; Miss O'Neil as Zangar and Miss Ralto as Madam Cogal did good work in their rather short parts, and Miss Haines as Marfa Strogoff was at her best.

The act of Bandy & Wilson is the best of their successful engagement and proves popular. The Travers sisters appeared for the first time last evening in a novel and entertaining act, which at once caught on with the audience, necessitating repeated encores.

A performance tonight and matinee and night tomorrow will conclude "Michael Strogoff;" when the Ferris company will offer "His Society Wife," a society comedy drama, beginning Thursday evening.

Miss Grace Hayward, the leading lady of the Ferris company at Minneapolis, who made such a hit in this city as "Sapho," will play a special engagement with the Ferris comedians the first half of next week in the romantic comedy drama "Graustark." The latter half of that week Dick Ferris will appear in Willie Collier's greatest success, "The Man From Mexico," in which piece Mr. Ferris made his greatest success of his Minneapolis appearances.

Hints To Advertisers

Little money getters—Herald want ads.

The reason given by leading advertisers in the larger cities, who confine their advertising almost exclusively to the evening paper, is that it reaches all classes at the only time when there is leisure to digest properly the different announcements.

"Saw your ad in the Herald" is the way a recently received order to a Duluth grocer from a town in Northern Michigan, read.

"The way to wealth is as plain as the way to market. It depends chiefly on two words—industry and frugality." Franklin.

Little "want ads" show you the way.

Our Dumb Animals: We have before us this morning this: "Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. Three weeks ago I could not spank the baby, and now I am able to thrash my husband.—God bless you!"

Printers' Ink: Every notable business success of record is a sledge hammer argument in favor of good advertising.

Why wait when Herald "want ads" are ready?

If you find a pocket-book look for reward in The Evening Herald.

The Outlook: A friend of mine will never buy anything at a store which does not advertise freely. That merchant who does not know the value of advertising is behind the age in one important particular. He is therefore probably behind it in others.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Menominee Man Has the Horse That Gen. Toral Rode.

Menominee—W. G. Curtis has for several months been the possessor of a horse with a history. It is the mount on which Gen. Jose Toral, the Spanish commander at Santiago, rode out from the city on July 15, 1898, to confer with Gens. Lawton and Wheeler relative to surrender. After the fall of the city the horse became the property of Gen. Leonard Wood, who brought it back to this country with him, and about two years ago presented it to his friend, Maj. George Barbour of Chicago. Not long after this Maj. Barbour's regiment was ordered to the Philippines, and finding it inconvenient to take the animal with him he gave it to his son-in-law, Frank Forrest, of Chicago. Mr. Forrest, in turn, presented the horse to Mr. Curtis. The animal is a beautiful one, and horsemen declare it one of the best mounts in Northern Michigan.

Iron Mountain—The German citizens of Iron Mountain have no reason to complain that they have not their share of the municipal plums as far as Iron Mountain is concerned. The Germans have the mayor, one justice, a member of the Board of public works, two aldermen and one supervisor. No other nationality has so many officeholders. The total German vote in the city is about 125.

Escanaba—During a storm last week in Escanabz township, Delta county, lightning struck the house of Owen Jones. Entering the chimney, the bolt followed down to the stove on the second floor, scattered the stove pipe around the floor, burned a strip of carpet and continued down stairs to the kitchen. Lizzie Jones was just taking an iron off the stove when the bolt left it, cutting a hole through her shoe, quite severely injuring her foot.

Menominee—A rainbow trout weighing four and one-half pounds and measuring twenty-two inches in length, was caught in the Menominee river, near the paper mill last week by a boy who was fishing at that place. It was the first trout, so far as known, that has been caught in the river this year, and it is very seldom that a fish of this species is ever caught in water so muggy. It is claimed that last year two trout were caught in the river, but neither of them was as large as this one. The only manner in which fishermen account for the fish being in the river is that it came down from one of the small tributary streams from the north, many of which abound in trout.

Oconto—John Nelligan, of Oconta, has completed a deal for the purchase of the seven-mile farm of the Fence River Logging company, on the state road in Menominee county. He expects to make his home on the farm, which is one of the largest and best in Menominee county. It consists of 525 acres.

TO SEARCH FOR EGAN'S BODY.

Kalispell, Mont., May 12.—The Great Northern railroad has made preparations to renew the search for Superintendent Egan, who was lost while hunting in the forests last fall. Experienced woodsmen have been engaged and a camp made near the spot where he was last seen and the search for Egan's body will be prosecuted systematically as soon as the snow has gone a little more.

EVADES HIS DEBTS.

Chicago, May 12.—George V. Hawkins, one known as the "prince of the sporting fraternity," of Chicago, and whose fortune was accounted at more than $2,000,000, has been relieved of debts amounting to $814,68 by bankruptcy proceedings, before Judge Kohlsaat of the United States district court. He told the court he had no available assets. The petition in bankruptcy was filed several months ago.

EXTENSIVE QUARANTINE

Against Cattle Will Be Adopted By Colorado.

Denver, May 12.—What will be the most extensive quarantine of cattle in the West for many years will be in effect within a few days, as the result of the general prevalence of the mange. Governor Peabody will today issue his proclamation. Other states and territories to the number of six or eight will come under the same rule before the end of the week.

Cattle from the Mexican border to Canada will come under these regulations, especially all of the territory from the Rockies to the Missouri river will be affected.

What this Resident says is of Infinite Value:

When old-time residents and highly respected people of Duluth make statements like the following, they must carry conviction to every reader:

Mr. Henry G. Hibke, of 508 Third street west, employed by the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, says: "I had aching pains in the small of my back making it difficult for me to stoop or lift anything. I could not rest comfortably at night and in the morning rose tired and unrested. The kidney secretions were highly colored, distressing and irregular, depositing a dark sediment. I was also troubled with attacks of headache I attributed to the jarring of the wagon and to exposure. I was feeling very bad when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and when I procured them at W. A. Abbett's drug store and commenced using them. They helped me from the start and since finishing the treatment I have not had the slightest trace of my old trouble."

THE STORY OF PROSPERITY.

When congress abolished all the war taxes in the belief that by so doing the receipts of the government would be so greatly lessened that the surplus for the year would be materially decreased, many people feared that its action would result in a deficit. How far astray were these fears is shown by the indications that the surplus at the close of the present fiscal year will reach the sum of $15,000,000. At the present time the receipts and expenditures of the government are nearly balancing. During the month of April the receipts were $43,326,109 and the expenditures $41,703,814, leaving a surplus of $1,502,286. During the ten months of the present fiscal year the total receipts have been $466,219,501, and the expenditures $430,009,855, leaving a surplus of $35,419,046. During the remainder of the year it is thought that the receipts will largely exceed the expenditures, inasmuch as disbursing officers have been drawing for large sums of money, which will in many instances close up the appropriations for the year. Last year for the first ten months the surplus was about $60,000,000.

These figures tell the story of the country's unusual prosperity. When the taxes were reduced, the continuance of normal conditions was figured, but the widespread prosperity has upset all calculations and piled up a large surplus. A further reduction of taxes can be safely made by the next congress.

UNDESIRABLE IMMIGRATION.

Italians are coming into the United States at the rate of 1000 a day and the abnormal immigration of this class of people is giving the officials considerable worry. They are of the opinion that some radical restriction will soon be necessary to check the undesirable entries. Most of the Italians are free from disease and have the necessary money to meet the requirements of the law, but preliminary investigation shows that they are not starting in their life in this country in the manner expected. When the immigration bill was being considered in the last congress an effort was made to incorporate features in it which would check the influx of this undesirable class. The effort met with the determined opposition of the railway and mining interests of the country. These interests represented that the Italians were needed on the railways and in the mines, and that they were anxious and willing to perform a class of labor for which it was practically impossible to secure American workmen. The investigations by the immigration officials show that this is not the case, but that fully 90 per cent of the Italians who have arrived in the last three months are planning to remain in New York and other large cities. They simply refuse to entertain offers of employment on the farms, railroads or in the mines of the country. Most of them enter into cheap industries, such as banana peddling, and take up their homes in the low quarters in the tenement districts of the large cities. Officials of the treasury department believe that most of these Italians are brought to this country under a padrone system, and an inquiry will be conducted to ascertain the facts. If it is established that they are brought here under contract, they will be deported and plans adopted for breaking up the system. The Germans, Bohemians and Scandinavians who had arrived in the country in the last three months have nearly all gone direct to the West to find places on the farms. The immigration question is fast becoming a serious one and the longer congress neglects to act in the matter the worse it will be.

THE ALASKAN SEAL FISHERIES.

The act passed some years ago relative to the killing of seals in Alaskan waters has served largely to protect the animals from Americans and allow the subjects of Great Britain and Japan to kill them. This is due to the act passed in 1897, which prohibited American citizens from taking seals at sea anywhere north of the 35th parallel of latitude in the Pacific ocean. This act was adopted on the understanding that England would pass a similar law, but she has so far failed to do so, and shows no disposition to follow the lead of the United States.

Our government was induced to pass this law, it is said, on the advice of John W. Foster. Consequently the only regulations now governing British subjects in the catching of seals in Bering sea are those incorporated in the Paris award bearing on the seal fisheries. The Paris award provides that no citizen of the United States shall kill, capture or pursue at any time outside of territorial waters any fur seal in the waters surrounding the Pribilow islands, within a zone of sixty miles around said islands. No citizens of the United States shall kill, capture or pursue during the season extending from May 1 to July 31 any fur seal on the high seas outside of the zone mentioned above. No person shall use or employ any vessel in carrying on or taking part in fur seal operations other than a sailing vessel, canoes or undecked boats propelled by paddles, and such vesels shall have a distinctive flag to indicate their business. Every master of a vessel licensed under the terms of the Paris award shall enter in the log the date and place of every such operation, as well as the number of seals taken. The use of nets, fire arms, air guns or explosives is prohibited. These prohibitions do not apply to Indians living on the coast and taking fur seals in canoes or undecked boats, except where they are in the employ of other persons engaged in the same business.

There is a growing demand that all restrictions on the killing of seals should be removed, and as the fur seal question will soon be reopened, strong efforts will be made along this line. While it is not true, according to official reports, that the seal herd is steadily decreasing, it would not be expedient to remove all restrictions on the killing of the seals. However,, as long as the question is to be reopened it behooves the Americans on the commission to see that equal rights are accorded all nationalities, that all may fare equally.

THE RISE IN WAGES.

Amicable settlement of wage controversies in various trades has been a conspicuous feature of the past few months, during which there has been a general rise in wages. There were many demands made by labor at the beginning of the present month for higher wages and shorter hours, and it is pleasing to note that in the majority of cases the disputes have been settled amicably. This is different from past years, when similar concessions to labor were made by employers only after bitter struggles, which seriously affected the general public as well as those directly interested. In this connection it is noticeable that the trainmen and management of the Great Northern road have shown a disposition, in the dispute over "double-headers" on the mountain division of that road, to reach some amicable agreement that will avert a strike. At this writing the outcome is doubtful, but there is a possibility that a compromise will be reached and serious trouble be avoided. There is no question of wages in general involved. The company has assented to an increase of 12 to 15 per cent. It agreed to this last March, but the trainmen's organizations would not accept without the abolition of "double headers" or double pay for the conductors and brakemen employed on such trains. Naturally the company would not abolish these trains or grant double pay for those engaged on them, justly contending that it could not permit its employes to dictate how its trains should be run. It offered, however, as a concession to agree that not more than 3 per cent of its trains should be "double-headers." This compromise was rejected by the men, and there the dispute rests at this time. It is hoped that the conferences will result in an early agreement. With this matter settled, there will be no serious labor dispute left in the Northwest, and the men will enjoy the benefit of a 12 to 15 per cent increase in wages. The Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern roads voluntarily increased the wages of their employes recently, and the relations of these roads and their employes continue most amicable.

The chief fields in which an advance in wages has been made are transportation, coal and building. The advance in wages began last summer and autumn with a 10 per cent increase in the wages of railroad men. The Pennsylvania railroad opened this movement. It was followed by the other trunk lines. The coalers conceded. The Western lines were slower in making the advance and some Southern lines have never made it. In the case of the Wabash and New York, New Haven & Hartford strikes were narrowly averted. Strikes took place among railroad machinists in the transcontinental lines, but in general the advance was made. In all, a round 1,000,000 of railroad men received this increase, averaging 10 per cent. Both anthracite and bituminous miners have received a 10 per cent advance in the past winter, affecting about 500,000 men, for while only a part of this number is organized the rise was general in mines working without an agreement. In the building trades about 50,000 men went on strike about a month ago. A large share of these have gone back on a 10 per cent increase, 14,000 in New York alone, and the advance in wages has been general. There have been many other small trades in which a rise in pay has occurred, but the great manufacturing industries have had no general advance. But there have been a large number of advances in smaller manufactures, and the greater industries must soon follow suit. It is right that their employes should share in the general prosperity that prevails in the industrial world.

THE LABOR QUESTION.

The relations between labor and capital present the greatest problem in years to the people of the United States. It overshadows all other questions and its ultimate solution is yet shrouded in mystery. It is of vital importance and the future welfare of the country depends largely on the adjustment of the controversy. Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin believes that the proper place for the regulation of such matters is in the hands of the government and to that end he advocates the adoption of a constitutional amendment which will give the government authority to regulate to a certain degree the affairs of both organized labor and capital. He believes, however, that if such an amendment were adopted it would have such a powerful influence on the warring elements of capital and labor that it would not be necessary for the government to exercise its right to interfere.

According to the views of Mr. Jenkins the labor question greatly overshadows that of trusts. Referring to the fight between labor and capital in Omaha, Representative Jenkins said: "They are having labor troubles out in Omaha and some people wanted troops sent there to preserve order. The governor refused to appeal for United States troops, saying that he had not been requested by the local sheriff to send aid. The sheriff also refused to take steps to procure outside aid. In the meantime, however, the fight between capital and labor is going on, inconveniencing not only the people of Omaha, but a great many others outside of that city and even outside of the state. I believe that if the constitution were to be amended so as to give congress the power to intervene in matters of this sort it would not be necessary to take advantage of the authority thus given and enact laws for carrying it into effect. The bare fact that congress could adopt laws of this character would have such an influence for good on all concerned that there would be no occasion for legislation."

Mr. Jenkins' ideas on the subject are not at all new, and he will find it hard to bring the matter before the people. If he can devise a measure that will prove satisfactory he will be doing a great thing for the country.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Well, not that anyone knows about," said breezy, brisk "Dick" Ferris, of Minneapolis, who took quarters at the Spalding hotel this morning while on a visit to the Ferris company, which is playing at the Metropolitan theater.

The ejaculation was a response to the inquiry regarding the rumor that the Ferris Comedians will close at the house June 1, to make room for the Wilbur Opera company, which, it has been said, will open a summer season of opera at that house.

"If anybody cross-examines you tell them the Ferris company has a contract which reaches to Sept. 1, and the company will stay there. The only way they can get me out is to throw me out, and if they do that I'll show them where they'll get off at.

"That is what I came up here for, to tell the public and others more or less interested, the position taken by the Ferris Comedians and their timid management, yours truly.

"I have heard the rumors that there was to be a change in the character of the performances at the Metropolitan Opera house June 1, away down in Minneapolis, and while at first it fell idly upon my ears, it soon reached a stage where the persistency caused some speculation, and I came up.

"The Ferris company has been successful at the Metropolitan Opera house, more successful than was imagined at the start, by a great deal. The company has been under a heavy expense, as the work in putting on two performances a week is arduous and expensive, and then actors who will do two characters a week and keep it up, are hard to get.

"Under all these difficulties the company has made a passing success, at any rate, and our contract runs through the summer months. After the investment that has been made in the organization and after the expenses incurred in bringing the company up to the standard now existing, it would be the height of folly to think of closing now. There are many improvements contemplated which have been shut off on account of the rumors that there would be an effort to make the change, but I will explain at large the situation during my visit here."

No official announcement has been made of the coming of the Wilbur Opera company, though there was a good deal of talk about it among the members of the Ferris company, and those immediately connected with the house, on the outside.

George H. Walsh, of Koochiching, is in the city to attend the session of the federal court, and registered this morning at the St. Louis hotel.

Mr. Walsh is attending to some of the business in the federal court which he was in charge of when he resided at Cass Lake.

Speaking of Koochiching, Mr. Walsh, who maintains that the name of the town is still Koochiching, though the name of the postoffice is International Falls, says that things are almost at a standstill just now.

"The townsite company is not putting any lots on the market in fact, all have been taken off, pending the settlement of the water rights question with the Canadian government. The bridge, which is to be built, has not been started, and will not until the settlement is made, and it is not possible to tell when that will be made, because the matter will have to go before parliament.

"The Rainy Lake railroad will be completed to Pelican Falls, I understand, some time in June, and will probably not be carried on any further for the present, but its terminal will be within easy distance of Koochiching.

"The town is standing still now, but as soon as the situation is cleared up we look for a big boom for the city, as the water power will make it a valuable commercial and manufacturing center, in that part of the state."

Dr. and Mrs. Nelson P. Hulst, of Milwaukee, came to the city last evening and are stopping at the Spalding hotel. Dr. Hulst, who is vice president of the Oliver Iron Mining company, has rented the Bishop Morrison residence, 2121 East Superior street, and will spend the summer here.

For the first time in years, Ed Conroy, the hatrack man at the Spalding dining room entrance, has missed a meal. He is excused, however, because the event which kept him away from the station yesterday may result in the appearance some day of another rack man, a junior.

Of course the embryo rack man doesn't lay much claim to weight at present, but boasts of twelve pounds for a starter. Someone congratulated Mr. Conroy this morning, while the latter feigned ignorance of a cause for congratulation. This is kind of mean to tell, but when the smiling rackman asked what congratulations were offered for, and stood with beaming countenance to receive the expected happy words, the cruel visitor said:

"I want to congratulate you because it wasn't twins."

After that all congratulations were acknowledged without conversation.

Mr. Conroy is a sort of wizard in the eyes of many who see him at work, for his position calls for the faculty of memory to such an extent that he can take from each diner his hat as he enters the room, and when he reappears, well fed and happy, return the proper hat to the owner, no matter what changes the festivities have wrought on his countenance.

It is seldom that there is a mix-up, and the faculty of observation, almost instantaneous, which gives a man points enough of a stranger to tuck away in his memory two or three characteristics, and remember him and his hat, too, when he returns a half hour later, is remarkable, especially when a half hundred or more rush for the dining room at once.

Mr. Conroy will start training the junior in this line of business as soon as he is old enough to tell a hat from a rattle box.

SMILING LINES.

Detroit Free Press: Clarice—Clarence, we must compel those lawyers to settle father's estate.

Clarence—Oh, no; as long as they don't settle it we can imagine there's something left of it.

Philadelphia Press: Kwater—There's a good deal of common sense in that old saying about "giving the devil his due."

Ascum—How does he get his due? Do you think there's really any humidity there?

Yonkers Statesman. She—You say your automobile has been acting strangely all day?

He—Yes; it has stopped I don't know how many times.

She—And what are you putting the oil on it for?

He to stop it stopping.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "George is the greatest one you ever saw for gathering mushrooms. Why, he knows more than twenty different kinds."

"I didn't know he was a mycologist."

"He isn't. He's a Presbyterian."

Chicago Tribune: "Say," exclaimed the indignant Missourian, "it's time we was putth' a stop to this graftin' business!"

"What's up now?" asked the other Missourian.

"Some of the Republicans, b'gosh, is gittin' a share of the boodle!"

Washington Star: "So you belong to the Don't Worry club?"

"I do, and I'm glad of it, although my membership compels me to take a few chances."

"In what way?"

"I had to quit looking at the gas meter and weighing my ice."

Hopeless Schemes.

New York Tribune: At every fresh effort on the continent or Europe to arrange a new combination against the products of American agriculture the Yankee farmer smiles more widely. He knows how hopeless these projects are and how certain their failures will be for generations.

Patriot Well Cared For.

Springfield Republican: The appearance of Gen. Gomez at the St. Louis dedication exercises as the representative of Cuba shows us what an easy, comfortable and ornamental existence the old bush fighter is now leading. President Palma shows much tact in keeping Gomez in such an amiable frame of mind. The general tells the American people that the new Cuban government is "getting along well." He might even have said "very well."

Forgotten Fact of History.

Philadelphia Ledger: Mr. Cleveland in his speech at St. Louis touched upon a curious but almost forgotten fact of history; we owe the possession of the vast tract acquired as the Louisiana Purchase to the circumstance that France was at war with Santo Domingo, which it was finding it difficult, and eventually found it impossible to conquer. It is an amazing reflection that 100 years ago Napoleon deemed what is now the despised island of Hayti of more value than the territory of fifteen of our commonwealths.

Edit a Breezy Paper.

Cincinnati Enquirer: If Roosevelt should be nominated for president by the Republicans and Grover Cleveland or Col. Bryan for the same office by the Democrats, what in the world would Col. Watterson do? It would be a startling spectacle to see him supporting the Prohibition ticket.

Talking Through His Hat.

Baltimore American: Baden-Powell says the British cavalry is superior to that of America, which is not a surprising statement, as a similar post-bellum verdict has always been given by the English when comparing the armies of the two countries. Certain little tests to which they have been submitted at various times, however, have brought about astonishing results.

Expanding American Influence.

Brooklyn Eagle: The law students in Havana destroyed several valuable old paintings, smashed the windows of their university, knocked down the dean with a stone and raised hob generally because the date for the examination had been changed. Havana is becoming Americanized.

A Woman's Choice

By Jennie Eddy.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Mrs. Farrand entered her son's room noiselessly. He was writing and did not notice her approach until she playfully put her hands over his eyes and made him guess who it was. They were great chums, this sweet little woman and her eldest son, and now that he was home for a week, it was a romp and frolic with them all day long. As Neil teasingly guessed each member of the family except the one he knew it was, his mother's eyes strayed to the open letter before him.

"If you cannot make me happy by loving me as I love you, Jeanne, I beg of you do not write me that you will be my wife. I shall be able to endure silence better than a refusal."

Mrs. Farrand's heart stood still. It had come at last, this marriage that was so hateful. All her life she had been bent on effecting a match between Neil and Margaret Fuller, the daughter of her dearest friend. Margaret, she knew, would have been willing. But try as she would, neither diplomacy, nor argument, nor open persuasion had any effect on her son.

"Mother," he would say, "there is a little girl down south whom I love as a man should love the woman he marries. When she is old enough, I mean to try to win her. There will never be any other woman in the world for me."

Mrs. Farrand had counted much on Neil's home-coming this Easter time. Margaret had improved so much in every way. Her year abroad had added an indefinable charm that must captivate any man's heart. And Margaret had plenty of attention.

Neil suddenly sprang up, clasped his mother in his arms, and landed a hearty kiss on her cheek. "Mother, dear, wish me joy and good luck. I've just written to Jeanne, asking her to be my wife, and I'm sure she won't say no."

"Don't you think she would be happy with a younger man?" Mrs. Farrand faintly protested.

"Twelve years isn't so bad, and, oh, mother, you will love her so dearly when once you know her. She is just finishing school, and perhaps—I hope I can persuade her to let me come to her this summer."

"You speak very confidently, Neil. Are you so sure of her?"

"I think she loves me, and I know there is no one else."

Mrs. Farrand raised her lips for a kiss. "I hope you may be very happy, dear. Now I want you to do me a favor."

"Granted of course. What is it?"

"I promised to take Margaret Fuller out to Fernwood road this afternoon, and I find it very inconvenient to go. It is late now, so please hurry, Neil."

He did not look especially pleased with the commission, but was too well-bred to hesitate.

"Just wait till I mail my letter," he said, rapidly folding and addressing it.

"Let me take care of it," suggested his mother. "The postman will be here soon, and it's too bad to keep Margaret waiting."

As he drove by with Margaret a few minutes later, Neil saw his mother talking with the postman. His companion noticed the sudden light in his eyes, and was happy as she had never been before.

Three years had passed away in—three years of silence, of suspense, of unhappiness for Neil Farrand. Then he yielded to his mother's wishes and asked Margaret Fuller to be his wife. If she noticed the absence of passionate ardor in her lance, she made no sign. They were pleasing their families, and she loved Neil, her life-long hero, too devotedly to be critical.

It was dusk of a spring evening, just four weeks before their wedding day. When Margaret came down in a trailing black gown, with the gleam of her firm round arms and shoulders showing through its transparent substance, Neil felt a thrill of joy at the thought of possessing this beautiful woman. He drew her down beside him on the couch.

"Do you know you are very lovely tonight, Margaret?"

She laughed happily.

"I have brought you the family diamonds, dear. Mother has been saving them for you ever since we were children. It would please her if you wear them on our wedding day."

He handed her the small square box. As she touched it, she shivered and let it fall.

"What is it, Margaret?" asked Neil, anxiously.

"I—don't—know," she answered, slowly. It seemed to her that a great black veil had suddenly come between them. A sense of impending evil oppressed her, and she shivered again.

"You are not well, dear. Don't let me keep you."

"I am not well," she repeated. "I will go to my room. Goodnight."

Neil left her at the stairway.

"Shall I open the box for you, dear? Mother says it is yours since she has looked into it. He fitted the key in the lock and turned it for her, but the lid did not open, and she carried it that way to her room.

It was unlike the calm, stately Margaret to give way to a passion of tears, and the violent weeping seemed to increase the strange weight on her heart. At last she controlled herself with a great effort.

"This will never do. I must stop it, and look at my jewels," she murmured.

She sat down before her mirror, opened the box and took out the beautiful gems, one by one. The rings she slipped on her white fingers, clasped the exquisite bracelet about her wrist, fastened the glittering tiarra in her hair, and with a half wondering, half admiring glance at her reflection, removed the upper tray, which hid the dazzling necklace below. There was something lying upon it—a square of paper. She glanced at it carelessly, then her eyes became riveted upon it. Before her lay a letter, addressed in Neil's own dear handwriting, the stamp uncanceled. The words stood out from the page and burned themselves into her brain.

"MISS JEANNE THORNTON,
"Beresford, Virginia."

Scarce knowing what she did, she took it up. The seal was broken—or no, it looked as if it had never been sealed. Impelled by an irresistible force, she pulled out the letter and read it through to the end. Here was the heart-satisfying devotion that Neil had never given her—the passion that a man feels but once. She pondered over the date. "More than three years ago, and the silence has been unbroken, for the letter was never sent." She understood intuitively how it had happened.

"His mother loved him well enough to stoop to such an act! Oh, God! Make me strong enough to put his happiness before my own!" she prayed.

The struggle ended. She wrote him a little note.

"My Dear Friend:

"The truth has come to me that we do not love each other as two people should who are about to unite their lives. Believe me, we shall be better friends to go on as we have been, and I beg of you to release me from my promise, as I now release you. Sincerely yours,

"MARGARET FULLER."

She threw a light shawl over her shoulders and walked swiftly to the nearest mail box, paused a moment to breathe a prayer for the happiness of the man she loved, and sent the two letters on their journey into the night.

WAKENING OF THE FLOWERS

Down beneath the ground the flowers all are whispering
Where in cozy trundle beds they've slumbered warm and still;
Crocus blithely called, "Wake up! I feel the thrill of spring,
Violet and hyacinth and lithesome daffodil.

Gardeners are busy. I can hear their welcome din.
Don't you hear the trowels ring above your drowsy heads?
They are making pleasant homes for us to blossom in;
Up, get up and nod to them across the garden beds.

"Trillium and dandelion, come and take a peep,
Eager children watch for, so now it's time to go;
And the sweetest baby came, while we were sound asleep,
She's the Lady Isabel, the fairies told me so."

Then in every trundle bed the sleepers all awoke,
Just to hear of Isabel and give her welcoming;
Such a rustling did they make, the gardener's wife upspoke;
"That's the sound of growing things;
we'll have an early spring."

One was sure her eyes of pansy's darkest blooms were made,
One helped her cheeks were petals off
a jacqueminot;
Cheerful little daisy said: "We'll have a dress parade.
All for Lady Isabel; oh, let's begin to grow.

"She will reach her dainty hands to see us up and dressed,
Clad in yellow, pink and white and blue
as blue can be,
And the one she smiles upon, oh, she will love the best."
So they all are whispering, "I hope she'll smile on me."

Fact Outruns Nimble Fancy.

Philadelphia Record: The Postal Telegraph company, when its cable shall have been laid across the Pacific to Manilla, proposes to send a message on connected wires around the earth in forty seconds. This feat will outdo imagination. The boastful Puck when sent on a quick hest by the king of fairies in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," declared:

I'll put a girdle round about the earth
In forty minutes.

But the Postal proposes to do the job in two-thirds of a minute. So far does fact outrun the nimblest fancy in these marvelous latter days!

Any Old Thing to Win.

Cincinnati Enquirer (Dem.): Cleveland evidently has the confidence of the country beyond any one now in sight. We have earnestly opposed him in the past, but in politics it is the present and the future that count. If the Democratic party is to survive it must begin to win presidential elections. Would it be better to win with Cleveland or to lose with some figurehead whom Col. Bryan may set up? What say the rock-ribbed Democracy of the Middle West? If the East, where the real battle ground will be, demand him for the leader, shall we fall in line?

BUILD NEW CHURCH

St. Jean Baptiste Congregation to Erect a Handsome One.

New Location Opposite Lincoln Park Has Been Obtained.

Within a few weeks work will commence on a new Catholic church building in Duluth.

The St. Jean Baptiste church at Eleventh avenue west and Superior street has been sold and a new and much larger building will be erected on Third street.

The entire block between Second and Third street and Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west has been purchased by the congregation, and extensive improvements are being planned. The land is immediately opposite Lincoln park and is in a very desirable location.

The new church building will be of brick and will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. Plans are also making for a new parochial residence and a parish school. The total cost of the new buildings will be in excess of $40,000.

It was formerly the intention of the congregation to build on the corner of Twenty-third avenue west and First street, and a lot was purchased for the purpose. This was sold and it was decided to build opposite Lincoln park.

The church has a total membership of about 1500. It has made such rapid progress during the past two or three years under the direction of Father Guillot and Father La Casse that the new church has been found to be necessary in order to meet the growing needs of the congregation.

Detailed plans of the new building have not yet been made. The work is being pushed, however, and it is the intention of those in charge of the work to commence building as soon as possible.

The St. Jean Baptiste church was organized April 24, 1885.

MILL TO START NEXT MONDAY

Peyton, Kimball & Barber Plant Will Begin Sawing Then.

Another of the head of the lakes sawmill plants is expected to be in operation by Monday of next week. Repairs are now being made at the mill of the Peyton, Kimball & Barber company, at the Superior end of the interstate bridge, with a view of starting it next week on the contract for sawing 12,00,000 feet of logs for Bolin & Wood, the Brainerd loggers. This contract will not keep the mill running all the season, but it is expected that by the time the Bolin & Wood log cut is out of the way there will be other contracts to care for. It is possible that the cut of the Duluth Log Salvage company will be contracted for at the Peyton, Kimball & Barber mill, as the mill has cut a great many of the salvage logs in the past. The mill has an annual capacity of about 35,000,000 feet.

A belief is prevalent in West Superior that the Scofield mill will be rebuilt. Ex-Governor Scofield did not arrive from Madison yesterday so nothing definite is known as to his plans, but in view of the fact that he has already contracted for an immense cut of lumber for the Hines Lumber company, contracts that will cover the next two years at least, it is thought that no time will be lost in rebuilding the mill. Insurance men were busy all day yesterday adjusting the loss on the mill. Policies were carried with a large number of companies. The burning of the mill does not interfere with the lumber shipments as two boats were being loaded at the Scofield docks yesterday afternoon.

DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

That Verdict Rendered on Superior Boy's Death.

The coroner's jury in West Superior, appointed to investigate the death of Dewey Hanson, the 5-year-old boy that was killed by a street car on Connor's Point Sunday morning, has rendered a verdict that in its opinion the street railway company was negligent, or careless, from the fact that the fender was not lowered and the car was running at a high rate of speed. C. Burg, the motorman, testified that when he saw the boy the car was within forty feet of him. He stated that he was unable to stop the car or lower the fender. The finding is expected to be the basis of an action for damages that will be brought by the parents of the boy against the street railway company.

GIRLS CAUSE PRETTY MIX-UP

Disappearance of Spanish Maiden Results In Complications.

Madrid, May 12.—There is a hard day's work for a Philadelphia lawyer in the little town of Plasencia. Its inhabitants at least have given up the puzzle that has been perplexing them.

Nine years ago, Maria Guadalupe mysteriously disappeared from her home. She was the daughter of a well-to-do farmer, and neither money nor effort was spared to find her. At last the girl was given up for dead.

Two years ago, a girl appeared in the village streets hawking ribbons, and passersby noted a striking resemblance to the missing Maria, but the girl insisted that they were mistaken, that she was Felipa Ruiz and that she never had heard of the missing Maria. But he was finally persuaded to lay claim to the heritage left by Maria's father.

Later she married a prosperous young tradesman, and nothing more was thought of the affair, until a few days ago, when a woman made her appearance and claimed she was the real Maria Guadalupe.

The citizens took sides. Some said she was an imposter and others claimed Felipa was a fraud. Finally Felipa, who had been enjoying the other's wealth, came out with a straightforward statement and insisted that she was not the heiress.

She has been arrested and her marriage has been annulled by the courts. Yet the people believe the mystery is not yet settled. And the amusing part of it all is that Felipa's husband, according to the laws of Spain, finds that he is married to the real Maria, whom he never saw before.

DEDICATED TREE

One of California's Big Ones Named In President's Honor.

A Woman With Thirty-Four Children Sends Baked Beans.

Santa Cruz, Cal., May 12.—President Roosevelt, at luncheon here yesterday, partook of a dish of beans baked by a woman after his own heart. She is Mrs. J. M. Gesetterest, of Watsonville, mother of thirty-four children.

President Roosevelt was given an ovation. The train arrived at 9:55. He was received at the station by the reception committee and escorted to a carriage drawn by two black horses. The other members of the party were also assigned to carriages.

After a drive on Beach Hill, where he had a good view of the bay and city, the president was driven along Pacific avenue, which was crowded with an immense throng, hundreds having come from miles around. His carriage was driven through an avenue of thousands of school children with waving flags, who for a mile scattered flowers along his pathway. The cheers of the children were taken up by the pioneers, the Grand Army, Knights of Pythias and citizens. In carriages following that of President Roosevelt were Congressman Nedham, Benjamin Wheeler and President Butler of Columbia university.

Flags were lavishly displayed. The court house was a mass of national colors. The president's carriage was preceded by the naval reserve and a band. When the carriage stopped in front of the court house the cheering was vigorous. On being introduced by Mayor Clark the president, whose smiles testified to his appreciation of the reception, made a few remarks.

Preceded by the naval reserves and band, the procession moved slowly up the street to a special train. The big trees were reached in fifteen minutes and the party sat down to alfresco luncheon. Twenty of Santa Cruz's prettiest young ladies waited on the tables. The naval reserves and officers acted as a guard.

The president requested that he be unaccompanied in his walk among the trees, and President Butler was his only companion. While he was away Secretary Loeb, President Wheeler and others acted upon the president's suggestion by tearing down the cards from the trees amidst great applause.

During the luncheon the president was informed that the Spanish beans served at luncheon were cooked by Mrs. J. M. Gesetterest, who resides near Watsonville, the mother of thirty-four children. He laughed heartily, saying: "She should be made the president of some association, I don't know what." The Pioneer's society presented to the president a silver plate. A tree was dedicated in the president's honor. The president expressed his thanks, but objected to a big sign with his name on it. He also received pictures of the big trees. After a photograph was taken and many persons had shaken hands with him, the train started for this city. The station at Big Tree was crowded with people from Boulder Creek and Felton. While the party was at Big Tree, native daughters decorated the tree with flowers. At 12:50, amid great cheering from the large crowd, the train left for San Jose.

SURVEYS ARE IN PROGRESS

For Great Northern Line Apparently Headed For Roseau.

Fosston, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The presence of Great Northern engineers in this vicinity, who are working on a survey north and south of the Duluth line near McIntosh, has led to much speculation as to the intentions of the company, and rumors are rife as to new branch lines. The surveyors have been working on this end of the proposed extension of the Pelican Rapids line, and on Saturday had completed their work south of McIntosh. They immediately moved north and are continuing their operations in that direction.

Just where they are headed for is a secret which is being kept carefully guarded, but it looks like Roseau, with a possible extension to Warroad. Their course so far as outlined is a trifle east of due north and takes them a trifle east of Lambert and from fifteen to twenty miles east of Thief River Falls. Following this course, and assuming that Roseau is their destination, they would run into Roseau by the old trail, a little to the west of the south fork of the Roseau river. This would give the Great Northern an excellent location and the cream of the territory east of their present lines.

South from McIntosh the line so far surveyed runs a little to the west of due south. Leaving the Duluth at the switch at McIntosh, it goes to the southeast and follows down to the west side of the big bog, through the town of King, thence running a little west of south and through the White Earth reservation, cutting the line which the store at Sletten stands. The crossing of the Duluth line at McIntosh is made by entering the yard from the south at the east switch and leaving the yard for the north at the west switch. Through the White Earth reservation the line is said to very nearly parallel the Soo's survey, and it looks as if the intention was to follow the same policy regarding their projected line north. The agents of both the Soo and Great Northern are now on the reservation looking up right-of-way.

MARL AND PEAT BEDS.

Grand Rapids, Wis., May 12.—Marl beds have been discovered at Swan Lake. It is calculated that there are at least 700 acres in that neighborhood. The marl extends out into Swan Lake from 20 to 100 feet and back into the marshes for long distances in a practically continuous bed, beginning at the very bay east of the lake and extending from there in an easterly direction to within a mile of Pardeeville and along the north of the lake. It is one of the largest deposits in the United States.

In addition to the marl there is an enormous quantity of the finest kind of peat covering the mineral deposits. Marl is almost pure carbonate of lime and results from the decomposition of minute snail shells, probably decomposed during the last geological period.

A ROMANCE SHOWN

In the British Peerage By Sackville-West Suit.

Son of Fair Dancer Fights to Establish His Rights.

London, May 12.—The proceedings in the chancery court of Ernest Henri Jean Baptiste Sackville-West against his father, Lord Sackville, baron of Knoll, better known to Americans as British minister to Washington during the Cleveland campaign, reveals a romance in the peerage. It begins litigation which promises to be as sensational as the suit of the Tichborne claimant.

The son, who is beginning action to compel his father to recognize his legitimacy and establish ultimately his claim to the ancient barony of Sackville, is well provided with money, furnished by relatives in France, who have espoused his cause. The present is not a case of disputed succession, after generations of heirs are dead, but one in which Lord Sackville repudiates the right of his own son to succeed him. The barony is not one of the richest in England, but nevertheless its income is $100,000 annually.

Lord Sackville, who was the victim of the famous Murchison letter, repudiates his illegitimate son for the benefit of another heir.

The case has an American as well as an English end. Sackville told his son Henri, in 1898, when the son was aged 29, that he was not legitimate. The person who will benefit, if the son is unable to prove his case in court, is an elder sister, who married the eldest son of his lordship and the latter will succeed in time, if the legitimacy of the son does not hold good.

Sackville told his son, as shown by testimony, that he could not have married his mother if he desired, because she had been married before. Three years ago a commission took evidence on behalf of his lordship at Gibraltar for the purpose of ascertaining if the claimant, Henri's mother, had been married in Spain, as the claimant for the title alleged.

The claimant, who is now seeking permission to examine witnesses in France and Spain in order to prove himself the heir of the barony, declares his father was married in 1864 to a dancer, Josephine Duran de Ortega, otherwise Josephine Duran, sometimes called Pepita Duran, and the plaintiff was the eldest child of the marriage.

His lordship alleges that the marriage never took place and that Josephine was, in 1871, lawfully married to Juan De la Olivia and that such marriage was never dissolved. The claimant declares he is able to prove that Josephine De Ortega was acknowledged by Lord Sackville to be his lawful wife and he was the lawful issue of that marriage.

The commission to Gibraltar obtained evidence of the marriage to De Oliva but subsequently a document, one of the proofs of the marriage was found to be forged, by whom was not discovered. The claimant now wants a new commission to take testimony.

Lord Sackville, now 76, lives at Knoll hall. He is fighting the claimant's application strenuously. Soon the claimant will bring suit to compel his lordship to declare his legitimacy.

When the present Lord Sackville was minister to Madrid he fell in love with a beautiful dancer, by whom he had one daughter and one son, who were registered as legitimate. Later his lordship and the dancer lived near Bordeaux, where the dancer was called Countess West. Her three girls and one boy being registered as lawful children of his lordship.

The claimant to the title was born June 24, 1869. His lordship registered the child as legitimate. In 1871 the dancer countess died. His lordship acknowledged in the death certificate the woman was his wife. He apparently is devoted to his children. His daughter, Victoria, joined him at his diplomatic post before the close of his diplomatic career. He educated his six children carefully, the claimant, Henri, graduating at Stonyhurst military college. His nephew, Lionel, according to Burke, the next of kin, married in 1890, Victoria, one of his illegitimate daughters. Not until 1897, when 28 years of age, the claimant declares, had he any idea he was an illegitimate son. Then his father told him he was illegitimate, saying he would willingly have married his mother, but it was impossible, as she was already married. The son then went to France to get funds to establish his legitimacy. It has been disclosed that his lordship carried his daughters everywhere. They lived in Washington and other diplomatic posts with him. Victoria kept house for her father at Washington and was accepted by society as the daughter of the minister.

His lordship testified before the old commission that if he made a false declaration about the legitimacy of the claimant it was done to save the feelings of the mother. He admitted that he might have introduced her to French society as his wife.

GOT A CLEW

To Other Woman By Opening Letter Box.

Canton, Ohio, May 12.—Mrs. Charles Shauers complained to the police that her husband had gone to Cleveland with a young woman of this city.

Mrs. Shauers told the police the following story: She was informed by a friend that her husband had been receiving letters from another woman through a private box in the local postoffice. She went to the Miller Pasteurizing plant, where he was at work, and demanded the keys to the box, stating that she had been informed of what was going on between him and another woman. Shauers became very angry and threw the keys on the floor. Mrs. Shauers picked them up, went to the postoffice and got a letter from the box. This revealed the whole story. In the interim Shauers went home, packed his trunk and left.

Shauers holds an important position and is well known in this city.

LIP CANCER

From Pipe Smoking In Parts of Ireland.

London, May 12.—Thousands of English pipe smokers are hearing things these days about their favorite method of indulging in tobacco that make them thoughtful, while users of cigars and cigarettes are correspondingly elated.

Practitioner prints an article by Sir Thornley Stoker on "Cancer of the Lips," of which the following is an extract:

"The use of the pipe is an exciting cause of lip cancer. Almost every case of the disease, rarely found in non-smokers, and a few cases of epithelioma of the lips, which have been found in women, were all in peasants who smoked. The great bulk of the cases of this class in Richmond Hospital come from the more remote parts of Ireland."

A FAMILY TRAGEDY.

Kansas City, Mo., May 12.—Crazed from liquor and the information that his mother was dying, Edward Clark, a switchman, aged 52, last night shot and killed his wife Hannah, aged 48, and shot and seriously wounded his son, Edward, Jr., aged 24, at their home here. Young Clark asked his father to go upstairs and be quiet. The latter whipped out a revolver and shot at his son four times, one shot taking effect. Mrs. Clark ran to her son's assistance, when her husband shot her through the heart, killing her instantly.

FEVER ON ISTHMUS.

Washington, May 12.—Gen. Hains, a member of the isthmian canal commission, says that fever is prevalent there and that it is dangerous to white men. He says it is either yellow fever or such a malignant type of malarial fever as to be as bad as yellow fever. The condition can be improved, but it would require control by the government of sanitary measures. He thinks it would take about a year to place the canal region in proper sanitary condition.

It adds spice to dreary life, encourages the human heart, lifts one out of despair, breathes new life and confidence. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. S. F. BOYCE.

THE FINAL SESSION

Of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections.

Address Given By Commissioner Folks of New York.

Atlanta, Ga., May 12.—The final day's session of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections began this morning with Mrs. Alice N. Lincoln, of Boston, presiding. The topic of the morning was "Disease and Dependency; Housing and Sanitary Inspection."

The principal address was given by Homer Folks, commissioner of charities of New York city, who said, in part:

A most cursory examination of the causes of destitution, whether in connection with the assistance of the poor in their homes or their care in public institutions, shows that sickness is always one of the leading causes, and is usually the leading cause of dependency. The tendency of recent charity administration is to make physical disability the one indispensable condition for admission to a public charitable institution, and to commit vagrants and able-bodied paupers to correctional institutions. The municipal lodging houses afford shelter for a few days to people temporarily homeless and destitute but under ordinary conditions, and with the opportunities for temporary work afforded by modern charitable agencies, there seems now to be no reason for admitting to almshouses or other public institutions those who are able-bodied.

This seems to me a most important fact and one which should have important effects upon our attitude toward the inmates of public charitable institutions, and upon our methods of conducting such institutions.

We have left far behind the times when patients in hospitals for the insane, and other public hospitals for the treatment of acute diseases, were regarded as paupers. Have we not approached the time when inmates, even of our almshouses, may be regarded more in the light of patients than of paupers? The word "pauper" carries with it the suggestion of voluntary dependence upon the public, or a willingness to receive public aid when such aid is not really necessary, or a preference for accepting the public bounty rather than making all reasonable effort for self-support. Under modern conditions, these all are facts which are becoming inapplicable to most of the inmates of our public charitable institutions.

Taking the public charitable institutions of New York city as an example, one-half of the inmates are patients in hospitals. Of the other half, who are in institutions formerly known as almshouses, now known as homes for the aged and infirm, fully one-third are hospital patients and receiving hospital care, while of the remainder—constituting the principal population of the homes for the aged and infirm—it is evident to any observer that their dependence is due in a very large measure to the infirmities that accompany old age.

Observation and experience lead me to the conclusion that we could and should regard these people with more consideration than we now seem accustomed to give the inmates of the almshouses. We instinctively feel that the word "pauper" is a harsh word, and does a measure of injustice when applied to them. Do we not also instinctively feel that age, as such, should receive a degree of consideration, very measurably in advance of that which should be accorded the middle-aged, voluntary, able-bodied pauper?

It is no doubt true that the disease and infirmity which bring these people to a condition of dependence are themselves due to earlier causes, which may or may not imply ill desert. Much of the sickness is no doubt due to intemperance, The growing use of alcoholic liquors and other forms of dissipation are the occasion of a very large amount of tuberculosis. No doubt an appreciable number of those who in their extreme old age seek the shelter of the almshouse, have led lives which have at least some chapters that had best be left unread.

But, after all, to what extent should this affect our care of them in the remaining years of their lives? Even though they may have been vicious or even criminal, need we, so to speak, rub it in in their old age? Now that the years of storm and stress are over, now that the ability for self-support is undeniably gone, shall we not simply recognize them all as aged and infirm and, if without means, entitled to at least respectable care at the hands of the public—a care probably shall be quite different from and superior to that afforded in penal and semi-penal institutions? Death is the great leveler, and as its shadow is approached, the characteristics that have marked certain individuals as different from others in their social relations tend to disappear, and in my opinion, may safely be more and more disregarded, in our care of the aged in public institutions.

The consideration of the topic "Disease and Despondency," and my observation and experience of the care of hospital patients—showing every gradation from those suffering from acute disease to those who are simply suffering from the disease of old age, lead me to believe that a reconstruction of our ideas of the proper care of the aged is necessary, and that the conditions which might have made certain changes of doubtful wisdom in the past no longer exist, now that we have gotten rid of the able-bodied pauper as an appreciable factor in the charity situation. I believe, therefore, in a more individual care of the aged; in smaller groups, even in individual rooms for some; in seperate quarters for aged couples; in better food; in more privacy; in less unattractive dining room service; in less barren monotony of clothing; in more opportunity for out of door life; in employment, which need not be remunerative, but should be attractive—in other words, in a life for aged and infirm dependents which shall not be simply a waiting for the end, but which shall round out in a more natural way the closing years, affording such opportunity for activity as each is capable of, and a measurable variety of things to interest and occupy.

Dr. D. J. McMahon, of New York, spoke on "Accidents and Hurtful Occupations."

The report of the committee on state supervision and administration of charities and corrections was made by Chairman Frank W. Blackmar as follows:

All private charitable institutions working under the charter of the state should be under state supervision. If the state gives a charter to any group for a specific purpose the state should guarantee that such institution should work for the highest public welfare and not against it.

The great unsettled question before the committee refers to the method of state supervision. In the first place each institution may have a separate board of trustees or commissioners which reports directly to the legislature and being accountable only to this body and to the governor, who usually has the appointive power. The legislative committee, the newspaper and public opinion in general are the only supervisors of these local boards.

A second method remaining in some states is a board elected by the people. This board is largely perfunctory as the real burden of administration falls upon the head of the institution.

The third method, more modern than the others, is in the form of a state board of charities with advisory power. Under this system, municipies called the Ohio system, the local boards of institutions are retained.

The most modern of all methods of administration is the state board of control composed of three or five men appointed by the governor, who devote their whole time to the administrative details of the state charitable and penal institutions.

Outside of these four main methods there has developed a fifth in which there is a division of the work under different boards.

The particular controversy as it exists today is between the state board of control and the advisory board of state charities. Arguing from two separate standards it would appear that the state board of control has the opportunity of making the most perfect system of administration possible, while the advisory board of state charities is better calculated to promote the humanitarian interests of the wards of the state.

In closing this report the committee would like to offer the following summary:

First. That state supervision of charitable and penal affairs is essential.

Second. That no state subsidies should be granted to private institutions.

Third. That private charitable institutions be under the inspection and inoffensive regulation of the state in order to promote efficiency and unity in the care of the state's wards.

Fourth. That the committee recognized merits in both the state board of control and the supervisory board of state charities. That each has its own peculiar advantages and that whether one or the other is better depends somewhat upon the conditions of society, of government, and the status of charitable and penal affairs. And the committee would emphasize the advantages of the supervisory board of state charities in the perpetuation of humanitarian ideas and practices that are in the perpetuation of real charity.

Fifth. The committee would urge the elimination of all forms of partisan politics from charitable and penal affairs and the placing of all institutions on a purely scientific basis. This method would seek the best men for the place, regardless of what state or nation he comes from. This would introduce the merit system among all officers and employes.

Sixth. Where the work of state supervision is too great for one board, the committee would recommend division of it among two or more advisory boards, or a separate agency for the scientific investigation and propaganda and in either case a public accountant appointed by the governor for the special supervision of institutional accounts.

During the afternoon the sectional meetings were resumed. The main address at the conclusion of the session tonight will be delivered by Rev. Samuel J. Barrows, of New York.

Atlanta, Ga., May 12.—The National Conference of Charities and Corrections has elected the following officers: President, Joffrey Brackett, of Baltimore; vice presidents, Rev. Samuel G. Smith, St. Paul; Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, Atlanta; Max Herbert, Philadelphia; secretary, Joseph P. Bevers, Jeffersonville, Ind.; treasurer, Alfred Crozier, Wilmington, Del.; official reporter and editor, Mrs. Elizabeth Barrows, New York; executive committee, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Boston; Hugh F. Fox, Bayonne, N. J.; Benjamin B. Lindsay, Denver; Clarence Low, New Orleans; Thomas M. Mulry, New York; F. H. Nibacker, Glen Mills, Pa.; Max Senior, Cincinnati. Also nineteen former presidents and officers of the conference.

Sailed Without a Rudder.

One of Britain's battleships just recently accomplished the remarkable feat of sailing over 2500 miles without a rudder, and which reflects the greatest credit on her officers. The record of cures back of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters certainly reflects great credit on the ability of this medicine to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders, even after other remedies have failed. During its fifty years' experience it has never been known to fail in cases of dizziness, loss of appetite, insomnia, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles, or malaria, fever and ague. In view of such a convincing record we feel justified in urging you to try it at once. We know you will be satisfied with the result. The genuine must have our Private Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

MONEY IS HELD UP

City Would Hear From Asphalt Company Before Paying Estimates.

But Two Bids For the $40,000 Issue of Bonds.

The council last night:

Decided to hold up asphalt estimates till the paving company agrees on the time to complete the East Superior street work.

Received only two bids for purchase of $40,000 worth of four per cent water and light plant bonds.

Decided to withdraw finance committee's report appropriating $100 for Memorial Day observance.

Received Mayor Hugo's appointment of three members of the library board for terms of three years.

Deferred acting on resolution condemning sewer outlet in West Duluth incline right-of-way.

Received request for water and gas service along water front in the Oneota street district.

Directed a re-advertising of bids for East Michigan street improvement claiming first bids too high.

Referred request of street laborers for increase in wages to the board of public works.

Decided to get an estimate of the cost of lighting the canal piers during summer months.

Received important report in regard to paving improvements possible during the coming season.

Not a cent will be paid the Barber Asphalt company for work already done on East Superior street until the city has a written guarantee that the paving will be put through without any more delays and be completed within a specified time.

A resolution to that effect, presented by Alderman Barnes, was adopted and it virtually means a new contract for the much delayed improvement that is now finally underway. The time limit of the original contract has now expired and unless the asphalt trust gives a new written agreement, the surety company on its bond may not be held liable in case the terms of the original contract are not lived up to.

The Barber company now has a claim of about $6000 for preliminary work and City Clerk Cheadle will notify the company that said estimate, while passed by the board of public works, will not be approved by the council until the required new time agreement is signed.

Disqualifications in bidding narrowed the $40,000 bond-selling proposition down to N. J. Upham & Co., of Duluth, and W. J. Hayes & Sons, of Cleveland.

The Upham bid was to take the entire issue at par, conditional on a satisfactory agreement as to the delivery of the bonds in installments.

The Cleveland concern put in a bid that was $355 below par and in view of the fact that Duluth bonds in the past have sold at premiums of from $300 to $1200, such a proposal will receive scant consideration.

A report from the committee on finance appropriating $100 to the Grand Army posts to aid in defraying Memorial Day expenses was withdrawn on the technicality that the matter was not in legal appreciation. It has been the custom to make this appropriation for many years past, and the probability is that the money will be appropriated at some future meeting.

* * *

Mayor Hugo announced the appointment of Dr. C. L. Codding, Dr. J. M. O. Duffy and M. M. Clark as members of the library board for a term of three years.

* * *

Alderman Sang introduced a resolution authorizing the city to condemn land for a sewer in the right of way of the Duluth Belt Line Railway company at West Duluth. Under the rules governing condemnation proceedings this resolution will not be acted on for a week.

* * *

Property owners along the harbor front from Jenswold street to Fiftieth avenue west are very anxious to enjoy the benefits of municipal ownership which they helped acquire and have since leased to municipal use. Through Alderman Barnes, have requested the laying of the proposed high pressure feeder gas mains connecting the Zenith Furnace company's gas making coke ovens with the city system, in Oneota street, and, at the same time they desire water mains placed in the gas main trenches. This district is now without city water service, the mains to West Duluth extending along Grand avenue.

Owing to the fact that the lowest bid for paving East Michigan street with sandstone was $1949 over the city engineer's estimate and the difference apparently unwarranted, the board of public works was given permisson to re-advertise the contract.

* * *

The city street laborers desiring an increase in wages of from 22 to 25 cents an hour were notified that the board of public works had primary authority in such wage questions and the petition was referred to that board.

* * *

Responding to a former resolution of the council making inquiry as to what street improvements could be taken care of by the permanent improvement revolving fund during the coming season, President Martz of the board of public works notified the council that without any question the paving of Superior street between Third and Eighth avenues east could be accomplished and the paving of South Lake avenue, Fifty-fifth avenue west and East Superior street between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues was not impossible later in the season.

* * *

Alderman Trevillion secured the adoption of a resolution calling for an estimate of the cost of lighting the canal piers during the coming summer.

* * *

President Martz of the board of public works notified the council that the Lake avenue gutters from the boulevard to Fifth street were in such bad condition that it would scarcely pay to repair them with timber and suggested circulating a petition among property owners for the building of stone gutters in this district.

NOT AN INFORMER.

Theobald Says He Will Not Report Smugglers.

New York, May 12.—Collector Stranahan's reply to the recent statements of Former Special Agent Theobald, in which Mr. Theobald declared that smuggling is going on with increased activity, and that he knows of four diamond necklaces, worth at least $20,000 apiece, recently brought into this country without paying a duty, is to the effect that the former special agent has a remarkable opportunity to make $60,000. This is half the value of the necklaces, and if Mr. Theobald will lay before the authorities information on which seizures can be made, this sum will be his.

Replying to Collector Stranahan, Mr. Theobald said: "As I said in an interview recently, 'I am out of the service and I am not an informer.' Not for $60,000 am I informer."

THE HOBO MAYOR

Of Ohio Town Has Been Suspended By the Governor.

Name Was Placed on the Ticket By Village Vags.

Columbus, Ohio, May 12.—On application of citizens of Amesville, Athens county, Governor Nash issued an order of suspension effective May 12, against Alonzo Weed, mayor of that village.

The action was taken under authority of section 226 of the new municipal code, which provides that the state's chief executive may remove an officer on grounds of immorality, drunkenness and vicious habits, as well as misconduct in office.

George E. Clark, A. L. Logan, J. T. Beasley, J. G. Moore and H. H. Henry sign the complaint to the governor as members of the council, and S. R. McCune, as clerk, and J. M. Loeta, as marshal.

The charges are that Week is mentally incapable of performing the duties of mayor; is illiterate, an habitual drunkard, grossly immoral, came to Amesville as a tramp and is not a legal resident.

The governor fixed May 26 as the time for the hearing.

The section of the new code under which the suspension was made follows:

"In case of misconduct in office, or bribery, or any gross neglect of duty, gross immorality or habitual drunkenness of any mayor, the governor of the state shall remove him from office, upon notice and after affording to said mayor a full and fair opportunity to be heard in his defense. The proceedings for his removal shall be commenced by the governor putting on file in his office a written statement of the alleged cause for the mayor's removal, and he shall cause a copy of said statement to be served upon the mayor not less than ten days before the hearing of the matter. The proceedings had by the governor upon such removal shall be public and a full detailed statement of the reasons of such removal shall be filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state and shall be made a matter of public record therein. The decision of the governor, when so filed, with the reason therefor, shall be final, and pending such investigation by the governor, he may suspend the mayor for a period of 30 days."

Amesville is a village of 261 population, by the last census, situated in the northeastern corner of Athens county. Weed is the "midget mayor," who, since his election, has been widely exploited because of his miniature size. He is a dwarf, 40 years old, and is only 4 feet and 1 inch in height. He is rather stocky, however, so that he runs the scale up to 105 pounds.

He was, in fact, nominated and elected on the same day, and his election was the result of a joke. But one name had been printed on the ballot, F. W. Gibson, a prominent business man of the place, but some of Weed's friends proposed that he be voted for, his name being written in.

The word was passed around among the wags, and when the votes were counted out it was found that 42 votes had been cast, and each secured 21 votes. The rival candidates then drew cuts, and the honor and the office fell to Weed.

Weed claims to have been a traveler rather than a "hobo," and says he has been in every state in the Union, and in most of the countries of South America.

THE IOWA IDEA

Embodied In Tariff Plank Favored By the President.

The Party's Policy Is Outlined at a Secret Conference.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 12.—President Roosevelt, the prospective nominee of the next Republican national convention; Senator William B. Allison, the acknowledged leader of the senate, and Governor Cummins, of Iowa, chiefly famous for the persistence with which he has espoused the "Iowa idea," have agreed on the tariff plank of the Republican national platform of 1904. If they succeed in their purpose, the tariff reform idea advocated by Governor Cummins will be embodied in that platform in general though not specific terms. The words, "shelter for monopoly," which caused the chief opposition to the Iowa platform of the past two years, because by implication they asserted that tariff might afford shelter to monopoly, will be eliminated, but the word "monopoly" will be used in almost the same sense.

Governor Cummins recently paid a visit to Washington to consult with President Roosevelt upon the latter's invitation. During the president's trip through Iowa the governor was closeted with him in his private office on the special train more than twelve hours.

At this time Governor Cummins presented to the president a letter from Senator Allison, in which the latter outlined to him the result of the two conferences between Cummins and Allison.

The president heartily approved the program therein mapped out.

This program, in brief, was that the Iowa platform to be adopted by the state convention to be held on July 1 should be modified in the matter outlined, and that Governor Cummins' previously expressed determination that this plank be incorporated in the next national platform should have their joint support. They agreed that Governor Cummins' views had been misinterpreted and maliciously misrepresented, and that they were substantially those of Roosevelt and Allison. The "Iowa idea" fathered by Cummins, which appeared in the two past Republican platforms, is as follows:

"We stand by the historic policy of the Republican party in giving protection to home industries and point to the extraordinary rapidity with which our national resources have been developed and financial independence secured. We favor such changes in the tariff from time to time as become advisable, through the progress of our industries and their changing relations to the commerce of the world. We endorse the policy of reciprocity as the natural complement of protection and urge its development as necessary to the realization of our highest commercial possibilities. We favor any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording a shelter to monopoly."

At Cummins' conference with Roosevelt in Washington, the president sought to ascertain exactly the orthodoxy of Cummins' principles. It was then discovered that they could practically agree by using the Republican national platform of 1896, adopted by the St. Louis convention. Governor Cummins declared that this was as radical as he ever thought of advocating. Senator Allison was then approached as the one influential member of the Iowa delegation in Washington capable of bringing his colleagues around to Cummins' ideas. The result of this was the eventful agreement that the St. Louis platform should be followed as nearly as practicable. The plank, as it will be written, in substance, is:

"We are not pledged to any particular schedules. The question of rates is a practical one to be governed by the conditions of the time and of production. The ruling and uncompromising principle is the protection and development of American labor and industries. Reciprocity and protection are twin measures of Republican policy and go hand in hand. We advocate protection for what we produce and free admission for the necessaries of life that we do not produce."

The foregoing comes from absolutely reliable sources. The editor of a Des Moines paper will shortly publish the text of the agreement over his own signature, accompanied by a signed statement from Governor Cummins, corroborating its chief features.

The fight over the idea has been of long standing and has found all the old political leaders bitterly denouncing Cummins as a free trader instead of a protectionist. Secretary Shaw has been his particular enemy. Congressmen Hull, Hepburn, Lacey, Cousins and the others have been scarcely less his enemies, and even Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has regarded him largely in the light of heretic. Senator Dolliver alone has stood by Cummins.

His great personal magnetism and the disfavor acquired by the so-called "machine," however, enabled Cummins overwhelmingly to control every state convention and to get an unparalleled vote at the general election. Senator Allison, while apparently training with the "machine" or anti-Cummins faction, was careful to avoid becoming actively identified with the fight. In his early career he was twice defeated because he was declared to be somewhat of a free trader. After Cummins' visit to Roosevelt, a meeting between Cummins and Allison was arranged at which a mutual understanding was reached.

Allison urged Cummins to modify his views, but the latter, confident in his personal following, steadfastly insisted that tariff reform must be advocated, and that his own ideas in general prevail. Allison, then, as a concession to the older faction, suggested Congressman Hepburn for temporary chairman of the state convention. Here again Cummins had his way, and suggested George D. Perkins, ex-congressman and editor of the Sioux City Journal, as a neutral chairman. Cummins had his way in this. It was then agreed that Allison should write the platform, but that it should be along the lines agreed upon and practicaly dictated by Cummins, though not departing materially from the national platform of 1896.

A DIFFERENT STORY.

Chicago, May 12.—A Washington special to the Chicago Chronicle says:

Iowa Republicans in Washington have a version of the result of the conferences between President Roosevelt, Gov. Cummins and Senator Allison, relative to the attitude of the Republican organization of the state upon tariff, radically different from that which was widely disseminated from Sioux City. Practically without exception they say that Cummins had surrendered unconditionally to the ultra-protectionists, and not only will submit to the extinguishment of those positions of the state platform of 1901 which constituted the so-called "Iowa idea," but will accept a reiteration of the tariff planks of the St. Louis convention. One of the most distinguished and influential Iowans identified with the Roosevelt administration, said to the correspondent the day after his return from a prolonged conference with the president at Des Moines that the "Iowa idea" had been abandoned.

"Cummins has slid down the pole," was the picturesque way he put it.

"By that do you mean that the "Iowa idea" will not be reaffirmed in the next platform adopted by the Iowa Republican state convention?" the official was asked.

"That is the understanding out in Iowa. Cummins has consented not to press the idea, and the convention will adopt a conservative platform."

Gov. Cummins' proposed recantation is understood by well informed circles at the national capital to be the price of the support by Senator Allison, Secretaries Shaw and Wilson, and Director of Mints Roberts, of Cummins for the nomination for vice president. How far President Roosevelt is committed to this deal can only be conjectured, but it is believed that Cummins would be acceptable to him as a running mate. The nominee for vice president will of necessity have to be a Western man, and Iowa might as well furnish him as any other state. The president did not like the Cummins idea because its dissemination created party friction. It was too popular in the West and Middle West and not popular enough in the East and New England.

STEERED HIS AUTO

Into Street Car to Save Several Lives.

New York, May 12.—With rare heroism J. F. D. Lanier, the wealthy banker, saved the lives of several women and children on Upper Madison avenue by turning his huge red locomobile against a street car at the risk of his own life and those in the machine with him.

Three women, with small children tugging at their skirts, were crossing the avenue when the big auto swooped down upon them. The women were talking, and did not hear the tooting of the horn.

Suddenly they looked up and saw the machine driving straight at them. They were too frightened to move.

Banker Lanier had the lever of the ponderous auto in his hand, and even in that brief second understood the situation. Throwing the lever half way around Banker Lanier took a desperate chance.

The machine darted sideways across the street, but it was too late to escape collision. With a shock that threw Mr. Lanier, his two friends and Chaffeur John Haynes from their seats as from a catapult, the car and the rear end of the machine came together. Nobody was seriously injured.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK CAR.

Springfield, Ohio, May 12.—At attempt was made last night to wreck a car on the Columbus, London & Springfield interurban line at Green's cut. An unknown person placed a piece of a cattle guard and tie on the track and the car dashed into it. The front trucks left the track and the car ran seventy-five feet before it was stopped. Fortunately it did not go down the embankment, or several persons would have been killed. There were thirty persons in the car. None was seriously hurt.

ROMANCE IS SHATTERED.

Calve Refuses to Settle $60,000 on M. Bois.

Paris, May 12.—The engagement of Mme. Calve and Jules Bois is ruptured and another romance of the operatic stage is shattered. The disagreement, it is reported, was caused by the question of finances. The psychologist requested the singer to settle on him $60,000, thereby relieving him of the necessity of a struggle to maintain an independent position. Calve declined the proposition to make the settlement, and after a wordy scene the couple agreed to consider the engagement off. Calve's health has been undermined by the strain. She is, however, rich and can afford to retire from the stage whenever she pleases.

Bois is a fascinating man and an accomplished scientist. Friends of both are hopeful the rupture may be smoothed over, the couple marry and be happy ever afterward.

Frequently the question of marriage settlements shatters love romances in France, but Calve and Bois were so deeply in love it is hoped by friends to overcome the difficulties and cause a reunion.

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Albert J. Weston, of Cleveland, O., says: "I have used your Castoria in my practice for the past eighteen years with the utmost success."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Market Is Slow and Narrow and Closes Slightly Lower.

Government Report Taken as Bearish—Flax Quiet and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 12.—The government report of yesterday was taken as bearish, indicating a crop of from 620,000,000 to 625,000,000 bus, and this caused a lower opening, though the weakness was not marked. A rally took place soon after the opening, but the strength did not last long and the market settled back. The range was narrow, however, and the close was at slightly lower prices. The cash wheat situation at both Duluth and Minneapolis is strong and is attracting the notice of other markets considerably. There was a good tone to the foreign inquiry this morning, bids being pretty fair figures, but nothing was worked. The Liverpool market closed ⅜d lower. Paris and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 255,000 bus, last year 173,000 bus. Shipments 207,000 bus, last year 482,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 627,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 6,327,000 bus in the world's visible supply of wheat.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 82 cars, and at Chicago, 81, a total of 163 cars, against 188 last week and 123 last year.

In the Liverpool market corn closed ¼d higher and in Chicago July corn was ⅝c higher and July oats ¼-⅜c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 704,000 bus, last year 2,040,000 bus. Shipments 439,000 bus, last year 477,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 369,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 756,000 bus in the world's visible supply.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was quiet. July opened 75c off at 77½c, sold at 77⅝-⅞c at 9:40, fell to 77¼-⅜c at 10:25 and held at 77c at 11:05. It then sold between 77⅜ and 77⅝c until the close, which was at 77⅜c, a decline of ⅝c. May closed unchanged. In Chicago the May option also closed unchanged and July declined ⅛-¼c in Minneapolis May was off ⅛c and July ⅛-¼c. New York May advanced ¾ and July was unchanged.

Cash sales were light and prices continued at May price for No. 1 northern and ⅛c under for No. 2.

Flax was fairly active and slightly weaker, selling unchanged at $1.16 at first and then failing to $1.15¾. It held steady at that price and closed there. May closed unchanged. September was ¼c off and October and November ⅓c up.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 80½c; No. 1 northern, 78¾c; No. 2 northern, 76½c; May, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 78¼c; July, 77⅜c; September, 70¼c. Flax in store, $1.14½; to arrive, $1.14¾, on track, $1.14⅜. May, $1.14½; July, $1.15¾; September, $1.15¾; October, $1.16; November, $1.16. Oats to arrive, 34½c; on track, 34½c; May, 32¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Easy on Cables and Crop Report.

Chicago, May 12.—Wheat opened easier today on lower cables and local selling, due to the government crop report, which although showing the condition of the crop about as had been anticipated, showed an increase in the total yield of winter wheat of a million bushels over last year's figures. July was off ⅝c to ¾c at the start, opening at 72¾-⅞c, but with a fair demand at the decline the market rallied July selling up to 73¾-⅞c and steadied around 73¾c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 82 cars, which with local receipts of 81 cars—one of contract grade—made total receipts for the three points of 163 cars, against 188 cars last week and 123 cars a year ago.

Later the market developed considerable weakness due mainly to the inactivity in trading and July declined to 71¾c, but decrease in the world's visible supply as shown by Bradstreets and the bullish Illinois crop report brought out good buying orders, and prices again rallied and closed steady with July 73@73¼c lower at 73⅜@¾c.

Large receipts and an improvement in the grading caused an easier tone in corn at the opening. July being unchanged to a shade lower at 44⅝@⅞c to 44¾c. Steady rains and continued rains throughout the West were steadying influences and partly offset the larger receipts. Commission houses were best sellers early in the day but offerings were well taken and the price was well maintained. Local receipts were 225 cars—41 of contract grade.

The close was firm with July 3c higher at 45¾c.

Oats opened dull and easier, the large receipts with better grading being a depressing influence, and July was a shade to ⅛c lower at 32@33c. There was a fair scattered demand early in the day and with light offerings the market became nearly at first firmer Local receipts were 285 cars.

A sharp reduction in the price of hogs caused renewed selling of provisions by outside interests and opening prices were easier, September pork being 2½c lower at $16.57½; September lard down 5c at $8.92½, and ribs off 2½c to 7½c at $8.10 to $8.15. Trading was dull and the market was poorly supported.

Close—Wheat: May 78¾@⅞c; July 72½@¾c; September 69¾c. Corn—May 45¾c; July 45¾c; September 44½@⅝c. Oats—May 35¼c; July 32⅝c; September 27¾c; December 30c Pork—May $18.65; July $17.15; September $16.75. Lard—May $8.82; July $8.92½; September $9.06. Ribs—May $9.20; July $9.27½; September $9.20; October $9.10. Rye—May, 56c; July 56c. Flax—Cash N. W., $1.15; S. W. $1.11; May $1.11; July $1.14. Timothy—May $3.50; Clover—May $12.50; Barley—Cash 42@56c. Cash wheat—2 red 78@79c; 3 red 76@76c, 2 hard winter 75@77c; 3 hard winter, 70@75c; 1 northern spring 78@80c; 2 northern spring 75@80c; 3 spring, 73@79c. Corn—2, 44½@44c; 3, 44½@45c. Oats—2, 32c; 3, 31c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market dull and easier. The government report indicates a crop of winter wheat of about 500,000,000 bushels. It was about as expected, but is bearish. Cash situation not encouraging, very little export business. Southwest reports prospects improved by recent rains. California says no rains yet and the crop suffering. Armour was evidently selling May wheat when the market would take. This market suffers from lack of speculative interest, and if prices have any tendency it seems to be a little lower. Estimated cars 30.

Corn—Market only moderately active but the tone was firm. Along with increasing receipts there is a good cash demand. There is apprehension in regard to shipping by reason of continued rains. This made some speculative buying and some covering of shorts in this market. The quality of arrivals of corn seems to be improving. Cash markets in southwest firm. Estimated cars, 180.

Oats—Market more active. There is no improvement in the cash situation but with the tendency of weather wet throughout the West there is a speculative buying of July and September. It is not a large market, however. Estimated cars, 90.

Chicago Record-Herald: The government report for May made the winter wheat condition 92.6 per cent. The report made the winter wheat area 33,011,000 acres. The May condition and the area suggest a winter wheat yield of 505,500,000 bushels. A feature of the report is its statement that special agents dispatched to the principal winter wheat states on the occurrence of frost of April 30 and May 1, report the wheat crop practically uninjured by the cold snap.

Yesterday's wheat market was a waiting one. With the most important crop announcement of yesterday the May document so close at hand, no one was inclined to take the radical position. So the buying and the selling were rather timid and for the most part on a small scale. But some of the announcements were bearish and the weather conditions were spring-like. As a result the general mood was a selling one. Liverpool said the big world's shipments figures were offset by seasonable weather in the United Kingdom. A feature was the strength in Minneapolis and Duluth, these markets advancing while Chicago declined. They are responding to the scarcity of cash wheats. They are expected to draw away from Chicago because further away from the new crop than this market.

Those who trade at Milwaukee in privileges on a large scale are moving to get some Chicago receipts to send up there so as to make delivery. There is the possibility of some such experience at Milwaukee this month as there was last September when to many mean losses were made.

Harris, Gates & Co.: Wheat—We think the government report was about what the trade expected. The condition is about ten points above an average and the acreage is the largest ever reported at this time of the year. It indicates a crop of about 525,000,000 bushels, which, of course, may or may not be harvested. The weather since the first of May has been favorable. Our contract stocks shows but little change. Private houses continue to turn it out about as fast as it is shipped away. Prices of May wheat in the Northwest are about the same as here. The government report may have some effect on foreign buyers, as it will tend to assure them ample supplies later.

OFFICE OF THE
George A. Treadwell Mining Company.
27 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.
We have in our Iron Queen group of mines a well-defined vein proved three thousand feet in length and with a probable length of more than two miles, proved five feet in width as the minimum and widening out in places to forty feet, and at least two thousand feet in depth, with the probabilities in favor of its going below five thousand feet.
Taking the minimum measurements and multiplying the three thousand feet in length by two thousand feet in depth and five feet in width, we get as the contents of the vein 30,000,000 cubic feet, every cubic foot of which will run ten cubic feet to the ton, giving us 3,000,000 tons.
There is a net profit in this of at least $10 a ton over all expenses of mining and milling.
3,000,000 tons at $10 a ton yield $30,000,000 in profits.
This is from only one group of our properties. In the Cliff and Brookshire groups I believe the ore bodies to be even larger richer and more valuable, but it takes longer to get at them, and we have several other groups almost equally promising.
I have had too much practical experience in mining to indulge in visions. I would rather underestimate than overestimate results. When the United Verde stock was first offered for sale I was asked to estimate upon the probable production of the property, and my estimates came short of the reality. The same is true of my estimates of the Greene Consolidated, with which I was connected. The people who bought the United Verde upon my recommendation have made three thousand per cent upon their investment in ten years. The people who bought Greene Consolidated—also upon my recommendation—have made five hundred per cent in two years. I believe that the stock of the GEORGE A. TREADWELL COMPANY at present prices is a better investment than the United Verde or Green Consolidated ever was.
GEORGE A. TREADWELL, President.

Rains fell over all districts, except Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, southeastern Minnesota, western Missouri and eastern Kansas. Cool weather prevailed in Minnesota and the Dakotas. It is becoming warmer in the far Northwest.
H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecast Official.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Washington, May 12.—The weekly report of the Weather Bureau is as follows: The Ohio valley, middle Atlantic and southern states have expressed another cool week and while the temperature has been above the seasonable average in the more northerly districts, the reports generally indicate the need of warmth. In the lower Missouri, central Mississippi and Ohio valleys and Atlantic coast districts, including the northern portion of the east gulf states, rain would be of much benefit. Rain would also be beneficial in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific coast districts. Heavy to needed and abundant rains have fallen in the west gulf states. In Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin the conditions have been favorable. Corn planting continues late but is now in general progress throughout the central valleys and has begun in the extreme northern districts. The work has been carried under much difficulty in the lower Missouri, Central Mississippi and Ohio valleys and portions of the middle Atlantic states owing to hard and cloddy ground. Germination and growth have been very slow in all districts; in the west gulf states, however, the crop has recovered rapidly from effects of the cold of the previous week. An improvement in the condition of winter wheat is reported from Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Ohio, but the crop has suffered deterioration in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Missouri, much in the southern portion of the last mentioned state having been greatly damnaged by rust and insects. Wheat is heading as far north as Kentucky and southern Missouri. On the Pacific coast winter wheat continues thrifty in Oregon, but in Washington and California he is in need of rain, the late sown in California being very unpromising. Spring wheat seeding is now practically finished and the early sown is coming up to good stands, and is in health condition. No damage seems to have resulted from the severe weather of the previous week. In the northern Rocky mountain districts and in Washington the reports are less favorable, rain being needed.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Early In the Day But the Improvement Was Lost.

Sharp Rise In Hocking Valley on a Strong Demand.

New York, May 12.—Opening prices were a small fraction higher than last night on a moderate volume of dealings. A rise of 1⅝ in St. Louis and San Francisco reflected the official announcement of the deal with Rock Island. Rock Island rose ⅛. Missouri Pacific advanced ½ on large absorption and there was an advance of 1¼ in Colorado Fuel. Delaware & Hudson gained a point and New Haven lost as much.

A demand for Hocking Valley which advanced it 4¼ to 105 due to expectations of an early announcement of transfer of control was the most notable incident of the first hour's dealings. In general the market was higher, but St. Louis & San Francisco, Colorado Fuel moved feverishly though holding well above yesterday's close. Prominent stocks were rather quiet and without important change, but good gains were made at other points. Hocking Valley preferred, Lackawanna, National of Mexico, Wabash preferred, Denver & Rio Grande, Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, North American, Leather preferred, and the Rubber stocks advanced 1 to 2.

San Francisco rose 1¾, Delaware & Hudson 2½ and Texas & Pacific and National of Mexico a point. Mergenthaler Linotype sold 5½. There were losses of a point in Lake Erie and Western, Pacific Coast second preferred, Paper preferred, Steel Foundry preferred, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred, and of 1½ in Enamelling. Bonds were irregular at noon.

High level of prices were well maintained during the midday dullness and some of the leaders gained slightly. St. Louis & Southwestern, Northwestern & Rubber Goods preferred advanced 1 and Reduction and Refining 2, while Pere Marquette lost.

The extension of the rise in Missouri Pacific to a point was without effect on the market which was dormant. Large offerings of Pennsylvania appeared later, forcing it back a good fraction and there was a slight reaction elsewhere on profit taking sales. Sloss-Sheffield steel preferred dropped 3¼ and rallied a point and Kanawha & Michigan improved 3½. Metropolitan securities lost a point.

The market sagged of its own weight with some special pressure against the trank lines on account of the reduction in the grain rates from Chicago to New York. Except where there had been special stress the level of prices fell below last night. Reactions reached 1 to 1¼ in Pennsylvania, St. Louis & San Francisco, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Wilson, Walash preferred, Texas & Pacific, Hocking Valley, Amalgamated Copper and General Electric, Delaware and Hudson reacted 2¼. United States Steel preferred, New York Central and Gas fell to a point under last night. The close was quite active and weak.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Comparative weakness in Amalgamated Copper was the only feature in the copper share market today. The stock was strong at the opening but there was undoubtedly some profit taking by traders on the early rise, which led to a selling movement later. It continues to look as if insiders were taking advantage of general market conditions to accumulate Amalgamated. The metal is very strong and good coppers ought to sell higher on the basis of present earnings. Local investment houses are giving more attention to coppers and we expect to see better prices a little later.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: There is no change in speculative opinion in influential quarters. Stocks are considered a purchase on all drives or weak spots. They were expected to weaken today somewhat on the theory that solid out professional bulls would join the bear forces to down prices. Comment is made, however, that "Some one took all the stocks offered," the same one being presumably the big interests. It was also thought that the renewal of gold exports with the engagement of $1,500,000 for France would be a depressing influence. The fact that the market hardened in the face of these developments is considered significant and while prices may be hammered down again there is increased confidence in growing activity and improving prices. The favorable argument is with the government gold holdings over $600,000,000 and larger than any other country's and with the sound money standard established, there is not the same fear of an ontimid raid for the most part on a small scale. But some of the announcements were bearish and the weather conditions were spring-like. As a result the general mood was a selling one. Liverpool said the big world's shipments figures were offset by seasonable weather in the United Kingdom. A feature was the strength in Minneapolis and Duluth, these markets advancing while Chicago declined. They are responding to the scarcity of cash wheats. They are expected to draw away from Chicago because further away from the new crop than this market.

Those who trade at Milwaukee in privileges on a large scale are moving to get some Chicago receipts to send up there so as to make delivery. There is the possibility of some such experience at Milwaukee this month as there was last September when to many mean losses were made.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: The strength of Colorado Fuel and Iron is thought by some observers to be to the near approach of the opening of the company's new steel rail plant, and other finished steel mills. Very large earnings are expected to result from these additions. It is understood by the trade that contracts could be made at once for the entire production of the company for the rest of the year.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: A Denver dispatch says that the representatives of George J. Gould and J. D. Rockefeller have been in the state two weeks inspecting the plant and improvements of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, and making up reports on the property. It is current report in Denver that Mr. Rockefeller has secured control of the company.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 12.—The shorts in cotton made another rush to cover this morning but the demand was met by enormous selling by the clique for the two-fold purpose of realizing and at the same time preventing a bear panic. On the other hand cables were disappointing receipts were full, the weather fine and new crop accounts glowing. But these factors were set aside for the time being in view of the more immediate necessities of the speculative shorts. July and August were the active months, but it was apparent that a short interest still lingered in May which remained steady at $10.38 to $10.39. Within the first hour which closed at $10.64, sold up to $10.75 and then off to $10.61. August which closed at $10.33, sold up to $10.37 and ran off to $10.25. September which closed at $9.43, sold up to $9.45 and declined to $9.41.

Cotton spot quiet; middling uplands, 11.30; middling gulf, 11.55. Sales 1500 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady: May 11.00; June, 10.68; July, 10.48; August, 10.13; September, 9.28; October, 8.82; November, 8.74; December, 8.74; January, 8.75.

SHAMROCK III SATISFACTORY

No More Racing In English Waters After Saturday.

Gourock, Scotland, May 12.—Sir Thomas Lipton and Designer Fife have decided that it is not necessary to devote further time to trials between the Shamrocks on this side of the Atlantic. Consequently Saturday's race will be the last. The two yachts will be sent to the Greenock yard Monday in order to be fitted with their ocean rigs. Racing, however, has been arranged for every day this week.

The boats started at 10:30 this morning over a course from Gourock to Rothesay and Balloch bay and return, forty miles. A light, steady wind was blowing and fine weather canvas was set on both yachts. The Shamrock I had the advantage in being 200 yards dead to windward when the yachts started. After a couple of miles short tacking the challenger was able to cross the bows of her opponent and at the finish of a ten-mile beat the times were: Shamrock III, 1:03:15; Shamrock I, 1:11:40.

After turning the mark at Rothesay bay the program was altered. Instead of making for the mark in Balloch bay, the yachts headed up the firth and homeward. The wind was light and fluky. hTe yachts finished the race in close company. Tomorrow they will race over a fifty-five mile course, round the channel neet, at Lamlash, Isle of Arran, and return, for a prize of $500, presented by the Hon. Charles Russell.

FIGHT IN A CHURCH.

Paris, May 12.—There was a small riot today in a church at Aubervilliers, a village five miles from here. Father Coube, a prominent Jesuit, was announced to deliver a discourse and a large crowd of anti-clericals made a demonstration against him, during which M. Tourry, editor of a Socialist organ, interrupted the speaker. A pitched fight followed inside the church. Fists and chairs were used and the abbe was struck in the face and felled to the floor.

Abolition of Canadian Tolls Will Help St. Lawrence Route.

The abolition of the tolls on Canadian canals by the Dominion government will give an impetus to shipping by the St. Lawrence route, and it is considered an excellent move on the part of the Canadians.

The various Canadian lines reaching Duluth and other Lake Superior ports, including Capt. Wolvin's Montreal line, will be benefited by it quite largely.

The reduction in the cost of transportation is quite material. It amounts to 10 cents a ton on grain, or about one-third of a cent a bushel on wheat, and 20 cents a ton on flour. This difference is enough to prove quite an inducement to divert business that way, and vessemen expect it to make a marked difference.

At present the Eastern railroads, both American and Canadian, are holding rates rather arbitrarily and so long as they continue to do so the abolition of the canal tolls will give the all-water route a decided advantage. Should the railroads find that it is making a difference in their business that is affecting profits, no doubt they will do something to offset the advantage now possessed by the all-water route.

"More traffic has been going by the St. Lawrence route this spring than ever before," said a shipper this morning, "but this is not altogether due to the suspension of the canal tolls. The railroads east of Georgian bay are holding up a stiff rail rate that is sending business by the water route, making it more advantageous to ship by the water route. If the diversion of business to the water route continues long enough to touch the railroads in the treasuries, they may be induced to relax a little in their tariffs. In the meantime, business is good along the St. Lawrence and the Canadian lines are reaping a harvest."

In an interview in a Chicago paper Frank Owen, general manager of the Rutland Transit company, which operates a line of steamers between Chicago and Ogdensburg, N. Y., also spoke in glowing terms of the future of the Lake Ontario traffic.

"The abolition of the tolls on the Canadian canals," he said, "will within a few years give to the Canadians the bulk of the transportation of Manitoba wheat from Port Arthur and Fort William.

"The Canadians are availing themselves of the advantage which the abolition of tolls gives them by having a large fleet built in England for the traffic. With our company we are the distinct gainers by the action of the Canadian government. By the abolition of the tolls we save $200,000 a year.

"The coal business from Oswego will also be greatly benefited. Canal tolls have amounted to 20 cents per ton. With that done away with, the coal companies will be able to ship far more coal from Oswego than ever before."

NON-UNION MEN GO.

None But Union Firemen Now on Boats.

The last of the non-union lake firemen, who were employed while the strike was on a month ago, or less, have been discharged, and union men are now possessors of all the firemen's jobs on the lake boats.

The settlement by the Lake Carriers' association, making the employment of all union men, when they filled the demand for men, has met with very well liked by some of the steamship companies, who hired the non-union men and promised to take care of the men who shipped as non-unionists in the trouble.

But the pressure was so great that they have all been dismissed from service under the agreement of the association and the union, and the men who figured on soft jobs for the rest of the summer, at advanced pay, have been returned to the point of their shipment.

TIONESTA COMPLETED.

The new steel steamer Tionesta which has been built for the Anchor line has been completed and turned over to the owners by the shipbuilding company. Her trial trip will take place this week.

The Tionesta is a palatial new passenger steamer which was built by the Anchor line for the Duluth Buffalo run. She will carry freight and passengers. She is expected to arrive in Duluth on her maiden trip about June 1.

Governor Scofield Not Decided on Hines Sawing Contract.

Possibility That Local Mills May Do the Work.

Former Governor Edward Scofield, of Wisconsin, came as far as Superior this morning with Edward P. Hines, Isaac Baker and a number of lumbermen.

Governor Scofield did not settle any arrangement to continue cutting Hines logs for the balance of the contract time, which means a year after next season.

One of the party when asked if the arrangement had been completed, as to whether Mr. Scofield would or would not fulfill his contract for sawing, said positively that Mr. Scofield had not decided as yet.

It is likely his answer will be forthcoming this afternoon or tomorrow.

In the meantime the mill men who have capacity that is not being worked up to at present, will be consulted, and if the contract cannot be carried out on the Wisconsin side, the 50,000,000 feet of logs now lying in the water here, will be divided between local millers.

The mills that are being considered available for the contracts for pieces of the 50,000,0000 feet are as follows: The Lesure, Peyton, Clark-Jackson and Scott-Graff.

Lumbermen believe that there is just about enough milling plants in the city to handle the 50,000,000 extra feet of logs, and as that amount must be cut this summer, it is imperative that the contracts go outside the original contract.

There is hardly a chance for the Scofield people to build a mill that could be put in operation this summer and handle the logs ready for cutting at this time.

It is also said that Governor Scofield is not over anxious to carry on the contract. He made the contract four years ago, when labor was comparatively cheap and times were depressed, and his figure was $2.12½ per 1000 feet for cutting. The saw millers are receiving 50 cents a 1000 more than that on present contracts in some cases, or nearly that much.

A large number of lumbermen and millers bustled about the Spalding lobby this morning and afternoon, but the final word from Governor Scofield has not been received as yet, and it will prevent the action of the Hines company.

CARRINGTON IS AT WORK

The Carrington succeeded the Estelio in the Park Point ferry service today. With clean white upper-works and a newly painted black hull the Carrington presents a fine appearance.

Charles S. Hartman, to whom was awarded the contract for the ferry service during the season, has apparently spared nothing in the way of efforts and money in fitting out, and when the Carrington steamed out of the Lake avenue slip on her first trip late this afternoon enough compliments were showered on her to cause her to list heavily to starboard.

The boat will make regular 20-minute trips across the ship canal from early morning until midnight and after midnight the trip across will be made every thirty minutes, the Carrington laying up on the Park Point side when not running.

In the morning between 6:45 and 8:25, during the noon hour and in the evening from 4:35 until 7:35 the Carrington will make stops at the foot of Fifth avenue west, for the accommodation of Minnesota Point passengers crossing to and from their work.

In selecting a crew Mr. Hartman says he has aimed to get men that were competent and accommodating. Capt. James Pierce and Engineer Peter Berg will be in charge of the day crew and the night crew will be under Capt. John Carroll with Armour Harvey, at the engine.

OLD AND NEW WAY.

Hyomei the Latest Scientific Discovery For the Cure of Catarrh.

The discovery of Hyomei has wrought a wonderful change in the treatment of catarrh.

Prior to three years ago the medicines ordinarily employed in the cure of this disease were nauseating drugs and worthless tonics. In some instances they benefited, but the improvement was not lasting.

With Hyomei you take into the air passages of the throat and head a balsamic air that goes to the minutest cells, effectually killing all germs and microbes of catarrh. It enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood, and restores health to the whole system. Many astonishing testimonials have been received from those who have been cured by Hyomei. N. G. Durham, 23 Wellington street, Boston, Mass., writes: "I have suffered from catarrh for a number of years. I tried Hyomei and found it the only cure for that disease I ever used."

Perhaps the strongest evidence that can be given to doubters is the fact that S. P. Boyee has so much faith in Hyomei that he sells every package under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Now is the time to begin the use of Hyomei.

IS CLERGUE IN IT?

A Montreal Dispatch Says He Is After Section 30.

Section Thirty Company Is Now Exploring the Property.

A dispatch from Montreal says that negotiations are being closed there for the purchase of the iron deposits on the section 30 property, in this county, by the Consolidated Lake Superior company.

The negotiations are being conducted on the side of the Consolidated Lake Superior company by President C. Shields and F. H. Clergue.

Mr. Clergue visited the property on the Vermillion range three weeks ago, and at the time was accompanied by a representative of heavy English capital, a Mr. Harvey, from Liverpool.

At the time of his visit there was a good deal of speculation as to what the significance of the trip was, though the local representatives of the Clergue interests were vehement in denouncing a rumor that the section 30 deposits were the cause of the visit to the Vermilion range, the first visit of Mr. Clergue to this locality.

The dispatch further stated that Henry K. McHarg, who has recently been elected a director of the Consolidated company, and who is a big soldiated company, and who is a big banker in New York city, is at the Soo, where he will conclude arrangements for the deal upon the arrival of Messrs. Clergue and Shields.

The section 30 property is now being explored under a lease held by the Section Thirty company, which has two years in which to complete its investigation. Secretary Woodbridge of the Section Thirty company said today that he did not believe such a deal was in progress.

The names given as backers of the Section Thirty company, or holders of the provisional leases under which the explorations are being made, are those of D. E. Woodbridge, J. L. Washburn and H. K. McHarg. Whether these men are behind the Section Thirty company or not could not be proved by any inquiries in Duluth today.

The Section Thirty company is still working at the explorations on the property. The drills have been working for the past three months, and the results from the drilling is being guarded with secrecy. Fifty or sixty test pits have been sunk to the ledge, all showing ore deposits at the depths expected. New drills have been put on recently, and it is said that all the machines are in ore.

From information available in Duluth it cannot be ascertained whether or not the indications have proved sufficiently definite to make practical estimates of the ore deposits. The sole question is, it is said, is as to the amount of ore on the property, the quality and its presence in some quantity having been long established.

For months rumors have been floating about in Duluth to the effect that the Clergue interests are backing the Section Thirty company. This rumor has never been satisfactorily confirmed, and has been denied many times, apparently with authority.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, May 12.—Richard Henry Stoddard, the poet, died today at his residence in this city. Mrs. Stoddard died two years ago, and his son, Loriless than a year ago, and his son, Lorimer Stoddard, is also dead. Mr. Stoddard was the only one of the family left for whom the name of the section 30 deposits were the cause of the visit to the Vermilion range, the first visit of Mr. Clergue to this locality.

Chicago, May 12.—Rynere Van Sickle, said to have been the oldest living railway engineer, is dead in the alms house of Winnebago county, Ill., at the age of 96 years. He was a graduate of Princeton university and after leaving school had an engine on the old Bordentown & Trenton railway. He had lived in Rockford since 1854.

York, Pa., May 12.—Rev. Peter Anstadt, D. D., the oldest minister in the general synod of the Lutheran church died at his home here today. At one time he was a member of the faculty of Susquehanna university at Selins Grove; filled a pulpit at Gettsburg and for many years was engaged in the publication of church and Sunday school literature.

Both recently arrived here with their families.

POOR DOMINIE

Between the Devil and the Deep Sea.

A clergyman of Gresham, Neb., who drank coffee for many years suffered from chronic insomnia and from terrific headaches when he quit coffee. He says: "I have been a very heavy user of coffee for so long and have seen its effects so clearly that there is now no doubt in my mind concerning its injurious effects upon the nervous system.

"While a coffee user I was unable to sleep for hours after retiring at night, and on the other hand terrific headaches resulted if the regular hour for drinking coffee passed and I did not get it so I was in a miserable position.

"But I found a firm friend in Postum Cereal Coffee and from the very time that I adopted Postum all these evil effects vanished. I now enjoy sound sleep and improved appetite and a decidedly clearer complexion and I am convinced that better health and a longer life would be the result of its general use. I have a friend who has been a user of Postum for several years and the story of her recovery from neuralgia of the stomach simply by using Postum in place of coffee seems almost too wonderful to be true. Many times she was near death's door, and the doctors had frequently given her case up as hopeless, but she was entirely healed by leaving off coffee and using Postum. It is a pleasure to say these good things about Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

NEW ENGINES FOR MISSABE

The six new consolidated locomotives just delivered to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, will be operating tomorrow.

The last two of the locomotives have arrived and are in the shops at Proctorknott for overhauling, and are being put in shape for active work.

Four of the engines have been given a trial up and down the road and have given the best of satisfaction, the new machines being the leaders of the road now in pulling qualities.

The locomotives complete the completes the consignment entered a year ago for April delivery and that they have reached here by early May is a source of self-congratulation among the officials of the road.

The cost of the engines was approximately $90,000.

Great Audience Certain To Greet Famous Songstress.

Madame Schumann-Heink will arrive in the city at 7 o'clock from Minneapolis over the Northern Pacific railway, accompanied by Miss Josephine Hartman, of New York, the accompanist of the Metropolitan opera house in New York city, who will play her accompaniments in the recital at the Lyceum tomorrow evening. They will be guests at the Spalding during their stay here.

Duluth will give this great artist, probably the greatest of the world's contraltos, the welcome that is due her. The reservation of seats has been most satisfactory. The dress circle is sold out except for the chairs in the rear of the regular seats, the family circle is sold and there are not many seats left on the lower floor. The balcony seats are excellent, however, for a concert such as this, and will doubtless be filled. The gallery, too, will be opened and arrangements have been made to have elevator service for those who wish to go to the gallery.

The program will have the words in English of all the songs Madame Schumann-Heink will sing.

GOES TO THE JURY.

E. E. Esterly's Libel Suit in Jury's Hands.

Civil actions are still being disposed of in district court. In Judge Dibell's room the libel action of Esterly against Bagley was argued this morning and went to the jury shortly after 11 o'clock. The jury was out for dinner this noon, not having agreed on a verdict at that time. The plaintiff asks for $5000.

In Judge Cant's room the personal injury action of Brisson against the Minnesota Land and Construction company is not likely to be finished today. The plaintiff was formerly a brakeman on the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road and lost a foot through an accident on Taber's spur.

In Judge Ensign's room the replevin action of B. B. Larson against J. A. Reitan came on for trial this morning, but on stipulation the jury was waived and the court directed a verdict for the plaintiff for $300.

The personal injury actions of George Hasty against the Northern Pacific Railway company and of Charles V. O'Harra against the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company, were stricken from the calendar. A jury was drawn this morning for the trial of the action brought by Alex Renland, former manager, against the Finnish Mercantile company, of Virginia. The case is on trial this afternoon in Judge Dibell's room.

Johnson had received his appointment from Mayor Ames and later on went on the bond of the former mayor.

Wales, ex-deputy county treasurer, ex-president of the council, recent candidate for county treasurer and one of the most geenrally known men in Toledo, was arrested today on the charge of embezzlement on complaint of former County Treasurer Joseph L. ANSWER IS PRESENTED

Great Northern Trainmen Consider Reply of Manager Ward.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At 2 o'clock this afternoon, General Manager Ward delivered his reply to the Great Northern trainmen, who at once went into executive session to consider it, without making it public.

At a little before 3 o'clock Mr. Ward said that his communication to the men today had been simply an appeal for consideration of further arguments in support of the contention of the railroad company, and that it was in no sense an ultimatum. If the men still refuse to accept the company's propositions, he will present a new statement.

THE ROYAL NEIGHBORS

Indianapolis, May 12.—The supreme camp of Royal Neighbors of America, an organization of women, convened in this city today in annual convention. Two important matters will come up. One is the election of supreme officers for the next term, which will be held Thursday morning, and the other is a radical change in the by-laws, which, if made, will mean a considerable increase in membership of the association. At present no woman is eligible to membership who is not the wife of a member of the Modern Woodmen of America or a "blood relation" of a member of the Woodmen. No men are eligible except those who are members of the Modern Woodmen. The change proposed would allow any woman over 17 years old, of good moral character, to become a member. The Modern Woodmen of the World meet here July 16.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS

Washington, May 12.—At 3 o'clock this afternoon the sixth triennial session of the congress of American physicians and surgeons convened at the Columbia theater. The congress includes in its membership many of the most eminent medical and surgical specialists in the country, several hundred of whom were present when it was called to order by Dr. Walter Keen, of Philadelphia, professor of surgery at the Jefferson medical college.

During the session of the congress, which will occupy the greater part of three days, papers by eminent authorities will be read on the spread of malaria, yellow fever and kindred diseases, on the prevention of diseases among employes on the Panama canal, and on the discoveries made by the late Dr. Walter Reed and their value to medical science. Sixteen societies of specialists affiliated with the congress held meetings during the day for the discussion of subjects directly related to their work.

FREIGHT BILL PASSES.

Madison, Wis., May 12.—The bill to prohibit any increase in freight rates was ordered to endorsement and third reading in the assembly today by a vote of 56 to 34.

CALLED TO ILLINOIS.

University of California, May 12.—Joel Stebbins, a resident graduate who recently took the degree of doctor of philosophy in astronomy, has been called to the directorship of the observatory of the university of Illinois. In 1899, he became assistant in the observatory of the university of Wisconsin. Since coming to California, a year ago, he has devoted his time between study at Berkeley and practical work on Mount Hamilton.

TELEGRAPHERS WELL PLEASED.

St. Paul, May 12.—An Ironwood, Mich., special to the Dispatch says: The telegraphers of the Wisconsin Central railroad have been granted a schedule covering over time, seniority, publication of vacancies to be filled, readjustment of salaries and other matters of more or less importance. The telegraphers who presented the case to General Manager Potter at Milwaukee speak very highly of his courtesy and liberal views of the question involved.

SURGEONS CRITICISE METHODS OF LORENZ

Austrian Savant In Hands of His Competitors.

Majority, However, Were Favorably Disposed.

Washington, May 13.—Fifteen of the component societies of the congress of American physicians and surgeons held meetings today and some of them concluded their work.

The methods of Adolph Lorenz, the Austrian surgeon, in the treatment of congenital hip disease and club feet furnished the feature of general interest at the meeting of the American Surgical and Orthopedic association. To the surgical association the case of Charles Willetts, operated upon last November by Dr. Lorenz for club feet, was presented. Although one of excessive difficulty, the operation was pronounced a perfect success. No discussion specially condemnatory of Lorenz's method was elicited, but some of the more conservative members were adverse in their criticism. The statement was made that the operation of Dr. Lorenz on Lolita Armour, daughter of J. Ogden Armour, of Chicago, to perform which the Australian surgeon had come to the United States, had not proved entirely successful. It was evident from the tone of the discussion that a majority of the surgeons were supporters of the Lorenz methods. No action, however, was taken.

The storm center of the discussion of the Lorenz method was at the session of the American Orthopedic association, before which Dr. A. J. Steele, of St. Louis, cited the case of a boy 8 years old, afflicted with hip disease, who had been operated upon by the Austrian surgeon and subsequently had died of meningitis. He did not attribute the death directly to the operation, but warned his colleagues that the Lorenz methods ought to be employed with great care. Dr. H. Augustus Wilson, of the Jefferson hospital, Philadelphia, presented a report upon twenty-three cases observed in the hospital, eight of which were operated on by Dr. Lorenz. Dr. Wilson made a defense of the Lorenz methods, and as he had assisted the Austrian surgeon in all the cases presented, his judgment carried great weight. Dr. W. M. L. Coplin, of Philadelphia, reported the case of a 7-year old girl, who died after Dr. Lorenz had operated upon her, the death in the view of Dr. Coplin, being due to the shock.

Dr. G. W. Davis, of the university of Pennsylvania, read a paper in which he maintained that the Lorenz method was too severe and that it had been accompanied by injuries, paralysis and death.

Dr. E. H. Bradford, of Boston, while he did not quite approve of the Lorenz practice, expressed a great admiration for Professor Lorenz. One of his objects in attending the meeting was to offer resolutions of thanks to Professor Lorenz for coming to this country and demonstrating his methods.

RAILROAD RATES

On Coal and Lumber In Minnesota Being Investigated.

Roads Must Answer to Railroad and Warehouse Commission.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—An investigation of coal and lumber rates in the state was taken up by the state railroad and warehouse commission today at 10 o'clock. Attorney General W. B. Douglas conducted the interrogations.

The executive committee of the Municipal League of Minnesota, following a decision reached Tuesday, was present in a body.

The investigation was started by the complaint of Litchfield dealers, who allege that an unjust discrimination existed against them. All the railroads operating within the state have been cited to appear before the commission.

The league committee will complain to the commission that the Minneapolis & St. Louis has increased its coal rates to New Ulm from $4.75 to $2.50.

DRAW NOT OPEN

Steamer Crashes Into Great Western Bridge at St. Paul.

Serious Break-Up of Boat, Logs and Bridge Occurred.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because Engineer Cook of the Great Western drawbridge, went to the end of the pier and could not get back in time to swing the draw for the steamer J. J. Hill and her tow of three brails of logs, a serious break-up occurred at 9 o'clock this morning.

The steamer, in charge of Capt. D. C. Anthony of Hastings was backing down from the works of the St. Paul Boom company, pulling with her a large raft of logs belonging to the Burlington Log company. Capt. Anthony says that he whistled the customary long blast for the bridge, but when the bridge failed to answer he was unable to hold his raft in the swift current. The steamer struck the bridge stern-on, smashing about half the buckets of the wheel and buckling the hog-chains.

Fortunately for the boat the raft booms broke, permitting the logs to spread and float down the river past the steamer. Capt. Anthony quickly ran a line to the sheer boom, and by means of his forward donkey engine "niggered" his vessel to the boom, where she is moored at present. The damage to the boat is estimated at about $300.

The steamer Cyclone, in response to the signalling of the J. J. Hill, got up steam and began picking up the broken raft. The accident will cost in the neighborhood of $1000 in repairs and for time in recovering logs.

TWIN CITY BUSINESS MEN MEET TRAINMEN

EMPLOYER LIABLE

For Injuries to Employes Caused By Others' Negligence.

The Wisconsin Legislature Passes Such a Bill Unanimously.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—In the assembly today, the new co-employe bill, making employers liable for injuries to employes, caused by negligence of other employes, was passed unanimously. The substitute bill prohibiting political lobbyists from attending to influence votes of members of the legislature, was passed without debate, 49 to 33.

The bill relative to trusts and combinations was passed, 70 to 15.

The bill to prohibit an increase in freight rates was passed, 55 to 37.

The senate bill defining criminal anarchy and providing a penalty, was ordered to a third reading.

In the senate the bill requiring the owners of mines to make reports, was killed. The child labor bill was unanimously passed.

DIED FROM INJURIES.

Buffalo, Pa., May 13.—First Lieutenant William Clark, who was injured at the Diamond mills fire last night, died today. The loss is estimated today at $200,000, partly insured.

Are Trying to Adjust Great Northern Trouble.

A Strike Would Be Destructive to Business.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the Great Northern trainmen have almost completed plans for a strike came out in today's conference with the Twin City business men. Mr. Garretson assured the business men that nothing would be done up to 6 o'clock, but as for what might happen at anytime after that hour he could make no promises.

The grand officers, he said, were powerless to arrest the progress of certain arrangements which were "in process of culmination," unless given good reasons for so doing.

Mr. Newman, too, in the course of his remarks, made a significant allusion, which he closed abruptly without finishing his sentence.

"We cannot delay the weapons in our hands," he said.

"These men are coming and they are raising"—he changed the subject suddenly.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative business men from Minneapolis and St. Paul, to the number of nearly forty, met this morning with the Great Northern railway trainmen's grievance committee in the rooms of the St. Paul Jobbers' union. The meeting had been called by J. W. Cooper, president of the St. Paul Jobbers' union, who stated that a strike would be destructive to Northwestern business interests, and that the business men of the Northwest were vitally interested in bringing about an amicable settlement of the differences between the railroad management and its employes. Messrs. Garreston and Newman, representing the brotherhood organizations, were present and avowed themselves anxious to avoid any action that would work hardship to any interest, while at the same time determined to protect the men whom they represented. After a preliminary open meeting the doors were closed and the matter was further considered in executive session.

Grand Master Garrettson was the chief speaker for the men in today's conference, going fully into the differences between the men and the company, and explaining how the brotherhood was bound by its agreement with the Southern roads to insist on its contention regarding double headers.

Finally a committee of seven was appointed by the conference to wait upon General Manager Ward and learn the position of road today and to find some means of bringing the two sides to an agreement. This committee will call on Mr. Ward this afternoon.

Kansas City, May 13.—The state free labor bureau has an order from St. Paul for 100 railroad conductors to run freight and passenger trains on the Great Northern road, but there are no applicants for the positions. Experience is not necessary, the order says, but capable men are wanted. The salary offered is $140 a month.

WILL BE NO ATHLETIC CONTEST OF INTERNATIONAL TEAMS

Yale Sends Declination to Oxford-Cambridge Authorities Because Harvard Did Not Care to Participate Under the Existing Conditions.

London, May 12.—The Oxford-Cambridge authorities have received a cable message from the athletic authorities of Yale announcing that the proposed inter-university athletic contest in London during the month of July is declined, owing to Harvard's refusal to take part in it.

Cambridge, Mass., May 12.—Professor Ira N. Hollis of the Harvard athletic committee said today that Harvard had never understood that the English universities were anxious for the American universities to meet them in track athletic contests.

"We understood," he said, "that Oxford and Cambridge were willing to send us a challenge if we desired. We have never expressed a desire for an international meet this year, and we have not received an out-and-out challenge. It seems that a letter was received by some one in New York, conveying the idea, as I have said, that if Harvard and Yale were willing, then the English universities would extend the challenge. We got the impression that they were not particularly anxious for the meet. We feel, also, that the plan for an international meet, which was worked up wholly on this side, was proposed too late. We took up these games merely from the view point as to whether they promote athletics, and when an opportunity to hold athletic games comes so late in the term, we usually reject them."

SENTENCING OF AMES POSTPONED

Minneapolis, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. A. A. Ames was not sentenced this morning, as it was expected he would be. His bonds were not in shape for presentation and the court decided to extend the stay until Thursday. It is expected that bail will have been arranged for so that sentence may be passed tomorrow.

PAID BILLS WITH FORGED CHECKS

New York, May 13.—Philip Germond, 25 years old, has been brought to this city from Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he was arrested yesterday, to be arraigned on a charge of passing forged checks. Police Inspector McCluskey says Germond is the son of Rev. Dr. Philip Germond, pastor of the Chelsea M. E. church, of this city. The inspector alleges that Germond, traveling with his wife, would stop at the best hotels and tendered large checks in payment for small bills, pocket the difference and quit the city. Since December Germond is said to have passed checks at St. Louis, Denver, Fulton, Neb., Washington, D. C., and Hartford, Conn.

VALUABLE VIOLIN

Pawned In New York By Hungarian Violinist.

New York, May 13.—What experts say is probably a genuine Guarnerius violin, was pawned recently in a shop in this city for $20. The pawnbroker with whom it is pledged says if the instrument is a Guarnerius violin it is worth $5000.

It was pledged by a Hungarian violinist. The following inscription is discernible inside of the instrument:

"Joseph Guarnerius, Fecit Cremotae, Anno 1742, A. P. S."

The violinist said the instrument had been discovered three years ago by one of his pupils, James Beveridge, of Idaho, who was studying in Italy, among the effect of an Italian nobleman, who had become bankrupt. Mr. Beveridge is said to have bought the instrument and to have given it to the violinist in appreciation of his instruction.

It is the opinion of experts that there is but one other of its kind in New York. H. O. Havemeyer owns it. Mr. Havemeyer's violin was made in 1737 and is of much lighter color than the one in the pawnshop.

SIMONDS DEATH AN ACCIDENT.

Chicago, May 13.—According to a coroner's jury which returned a verdict today, the death of Edward Simonds, the wealthy New York broker, resulted from an accident. The verdict stated that Simonds came to his death by falling on the steps of a building at Monroe and Dearborn streets.

NON-UNION HEARSE DRIVER

Nearly Broke Up a Funeral at Toledo.

Toledo, O., May 13.—During the funeral over Mrs. Mary Kamm here, the drivers of hacks struck and refused to work because the hearse was driven by a non-union man.

The officiating undertakers filled the strikers' places just in time to prevent a scene, as the casket containing the remains was being taken to the hearse just as the affair was started.

PLANS OF FIALA.

New York, May 13.—Anthony Fiala, the Arctic explorer, who has started for Tromdeheim, Norway, whence his expedition is to sail for the north, said before leaving that the distance from the base he expected to make in Prince Rhdolph Land was 602 miles. This he hoped to traverse at a daily average of ten miles, and if this could be done, he declared himself confident of success.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

Washington, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Increase—Edward Fallon, of Glencoe, $55; Elijah T. Sexton, of Buffalo, $10. Widows—Minor of Sherman Gardner, of Eagle Bend, $14.

DENVER STRIKE MAY CAUSE GOOD PEOPLE TO GO HUNGRY

The Cooks, the Waiters, the Butchers, the Bakers, Quit Work and Others May Follow.

Denver, May 13.—Two hundred cooks, 600 waiters, 500 butchers and 160 bakers were called out on strike this morning by the pure food council. Nearly all the restaurants in the city are closed. The butchers' walkout included those included at the stock yards and many of the meat markets. The union bakers were called out from not only the houses deemed unfair, but also those against which labor has no grievance.

Tonight the retail clerks and international stationary engineers will hold a meeting to vote on the question of joining in the strike. It is feared that these movements will inaugurate a general strike of all the trades and labor unions of the city.

The cause of the trouble is the refusal of various bakeries and groceries to make contracts with the unions.

Chicago, May 13.—Four hundred blacksmiths and their helpers employed in the shops of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, and about the same number in the shops of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad struck today after being refused an advance in wages.

The strike of cable splicers of the Chicago Transportation company, which has been in progress for several weeks, has spread to the underground cable pullers, the latter having refused today to continue at work.

New York, May 13.—Pending the arbitration of their grievances, most of the 6000 strikers returned to work on the subway today. Twelve hundred members of one union of the rockmen and excavators refused to obey the instructions of their president to return to work. Their reason was that if they did so they would be assessed for the support of other members of their union who are on strike from various city buildings.

The Team Drivers' union voted to resume work in the subway and await arbitration.

Pittsburg, May 13.—There is no probability of an early adjustment of the strike of the brickmakers and clay miners. From indications the fight will be a long one, as the Harbison-Walker Refractories company is determined to ignore the union, and the association refuses to work unless the company recognizes it.

The Harbison-Walker company intends to try to run its plants with nonunion men, 150 of whom were taken from New York to Clearfield yesterday. They were met by the strikers, who persuaded them not to go to work.

San Francisco, May 13.—E. H. Harriman, president of the Southern Pacific, left for the East last night. He was accompanied by General Manager Kruttschnitt, who will travel with him part of the way. It was said that Mr. Harriman will personally take a hand in the settlement of the boilermakers' strike on the Union Pacific and that a conference has been arranged between Harriman and National President McNeil of the Boilermakers' union, to be held on Harriman's train while he is proceeding East over the Union Pacific. It is believed in local railroad circles that Harriman and McNeil will arrive at some solution of the trouble on the Union Pacific and thus prevent the threatened sympathetic strike of boilermakers on the Southern Pacific lines west of Ogden and El Paso.

New York, May 13.—The city is in the possession of the striking dock laborers, cables the Valparaiso correspondent of the Herald. One prominent man has been killed, six are wounded and fifty of the mob are dead or dying.

A battle has taken place in the streets of the city in which the police were driven to the barracks by the superior force of the strikers. Greater bloodshed is anticipated. The mob has surrounded the offices of El Mercuro and threatens to sack and burn the establishment. Thousands of the strikers are marching on Admiral Montt's privae house, swearing vengeance on its occupants and destruction of the building. The authorities seem powerless to check the mob, and owing to the bitter feeling against the police it has been decided to keep them in the barracks rather than further excite the strikers by an ineffectual attempt to quell them. Owing to the intense confusion it is impossible to ascertain the exact number of dead or the amount of damage done.

Santiago, Chile, May 13.—The strike of dock laborers at Valparaiso is becoming more serious. The strikers, after setting fire to the quay as well as to the offices of the South American Steamship company, had a number of encounters with the police during which ten persons were killed and 200 injured. A detachment of 3000 troops has been dispatched to Valparaiso to quell the disorder. The government has refused all offers to compromise the difficulties and is determined to adopt the sternest measures to restore order.

Milwaukee, May 13.—The International Association of Machinists today took decisive action leading to a straight nine hour day in place of a fifty-four or fifty-five hours week, which rule applies in many of the shops throughout the country, based on a ten-hour day for five days and the additional four or five hours on Sunday. The convention voted to discourage the plan of hours which now obtains and all new agreements or contracts must conform to a straight nine-hour day.

It was also decided to abolish the system of piece work, commencing with July 1, 1904.

Fremont, O., May 13.—There was no demonstration when the Clauss Shear plant was re-opened early today, although a large crowd of men had gathered in the neighborhood. Scarcely a score of workmen returned to work. Contrary to reports the three negro prisoners who took part in the shooting affray of Saturday night, have not as yet been brought back here. They are still in jail at Norwalk.

Mobile, Ala., May 13.—A local freight train left over the Mobile & Ohio this morning, manned by non-union men brought to Mobile to take the places of the strikers.

DETAILS FOR DISCUSSION OF LABOR QUESTIONS ARRANGED

Challenge of John C. Havemeyer Has Resulted In An Agreement By Which the Trades Unions May Present Their Side of the Question.

New York, May 13.—At a conference between John C. Havemeyer, of Yonkers, and the representative of the local branch of the American Federation of Labor the details in reference to the public discussion of labor questions were arranged.

Mr. Havemeyer says he does not propose to be drawn into a discussion with any single labor union. The questions to be determined are:

1. Shall employers be permitted to conduct a lawful business in a lawful way without the dictation of walking delegates from irresponsible and lawless unions?

2. Shall employes who refuse to join a labor union be permitted to earn support for themselves and families by honest labor?

These questions will be divided into about twenty subdivisions. Owing to what he considers a misunderstanding of his invitation, Mr. Havemeyer has sent a reply to the letter of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of this city, saying they have mistaken the character of his invitation in two respects. He says:

"In the first place, I did not propose a debate or discussion. The meeting is solely that the trades unions of Yonkers may have an opportunity of presenting their side of the question. In the second place, the invitation is to all of the unions and not to any single one which may be disposed to accept.

"I do not wish to be technical, and will say that if the carpenters, masons and plumbers were to accept I should be satisfied. To secure a better understanding and prevent delay, permit me to make a more definite statement regarding the proposed meeting:

"1. It will be presided over by men of undoubted character and fairness, subject, if desired, to the approval of a committee of unions.

"2. There will be the same freedom as at a political or other meeting."

GIRL KIDNAPED TWENTY-THREE YEARS AGO FINDS PARENTS

Ethel Clarke of Baltimore Was Stolen By a Tramp Out of Revenge and Grew Up In Various Orphan Asylums Until of Age.

Baltimore, May 13.—Ethel Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Clarke, who was kidnaped twenty-three years ago, is once again in the home from which she was stolen.

One morning in the spring of 1880, Mrs. Clarke arose early to go to a grocery store, two or three blocks distant from her home, then in a sparsely settled neighborhood. On returning she was confronted by a tramp whom she had before befriended and who demanded his breakfast immediately. Mrs. Clarke told him he would have to wait until she saw fit to give him something. The fellow cursed and threatened her. That afternoon Ethel disappeared.

On the last anniversary of her disappearance one of the local newspapers published a story of the kidnaping. A few days later a handsome young woman called upon Mrs. Clarke.

"My name is Ethel Clarke and I believe I am your daughter," said the visitor. Then she told that she remembered being taken away when very young by a rough man and carried to an orphan asylum in Washington, where she remained twelve years. She was transferred to other institutions, where she remained until she was 18 years of age, since which time she has been earning her living in a silk factory in this city.

The fullest investigation has been made resulting in the positive identification of the young woman as the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke.

ASSAULTED AND ROBBED.

Monroe, Mich., Man Is Left For Dead.

Monroe, Mich., May 13—Three masked men battered in the door of Laurence Gregory's home, five miles northeast from here, last night, bound Gregory and then robbed him of $56 in cash, a certificate of deposit for $200 and a check for $340. Gregory, who is a bachelor, aged 69 years, lived alone in the house. During the struggle with the thieves he was struck on the head with a blunt instrument and evidently left for dead.

MARQUIS MARTIN MALONEY.

Rome, May 13.—Cardinal Satolli recently applied to the pope to confer a title of nobility on Martin Maloney, of Philadelphia, Pa., because of his large church offerings and his efforts to further Catholicism, especially in constructing a parochial church at Trenton, N. J., and the pontiff after receiving satisfactory information from the archbishop of Philadelphia and the bishop of Trenton, has issued a brief creating Mr. Maloney a marquis.

A MURDER MYSTERY AT PITTSBURG

Pittsburg, Pa., May 13.—The finding of the body of an unknown man floating in the Monongahela river, at the foot of Short street, this morning, may develop into a murder mystery. A handkerchief had been forced into the man's mouth and there were several wounds on the back of the head. The body is that of a man about 60 years old, well dressed, and has the appearance of being above the class of people that usually frequent the water front. The body had been in the water not more than twelve hours. The face indicated that it had been dragged along the ground, as it was completely covered with mud and the skin in many places was broken. The police are making a thorough investigation.

SUITORS FIGHT DUEL WITH CLUBS

Morristown, N. J., May 13.—As the result of a duel fought at Wharton over Rosa Rolaski, an 18-year-old Hungarian girl, who told her suitors that they would have to fight for her, Henry Waldo is in the hospital in a badly damaged condition. Rosa helped to arrange the duel, which was to take place with clubs in the presence of no witnesses save Rosa and a young man whom she asked to accompany her to the place. She watched her admirers cudgel each other with their clubs until neither could stand, and then she departed with her friend and they were married by a justice of the peace. The duellists were found later by mine employes, both were unconscious, and Waldo so badly bruised that he was brought to the hospital.

SWINDLING SCHEME NIPPED IN BUD

New York, May 13.—Guaranteeing investors 4 per cent a week, according to circulars seized by the police, a man giving his name as Thomas O'Connell, who said he lived at the Rossmore hotel, and Frank Brown, who has been living at the Criterion, have been arrested on a charge of swindling A. T. Miller, of Lebanon, Pa., out of $1000, says the Herald. O'Connell and Brown are said to constitute the Capital Commission company, the circulars of which inform its prospective patrons that it has inside information on the movements of the stock markets and can guarantee the 4 per cent a week dividends. When complaint was made by Mr. Miller that he had been swindled, detectives called at the offices of the company, and O'Connell and Brown were placed under arrest, charged with grand larceny. According to the detectives the concern has been doing business only two or three weeks, and only a small amount of money had so far been placed in its hands for investment.

IN DISTRICT COURT

Damages Asked From City Because of Garfield Viaduct.

Fred Brisson's Personal Injury Case Still on Trial.

The action of Lyman T. Wilie against the city of Duluth is being tried by a jury in Judge Ensign's room in district court. The plaintiff asks damages on account of the Garfield avenue viaduct, which, he alleges, has caused his improved lot at Garfield avenue and Michigan street, to deteriorate in value.

The suit is one of four similar actions which have been brought against the city since the viaduct was built. Two of the plaintiffs own improved lots and two unimproved lots. Each case will be tried separately, as there is a difference in detail of the amount of damages claimed. The other plaintiffs are Robert Smith, G. G. Dickerman and Cyrus B. Thomas.

The plaintiffs are represented in the respective actions by M. Douglas, while the city's interests are defended by City Attorney Oscar Mitchell.

In Judge Cant's room the personal action of Fred Brisson against the Minnesota Land and Construction company is still on trial. Among the witnesses called in the plaintiff's behalf this morning was Mrs. Stuart Bates, widow of Dr. Stuart Bates, of Virginia, who was a nurse at the hospital and cared for Brisson after he received his injuries on the logging railway. Mrs. Bates' testimony was mainly regarding Brisson's condition while in the hospital and the treatment he received.

The trial of the action brought by Alex Rentlund against the Finnish Mercantile company, of Hibbing, is still on in Judge Dibell's room. This morning C. B. Miller, counsel for the plaintiff, moved the court that the jury be instructed to return a verdict for the plaintiff in the full amount asked, and argument on the motion continued the rest of the day. The plaintiff was formerly manager of the mercantile company and seeks an accounting, claiming that he has not received all that is due him. The evidence shows that the book accounts of the firm are in a rather muddled condition.

The case of the United States for use and benefit of W. W. Hargrave et al against Francis L. McDonald et al has been stricken from the calendar.

A REUNION OF MASONS

Masonic Bodies of This District Meet Next Month.

There will be a gathering of the Masonic lodges of the Third Masonic district of the state in Duluth next month, following out a decision reached last year, when a similar reunion and banquet was so instructive, enjoyable and successful that it was decided to make it an annual affair.

S. L. Frazer, district deputy grand master, is sending out notices to the Duluth lodges that the reunion will probably be held about June 10, and asking them to appoint committees to confer with him relative to the arrangements for the gathering. The lodges in the Duluth district include the three in Duluth, as well as the following outside ones: Cloquet, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Eveleth, Tower and Two Harbors.

The idea is to have the nine lodges come together in the Masonic Temple, where there will be a school of instruction in the afternoon, conducted by W. H. Patton, one of the conservators of the work in this state. In the evening one of the degrees will be worked, and this will be followed by a banquet.

It is expected that the reunion will bring a considerable number of Masons to the city.

Washington, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schedule of selections of lands upon which there is timber to be sold in the Chippewa reservation has been made up at the land office and all is in readiness to advertise for proposals. The selections made now only require the approval of W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office, and Secretary Hitchcock. These officials are now absent—Richards in Minnesota and the secretary in Arkansas. Both, however, are expected to return early next week and will doubtless approve at once the selections which have been made by their subordinates. BERRY HOWARD

Will Not Talk About the Goebel Trial.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 13.—The News says that Berry Howard of near Straight creek, who was a leading figure in the Goebel assassination case, and who was subsequently acquitted, was in this city on Wednesday in the interest of the Hon. Grant Forester, who accompanied him. Howard, who is a relative of Forester, left for his home on the night train.

Howard is of tremendous size, slow of movement, and stolid, but seems to be of good natured disposition. His eyes are a light blue, his hair is dark, and his mustache, which was cut off during the Frankfort days, is of a sandy hue. He looks like a well to do farmer, which, in truth, he is and has a big bank account.

Asked concerning the Frankfort trial, policy was to keep silent on that question, which is now in progress, the Bell county he replied that he thought the best "I do not wish to injure anybody by talking," he said.

Howard's home on Stony Fork is a mile and a half from Straight creek, and ten miles from Pineville. He will devote his entire time to farming this year, he said.

TO CLEAN LOTS

The Health Commissioner Will Force New Health Ordinance.

People Must Clean Up Vacant Lots or Pay Fine.

Health Commissioner Robinson has begun a campaign against dirty vacant lots.

Over a thousand notices will be sent out by the health department giving property owners twenty-four hours to clean up vacant lots or be liable to the penalties of the new ordinance recently passed by the council.

This ordinance reads as follows:

"Section 1.—It shall be unlawful for any owner, agent, lessee or occupant of any private property in the city of Duluth to permit or suffer any accumulation of garbage, manure, offal, rags, soiled paper, tin cans, old shoes, rubbers, filth, or any mixture of ashes and garbage, or any kind of filth or decaying animal or vegetable substances whatsoever, to exist upon property of which they have control.

"Section 2.—It shall be made the duty of every owner, agent, lessee or occupant of any private property within the city of Duluth to remove any accumulation of garbage or other kinds of filth mentioned in the first section of this ordinance, at their own expense, within twenty-four hours after they shall be notified so to do by the board of health, the health commissioner or any health inspector of the health department; and it is hereby made the duty of the board of health to cause to be removed from any such private property any accumulation of garbage or other kinds of filth mentioned in the first section of this ordinance, in case the same is not removed within twenty-four hours after notice so to do is served upon the said owner, agent, lessee or occupant thereof; and all expenses incurred by said board of health in making such removal shall be collected by the city of Duluth from said owner, agent, lessee or occupant, or any other person responsible for such accumulation, by action or otherwise, as may be directed by the common council; and every person responsible for such accumulation; and all persons refusing to comply with the order for removal thereof by the board of health as herein provided shall be subject to prosecution, and upon conviction to the penalties herein provided.

"Section 3.—Every person who violates any of the provisions of this ordinance or any order or regulation made by the board of health or the health commissioner of said city shall, upon conviction thereof before a court of competent jurisdiction, be subject to a fine not exceeding $100 or to imprisonment not exceeding ninety days."

The notices are being served on the owners of property whenever they can be reached, but where the owners are non-residents the local agents of vacant property are held responsible for its condition and the notices are served on the agents.

It is expected that these notices will have the desired effect but if this plan fails those neglecting to heed the warning will be subject to arrest and it is not improbable that arrests will be made in a number of instances.

AMONG THE ROADS

Old Dock Secured for the North West Landing.

Rock Island Road May Open Commercial Office Here.

Local representatives of the Great Northern railway have received the announcement from the officials of the Northern Steamship company that docks had been secured for the landing of the steamship North West.

The old docks at the foot of Seventh avenue, the terminal docks of the Great Northern railway, which the two white boats used to use as a landing place, will be utilized by the North West this summer.

RAILROAD MEN HERE.

Number of Them Here Hustling for Business.

A large number of railroad men arrived in the city today from outside roads, and are hustling for freight and passenger business. Among them are: I. H. Merrick, of Minneapolis, representing the United Fruit company, which transports about all the bananas which come into the United States by way of New Orleans; R. P. Ober, who is in charge of the refrigerator and perishable freight business of the Northern Pacific, and is looked upon as one of the most proficient representatives of the California fruit transportation profession in the country; John Ryan, traveling freight agent, and Frank Beach, traveling passenger agent of the Rock Island; J. A. Enquist, of the Burlington; C. A. Smith, of the Indiana, Illinois & Iowa road, and R. C. Haase, of the Baltimore & Ohio.

MAY OPEN HERE.

Rock Island May Have Commercial Office Here.

Since the elevation of R. G. Brown to the position of assistant general freight agent of the Rock Island railroad, there has been a rumor that a commercial office would be opened in Duluth for that road.

Representatives of the road have been making inquiries about town in quest of office room, and the talk has been general among railroad men that the Rock Island has intended to make the move.

Traveling Freight Agent John B. Ryan, who is in the city today, admits that there has been some talk of the move, but protests that he knows nothing definite of what the plans are.

Freight men in Duluth are not shaking in their boots on account of the rumor, and say the more the merrier. For they argue that if the Rock Island comes in, the Great Western, Minneapolis & St. Louis and Burlington roads, at least, will be compelled to open freight offices in this city.

PRUSSIAN BARON ARRIVES.

New York, May 13.—Baron Von Reinbaben, Prussian minister of finance, accompanied by Commercial Councilman Boecker, an iron master of Prussia, and Freiderich Von Versen, depty consul general of the United States in Berlin, arrived here on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. The visit is an unofficial one, the baron being here to study economic conditions and particularly to visit the centers of the iron industry.

WOULD START TROUBLE.

Rostoff-on-the-Don, Russia, May 12.—The Social Democrats are doing their utmost to induce the public to co-operate in starting disturbances on Labor day, tomorrow. The agitators are alleged to possess arms and boxes of dynamite. The authorities have posted placards announcing that stringent measures will be adopted for the preservation of order.

MEN OF PROMINENCE

(Use Peruna for Catarrh.)

Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

C.D. TAYLOR.

CHARLES B. SCOTT.

F. Y. FITZPATRICK, M. C.

Hon. F. Y. Fitzpatrick, Congressman from Kentucky, writes from the National hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"At the solicitation of a friend, I used your Peruna and can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with catarrh or who needs a good tonic."—F. Y. Fitzpatrick.

Chronic catarrh often makes its approach in disguise. Before a person knows it, he may become a victim of chronic catarrh. Its onset may be gradual, its development insidious, but at last the victim finds himself in the clutches of a tenacious disease. A slight cold, a tendency to sneeze, a puffiness in the nose and head, fullness or cracking in the ears, stringy mucous in the throat, slight cough or wheeziness, snoring during sleep; any one of these symptoms should be regarded as a warning.

Peruna is the remedy for catarrh. Almost everybody knows that by hearsay and thousands know it by experience.

What can be cured in the beginning in a week or two by using Peruna, if allowed to become chronic, may require months of faithful treatment. You had better take Peruna now for by and by you may be obliged to take it for some time in order to get well. Now the balmy weather will assist in your cure. You are not liable to catch fresh cold and delay your cure.

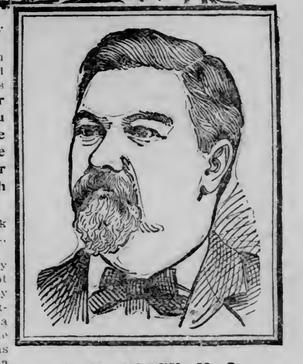
C. D. Taylor, Supt. of Health, Clerk City Board of Health, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"The health of the poor of a large city is always a question of vital interest not only to the city officials but to every citizen. It has been a source of much satisfaction to me to find that so large a number of working people in moderate circumstances have accepted Peruna as their family medicine. It has cured a large number of cases, especially of catarrh of the head, lungs and stomach, and building up the general health it cannot fail but prove a help and blessing to any community where it is generally adopted and used. I have found it an honest, reliable remedy and am pleased to endorse it." C. D. Taylor, Clerk Board of Health.

Charles B. Scott, County Clerk, Floyd county, Ind., from New Albany, Ind., writes:

"I have tried Peruna as a tonic and have found it of inestimable value to increase the appetite and induce healthful sleep. It seems to relieve the system of all waste matter and to tone up and strengthen the nerves in a remarkably short time. In comparing it with other nerve tonics on the market I consider it vastly superior, and so do many others who have tried it."—Hon. Charles B. Scott.

Peruna strengthens weak nerves, not by temporarily stimulating them, but by removing the cause of weak nerves—systematic catarrh. This is the only cure that lasts. Remove the cause; nature will do the rest. Peruna removes the cause.



H. W. OGDEN, M. C.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, Congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all-round good catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."—H. W. Ogden.

Hundreds of men of dignity and prominence from all over the United States endorse Peruna.

LONG DISTANCE AUTOMOBILING

Fifty-Eight Contestants Start In Paris-Madrid Race.

Paris, May 13.—The Paris-Madrid automobile races were inaugurated today, fifty-eight contestants in the tourists' class starting from the Automobile club of France, on the Place De La Concorde, between 7 a. m. and noon. Although the main speed tests are to be made later, great interest was taken in the tests of the heavier vehicles and the opening of this year's long-distance races. The recent rains promised heavy roads, reports from Madrid stating that some of the stretches were in dangerous condition and requiring great caution.

The start was made in fine weather. Today's run is from Paris to Pogues, a distance of 221 kilometers. The machines will enter Spain May 20 and reach Madrid May 28.

Several Americans were among the occupants of the participating cars. "Tod" Sloan piloted the way ahead of the racers.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who has entered for the speed test, will start later, but he was a passenger today on Fournier's car.

EXPELLED PRIESTS ARRIVE.

New York, May 13.—On the Spanish steamer Manuel Calvo, which has arrived here from Spanish ports, were a number of priests expelled from France. They are going to Mexico to act as instructors in schools.

LAWSUIT OVER SIXTY CENTS

Costs Rolled Up to an Astonishingly Large Amount.

Rochester, N. Y., May 13.—A case which originally involved a judgment of 60 cents, but which has rolled up court costs of a large amount, was argued before the appellate division yesterday. The litigants are Clara A. Harding, plaintiff, and John H. Pratt, defendant, wealthy residents of Orleans county, and living on neighboring farms. Trouble over such primeval themes as fences and cattle is the bottom of the dispute.

John H. Pratt is the owner of a farm of 257 acres on the Kenyonville road, in the town of Gaines, Orleans county, N. Y., directly opposite to the farm of Mrs. Harding, the appellant. Mrs. Harding's farm is managed by her husband, Henry S. Harding. Pratt does not live on his farm, but on another owned by him.

On Sept. 10, 1901, twenty-eight cattle owned by Pratt got out of the barn, crossed the road, and were found on Mrs. Harding's property. Her husband shut them up as "strays."

The next day Mrs. Harding filed a petition with the justice of the peace, demanding $10 damages and asking that the cattle be sold. Pratt filed his answer, denying that his cattle were "strays," and pleading that the bovines had escaped from his premises.

Upon the trial the court awarded Mrs. Harding 60 cents damages, but held that the cattle should be sold and that Pratt should pay $10.65 costs and $140.60 in the poor fund of the town.

From this Pratt appealed and the county court reversed the finding and held that the 60 cents should not be recovered, fixing the value of the cattle at $15 a head.

Mrs. Harding gave notice that she would fight the case, and, acordingly, took an appeal to the appellate division.

The court reversed the decision, says the Union and Advertiser.

THE LEAGUE OPENS

Duluth at Fargo Opens the Season Next Wednesday.

High School Winners Will Tackle Superior's Team Saturday.

One week from today the Northern League season opens with Duluth at Fargo.

Before that time the local managemen expects to have its re-organized team—an aggregation that will give the North Dakota fans their money's worth when it comes to a cross-fire of brilliant individual playing and fast team work.

The personnel of the team is not yet known but for the opening game it would not be surprising to see "Lookout" Kline catching either Mueller, Volz or Gehring—Kennally on first base; Shepard, the old time favorite, at second; and McCoy, Lambert, and Lagger in the outfield.

This leaves short and third to be filled in and there will be plenty of material to pick from. This afternoon three new candidates went out to Oneota Park for practice. They are: Morris, a catcher; Kernan and Specht, both infielders, that were picked up in Minneapolis recently on recommendation of Walter Wilmot and others. Two other infielders—Whalen, of Terre Haute, and Van Dine, of Des Moines, are expected to report here for a try-out.

Kline and Shepard had not signed contracts up to a late hour this afternoon, but they are expected to do so—or at least give a final answer to the offer made them by this evening.

Kline is desired to hold Mueller and Volz—who are said to pitch such a terrific ball that a light catcher cannot keep up the pace. Kline's batting is also regarded as an addition of strength.

A Duluth traveling man recently gave the Fargo Forum an interview on the baseball situation which contains more truth than most diamond fiction. He said:

"Some of the baseball fans in Duluth and Superior think they have been bunnoed by the managers of the older teams in the Northern Baseball League. To go away back, it was understood that each team last year reserved the players on the roster of the different clubs, it was done, as I understand, by resolution.

"It is stated that the franchise of the Cavalier team was transferred to Duluth and that of Devils Lake to Superior. Now if that was the case, the fans down at the head of the lakes, want to know why they are not entitled to the players held last year by Cavalier and Devils Lake.

"Duluth is hustling like hades to get together a bunch that can make a good showing. If they had Pitcher Slette and Third Baseman Hanson, with last year's Cavalier team, now with the Forks, and Freeman, now with Winnipeg, it would greatly strengthen the aggregation.

"If West Superior had Pitcher Sessions, now with Grand Forks, there would be something doing at the head of the lakes.

"The fans are not disposed to put up too much of a howl, but they want a square deal and many feel they are entitled to the players of the Devils Lake and Cavalier teams, instead of their being gobbled up by Grand Forks and Winnipeg. This feeling has been accentuated by the action of Manager Lyean, of Crookston, in his efforts to take away every man Duluth endeavors to sign."

The Superior Northern league team will be the next victim of the local high school boys, according to arrangements completed this afternoon between Manager Keefe of the Superior squad and the high school men.

The excellent showing made by the high school players against the league team here last Friday has encouraged the students to such a degree that they feel capable of administering a like dose of medicine to any professional bunch in this part of the country.

Comparison of the scores between the game of last week and the one which will be pulled off against the Wisconsin men on Saturday will make it possible for a line to be drawn between the two teams.

Fans who saw the game between the Universal Millers and the Superior men last Sunday say that the Superior men are no more capable than the Duluth team and that gives the High school players confidence that they will gain another victory.

All of the Superior men will probably be tried out as were the Duluthians in an effort to sift out those who are the least confident. The high school men will probably line up just as they did last Saturday with Cummings in the box and Potter behind the bat.

The Big Duluth and Superior league teams are likely to meet at West Superior next Sunday afternoon. On Tuesday the Superior nine will invade Canada, playing an exhibition game at Brandon and then opening the league season at Winnipeg on Wednesday.

* * *

Pitcher Mehl, of Fargo, is making a great impression playing second base.

* * *

There is much interest about town as to the outcome of the Duluth-Stillwater game at the latter place next Sunday. Stillwater, with Dollar pitching, is considered as strong as any team in the Northern league and the game, while only a practice affair, should give a good line on the work of the local nine.

* * *

Grand Forks claims the strongest pitching staff of any team in the league. They had better keep quiet—Mr. Lyican might hear that.

* * *

"Who gets Martin—Duluth or Crookston?" is the question going around the circuit in regard to the second best pitcher in the Northern league last year. Crookston will get him, Duluth having no desire to have a player on the team that does not appreciate his assignment.

* * *

Grand Forks defeated the University of North Dakota by a score of 24 to 1. Manager Karn's men seem to be afflicted with the same batting mania that has characterized the work of Tim Keefe's Superior aggregation.

* * *

B. P. Neff has accepted the presidency of the City Wholesale league, and resigned as manager of the F. A. Patrick & Co. team. W. M. Bergen will manage the team in his stead.

* * *

Clearing weather resulted in a lively practice of the Northern league team candidates at Oneota Park this afternoon.

DR. RYAN SELECTED.

Will Preach High School's Baccalaureate Sermon

Dr. S. P. Long, who was selected by the high school senior class to preach the baccalaureate sermon for the graduating students this year, has found it impossible to do so, and Principal Smith and Superintendent Denfeld have decided to ask Dr. Ryan, of St. Paul's church, to officiate. Dr. Ryan has given baccalaureate sermons for high school classes before, and the class is perfectly satisfied with his selection.

It is probable that many of the churches of the city will give up their regular sermons on the graduating evening and all join in attending the services at the high school, as has been the custom.

The sermon will be preached Sunday, June 7, and the commencement exercises will be held Friday, June 12.

SENTENCE IS COMING

Defaulting Postmaster of Eveleth to Be Sentenced Soon.

W. D. Ellsworth, the defaulting postmaster of Eveleth, who pleaded guilty yesterday to appropriating $7163.53 of the funds of the Eveleth postoffice, will receive his sentence at 5 o'clock this afternoon from Judge Lochren.

Nothing further of importance came before the United States district court this morning. Some of the usual illegal liquor selling cases are due to come before the court this afternoon and as a result scores of Indians from the different reservations in the state, who are in the city as witnesses and principals, are thronging the corridors and witness rooms.

In the circuit court the testimony in the case of the Edward Hines Lumber company against A. W. and W. B. Comstock, to recover on a contract, is still being heard. A. W. Comstock was in the witness box during the morning. Davis, Hollister & Hicks are representing the plaintiffs and Searle & Spencer the defendants.

Judge Morris is in regular attendance at the sittings of the court, sitting beside Judge Lochren and preparing himself for assuming his duties as federal judge. His term will commence July 1 and he will probably preside at the fall term of the United States courts in Duluth, which will open on Tuesday, Oct. 1.

A LAST RESORT.

Pure Food Should Be the First.

When the human machine goes wrong it's ten to one that the trouble began with the stomach and can therefore be removed by the use of proper food. A lady well known in Bristol, Ontario county, N. Y., tells of the experience she had curing her only little child by the use of scientific food: "My little daughter, the only child and for that reason doubly dear, inherited nervous dyspepsia. We tried all kinds of remedies and soft foods. At last, when patience was about exhausted and the child's condition had grown so bad the whole family was aroused, we tried Grape-Nuts.

"A friend recommended the food as one which her own delicate children had grown strong upon so I purchased a box—as a last resort. In a very short time a marked change in both health and disposition was seen. What made our case easy was that she liked it at once and its crisp, nutty flavor has made it an immediate favorite with the most fastidious in our family.

"It's use seems to be thoroughly established in Western New York, where many friends use it regularly. I have noticed its fine effects upon the intellects as well as the bodies of those who use it. We owe it much." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

HOAXED THE PUBLIC

And Now Upton Sinclair Tells the Reasons.

New York, May 13.—Arthur Stirling's disappearance, described by the newspapers last June as a probable suicide and followed after a lapse of several months by the publication of a book entitled "The Journal of Arthur Stirling," proves to have been a hoax perpetrated by Upton Sinclair, with the aid of two or three mischievous young friends. Sinclair convinced some reporters that the young poet had drowned himself because of discouragement resulting from his inability to find a publisher who would take his masterpiece. Realistic details were related of Sinclair's battle for recognition.

When the book was published several critics accepted it as genuine and gave praise to Stirling's posthumous work, while others denounced it as the most impudent humbug that had been perpetrated for years and was designed to trade upon gullibility and sympathy.

Satisfied with the result of his hoax, Sinclair has stepped forward to expose himself in an article written for this week's Independent, under the heading of "My Cause." He declares that having succeeded in accumulating $1000, he purposes retiring from society for three years to devote himself to writing the first volume of what he intends to be the greatest of all American novels.

In his own struggles Sinclair declares he said to himself that he would "get even" with the literary world by choking it, and if necessary by scaring it to death. He adds:

"I knew that the hoax would cost me my reputation and the respect of all decent people, but that does not matter, for I am not favored with the acquaintance of many decent people and am not obliged to hear what the world thinks of me. Besides, I cheerfully would have robbed a bank or sandbagged a millionaire had my task been possible in no other way. My one desire is to raise a sensation to sell my book; second, to give me standing ground from which to begin the agitation of my cause."

His cause seems to be to write an American novel, which he insists he can do.

SALT LAKE MAN

Proposes to Fast For Sixty Days.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 13.—Dr. James Davidson, of this city, has started out to beat the world's record in fasting. He proposes to go without food for sixty days. His object is to bring about a cure for asthma and bronchitis, with which he has been afflicted for fifteen years.

Dr. Davidson is the fifth Salt Laker who has recently undertaken to fast for the cure of disease. One of these, Arthur Van Meter, went without food for twenty-five minutes more than forty days, beating by twenty-five minutes the record of Dr. Tanner.

Dr. Davidson is now on the ninth day of his fast and is feeling in excellent condition.

Mr. Van Meter undertook his fast as a cure for dropsy. At the beginning he weighed 250 pounds. At the end of his fast he weighed just 125 pounds, and his waist measurement had decreased from 53 inches to 33 inches. He shed his cuticle several times while fasting and his skin is now as soft and pink as a baby's. He believes he is now entirely cured of dropsy. During the two weeks since he began again to take nourishment he has gained 27 pounds of hard, firm flesh.

John E. Busby was the first man in the city to attempt this form of cure. He was afflicted with chronic gastritis and was recommended by a physician to give his stomach an absolute rest. He did this for thirty days and was cured.

Then Mr. Van Meter tried it, with excellent results.

Charles Baldwin made the attempt, but stopped after twenty days somewhat benefited. He had dyspepsia.

Mrs. Jennie Kervin was afflicted with chronic digestion and she cured it by a thirty days' abstinence from food.

IGNORANT APPRAISERS

Have Caused Government to Lose Millions.

New York, May 13.—Importations of leaf tobacco are being closely watched since the controversy has arisen between the government appraisers and the house of Berriman Bros., of this city and Chicago, according to the Herald.

Two experts have been sent from here to assist a general appraiser in examining other invoices in the West. It is believed that through ignorance of examiners of leaf tobacco and other causes millions of dollars in duties have in the last few years been lost to the government. In the examination of the tobacco consigned to Berriman Bros, the greatest discrepancy has been detected, and the customs authorities have been amazed to find that examiners should be so little qualified to distinguish between wrapper tobacco and the ordinary filler, for there is a difference in the duty of $1.50 a pound.

GAME AND FISH COMMISSION

Old Board Re-appointed With The Exception of Ward.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Van Sant today announced the new game and fish commission under the law passed at the last legislature. The old commission, with the exception of Beecher H. Ward, of Fairmont, is reappointed.

In his place he appoints Capt. William Bird, of Fairmont. This action in a large measure takes away the bitterness of the unpleasant controversy, as Mr. Ward is succeeded by a man from his home town and by a man who was on the commission before. The commission as appointed by the governor is: S. F. Fullerton, Duluth, four years; H. G. Smith, Winona, four years; Uri L. Lamprey, St. Paul, three years; B. W. Meeker, Moorhead, three years; Capt. FLORIDA'S FORESTS

Speculators Buying Up Large Tracts of Florida Timber.

The Need of Forest Fire Legislation Is Urgent.

Washington, May 13.—The forests of Florida are one of the state's greatest sources of revenue, a revenue that is being consumed with great rapidity. Speculators from regions farther north have lately been buying and cutting large areas of forest in Florida, and the timber supply is greatly diminished.

In reply to inquiries concerning Florida forests, George B. Sudworth, of the bureau of forestry, has supplied the following information:

The wooded area of the state is estimated at 37,500 square miles, or 70 per cent of the total area, much of which is occupied by merchantable timber. Florida forests have not suffered greatly from fire in the past, chiefly because much of the state was uninhabited and unfit for agriculture or grazing. Moreover, numerous streams and swamps intersecting the pine forests greatly lessened widespread danger from fire.

The greatest increase in the cutting of timber in Florida appeared from 1890 to 1900, when the previous lumber product of the state was doubled.

Great destruction has been done to the pure pine forests by the injurious method of "boxing" trees for turpentine, thus killing the older growth and allowing fire to prevent reproduction.

Because of the increasing demands upon the state's forests and the general attention which the subject of forest protection has received, interest has lately been aroused in Florida for the protection of the forests, and in the need of additional forest legislation and enforcement of existing laws. The most urgent needs are far an adequate fire law.

A planting plan has recently been prepared by the bureau of forestry for 1800 acres of land in Cullman county, Ala., owned by Emil Ahlrichs, and valued at from $1.25 to $3 per acre. The planting will be done in several different localities, but all in Cullman county. Work will begin as soon as growth ceases next fall, and will continue through the winter, except in freezing weather. The first season's work will include the planting of Loblolly pine seedlings collected in the forest on a tract of 160 acres of open woods. Two hundred and eighty acres will be planted with chestnut and white and post oak. A seed bed will be prepared for the raising of Loblolly pine for a tract of 640 acres, as it is considered not advisable to use entirely stock collected from the forest.

All this planting is based on the fact that while immense quantities of Loblolly are being cut in that locality, there is little or no reproduction on the land in question, due chiefly to annual fires set to improve the pasture. Mr. Ahlrichs will have a fire-patrol system.

It is purposed also to treat a tract of 640 acres to improve the natural reproduction by the prevention of fires.

Labor may be obtained at $15 per month, hence the work can be done at very small cost. It is estimated that the planting will cost only from $2 to $3 per acre.

Loblolly pine is to be planted for the production of lumber, chestnut for posts and telegraph poles, and oak for railroad ties.

Coughs and colds, down to the very borderland of consumption, yield to the soothing, healing influences of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

LUMBER FIRM HEAVILY FINED

A Duluth Concern Cut Timber on State Land.

St. Paul, May 13.—State Auditor Iverson yesterday imposed a heavy fine upon a Duluth lumber firm, whose name is withheld for unlawfully cuttings logs upon state lands. The firm is alleged to have cut and hauled away 80,000 feet of logs and to have cut 2,000 feet additional which they were preparing to remove from the land when a state timber cruiser discovered their unlawful action and reported it to the state auditor. The firm claims that their crews were acting under a misapprehension, having gotten on the wrong tract of land, and disclaimed any intention to unlawfully possess themselves of the state's timber. Under the statute the state auditor imposed a fine of $2 per thousand feet upon the logs hauled away, and of $12 per thousand upon the 92,000 feet that remained on the land after having been cut. The firm, it is said, paid the fine without protest.

INFERNAL MACHINE

Was Sent to Cunard Pier From the Currie House.

New York, May 13.—Much of the mystery surrounding the placing of an infernal machine on the pier of the Cunard company was cleared yesterday and an arrest may be made at any moment. The police have learned that the box was taken to the pier from a boarding house in West Thirty-first street, known as the "Currie house," and patronized principally by theatrical folks. The police also know the name of the man who sent the box from the house and have a good description of him. Who this man is, however, Inspector McClusky declines to say and the proprietress of the establishment on being questioned by reporters regarding her boarder would say nothing except that he engaged a room about a week ago, that he had paid his rent and that his effects were still in the house. To the police, it is said, she has furnished full information.

When asked what the motive for placing the infernal machine on the pier was, Inspector McClusky contented himself with the mysterious reply "It was obvious." The tracing of the box was brought about by the voluntary statement of Joseph Rooney, a Ninth avenue expressman, who went to the Cunard pier yesterday accompanied by one of his drivers, Peter Bathe, who declared himself to be the driver of the green wagon which delivered the box containing the infernal machine at the pier. Rooney and Bathe afterward went to police headquarters and made a detailed statement. Bathe says that on Thursday afternoon he was accosted at his stand in Ninth avenue by a man, who asked him to cart a box from the Currie house to the Cunard pier. The man paid him 25 cents and he went to the house, where a woman helped him to carry down the box from the second floor. He then drove to the pier, taking with him for company, two fellow expressmen, one of whom sat on the box on the way. After hearing the mans story, Inspector McClusky was satisfied that they were innocent of any complicity in the dynamite plot and dismissed them after getting a full description of the man who hired Bathe to cart the box. The man is described as being an American, of medium height, with dark hair tinged with grey and well dressed in stylish clothing.

Detectives are keeping a sharp watch on the house, evidently with the expectation that the man may return. One peculiar fact is that no one in the house remembers having seen the box brought in.

The New York American says: The man who made the infernal machine and sent it to the Cunard dock last Saturday lived in this city as a boarder in Mrs. Joseph Currie's house at No. 266 West Thirty-first street for two weeks.

He gave his name as "G. Rosseau." To all appearances the man was not a foreigner. He spoke perfect English without any more trace of an accent than marks the westerner or Canadian, and his fellow boarders believed that he had come from the west, possibly from Western Canada.

Through Mr. Currie the mysterious wagon in the case and the man who took the box to the pier were found. The wagon was from Joseph Rooneys' express office, at Thirtieth streets and Ninth avenue. The wagon men were Peter Bathe, driver and Joseph McCormick, assistant. They were aided by Frank Carton, another employe.

AN INDIAN EXHIBIT.

Plans Perfected By Officials of Interior Department.

Washington, May 13.—The Indian exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, according to plans which have been pretty well decided upon, by officials of the interior department, will be an attractive blending of the new and old conditions, the blanket Indian of the border romance type, and the educated and skilled artisan who is making his way in the world in competition with the white man. The plan for the exhibit is a compromise between the Exposition officials who want a spectacular show and the Indian bureau officials, who are anxious to show the progress of the Indian, instead of starring his original worthlessness.

President Carter, of the national commission has been, on behalf of the Exposition's officials, discussing the exhibit with the Indian bureau authorities, and a very satisfactory arrangement has been practically decided upon. It is proposed to combine the two features of the exhibit, using the $40,000 appropriated by the government and the $60,000 added by the Exposition company in a general exhibit that will appeal to all classes interested in Indian education, and the larger class that will be interested in Indian dances, races and games.

According to the present program, a portion of the space to be allotted for the Indian exhibit will be used for the tepees and wickiups of the blanket Indians, with room for their dances, races and athletic contests. It is proposed to include in this collection representatives of the different tribes that have lived in the Louisiana purchase and allow them to adopt the customs, now almost forgotten, of the tribes of years ago. Some of the "wild West" features, including the robbery of mail coaches, the scalping of prisoners and the mock massacre of a few emigrants, will be given by these Indians. Then will come exhibits from the first Indian schools established by the government, and this will be followed by exhibits showing the progress made from year to year, until now, when the work in the Indian schools compares most favorably with that in the graded schools and high schools of the country.

Miss Estell Reel, superintendent of Indian schools, is already making extensive preparations for the educational exhibit, and is confident that it will be the finest ever undertaken in the country. It will include the work from the schools of the country and exhibitions of the products of native industries, including basketry, blanket weaving and lace-making. Miss Reel expects to complete the collection of the exhibit from the schools within the next four or five months, and will have it all arranged for shipment to St. Louis by the end of the year.

PROTECTS LABOR

Omaha Business Men Are Enjoined From Injuring Union Men.

A Sweeping Order Is Issued From District Court.

Omaha, Neb., May 13.—Judge Dickinson in the district court last night, on application of John O. Yelser, an attorney representing the labor unions whose members are on strike, issued an injunction against the business men and proprietors even more sweeping than that issued by the federal court against the union last week. The order restrains business men from refusing to sell goods to dealers who employ union labor, prevents them from boycotting union labor, requires the Business Men's association to cease holding meetings or conspiring against the unions, or in any interfering with the unions in the management of their affairs.

The order of the court restrains the Business Men's association and others named as defendants as follows:

First—From in any manner threatening to injure the business or person of any employe or any members of cross complainants union or member of labor union or any person who may employ and desire to employ such union men, or from refusing to sell commodities and supplies or merchandise to employers of such union labor, and from discriminating against such persons in the prices charged for any such commodity.

Second—From threatening or intimidating in any manner any person into joining the said Business Men's association or injuring any organization that permits its employes to join labor unions.

Third—From threatening or intimidating any person who may have become a member of said organization, if he employs members of labor organization or recognizes labor organization, into discontinuing such employment.

Fourth—From imposing any fines upon its members or person for violating an agreement not to employ organized labor or not to recognize a labor union.

Fifth—From receiving or paying out any money whatever in pursuance of any agreement to break up labor unions except attorneys in this action.

Sixth—From paying or offering any money to officers or members of unions directly or indirectly as a bribe to do or not to do any act in pursuance of any agreement or any of said defendants against such unions.

Seventh—From importing or engaging agents or servants to import any laborers into the city of Omaha or state of Nebraska in pursuance of any existing plan to destroy labor organizations or under any similar or new arrangement or plan.

Eighth—From bringing any other injunction suits or actions in pursuance of a general plan of any such persons to break up any organization or any similar plans connected directly or indirectly with any existing plans.

FIX LEVEL OF GREAT LAKES

International Commission Will Be Appointed to Investigate.

Washington, May 13.—Developments of great importance to the commerce of the great lakes and the cities on their shores will take place in the immediate future. Upon his return to Washington the president will appoint three commissioners to join in the formation of an international commission, Great Britain being the other nation concerned, to decide on a plan for maintaining the level of the lakes. There is an extreme variation of five feet in the levels of the lakes, and this has had a serious effect upon navigation.

The last congress granted authority to the president to invite Great Britain to join in the formation of a commission consisting of three members from the United States and three from Great Britain, to consider the matter. Those appointed by the British government will represent the interests of Canada.

Secretary Hay has been in correspondence with the British foreign office for some months and negotiations have now reached a point where the president will be able to make appointments. The duties of the commission will be to investigate and report on the conditions and uses of the waters adjacent to the boundary lines between the United States and Canada, including all waters, lakes and rivers whose natural outlet is by the St. Lawrence river to the Atlantic ocean.

The commission also will report on the maintenance and regulation of suitable levels; on the effect on the shores of these waters and the structures located on the shores, and upon the interests of navigation by reason of the diversion of the waters or the change in their natural flow. They will report also on the measures necessary to regulate this diversion and make recommendations for such improvement as will best subserve the interests of navigation.

The property loss is placed at $150,000.

Chicago lumber dealers announced Tuesday that most of the striking lumber tallymen and inspectors had returned to work and the balance were expected to do so. They claim that the men realized they had broken an agreement entered into January 1, by going on strike, and were willing to return to work, and if any differences existed to submit them to President Keefe, of their national union, when he arrives in Chicago.

GIRL TRAMPS

Are Tramping Through New York and Connecticut.

White Plains, N. Y., May 13.—Mystery surrounds the identity of fourteen pretty girls who are tramping through upper Westchester county and Connecticut. The girls carry knapsacks and sleep under the trees at night.

Although they refuse to tell the farmers anything about themselves, it is reported they are students of a Connecticut seminary and that they are tramping through the country to study nature. They generally go through the woods and stop frequently to pluck flowers or gather birds eggs. The female "trampers" were reported yesterday as crossing the Westchester line near Putnam county and were evidently on their way to Connecticut. They stop at farm houses to get milk and water and cook their own meals on camp fires.

SIX MORE ARRESTED.

Carruthersville, Mo., May 13.—Sheriff Frank has returned from Portageville township with six more prisoners charged with being members of the mob which killed Constable W. J. Moulhan and Rev. Dr. Malone Saturday night, May 9, making twelve men in jail under that charge. Several friends of the prisoners accompanied them here and say that the people of Portageville are greatly disturbed over what they call a wholesale arrest of innocent farmers. Those first placed in jail have been demanding an early trial. The trial is now set for Thursday next.

INGERSOLL'S MISTAKE

Will Probably Cost His Heirs About $100,000.

Helena, Mont., May 13.—In the judgment of the supreme court of Montana, Robert G. Ingersoll, universally regarded as one of the most brilliant attorneys in the United Staes, made a grievous mistake in his official capacity, and one which will prevent his heirs from collecting a large fee for services in this state when he compromised the celebrated will case.

The heirs of the noted author and statesman instituted suit against the heirs of the Butte millionaire banker to collect $95,000, alleged to be due for services in that trial. The suit was decided adversely in the district court, because of a technicality, whereupon an appeal was taken to the supreme court. That body has just made a decision favorable to the Davis heirs on the ground that Ingersoll exceeded his jurisdiction in compromising the case, rather than in "breaking the will," as the terms of the contract provided, and the court holds that the allegations of complainants fall very short, showing the entire performance of the contract, and therefore they cannot collect under its terms.

HAS NO LEGAL HOLD

On His Congregation For His Overdue Salary.

Kansas City, May 13.—The Western Missouri court of appeals has decided that a member of the church congregation is not liable in law for the payment of the pastor's salary, and that a minister of the gospel must depend upon the good consciences of the members of his flock for his pay, and has no legal hold upon them for it.

This decision was made in the suit brought by Rev. J. H. Riffe against the congregation of the First Baptist church, of Monroe City. Rev. Mr. Riffe was engaged at a salary of $800 a year, but was not paid that much, so he sued for the balance. The clergyman won his case in the trial court, but the court of appeals reversed that judgment.

PLANS BIG THINGS

Northern Pacific Road To Make Great Improvements In Duluth.

New Freight House and Immense Extension of Terminal Facilities.

Immense improvements, costing into the millions, will be started by the Northern Pacific railroad in Duluth within a few days.

Preliminary work on the improvements, which are in addition to the extensive work done on Rice's Point and elsewhere last year, has been done. Engineers have completed work they started last week, and plans are now in the hands of the officials of the road in St. Paul for formal approval.

The first work is the 600 foot extension of the freight house and warehouse. This addition will exactly double the capacity for freight handling, that now exists. It has not been announced whether the plan of extending the present building 600 feet will be followed, or the property between the present freighthouse and Michigan street will be utilized for the buildings.

If the latter is used, and the engineers have just completed their survey of the property, one of the buildings will be used as a receiving house and the other as a shipping house. If the extension in length is made, there will be a division into sections for shipping and receiving.

One of the immediate dock and yard improvements to be made is the filling in of all the trestle work under the tracks that run out from Rice's point to docks No. 1 and No. 2. There will be a large open dock built between these two docks, also, and the work will be completed by the time snow flies. This piece of work is of such magnitude that it is hard to comprehend for the filling is in deep water in some places, and is more than a half mile in length.

It is on the ground that these improvements are to be made, and that the improved property will be of little value to the road, comparatively, for some years to come, that the company has made its request of the county for the abatement of taxes on certain parcels of land. The property in many cases is under water now, and could remain there. Other pieces are marshy and swampy, and practically untaxable.

The Northern Pacific road now proposes to anticipate the demands of ten or fifteen years hence, and put into the city of Duluth the largest and most thoroughly equipped railroad terminal probably in the United States, if not the whole world.

It is not necessary at this time, the officials explain, to build any more yards or buildings. They say the road has always been in the attitude of favor toward Duluth and today there is something like $60,000 a month or $75,000 a month, paid in wages to the men in the operating department of the road at this city.

The money it now proposes to put into Duluth, in the shape of permanent improvements, consists of earnings of the road which it has been decided shall go toward building up the road for future use, instead of being turned back in the shape of dividends at this time. It is through this policy that Duluth will secure works and improvements in the shape of railroad terminals which could as well be postponed for some years to come, and perhaps never be built at all, if there should come a change of heart in the breast of the directorate of the company.

Three times the present amount of yards trackage is to be placed at the Duluth terminal of the road, following the plans which have been practically adopted by the officials in charge of construction. The Lake avenue end of the yards will be enlarged and rebuilt within a short time, as the freight warehouses will encroach upon the trackage now in that vicinity. Rice's Point is to be enlarged, the water front is to be filled in, and docks and tracks will be extended largely under this plan.

The officials do not consider they would be justified in asking valuable concessions in the shape of gifts from the county or city, but they, at the same time, believe that an ordinary concession, indulged toward individuals at times, may considerately be asked in the case.

The new open dock will be under construction within a fortnight. The dimensions are not given, but it will be somewhere near as large in floor space as the No. 2 dock, which is the largest of its kind in Duluth. The new dock is destined to accommodate rough commodities, iron, brick or other freight which may safely be left out of doors and exposed to the elements. The rest of the work on the connections of these two docks, is an enormous undertaking.

The tracks which run out to the dock ends are now operated on trestle, and part of the way the water is very deep. This whole length of track will be filled in, and it must all be done this summer. It is estimated by officials that the work will be a difficult one to finish before next winter's snows. The tracks run at right angles to Garfield avenue, off Rice's Point, east.

Word was received here today that the freight house plans had been approved by the management and that work would start at once, which probably means within the next week or ten days. This will give the Northern Pacific road facilities for handling all the freight that can possibly be shipped out of Duluth for years to come, and do it with the utmost dispatch and quickness, as the concentration of the freight handling, as it exists under the arrangements between the railroads, permits of much easier work in loading and unloading freight trains than at several stations.

The cost of construction and of labor at present is high, and the railroad company will turn many hundreds of thousands of dollars into the business channels in the city of Duluth before these two projects, which are the forerunners of more extensive improvements, are completed.

PEARL NECKLACE FOUND.

Saleswoman Picked Up Mrs. Hoyt's Valuable Jewels.

New York, May 13.—The $25,000 pearl necklace lost by Mrs. Colgate Hoyt, wife of the banker, April 2, was found by Miss Harriet Schade, a saleswoman, who has returned the necklace to Mrs. Hoyt. Mrs. Hoyt handed the young woman $100. Three days after Mrs. Hoyt lost her necklace Miss Schade was walking through Twenty-third street on her way to lunch when she saw the gems glittering in the gutter. She concluded that the stones were simply beautiful imitations. Miss Schade's parents thought the pearls hardly genuine, but watched the lost and found columns for some mention of such a necklace. A jeweler finally told the family the pearls were genuine and very valuable.

MRS. MOLINEUX FREE.

Ground of Divorce Is Kept Close Secret.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 13.—Mrs. Roland B. Molineux was freed from her matrimonial bonds yesterday. Her six months' residence was completed yesterday. She will drop the name she has borne for five years, and in all probability assume another, for it is believed that within a few months she will become the bride of a wealthy New Yorker.

The ground on which the application for a divorce is made is kept a close secret, as is the identity of her future husband. Mrs. Molineux herself refuses to talk of her future plans, and her lawyers are equally discreet.

WANTED DIVORCE

Because Husband Would Not Let Her Eat Eggs.

Denver, Colo., May 13.—The facts as alleged by Mrs. Jessie Engelhoff against her husband, John Engelhoff, that he treated her as a servant, objected to her novel reading, refused to supply her with fresh eggs for breakfast, and that he worked on Sunday, refusing to take her to church, have been declared by Judge Johnson to be, in this case insufficient grounds for divorce. The court, accordingly, ruled Mrs. Engelhoff out of court by sustaining the husband's demurrer to the payment of temporary allmony. The case will be carried from the district to the appellate court.

The Engelhoffs are ranchers, living a few miles from Brighton. In her complaint she objected to meals without fresh meat; that her husband never helped her to alight from her carriage, demurred to his usage of turpentine as a medical application, and said that "he would rather let a stubborn hen sit on eggs until they rotted than to allow her to eat one for breakfast."

In refusing to let Mrs. Engelhoff come into court again with her charges, Judge Johnson said that, to his mind, the plaintiff was not justified in complaining against her abuse, adding that appearances warranted the conclusion that Mrs. Engelhoff was simply tired of ranch life.

MINER FOUND DEAD.

Letter Indicating That He Committed Suicide.

Wallace, Idaho, May 13—Charles Bernyard, aged 40 years, a miner who had been missing since Thursday, was found dead in Big creek, several miles below here, yesterday morning. He had left here to go to the Powhattan mine. His coat was found by his partner, Charles Hoyt, as he was going from here to the mine.

The following note led to the belief of suicide: "Send this book home after I am dead, and warn every man from drinking and sinning. The devil took my soul on trial, and before I died the angel of death talked to me for three hours. I was not crazy either, and there is an everlasting hell."

MAJ. EVA IS CHOSEN

Directors of the Commercial Club Elect Him Secretary.

Plan To Have Two Men Who Will Divide the Work.

The board of directors of the Commercial club last evening elected Maj. Hubert V. Eva to the position of secretary of the club, succeeding Albert L. Preston, who has resigned. Secretary Eva will enter upon his new duties Friday of this week.

Five names were considered by the directors in connection with the secretaryship, but Maj. Eva was so strongly endorsed by the varied interests connected with the club that he was the unanimous choice of the board.

The position of secretary of a commercial organization with a membership of nearly 1100 in a city the size of Duluth is regarded as a very responsible one, and the directors believe that in Mr. Eva they have found a secretary who will meet all requirements. For some years Mr. Eva has been connected with the Silberstein & Bondy company in the capacity of secretary. He has been prominent in the National Guards and at the present time holds a commission of major in the Third infantry, M. N. G.

In view of the increasing amount of detail work that has become more and more apparent as the usefulness of the club has been extended, there is a strong sentiment in favor of another secretary to assist in the work, the project being to have one secretary attend to all the inside detail work of the club and the other to attend to the outside work.

DOCKERY COMING BACK.

Officers Go to Nashville to Get Him.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 13.—F. H. Whitney, principal keeper at the reformatory and H. Z. Barnecard, state prison agent, have gone to Nashville, Tenn., after William Dockery, who escaped from a Minnesota officer while serving a reformatory sentence.

Dockery belongs to the Minneapolis gang of that name and is a criminal with a history. When he escaped from Minnesota by assaulting an officer and jumping from a train, he did not leave the Northwest, but participated in a postoffice robbery in North Dakota and was sent as a federal prisoner to the penitentiary at Sioux Falls, S. D. He led a delivery there and made good his escape. Later he was arrested in Kentucky for counterfeiting and sentenced to the national prison at Nashville. Here he again obtained his freedom by taking part in a dynamite plot and blowing his way out of his cell along with other prisoners. He was trailed to Indiana and recaptured.

His term at Nashville is about to expire and the papers for his rearrest and authority to bring him back are in the hands of the Minnesota officers.

Ever since his arrest Steagald has been a prisoner in the county jail in this city. Interest in the result of the trial is keen, and there is much speculation as to the nature of the defense. Steagald was agent at Ben Claire, a little town east of Sioux Falls for the Illinois Central railroad company.

Safford will perform the ceremony. The ceremony will be at the home of Miss Jenney's mother in Syracuse, N. Y. Miss Jenney leaves Des Moines this week for Syracuse.

Announcement of these facts was made by Miss Safford at the Unitarian church Sunday. Will Be Candidate For Congress Against Stevens.

St. Paul, May 13.—Hiler H. Horton will be a candidate for congress to succeed Representative Fred C. Stevens.

Senator Horton has been pressed by his friends for some time to announce himself as a candidate.

THE POSTOFFICE SCANDAL.

The postoffice scandal grows apace, and there is no knowing where the end will be. The changes that have been made in the various departments are significant, and good ought to come from them. It is evident that Mr. Machen is out for good. Although he has technically been given a vacation, it is well-known he will never return. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow in taking control of the rural free delivery service issued an order that he would hold the various sub-chiefs to a strict accountability for the correctness and regularity of every official paper that was presented to him for his signature. He requires that all officers who send papers up to him for approval shall put their signatures on the documents, so that he can trace them to their authorship, should any question as to their regularity arise. Mr. Bristow has not had time to acquaint himself with the details of the business of the rural free delivery service, and for the time being will have to depend on subordinates. Another significant action by Mr. Bristow was to suspend a great many projects that had been developing under Mr. Machen. There has been very little business transacted in the rural free delivery division since the overhauling. Only the simplest routine affairs were disposed of. Practically everything that involved a new project or the initial expenditure of any considerable sum of money was ordered laid aside by Mr. Bristow until he could find an opportunity to examine into it. M. C. Fosnes, who has succeeded Mr. Machen as the general superintendent of the free delivery system, has so far made no changes whatever in the personnel of the division, but intimated that he would reorganize later on. This is taken to mean that Mr. Machen is not to be reinstated and that Mr. Fosnes is to be his permanent successor.

In the case of Mr. Tulloch, Postmaster General Payne has demanded that he tell all he knows about the conduct of his department. Mr. Payne refuses to allow Mr. Tulloch to see the replies from the former heads of departments in reply to his comments, and whether Mr. Tulloch will talk under these conditions remains to be seen. "It is a curious coincidence," said Mr. Tulloch, "that the suspension of Mr. Machen follows so closely the receipts of the replies to the letters the postmaster general sent regarding my statements. If the truth were told the information those replies contained must have fully borne out everything that I have said. Mr. Bristow is a thoroughly honest, and, I believe, fearless investigator, and his reply must have embodied data of which the postmaster general had not been previously aware. If the replies already in exonerated the officials accused the letters would have been immediately made public. The department now knows all about the conditions I have referred to." This matter must be probed to the bottom. If there are any rascals, high or low, in the department, they must be gotten rid of.

COLOMBIA AND THE TREATY.

It is evident that there is a bitter fight on in Colombia concerning the isthmian canal. From late reports it would seem that there is considerable doubt as to whether the canal treaty can be ratified or not. It seems hardly probable that the Colombians would be so foolish as to turn down such an advantageous project, but still such a thing is possible and in that case the United States would have to turn to Nicaragua and Costa Rica for a route. The canal commission has just returned from Panama and found things in good shape. They said: "We found everything quiet on the isthmus and matters going along smoothly. The French company has a small force of laborers at work in the Culebra cut, about two-thirds of the way across from Colon. We spent most of our time with the canal officers, going over the route and examining data in regard to the cost, amount of work accomplished, etc.

"The French representatives were very cordial and gave us every facility toward forwarding our inspection. Sanitary conditions on the isthmus are good. There will be no difficulty about getting plenty of labor when work on the canal begins under the auspices of the United States. We believe that most of the laborers will come from Jamaica and the adjoining islands in the West Indies."

There is no doubt that a warm fight is on in Colombia over the canal treaty and if it is ratified it will be after a fierce struggle. A great many soreheads, grafters and corrupt officials are endeavoring to make something out of the scheme. It is believed that popular sentiment is in favor of the sale on the ground that completion of the canal would greatly improve business in Colombia and add to the prosperity of the country. But ignorance, suspicion and avarice are all working against the consummation of the deal. The claim is being made that if Colombia holds out for another year the original concession of the French company will have expired, when Colombia can sell the canal property to the United States, thus realizing $40,000,000 instead of $10,000,000. There is also an impression among Bogota politicians that either the United States or the French Canal company will pay liberally to overcome the opposition of certain objectors. As an instance of the way the talk about completing the canal has boomed land values in the isthmus, it is stated that a man who had had a lease on a certain piece of land for a number of years at $800 a year, was refused a renewal of the lease for less than $2000 a month. It would seem that when the Colombians come to fully realize the advantages of the canal all opposition to the enterprise will cease.

THE TARIFF AND PROSPERITY.

The following statement, showing how the present tariff operates in favor of the plate glass trust and against the consumer is circulated widely by a Minneapolis business house:

"If there was no duty to be paid on imported plate glass, based on today's market, an ordinary store front would cost $100 f. o. b., Minneapolis. The same store front, with the present tariff added, costs $275, the consumer being obliged to pay $175 extra for duty, which is the 'protection' given to the trust. As plate glass is manufactured entirely by machines, no skilled labor entering therein, (and machines are operated about as cheap in America as in Europe), it must be clear to anyone that the trust is not entitled to such enormous and unreasonable 'protection' as it has at present at the expense of the consumers of plate glass."

What will be the answer of the high-tariff supporters to this plain statement of facts? It is easy to predict what the "stand-patters" will say. It will be the old song that they always sing when anyone proposes to revise the tariff and correct its glaring inequalities and unjust and burdensome provisions. "You must not do anything to disturb the prosperity of the country," they will shout. This is the cry of all the trusts that are fattening with the aid of the Dingley tariff at the expense of the people. Why object to anything, as long as the country is prosperous? Why should the people who are robbed to swell the coffers of tariff-pampered corporations kick, when prosperity reigns? Take the case mentioned by the Minneapolis firm. May not the enormous profit exacted from the home market enable the trust to export glass—to sell it abroad cheaper than at home—and thus build up our export trade and make a fine showing in the trade statistics? Does not the Minneapolis firm see what a great profit comes to home interests from being taxed to enable trusts to sell goods abroad at or below cost? Possibly it does not, but the high-tariffites and the trusts will ascribe to dense ignorance this failure to appreciate the blessings of prosperity. And yet there are some other woefully "ignorant" people, Republicans as well as Democrats, who believe that it is not necessary to rob the people for the benefit of the trusts in order to ensure a continuance of the country's prosperity.

GERMAN TARIFF LAWS.

Considerable concern is felt among the manufacturing interests of the country over the recently adopted tariff acts of Germany which threaten to shut them out of the markets in the kaiser's domains. There is, however, one favorable feature of the matter. The tariff act has not yet become operative, and no date has been set when it shall go into effect. A provision is made in it that the emperor and the bundesrath shall determine when the new law shall be enforced. The understanding is that this matter is being purposely delayed for diplomatic reasons. A great many commercial treaties that Germany has with European countries became denounceable on Dec. 31 last year, and the kaiser wants to see what these countries propose to do in the way of renewing these treaties. If a disposition is shown to ignore Germany in the negotiation of further commercial treaties, the new law will without much doubt be called into operation.

The United States has no commercial treaty with Germany at present which comes under this class. A commercial agreement was entered into with that country under the terms of the third section of the Dingley law, but it effects only a few important products. Under these circumstances Secretary Hay feels that there is reason for asking Germany to enter into a new reciprocity treaty. Such an instrument could not be based on the act that is being held back by the emperor, and until the announcement is made that the duties specified therein are to be collected, there is nothing for our government to do but await developments. There is no reason why there should not be closer commercial relations with Germany. It is no more than should be expected that she should pass stringent laws against this and other countries as long as the barriers are raised against her.

The Booklover's Magazine devotes some space to the philosophy of the large department stores and their advertising. The little stores, according to this article, are benefited by the big department stores. The little shops raised a great outcry at first, but the great stores went right on and exploited their wares in such a manner that people who hadn't thought of wanting the things before came and bought them in ever-increasing quantities. People were educated out of their old ways of living. The big store's advertising did not steal away the little store's business—it stimulated new business a hundredfold more than it brought to itself. Advertising will do the business every time; and it stirs up business for others besides the advertisers. As the magazine says, it is educative.

Among the troubles of the Paris Journal des Debats is the lack of a national name to characterize the citizens of the United States. The Paris paper suggests "Unistatists" as a proper term. A Toledo man writes to the New York Herald to advocate saying: "I am a "Unitedo," "we are Unitedos," or if "Unitedo" is too long he suggests "Unito" as an alternative. Meanwhile the new word "manywhere" still remains neglected.

The decision of the New York appellate court, that the life of a man killed in a railroad accident is worth $100,000, is in marked contrast with the decision of the New Jersey supreme court in the case of a 3-year-old child killed in a trolley-car accident, that the life of a child of 5 years is worth to its parents from 6 cents to $1.

It is evident that the postoffice department should be taken out of politics. How to do it is a difficult question.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The experimental washing machine is in working order at the Arcturus mine," said W. B. Holman, of Grand Rapids, at the Hotel McKay this morning. "The men who are putting up the experimental plant went out to the mine last Thursday with the apparatus, and it was working a day or two afterwards.

"I understand that the work is entirely successful, and that it will be as much of a boon to mine owners where sand is mixed with the ore here as it is down in Alabama, where the machine is in general use and was invented.

"The success of this machine means much to the western part of the Mesaba range, and there will be many of them installed if the one now in operation convinces the mining men that the workings are practical for large quantities of ore.

"The visit of Mr. Hill and party to this mine, as I saw he was to be there today, is probably to see what the outcome of the experiment is, as there are several pieces of new road desired up there, and whether or not they are built will depend upon this experiment.

"There are surveyors now working from Nashwauk to the Diamond mine, putting through lines for the construction of grading. The track, which will be about ten miles in length, will probably be completed before this fall, though contracts have not been let, as yet. There is a stock pile of about 200 tons of ore at the Diamond mine now, and it is growing daily, as a crew of men is working steadily there.

"The line to the Diamond mine will probably be extended to the Arcturus mine, after the first line is completed. I understand there is a stock pile of about 100 tons of ore at the Arcturus mine now, and the work is going on steadily. The drills are still running there, too, I believe.

"The Fletcher Bros., in 26, 55-24 have found a large body of ore. They were running the drilling crews at first, but without much success. A short time ago the drilling crews were changed, and ore has been found. I saw Mr. Fletcher the other day and he said that a considerable body of ore had been found on the property. The drilling is still continuing there, though the merchantable article is located in part."

Rose Coghlan, who played "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" night before last, left yesterday afternoon, departing from the Spalding, where she had been stopping. Before she left, however, she displayed a fine scorn for the hotel rules, and some justifiable pride in a woman's tact and ingenuity, inspired by the affection for her little black dog.

As she alighted from the elevator on the office floor, she opened the little leather door at the end of the grip she carried, and the anxious nose of the small spaniel pushed up against the screen, which is painted the same color as the rest of the hand baggage.

Not one in a thousand would ever notice the grip, if it were not forced upon their notice, and the little door was not dropped down, so the doggie could get its nose into the air.

Miss Coughlan likes that dog. The hotel managers just hate dogs. While Miss Coghlan only is affectionate for that dog, the hotel people hate all dogs. They therefore proclaim their magnanimity by composing disgusted countenances and attempt to appear haughtily scornful, when the narrow minded fancier of one canine defeats the ends of the broad minded all-dog haters.

Well, Miss Coghlan has studied this characteristic with avidity, and remembering the times dictatorial notes were sent her at hotels regarding that dog, she employed a woman's wit and had created that dog carrier, which escaped the most highly cultivated perception, of the average development seen in hotels.

So when Miss Coghlan left the Spalding yesterday, she could not help but glorying over her little coup, and she displayed the little dog's nose to several of the employes, as she picked up the grip and left for her train. She closed the air hole, again, however, because the same game had to be worked on the train.

The little dog, she said, is trained so that when he is in the grip he will remain perfectly quiet, and never whimper or bark, and lies as snug as a bug in a rug, and all horrid folks who object to her having the pet with her, are outwitted, thereby.

Miss Coghlan is one of a large number of theatrical people who have contended with the foolish prejudice, as they say, of hotelkeepers or innkeepers, and recently most of them have taken Miss Coghlan's idea of the cage-grip, and many are carrying them on the road.

Manager Emery was mad when told about the stategic game of Miss Coghlan.

"I haven't heard whether any of the Indians are drunk as yet," said Major George L. Scott, agent of the Leech Lake Indian reservation at the St. Louis hotel this morning. He was standing in front of the hotel with his official mantle thrown over his shoulders, looking into the fog and dreaming, as he mingled the white puffs from a "fragrant Havana" with the white blasts of Lake Superior fog. The major looked sad, but determined.

"I'm going to stand out here for ten minutes if I have to have pneumonia for it," he said.

"But talking of the Indians," he continued, "I don't think it's time for them to get on their tear until they get their fees for being witnesses. I am a witness in one or two liquor cases from the reservation.

"As to the visits to Duluth, the Indians generally go home drunk. I don't know where they get their liquor, but they seem to get it."

SAID IN FUN.

Chicago Post: "After all," he conceded, "what would we do without women?"

"Well," she replied, "for one thing you would have a hard time finding subjects for your jokes."

Kansas City Journal: "I suppose you are familiar with John Ruskin, Miss Tootles?"

"Indeed, I am not! I never allow myself to become familiar with men, Mr. Pearson. I have not even met the person you refer too!"

Boston Transcript: Johnny—Is there any difference, pa, between sleeplessness and insomnia?"

Pa—Yes, indeed, Johnny, a great deal of difference. Anybody can be sleepless, but it is only persons who have money and a place in society who suffer from insomnia.

Detroit Free Press: Rebecca—Father is going to marry for the third time."

Rachel—He must be sentimental.

Rebecca—Oh, no; he's just obstinate.

Philadelphia Press: "What! Marry you?" snorted the fiery-tempered maiden. "Huh! What do you take me for?"

"For better or worse," he replied promptly. So they were married and lived unhappily ever after, for, alas! she was worse than he took her for.

Philadelphia Catholic Standard: Cadleigh—Pardon me, but it must be pretty tough to be married to a strongminded woman.

Henpeck—O! it has its advantages. When my wife thinks she hears burglars downstairs she won't trust me to go down and investigate.

LINES TO A CABBAGE.

Ah! worthy plant,
Ignored, unsung,
Unclassed among
Less able flowers,
To which men chant
Poetic rant
With lusty lung
Entire hours,
Although such pet thus kissed and spoiled
Blooms not anew (like you) when boiled.
But, trembling, droops and cowers.

You show not caste
Nor lofty air.
Hence artist's stare
On you never settles.
Your members vast
Cannot be classed
('Twould be unfair)
As tender petals,
Yet when old rose o'er grace a dish
'Mid luscious treat of meat and fish
And steam of hissing kettles?

Alas! No bard
Inspired chants
Nor minstrel grants
The cabbage praises.
Yea, proud, ill-starred
The true Bayard
To other plants
No protest raises.
Cabbage, cabbage! Hall your stalk—
Upon it (Bridget, bring a fork)
My Pegasus now grazes!

THE DEATH OF A DREAM

By H. S. Canfield.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"This idea has been with me for a year, waking and sleeping. It has forced me into action."

Patricia Langham, of the old New England city of Glencoe, was speaking. Her auditors were 20 of the young women of the place, all daughters of leading families. The scene was a large room on the fourth story of an old building that had once been a residence. Two other rooms led away from it. A narrow, old-fashioned hall gave access to a narrow, old-fashioned staircase with steep steps and heavy balustrade. The rooms were beautifully carpeted and chaired and tabled. They were lighted of evenings by hanging lamps. One of the other rooms was a dining-room, the other a kitchen. The room in which the girls were met was the general assembly room, reading room, embroidery room, music room, painting room, gossip room.

"Mona Caird," Patricia went on, "was right. Marriage is a failure. When you add the number of divorces to the number of legal separations, to them the desertions and separations which never get into court, to them the number of miserable, unhappy homes which hang together somehow, though the husband's brutalities get into the papers, and to them the number of unhappy unions of which no one hears, you will admit that the percentage of marriage failures is something like eighty in a hundred. We have no substitute for marriage which is good. We are forced to accept a bad thing or remain single. Thinking of these things, the idea of the club came to me. If you are willing to join me in my solemn resolve to remain a single woman, the club will be a success. If you are unwilling you must go your ways and run your risks. Miss Johnson, who has assisted me in preparing the constitution and by-laws, will read them."

Miss Johnson read. She was a tall, bony girl, with a high nose and eyeglasses, quite 30 years old, somewhat faded, and one of her front teeth was made of gold. Patricia sat listening, with her dimpled cheek resting on a slim, white hand, and her broad forehead puckered into a pretty frown. Most of the other girls were pretty; nearly all of them were young; all of them were much in interest.

This club shall be known as the Spinsters' club, of Glencoe, and so forth and so forth. Its officers shall be and so forth. Its object is the promotion of man indifference among women. The name of these club rooms shall be the Spinsters' Retreat. We pledge ourselves to resist all temptation to enter the marriage state. We pledge ourselves to assist young women, and those older, to withstand all temptations to enter the marriage state. All members must have attained the age of 17 years. We scorn to accomplish our object by making ourselves hideous. All members must wear long skirts and dress their hair in a becoming manner. A woman's beauty was given her by the Creator, and it is her duty to preserve it and enhance it. Members are asked to render their appearance as attractive as possible, but they must be maidenly in their conduct. We pledge ourselves to a wholesome contempt of the foolish mental state known as "love," to abhor marriage, and to display the society's badge on at least one day of the week. Members are not debarred from conferring friendship upon the opposite sex, but this friendship must be wholly free from sentiment and everything pertaining to that undesirable state of being. And so forth and so forth.

Miss Johnson's shrill voice ceased and she sat down. Maude Pullman, who had been deeply impressed, moved the adoption of the constitution and by-laws as a whole. This was carried without a dissenting voice. Patricia Langham was elected president; the other offices were filled promptly, and the Spinsters' club came into being.

Its effect upon the society of Glencoe was immediate and dire, because its proceedings, being published in the local papers, every society young man considered it his duty immediately to propose to every member of it, one after the other. Some of them balked slightly at Miss Johnson, fearing she might weaken; but she held true, and no catastrophe resulted. It happened thus that each member got 20 proposals couched in every imaginable form of language, some of them in person and some by mail. One reckless youth, who yet had an idea of economy, bought postal cards and mailed them simultaneously to all of the members. He was dropped from the list of their speaking acquaintances. The club came through the ordeal triumphantly. Not one of them wavered in allegiance. They said, however, that the men were brutes, and decided to poke fun at their orders and they would have nothing to do with them. This dreadful resolve was carried out and the 21 daughters of the leading families refused to entertain or be entertained. In revenge the men dubbed them "The Forsaken," and dubbed their clubrooms the "Hennery."

Some of the mothers and fathers remonstrated with "The Forsaken," but without avail. Other parents said it was all nonsense, and the craze would pass in time. So it resulted that Glencoe had a winter of unexampled dullness. The young men went in heavily for billiards and bowling. The girls sat in almost tenantless parlors of evenings, played mournful airs on the pianos and wore their old clothes. Milliners were in despair.

The frequenters of Spinsters' Retreat bore up bravely. They met once a week, but that was insufficient to dispel the gloom. Then they met twice a week and then thrice; so they got pretty tired of one another. They gave little parties and one sleigh ride, and went to the theater in a bunch, but they found these things strangely insipid. Claudia Smith declared, when returning from the sleigh ride, that she had never been so bored in her life. "Why," she said, unguardedly, "I nearly froze to death." Patricia heard her and fixed her with a gaze of scorn. They wore their club badges all of the time, flaunted them in the faces of the "opposite sex," and the "opposite sex" sent to the club rooms a large box of willow shoots. One of the "opposite sex" being musically inclined, wrote a song with a waltz chorus, entitled, "We Would We Had You Back Again," and the "Opposite Sex quartette" got under the club windows and sung it dreadfully.

This thing was not to continue. Nature never permits consistent violation of a law. Spring came and went into summer. There were no picnics, no boatings; the golf club languished. Summer passed into fall. The meetings were but thinly attended, though diligent inquiry by Miss Patricia and Miss Johnson failed to discover that any spinster had been derelict. It was said that Mae Johnes had received three calls in a month from Reggie Simpkins, but this was indignantly denied.

As a means to kill time a cooking school was started in the retreat. It was taught by a woman, of course, and only women were permitted to hear the lectures.

On the afternoon of a bright day, when all of the members were present, because they were going to get chocolate eclairs and fudge all round, something got the matter with the stove. It went out and staid out for five minutes. Miss Johnson rolled some paper into a hard stick, lit one end of it and stuck it in the stove. The stove naturally blew up and knocked her down. Some hangings caught fire. Three minutes afterward the clubrooms were in a light flame. By that time three of the girls had fainted on the narrow stairway and others fell over them. Patricia was last to try to leave the rooms, so it is not surprising that when she started to leave she could not. Strangling, she staggered toward a window and sank down with her head on the sill. That is all she knows personally of the end of Spinsters' Retreat. The building, like all buildings of fifty years ago, was a fire trap, and it burned like tinder.

When she revived she was half-way down a ladder in the arms of a tall young man with a blonde mustache which tickled her neck. She did not think of her unspinsterlike attitude. Instead, she cuddled and clung to him, and the tickling was not at all disagreeable. That was an old tire department in an old town, largely volunteer, and the other members of the "opposite sex" got out the other girls as best they could. None of them was burned up, though many of them were bruised, and it fell to the lot of Amelia Johnson to be carried out by a man 60 years old who had eight children.

At the bottom of the ladder Patricia looked at her rescuer and said:

"Oh, Tom! How could you! You are so brave!"

"I've been waiting," said Tom, "for this foolishness to break up. It's burned up, and that's better."

He put an arm about her waist and swung her into a cab and drove her home, dishevele and clinging. On the way home he did some earnest talking.

There are two additional facts to record. The constitution and by-laws and a large stock of badges were destroyed. There were 18 weddings in six months. Far be it from the chronicler to say that this unexampled mating was due to long and heroic abstention from male society. The fact is unchallenged.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There is no fool like the old fool except a young father.

There are friendships between men; between women toleration.

A Righteous Decision.

Philadelphia Record: Judge Grosscup of Chicago, the same who dealt so vigorously with the beef trust, has enjoined six railroad companies entering that city against preferring the senders of large freights to the senders of little ones. The decision supports itself upon the Elkins amendment of the Sherman law. But without that statute the judge would hardly have been at a loss in invoking the principles of the common law in behalf of so righteous a decision for defending the weak against the strong.

Pshaw!

New York Times: Mrs. Langtry, according to a little story that is going the rounds, is said to have once scored neatly at the expense of George Bernard Shaw, the English critic, author and playwright. It was at an afternoon tea and Mr. Shaw was indulging in a tirade against publishers who were unwilling to sanction his socialistic notions.

"I am going to publish a magazine some day which shall print my opinions on all topics of the day. I have enough of them to spare—on art, literature, philosophy, music, drama, socialism, religion and every other subject—and this magazine shall reflect my opinions. I shall write every line of it, too. The experiment may fail, but it shall have a trial."

"What will you call your periodical?" asked Mrs. Langtry.

"I'll give it a concise and appropriate title by naming it after myself," was Shaw's response.

"And how will you spell it?" inquired Mrs. Langtry innocently.

Capt. C. C. Teare Says Beaumont Has Not Played Out.

Oil Business Is Now Down To a Legitimate Basis.

Capt. C. C. Teare, formerly a resident of this city and at one time county attorney of St. Louis county, but now a resident of Beaumont, Tex., where the oil stories come from, is in the city for a visit, arriving from Beaumont yesterday.

He said this morning that the oil boom is still in progress there.

"The gushers on Spindle Top have played out," he said, "but they are still pumping oil there, and they will be pumping it for twenty years. The big oil districts now are the Sour Lake and Saratoga districts, which promise to be bigger propositions than Spindle Top ever was.

"Beaumont is lively, and it has maintained its growth and is still adding to it. The town has grown from 10,000 to 25,000 people since I went there a couple of years ago.

"The most important feature of the situation there is that the period of crazy speculation is past, and that the oil business there is now down to a legitimate business basis. Proven oil lands are now selling from $2500 to $10,000 an acre, with oil at 65 to 75 cents a barrel at the wells. When the gushers were working and oil was flowing out faster than it could be controlled, lands were selling at $120,000 an acre and higher. That shows the difference in the situation.

"There are not many Duluth people there now. J. Scott Cash is there, and Fred Boyce is at Port Arthur.

"The impression that seems to have become prevalent in this section that the Beaumont oil fields had played out is altogether erroneous. There is a big future ahead of Beaumont, and now that the oil business is down to a legitimate basis it would go ahead along that line."

PAYMENTS LARGE

Advance Collections of Street Assessment Are Very Satisfactory.

System Has Twice Been Tested and Works Favorably.

Advance payment on street improvements under the charter amendment, permitting the collecting of assessments as soon as contract are let, is proving a great success.

When this system was first proposed it was laughed at by many and frequent predictions of failure were made by those that did not think property owners would pay for an improvement before the work was finished and accepted.

The first real test of this new feature was the assessment for paving East Superior street, between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues with asphalt. Ninety per cent of this assessment was paid in with a rush before the first tap of work was done.

Yesterday was the last day for paying the assessment for paving Second avenue west from Michigan street to Second street with sandstone blocks. The estimated cost of this improvement is $12,113 and despite the fact that the actual work has not begun about $10,500 has been paid in in advance. Those failing to pay will now be assessed 10 per cent extra as a penalty for delinquency.

These prompt payments all tend to hasten the letting of contracts for other important street paving and sanitary sewer improvements which have been held up for months largely on account of the Barber Asphalt company's failure to pave East Superior street last year, according to the terms of the original contract.

The next assessment to be collected is for the paving of East Michigan street and this will be due on May 28. Indications are that it will be still even more fully than either the asphalt or Second avenue west assessments.

The next big contract in the way of street paving, acording to the rule of precedence established by the department of public works, is for the paving of Superior street between Third and Eighth avenues east. The consensus of opinion about the city hall is that vitrified brick will be used.

However, there is likely to be a fight in the council over this improvement despite its precedence. An alderman from the western part of the city intimated that he will organize a fight against authorizing this improvement until after the council passes favorably on a resolution authorizing the paving of Central avenue in West Duluth.

He says that the uptown and East End districts are getting the entire benefit of the permanent improvement revolving fund, which is the city's working capital in improvements of this kind, and feels that the necessity for doing something to improve Central avenue is so imperative that the other aldermen should be willing to sacrifice the precedence of East Superior street and give West Duluth the right-of-way.

The paving of Superior street between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues west stands third in the matter of precedence and is said to have little chance of going through during the current season, though if it does not it will have first place in the list of street improvements for 1904.

Carnival Site Chosen.

The committee on grounds for the big carnival to be held here this summer has fixed upon the vacant property on the north side of First street, east of the Armory as a site for the event. The committee called on Mayor Hugo yesterday and discussed the proposition to have the abutting portion of Second street closed while the show is in progress. Permission to close the street will come from the council.

CARNIVAL AT HIGH SCHOOL

Athletes to Appear In an Interesting Entertainment.

An athletic carnival, the first of its kind to be given by the high school boys, will be held in the high school Assembly hall Friday evening of this week, for the benefit of the High School Athletic association.

The association has been in debt for some time and the boys have been doing their best of late to get the financial department of the association on a solid basis. The game with the league baseball team last Saturday helped out considerable. With that and the amount which students have subscribed for the cause it is hoped to bring the athletes out of their difficulty.

About fifty boys have been preparing during the last couple of weeks for the entertainment of Friday evening and they have learned their maneuvers perfectly. Many of these are original and some have never been seen in Duluth. The most elaborate pyramid exercises ever given here will be executed.

The production is under the direction of Professor Alletzhauser, the physical culture instructor for the city's entire system of schools. It was decided yesterday that the preliminary field day should be held on Saturday, May 23, and the tri-cornered meet with Cloquet and Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior should be held on Saturday, June 6.

The baseball team will probably meet Cloquet here on Saturday of this week.

FOUND AN EASY MARK.

John Johnson Loses Money to a Clairvoyant.

Easy marks for clairvoyants are still to be found at the head of the lakes in spite of the lessons which have been taught the overtrusting time and again during the past year or more. Yesterday John Johnson, of West Superior, complained to the police of that city that he had been swindled out of $75 by one "Professor" Franklin. A warrant was issued for the professor, but he had left to seek other green fields.

According to Johnson's story he visited the professor and in tendering his fee displayed the contents of his pocketbook to the clairvoyant. The professor told Johnson it was unlucky to carry paper money in such a manner and obligingly took the money and put it in an envelope. Through some clever juggling which Johnson did not see, the professor abstracted the money, substituted old paper and sealed the envelope, giving it to his dupe with the instruction not to open it until the next day. When the seal was broken next day Johnson discovered the trick and complained to the police.

ESTERLY GETS NO DAMAGES

Jury Returns a Verdict In Favor of Cassius H. Bagley.

The jury in the libel action brought by E. E. Esterly against Cassius H. Bagley, returned a verdict for the defendant, late yesterday afternoon. The trial was finished about 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant wrote a letter that was defamatory to his character which was afterward published in a Two Harbors paper. He asked damages in the amount of $5000.

The part of the letter alleged to be libelous was a statement by Mr. Bagley that Mr. Esterly, while employed by P. D. Day & Co., violated the confidence of the firm and was given ten minutes to pack up his tools and get out of the store. A business competitor of the plaintiff at Two Harbors published the letter.

A. O. U. W. SWINDLER.

Man With Many Aliases Landed In Jail.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 13.—Information was received here yesterday by Will M. Narvis, grand master workman of the A. O. U. W., who is attending the biennial session of the Iowa grand lodge, that J. A. Vallejo, alias Baxter, alias Vernon, alias Nallys, who has been swindling members of the A. O. U. W. in a number of states is under arrest. Vallejo's scheme was to drop into the town and announce himself a supreme lecturer for the order. After winning the confidence of his brethren he induces one or more to sign drafts for him. So far as known he has operated in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Tennessee.

ENTER PLEAS OF GUILTY

Several Indicted Individuals Conclude To Take Punishment.

Louis Carlson, who is indicted and pleaded guilty to the charge of assault yesterday changed his plea to guilty. Carlson went into a Lake avenue saloon some time ago and carved the faces of August Hibika and Victor Hill. Jacob Mattson, in whose saloon the row happened, pleaded guilty to keeping his place of business open before the legal hour in the morning and paid a fine of $50.

John Ahla, who was indicted for smashing a plate glass window at Virginia, asked yesterday to change his plea of not guilty to guilty. Ahla says he does not remember breaking the glass, but he is willing to accept the responsibility. Under the circumstances the court decided to let the first plea of not guilty stand. Ahla was quite drunk when the act with which he was charged is claimed to have taken place.

MINING LEASES FILED.

Two Are Recorded With the Register of Deeds.

The Incas Iron company has leased to the Pitt Iron company the north half of the southeast quarter of section 4-58-15, the lease being filed yesterday with the register of deeds of this county. The agreement is for a term of 20 years and operations will be conducted on a 35-cent royalty basis, the minimum amount to be $25,000 annually.

Another lease filed yesterday runs from Simon J. Murphy, George O. Robinson and Elisha H. Flinn, of Detroit, Mich., and T. E. Dorr, of Saginaw, Mich., to the Minnesota Iron company. The property described is the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 31-58-15. The lease runs for a period of thirty years and is on a 30 cent royalty basis.

TO CONSIDER TAX MATTERS

Adjourned Meeting of County Board To Take Them Up.

An adjourned meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held tomorrow for the purpose of discussing and taking action relative to some important assessment and tax matters. One of the principal matters to come up and one on which there is likely to be an interesting controversy, is the petition of the Northern Pacific Railway company for the abatement of its realty tax on railroad property within the city not actually in use for railroad purposes.

In its petition the company has set forth at length instances where it believes that its assessments and taxes for 1902 have been made too high and that the amount the company is asked to pay is out of proportion to the amount that other property owners of land similarly situated in the city are paying.

At the last meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club a committee was appointed to attend the county board meeting and investigate and fight the move of the company for tax abatement.

THE GAME LAWS.

Country Newspapers Occasionally Rail at Them.

"I saw a country newspaper representing a backwoods constituency," said a local sportsman yesterday afternoon, "railing at the game laws in a recent issue because they prevented the struggling pioneer from replenishing his store of meat by killing a deer or moose out of season even if it wandered into his turnip patch and began committing depredations.

"Because of this, the paper was condemning the whole system of game laws as a farce. Now while technically the game laws do prevent a settler far back in the woods from killing game out of season, that is merely an incident in the plan, and I do not believe that if the hardy settler repelled the assaults of a moose upon his turnip patch by killing and eating him that any great harm would be done. But the game laws, it is hardly necessary to state, are an absolute necessity. If there were no restrictions the supply of game and fish would last no time at all, and one of the great advantages of the state would disappear. It ought not to be necessary to defend the game laws, however, as any reasonable person can figure out their value and necessity for himself."

LIKES DULUTH MEMBERS

Legislator Comments on the Duluth Representatives.

Among the jurors called here for the May term of the United States courts are two former members of the legislature, both of whom always stood by Duluth in all its demands during the legislative careers. H. E. Craig, of Orrock, Sherburne county, was a member of the last legislature, and was also in the 1893 and 1895 sessions. J. H. O'Neill, of Park Rapids, another federal juror, was a member of the 1901 legislature.

"In my experiences of three sessions in the legislature," said Mr. Craig last night at the St. Louis, "I never saw a nicer lot of people than Duluth sends down to St. Paul. In the 1893 session I have pleasant recollections of Joseph E. Cotton, Leonidas Merritt and James A. Boggs, and in the following session there were Neil McInnis, J. M. Smith and W. A. Cant, whom I remember with pleasure. But there never was a pleasanter lot of fellows there from Duluth than there was in the session just closed. I have been renewing my acquaintanee today with all of these gentlemen I could get hold of."

THE STAGE.

The Ferris comedians, at the Metropolitan, last evening played to a very large audience, which showed appreciation of both play and specialties by repeated curtain calls. The mounting of this play is fine and the production one of the best given by this company. A performance tonight will conclude "Michael Strogoff."

Beginning tomorrow night the play will be a pretty American comedy-drama filled with heart interest, pathos and comedy, "His Society Wife."

Dick Ferris will again offer the patrons of the Metropolitan next week "Graustark," with Miss Grace Hayward in the title role, and "The Man From Mexico," Willie Collier's greatest comedy, at which time Mr. Ferris will appear as the "Man."

* * *

"The Fatal Wedding" will be played at the Lyceum Thursday and Friday evenings. The plot is said to be one fo great interest and there are some startling scenic effects. Among these is a counterfeiters' den on the Hudson river, the famous Palisades at night, with which a realistic snow storm is introduced, and a picture of the famous old Grace church.

KEPT LAWYERS FROM SLEEP

Duluth Legal Lights Have Exasperating Experience on Range.

While following out the course of his duties, County Attorney McClintock doubtless has many experiences of a more or less interesting character which he does not care to make public, but it sometimes happens that others interested have no scruples against telling a good thing when they happen across it, and Clarence B. Miller, of the law firm of Adams & Miller, is one of them.

Some days ago Mr. Miller's business called him to a range town in which there had been quite a smallpox scare, and the inhabitants were on nettles for fear some steps would be taken to quarantine the town and cut it off from the rest of the world. Times were prosperous in the town and everybody was doing business. The hotels were crowded daily so that it was almost impossible to secure accommodations without telegraphing or telephoning a day in advance. Mr. Miller was fortunate in securing the last room available at one of the popular hostelries.

Toward evening he met County Attorney McClintock, who had also been called to the town on important legal business and who was quite perturbed because he could find no lodging place for the night. Mr. Miller generously offered the county attorney half of his room and bed and the offer was accepted. The two legal lights retired shortly before midnight to their room, which was directly above the barroom, with the intention of getting up for an early start the next morning.

Just about this time festivities opened in the room below, which increased in volume until the noise was something tremendous. The attornies remained in bed wideawake through all the noise until 4 o'clock in the morning, when the commotion gradually subsided and they were able to sleep until 5 o'clock. Naturally they were not in a very amiable frame of mind when they greeted the landlord the next morning. That diplomatic individual saw the trouble brewing for himself, so he mo-tioned County Attorney McClintock to one side and explained as follows:

"You see, Mr. McClintock, there are a lot of traveling men in town and one of the boys who saw you get off the train told 'em you had come up to quarantine the town and would close it up tight today so nobody could get out. The boys were worried and thought they would stay up and celebrate their last evening of liberty, and I guess were a little noisy. They went out about 4 o'clock this morning and secured some drays and teams to haul them and their effects out of town before you close it up."

Mr. McClintock and Mr. Miller had to accept the explanation, but they would like to meet those traveling men.

THE DIVORCE EVIL.

Ministers Think Physical Defects May Be Cause.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 13.—The ministers of Des Moines have taken a stand in favor of a marriage commission to be composed of three male and three female physicians to have absolute control of the marriages in every county. The commission was advocated by Judge A. H. McVey, of the district court, in an address before the association, and while no formal action was taken, the plan was most warmly commended, Judge McVey was urged to have a bill embodying his plan introduced in the next general assembly.

Some of the ministeres took the attitude that the restriction of marriages would effectually solve the divorce evil. Others, however, declared that the number of marriages was not as large as it ought to be. Rev. Hugh Jack, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, took the position that there should be early marriages. On the whole the members of the association declared themselves in favor of a commission to regulate marriages.

WRIT IS DISMISSED.

Court Finds Miss Margaret O'Laughlin Is Insane.

Wabasha, Minn., May 13.—Court Commissioner John H. Mullen has decided the O'Laughlin habeas corpus case to determine the right of Frank O'Laughlin and Martin J. O'Laughlin to exercise power and restraint over the person and estate of Margaret O'Laughlin, who has been confined in a private asylum at Dubuque.

The commissioner finds that Margaret O'Laughlin is insane and that no greater restraint is placed upon her than her mental condition makes necessary. He says:

"Finally, the evidence in the matter leads irresistible to the conclusion:

"First, that the mental condition of the relator is such as to justify the failure of the respondent to produce in court the body of the relator as commanded by the writ of habeas corpus.

"Second, that from the inception of this relator's illness to the present time, the respondent has acted in good faith; that he has treated her with brotherly kindness and consideration in all things and with an eye single to the interest and welfare of the sister and ward.

"The writ of habeas corpus is discharged."

REFUNDING SCHEME

By Secretary Shaw Is a Great Success.

Washington, May 13.—Secretary Shaw's bond refunding plan is shown by figures which were issued from the treasury department to be the most successful and popular scheme of refunding that has been undertaken for a great many years. So far $61,490,000 worth of 3 per cents of the war issue, and 1 per cents which expire in 1907, has been refunded and converted into 2 per cents, which run until 1930.

When the secretary first conceived his plan for taking the old bonds bearing rates of interest out of the market, he did not anticipate that the refunding operations would aggregate more than $40,000,000. Now he believes that before he has occasion to rescind his standing order they will have reached the enormous total of $100,000,000. The effect of the refunding will be to save the government a vast sum of money in interest charges.

Grape-Nuts

Fresh and Strong

Food That Sends One Along

"I found a food at last that I could work on and that would keep me fresh and strong. I have been a school teacher for eleven years, and every year toward the last have been bothered particularly with my stomach and serious constipation.

"Last year I used Grape-Nuts regularly at both morning and evening meals and the result was really wonderful. I have been entirely cured of the troubles spoken of and don't know what it is to take a dose of physic any more. The old nervousness and sleeplessness have gone. No more do I lie awake nights until my brain is in a whirl. Now I sleep all night long like a healthy child.

"I was the only teacher out of fourteen in our public school who did not miss a day on account of sickness during the last session. I have been able to do more hard studying than ever before and took up the teachers' state reading work, completed the course and passed a successful examination at the last institute.

"Grape-Nuts in my case has proved the truth of the assertion that it is a brain and nerve builder. I would especially recommend it for tired, over-worked school teachers, or any other brain worker."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

It is far wiser to build up health and strength naturally with food than to crutch along on some kind of medicine and let the disease finally do its work.

PREPARING FOR WAR

Japanese Arsenals Were Being Worked Night and Day.

Doubted the Extent of Russia's Withdrawal From Manchuria.

Victoria, B. C., May 12.—According to advices received here by the steamer Empress of India, Japanese arsenals were being worked day and night, provisions were being concentrated, coal stored on Tsjima island and on all sides it was evident that Japan, doubting the extent of Russia's withdrawal from Manchuria, was preparing for war.

Hon. Sydney Fisher, Canadian minister of agriculture, who was one of the passengers by the steamer, and who had been in close touch with Japanese royalty and officialdom, says the war feeling in Japan is very strong and warlike preparations were in view. The massing of Russian troops on the banks of the Yalu, on the pretense that protection is being accorded to timber concessionaries, is causing strong feeling in Japan, this being regarded particularly as a menace to Japan.

The destruction by fire of the powder factory at Tokio has led to sinister rumors that Russian spies were connected with the disaster.

Russia continues making extensive military preparations.

The North China Daily News reports that there has been a continuous flow of Russian troops traveling by train from Harbin to Port Arthur, while other large bodies have been moving to the eastern borders of Manchuria, camping in the vicinity of the Yalu river, which divides that country from Corea. The warlike movements are causing great alarm to Chinese officials and an unnamed Chinese official is quoted as saying that the Russians are preparing for the inevitable struggle with Japan, a day which all Chinese officials believe to be not far distant.

One report which has caused great excitement in Japan is to the effect that Russia is endeavoring to make an agreement with China regarding the Manchuria question. The Niroko says the secret treaty provides for the insuring to Russia of rights in Manchuria, Russians alone to be employed in government offices and that under no circumstances shall any one of the three eastern provinces be alienated to any other power. In case of any future emergency necessitating military measures, China and Russia are to co-operate and no other power allowed to interfere.

It was reported that Wan Wen Shai was heavily bribed to endeavor to secure this arrangement for Russia. The British and American ministers, it was said, were making strong objections.

The Niroko states that the United States minister in an interview with Prince Ching praised his courage in rejecting the Russian demands and advised China to deal with diplomatic affairs in the future with the same determination.

The Asapuga reports several battles as having taken place along the Yalu river between the Chinese mercenaries levied by Russian and Chinese troops in which heavy losses have occurred on both sides. The same paper says that mounted Chinese bandits are being used by Russia to foment trouble to give them further excuse for non-evacuation of Manchuria.

The attitude of the Japanese papers shows that the Japanese are keenly alive to the situation and that the majority of the papers counsel an appeal to thes word if Russia does not evacuate Manchuria.

The Hong Kong Telegraph reports that the Japanese government has instructed its representatives at Hong Kong and Shanghai and in the Straits Settlements to purchase quantities of provisions and supplies for the Japanese troops.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Man Foolishly Rocked a Boat and Lost His Life.

Newberry—The Tuquamenaw river is being dragged for the body of Fred Marcotte, who lost his life through his own foolhardiness. With two other woodsmen he was on his way in a boat down the stream and persisted in rocking the craft. The boat overturned and Marcotte, who was unable to swim, was drowned. His companions, after a hard struggle, succeeded in reaching the shore.

Fin Clark, arrested on a charge of violating the game laws, has been fined $50 and costs. Clark is operating a cedar camp in the north end of Luce county and has, it is said, been making a practice of killing deer to supply his men with meat.

St. Ignace—The fact that the legislature has passed a bill detaching an island from Machinac county, in the upper peninsula, and annexing it to Cheboygan county, in the lower peninsula, has caused much anger at the straits and the current issue of the St. Ignace Enterprise makes a violent attack on the lawmaking body.

ELECTRO Silver Polish SILICON

Not speed at the expense of your Silver but half the work, no worry or wear, and greatest brilliancy. At grocers and druggists.

The Electro Silicon Co., 80 Cliff Street, New York.

Ishpeming—Messrs. Thibert and Treadeau, who have been engaged in exploring for iron ore near Clarksburg, in the western end of Marquette county, sinking numerous test pits, have been successful. A body of hard, black ore has been encountered, the vein as far as determined being twelve feet wide.

Houghton—The authorities are searching for a smallpox suspect who escaped from a house on Albion street, where three cases of smallpox were discovered. The patients were removed to the detention hospital at once, but the fourth escaped before the house was under quarantine. Two more cases were reported in West Hancock. Dr. P. H. Wilson, health officer of Chassell, reports six cases, all mild in form.

After a shut down of several months the Lake Superior Concentrating company, of Ripley, will resume work, the plant having been thoroughly overhauled and many improvements made. Employment will be given to twenty-five operatives.

Marquette—The state supreme court has sustained the Marquette probate judge in all of his rulings in the condemnation case of the Marquette & Southeastern railroad against J. M. Longyear, its only objection being a technicality concerning a portion of the jury's findings. It was this case, involving the laying of the company's tracks in front of the multi-millionaire's costly mansion on the lake shore, that led to the owner's decision to tear down the house and remove it to Brookline, Mass., and there re-erect it stone by stone. A large force of men has been working at the task for several months and the process of demolition is almost complete.

William Yates, a young man sent up from Chippewa county, manifested an unusual reluctance to leave the institution when his term expired at the penitentiary yesterday. He said that the prison was one of the best homes he had ever had, and that he liked its regular hours and good food. He begged that he be permitted to stay, but this request the officials were unable to grant.

WALSH LOCKED UP

Because He Threw Money to Gotham Newsboys.

New York, May 13.—John W. Walsh, of Chicago, stood in front of the Hotel Imperial, where he is a guest, and pulled from his pocket a lot of change, which he began throwing at a group of newsboys in the street.

It wasn't long before many other newsboys found their way to the front of the hotel. When Walsh exhausted his supply of change he went to the desk and got a $10 note split into silver. He then returned to the front of the hotel and began to throw the money to a small army of "newsies."

Policeman Todd, of the Tenderloin station, was attracted by the crowd that gathered, and he told Walsh that he was under arrest.

"What business is it of yours?" asked Walsh. "Haven't I got a right to do as I please with my own money?"

The policeman explained that the prevailing opinion among the cops was that anyone who threw money into the street wasn't altogether in his right mind. Walsh insisted that he was of sound mind, and added that he thought anyone who saw fit to do so had a right to. The policeman thought not, and Walsh was locked up.

CROP REPORTS FOR THE WEEK

High Winds In North Dakota Do Some Damage.

The North Dakota report for the week ending Monday is not as favorable as might be. It says:

The fore part of the past week was cold, with high winds in most sections, which blew out considerable grain on light, sandy soil, and cut down some that was up; the latter part was much more favorable, the weather moderating considerably, with from light to medium heavy showers in most localities. Rain is needed in most all parts of the state, and particularly in the western and northern portions, where there has been but little precipitation this spring.

Wheat seeding is about finished, only small pieces being left to be sown, except in some low places where the ground is too wet to get on. Seeding of oats, barley and rye has commenced, and favorable weather this week will see a large part of the crop in the ground.

Plowing for corn and flax is going on, and some flax has been sown and some corn planted, but the larger part of the crop is still to be put in, and in most places, the ground has to be prepared for it.

Early sown wheat is up and although froze off in some sections by the previous freeze, has recovered rapidly and little or no damage was done to it.

Grass is starting very slowly, and grain that was sown lately needs a heavy rain to germinate it.

The Minnesota report is as follows:

"The weather was good till the afternoon or evening of the 8th, when rain began, which was general all over the state. The rain in northern portions was of short duration, but in southern portions rain was still falling on the 11th. In the early half of the week the nights were cold, with frost in some places; the dry temperatures were only moderate. In all parts of the state work advanced rapidly till it was stopped by rains. The seeding of wheat is finished; oats, barley and flax seeding is well advanced, though ground is still being plowed for these crops. A good deal of preparation for corn has been going on, and on the light southern soils some corn has been planted. Potato planting is also going on. The wheat is generally up, and it is stooling; early oats and barley are also up. The rains of the latter part of the week were very beneficial, and as soon as the temperatures are a little higher, the growth of vegetation will be very rapid. On the 7th there were high southerly winds which caused soil drifting in a few places. The soils is in splendid condition, except in the extreme southeast, where the heavy soil retains too much moisture. The dry season in the Red River valley will allow the seeding of a large acreage this year. Sugar beet seed is being sown. Plum trees are full of blossoms. Pastures are improving.

"TO HADES ON A CAR."

Latest Poetical Effusion of Rev. Dr. Hillis.

New York, May 12.—"To Hades on a Brooklyn Car" is the title of the latest poetical effusion of Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, paster of Plymouth church, Brooklyn. Dr. Hillis said he had written a poem while filled with "righteous indignation" over having been stalled on a trolley car while trying to catch a train. He m dnhaamendlfecti o-fnuc tlonedy He had an engagement to deliver an address in Connecticut last Sunday evening. He took a trolley car to cross the bridge, and when about half way over there was a blockade. Dr. Hillis left the car and walked to the New York side, but reached the station one minute after the train had gone. The doctor's blood was up. Sitting down in the station he composed the following:

Lines composed in a Brooklyn Rapid Transit car by a tramp. (Dedicated to the president, with apologies to William Watson.)

For me this car's a godly place wherein to die,
For me to sudden changes grown averse,
All violent contrasts fain avoid would I
On passing from this world into a worse.

When Tantalus, by God accursed, his fate endured,
He saw the water from his lips recede,
My goal not e'en recedes while I'm immured
Four deep in car mates' oaths of every brood.

While creeping, shivering, jerking, we go inch by inch,
My home, the place I long for, shines afar;
Some day when summer comes to Hades, what a cinch
To take a Brooklyn Rapid Transit car.

"It's all right for hades, because no one is in a hurry to get there, but for the higher place we want better service than is now given," said Dr. Hillis, when asked to explain.

WIRELESS TELEPHONE.

Aged Pennsylvanian Has Almost Perfected Invention.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 13.—Daniel Drawbaugh, the aged inventor, who resides near this city, is about completing a wireless telephone. He is now able to converse a distance of one mile, and after the completion of a new armature, of which he is the inventor, will be able to talk five miles. Mr. Drawbaugh is 76 years old, and is anxious to show the world a complete wireless telegraph and telephone system before he dies. His work is being closely watched by Dr. Ward, of the University of Pennsylvania, who represents the United States signal corps, and has been with Mr. Drawbaugh since last August. Dr. Ward will not explain his presence, but it is understood that he is with the inventor in the interest of the United States government.

GETS FIRST VERDICT

From Railroad on Account of Westfield Wreck.

Elizabeth, N. J., May 13.—A verdict of $18,000 has been rendered by the jury in the case of Frederick T. Kane, of Plainfield, against the Central Railroad, of New Jersey, for injuries received by him in the Westfield disaster on January 27 last.

Considerable interest was manifested in the case because of the fact that this is the first suit to be tried in court growing out of the Westfield wreck, in which about seventy persons were killed or injured.

REV. MRS. EDDY'S GIFT.

Gives $120,000 For Building of a Church.

Concord, N. H., May 13.—Through the generous gift of Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, the Christian Scientists of Concord, N. H., are to have one of the finest church structures in the Granite state. The plans for this edifice were presented at a largely attended church meeting, and work will begin upon the new structure in the near future. The gift of Mrs. Eddy includes the desirable lot of land now occupied by Christian Science hall in the heart of the city at the corner of State and School streets, and is without doubt one of the finest locations in Concord for a church building. In addition to the gift of this choice location Mrs. Eddy presents to the church a cash donation of $100,000, making her total present represent the sum of $120,000. The church will be built of the same beautiful Concord granite of which the national library building in Washington is constructed. The architecture will be Gothic, and in proportion and outline it will be in keeping with modern ideas of a church building. It is intended that the pews of the church shall seat 1000.

Since the congregation has outrown the accommodations of Christian Science hall, building operations will be begun at an early date. The citizens of Concord regard Mrs. Eddy's generosity with favor and are greatly pleased that another splendid building is to be added to the handsome edifices of the Capitol city.

BATTLE SUSPENDED

To Allow Opposing Forces to Bury Their Dead.

Madrid, May 13.—A dispatch from Ceuta, Morocco, announces that the tribesmen who attacked Tetuan Monday were repulsed. They stubbornly fought their way through the suburbs to the foot of the walls, but the imperial troops eventually regained their lost positions and drove off the rebels with heavy losses on both sides.

A later dispatch from Ceuta says a courier, who has arrived there by sea from Tetuan, states that the battle was suspended in order to allow the opposing force to bury their dead, numbering 300. Many heads are displayed on the walls of Tetuan, which still has three days' supply of ammunition.

Advices from Tangier announce that the imperial forces have routed the rebel mountaineers, near Fez, inflicting great losses on the enemy.

MIGNONETTE MARBLE

Starts Penniless to Win Fame as Singer.

New York, May 13.—Mignonette Marble, a little Western girl with a phenomenal high soprano voice, for whom Miss Lillie d'Angelo Bergh gave a benefit musicale at the Hotel Martha Washington, has literally pitted herself against the world.

Two months ago Mignonette Marble was living in Denver, keeping the little home together by means of her photographic work. Her ambitions to develop her musical abilities had been religiously stifled because there was no one save the young brother, unable to provide for himself, to whom she could confide the care of her mother.

The assurance that her voice possessed a range unusual, if not altogether unrivaled, fired her with the determination to go to New York, where she could have the best musical advice.

She induced her mother to sell their small household effects, even the piano, to raise the money for their passage, and they arrived in the city practically penniless. Here, however, Miss Marble's first efforts found ready encouragement. The musical authorities for whom the girl sang pronounced her voice wonderful and held forth glittering hopes of success, though arduous work would be needed to smooth off the rough edges. When Miss Lillie d'Angelo Bergh heard her she offered at once to make the girl a beneficiary of the musical scholarship fund she has recently inaugurated, and the concert on Friday was the first step in the direction of providing the necessary means for Mignonette's musical education.

One of the patronesses interested in the affair presented the little singer with a wardrobe worth $150. Brown-haired and brown-eyed, Miss Marble is very youthful in appearance, though in manner old beyond her years.

A FIGHT OVER HEADQUARTERS

Washington Wants the Order of Railway Conductors There.

Pittsburg, May 13.—While it has not yet reached the organization officially, serious divergence of opinion over the location of the national headquarters has developed in the Order of Railway Conductors, now in biennial convention here. Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is the traditional headquarters of the order. Washington, D. C., is being boomed for the honor by a large contingent, but its claims are being fought as bitterly as they are being strongly advocated. The Cedar Rapids Commercial club, the board of trade of that city, has rented permanent headquarters adjoining the other headquarter rooms of the convention in the Monongahela house, this city, and is making the light of its existence to keep the order in Cedar Rapids.

The delegations to the convention spent the morning inspecting the extensive works of the Pittsburg Plate Glass company at Charlerol, Pa.

WOMAN TOOK ACID.

Mrs. Claude Guernsey of Philadelphia a Suicide.

New York, May 13.—A woman about 40 years of age, believed to be Mrs. Claude Guernsey, of Philadelphia, died today from the effects of carbolic acid taken with suicidal intent, at the Hotel Navarre last night. A bottle bearing the label of a Pittsburg pharmacy lay on the floor of her room. John B. Walker, of this city, who was at the hotel with her, was held by the police as a suspicious person.

OPPOSED TO CLEVELAND

Large Majority of Democratic National Committee Are Hostile.

New York, May 12.—Of twenty-eight Democratic national committeemen who have been interviewed on the question of Grover Cleveland's nomination for the presidency, three expressed themselves strongly in favor of placing his name before the Democratic convention, seventeen manifested decided opposition, and there are eight who declined to commit themselves. In some instances the attacks upon Mr. Cleveland are bitter. From other quarters have come the warmest praises and a manifestation of the most friendly spirit.

The three committeemen who believe that Mr. Cleveland would make as strong a candidate as the Democratic party could propose are:

Norman E. Mack, New York; John S. M. Neill, Montana and James B. Eaton, NorthDakota.

Those opposed to him are:

Thomas Gahan, Illinois; D. C. Dunbar, Utah; Adair Wilson, Colorado; Urly Woodson, Kentucky; E. M. Johnston, Texas; T. E. Ryan, Wisconsin; Loris Taylor, South Dakota; James C. Dahlman, Nebraska; Clark Howell, Jr., Georgia; Josephus Daniels, North Carolina; Thomas Taggart, Indiana; Thomas D. O'Brien, Mississippi; Fred Williams, Massachusetts; George W. Green, Rhode Island; H. S. Cummings, Connecticut; True L. Norris, New Hampshire and John H. Senter, Vermont.

Eight committeemen prefer to wait until they know more of the situation. Some of them in their interviews speak of the good qualities of Mr. Cleveland, refer to the fact that he made an excellent president, but decline to commit themselves.

They are: Daniel J. Campau, Michigan; H. K. Ferguson, New Mexico; John R. McLean, Ohio; Richard R. Kenney, Delaware; J. N. Guffey, Pennsylvania; Arthur Pugh Gorman, Maryland; James P. Clarke, Arkansas, and George E. Hughes, Maine.

HAIR STOOD ON END.

He Was Chased By a Big Blacksnake.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 12.—A correspondent of the Record, writing from Media, Pa., says the hair on the head of John Walters, of Lenni, is still standing and can't be brushed down since his actual experience with a snakeand its mother yesterday. Walters was out with another fellow for an airing, and, after a pleasant ramble, sat down on a sun warmed shelving rock, not knowing that there was a whole nest of black snakes under it.

In a few seconds, however, he noticed a black monster wriggling fearlessly toward him. He did not wait to ask why, or to ascertain whether the snake might change its evident purpose; he just jumped and ran. But the snake, head up and eyes glistening, followed like a streak of black lightning.

"Hey, John! John! Shake your coat. There's a little black snake hanging from its collar behind; and that's what her kills, the mother snake, is running after you for!" screamed the companion, who had shinned up to the forks of a convenient sapling.

It was true. A little black snake had crawled up Walter's warm and wrinkled coat as he sat upon the rock, and when he got up to run the snake simply took hold of the collar and hung on.

Walters shook himself out of that coat quicker than ever he had shed a garment before; and then the incident was closed. The big mother black snake had simply set out to protect her young.

DAMAGES AWARDED

For Wrongful Imprisonment of a Debtor.

Redwood Falls, Minn., May 12.—The jury in the case of William Porter vs. Wolfgang Schmid, in action brought to recover $5000 formfeged false imprisonment, brought in a verdict in favor of Porter, awarding him $200. The jury was out over night on the case.

Porter was in debt to Mr. Schmid, who is a well-to-do merchant of Springfield and Wabasso. Early this year, without calling on Schmid, he placed his household furniture in a car, and with his family started for California. When he reached Mankato Mr. Schmid had the chief of police arrest and hold him. Porter was placed in the Blue Earth county jail, remaining there for two days.

When the facts were laid before the county attorney of Redwood county the latter refused to issue a warrant of arrest, contending that the state could not be turned into a collection agency. Porter was then released and commenced his action.

SENTIMENT GROWING

Against the Acceptance of Rockefeller's Offer.

Lincoln, Neb., May 12.—There is increasing likelihood that John D. Rockefeller's offer of $67,000 to the University of Nebraska may be declined. The matter is a subject of much agitation throughout the state.

"Leading causes for the opposition, to my mind," said a member of the alumni, "are the articles recently written by Ida Tarbell attacking Mr. Rockefeller and the Standard Oil company. That, together with the advance recently in the price of oil, explains what ordinarily would be an unusual condition."

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. PORTRAIT CRAZE

Has Broken Out Among Public Men In Washington.

While Posing, They Reach For Their Pistol Pockets.

Washington, May 13.—A craze has broken out in Washington among public men for full-length oil portraits. It was started by President Roosevelt himself, who was "done" by John S. Sargent. While cabinet officers and others who have followed the lead will not admit that they are in any way imitators, the facts seem to be against them. The posing in the pictures has been about the only thing to subject them to criticism. If anyone ever saw President Roosevelt stand at the foot of the grand staircase in the White House, with his hand at his hip as though reaching into his pistol pocket, and with his right hand extended in a most unnatural and strained manner, as though he had just used his strong arm in delivering a swing to the jaw, and had stopped to note the effect, they have not come forward to admit it.

Secretary Shaw of the treasury was the first of the cabinet ministers to follow the style set by the president. A picture of him by the same artist has just been completed, in it he stands straighter than he has stood in twenty years. Of course, there was no attempt on the part of Mr. Shaw to imitate the Sargent pose of the president, but it can not be denied that his left hand is carelessly near his pistol pocket, and his right, while not reaching to recover from an uppercut, pulls his Prince Albert coat back and digs deep into the right hand pocket. This is the one natural feature of the Shaw pose. If there is one thing above another that Mr. Shaw likes to do when he is talking, it is to rock back and forth from his heels to his toes and toes to his heels, digging both fists into his trousers pockets, and every time he digs trying to reach deeper. Each time, being stopped by the limit of his pockets, he grasps a bunch of keys in one pocket a pocket knife and a match safe in the other, and rattles them in a discontented way. When he lived out West and, instead of getting his change in paper the tradesmen handed him big, round silver dollars, he toyed with them like a boy with a handful of marbles.

Even the dignified, sedate and reserved secretary of the interior has caught the portrait fever. He, too, has affected the full-length pose. He shows the same fancy for his left pistol pocket as do the president and Secretary Shaw. But in having ruffled one side of his frock coat, Mr. Hitchcock refuses in his pose to disturb the "set" of the other side. He grasps a pair of gloves and a silk hat with the right hand and has the right arm fully extended. If he ever did such a thing in real life he couldn't help but ruffle the knap on his silk hat, and if anyone bumped against him, to the hatter it would have to go for reblocking.

There have been technical and detailed descriptions of the light and shade, of the wonderful technique and of those other things in which art critics revel, but there has been nothing, until now, either in defense or criticism of the growth of the pistol-pocket habit. It used to be the custom of cabinet ministers to have their portraits painted after their retirement from the cabinet or just before. A suggestion now of such a precedent in either quarter would bring forth a ringing denial. Mr. Shaw has a precedent for superintending the production of his own portrait in the action of Mr. Gage, his predecessor. He also finds precedent for displaying his form and in its Sunday suit of clothes in the Gage portrait, which hangs in the treasury department. Likewise has Mr. Hitchcock found a precedent in the action of David H. Francis, who, in his few months as a cabinet minister, succeeded in getting a portrait on the department walls which is as big as any two portraits of his predecessors.

Mr. Payne, the postmaster general, does not seem to be in the running. It is true that he has a new portrait of himself, but he not only refused to reach for his pistol pocket, and if he did he failed to have the artist show it, but he has had a portrait of his Sunday clothes left out of the picture and contents himself with a simple bust. Mr. Payne usually wears a turn-over collar of the William Jennings Bryan type, although it is hardly probable that he so describes it himself. Under this he has a string tie looped into a careless bow in front. The day he had his sittings for his portrait he evidently made up his mind he must "dress up," so he bought himself a four-in-hand, which the haberdasher must have adjusted because of his lack of experience with ties of the type, and this is the principal article of wearing apparel to show in the portrait.

OPPOSITION GROWING.

Colombiam Opinion Seems Adverse to the Canal.

Colon, Colombia, May 12.—Newspapers just received from Bogota, the capital, contain articles adverse to the Panama canal treaty and private letters from Bogota of recent date, referring to the growing opposition there to the treaty, affirm that even a certain number of the government officers are wavering in their adherence to the treaty and prophesy its rejection by the Colombian congress in its present form.

PHYSICIAN SUICIDES.

Gadsden, Ala., May 12.—Dr. W. L. Fundurberg, a physician, committed suicide today by taking morphine. Efforts were made to save his life, but the doctor stood off his would-be rescuers with a drawn knife until he was past relief.

PANIC AT TANGIER.

Tangier, Morocco, May 12.—Advices from Letuan say the inhabitants of that town which is now entirely surrounded by hostile tribes who have set fire to numerous gardens and plantations, are in a state of great panic. Troops are being dispatched hence by sea to Letuan.

FIRES IN FORESTS.

Forestry Bureau Men to Make an Inquiry.

Washington, May 12.—The bureau of forestry of the agricultural department has assigned a number of its officers to duty in the heavily timebered regions of the country to study forest fires. The investigation will be comprehensive, including the cause, how fast the fires burn, what conditions favor or hinder them and just what damage they do to the soil and tree growth.

In connection with this detailed duty the agents will observe the methods of fire protection practiced by the railroads and other owners of timber lands, and will also investigate state fire warden systems, such as that of Minnesota and the patrol system in government forest reserves.

The bureau hopes to replace with carefully gathered statistics vague notions now existing relative to forest fires. When the problem is solved for any particular region the bureau will be ready to recommend methods of fire prevention and control for private land owners and to suggest forest fire legislation for various states.

J. H. Tompkins, with a small force of assistants, has been assigned to make the investigation in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the timbered sections of Michigan. Later in the season the study of forest fires will be made on the Pacific coast.

CASH GIRLS SCARCE.

Stores Will Give Them the Highest Wages.

New York, May 12.—Cash girls are scarce, or a department store in this town has been moved to benevolence for the pleasure of doing good, says the Sun. It has advertised for a number of these bright youngsters, and made this offer: Those who come now and give satisfaction until July 1, as well as all at present in their employ, will receive one week's vacation with pay, and a gift of $2.50 in cash, with which to regale themselves during that week. They also have the privilege of attending a school supported by the store. Girls who can work only two days in the week will be paid for Mondays and Fridays at 50 cents a day and 10 cents for car fare. Others who may wish to attend school, and can work from 2 until 6 each day, will be paid $5 a month.

FURTHER ASSURANCE

Is Given By Russia In Relation to Manchuria.

Pekin, May 12.—The Russian charge, M. Plancon, has given reassurance regarding Manchuria. He has issued an official notice that all Manchuria is open to foreign travel, and add that passports are no longer necessary.

There were 500 Russian soldiers at New Chwang, who were removed about the date fixed for the evacuation, and the same number returned to New Chwang. It appears that the Russian force, which returned to the Liao forts merely used the forts as temporary resting places, while journeying southward to their station on the peninsula.

The United States consul at New Chwang has arrived here to confer with Minister Conger.

FIERCE FOREST FIRES.

Hagerstown, Md., May 12.—South Mountain from Fossville to Bucna Vista is being swept by the fiercest forest fires known in years. Forces of men are fighting the fire, but not making much headway.

How an abscess in the Fallopian Tubes of Mrs. Hollinger was removed without a surgical operation.

"I had an abscess in my side in the fallopian tube (the fallopian tube is a connection of the ovaries). I suffered untold misery and was so weak I could scarcely get around. The sharp burning pains low down in my side were terrible. My physician said there was no help for me unless I would go to the hospital and be operated on. I thought before that I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which, fortunately, I did, and it has made me a stout, healthy woman. My advice to all women who suffer with any kind of female trouble is to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once."—MRS. IRA S. HOLLINGER, Stilvideo, Ohio.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

It would seem by this statement that women would save time and much sickness if they would get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and also write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helps.

No other person can give such helpful advice as Mrs. Pinkham to women who are sick.

WISCONSIN FACTS

New Features That Made Blue Book a Valuable Record.

Shortage Exists In the Supply of Marriageble men.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—The Wisconsin blue book for 1903 will be ready for distribution within a few days. The work of compilation has been completed, the proof read and the book is now being bound. This is the first blue book that has been compiled by the state commissioner of labor statistics as provided by the law passed at the last session of the legislature. It differs from books of other years in that it is more complete and contains in addition to usual information pertaining to the various departments of state government, some new and valuable matter concerning manufacturing and agriculture. Some of the old features have been revised and brought down to date. A feature which will be appreciated by those who make frequent use of the book is a carefully prepared and intelligently arranged index, one that does not require another index as was the case with the book of 1902.

That part of the blue book devoted to manufacturing shows that in 1900 there were 16,187 factories in Wisconsin representing a total of $330,558,778 of invested capital. These factories gave employment to 142,076 wage earners, who were paid a total of $58,481,597 for their work that year. The total cost of material used by these factories was $208,838,167, while the value of the manufactures amounted to $360,818,942.

The portion of the book devoted to agricultural statistics shows in 1900 there were 169,795 farms in the state, with a total acreage of 18,862,727 acres, of which 11,246,975 acres were classified as improved land. The total value of farm property in that year is given as $811,712,319, of which $530,542,690 was in land and improvements, buildings not included. Farm buildings for that year are valued at $155,894,570; live stock was valued at $96,327,649; farm implements and machinery were valued at $29,237,000. The total value of farm products was $157,445,713, of which amount $41,583,750 represented what was fed to live stock.

Tables are given showing the population of the state in 1890, 1895, and 1900, and showing the percentage of increase in cities and villages. The northern part of the state, according to these tables, have increased in population most rapidly, many of the northern counties showing an increase of over 30 per cent in the last ten years. The average increase in population for the state is given as 22.66 per cent during the ten-year period from 1890 to 1900.

The conjugal condition of the male and female population of the state is shown for many different ages for the year 1900. There were twenty-seven married women under 15 years of age and one widow. There were 10,137 old maids, designated as "unmarried females over 30 years of age." There were 285,477 marriageable men in the state. There were 371,480 females in the state, 37.10 per cent of them being married. There were 374,108 males in the state, 35.04 per cent of them being married. There were 30,036 widowers and 2453 divorced males in the state.

In additon to these statistics the book contains complete school and election statistics.

The book contains statements taken from the reports of the secretary of state and state treasurer, showing the conditions of the state's finances on Jan. 1, 1903, and extracts from various departments, showing the condition of all the state institutions, educational, charitable and penal.

One of the most valuable features of the book is a new history of Wisconsin from the pen of Ruben G. Thwaites, secretary of the State Historical society. It gives the evolution and growth of Wisconsin, including all the important events since the year 1512.

The book also contains the usual information regarding state societies, the membership of former legislatures, list of postmasters and postoffices and all state officers who have served since the days of the territorial government.

DECLINE IN IRON PRICES.

New York, May 12.—A further decline in iron prices occurred today, the fourth lowering of prices since April 1. Today's reduction amounted to 50 cents a ton. The price, $21.50, compares with $24.25 on April 1. A reduction of 50 cents was made on April 2, of $1.25 April 9, and of 50 cents May 7. Today's price, however, is still $3 per ton above that of a year ago.

AN EXILED PRINCE

The Last of the Montezumas Visits Kansas City.

He Claims to Be a Descendant of Sun Worshipers.

Kansas City, May 13.—A handsome young man of 25 years, who claims to be the exiled heir to the Aztec throne, is stopping at the Savoy hotel. The career of Prince Nanzeta Montezuma, as related by himself, is one of romance, and of deep heart interest. He asserts that he is a direct descendant of Montezuma, the conqueror of the Indians of Mexico and rulers of the Aztecs at the time of the Spanish invasion of Mexico under Cortez. The young man claims to have been expelled from Mexico for leading an attack against the Mexican forces some time ago, and has since that time traveled and studied in various parts of the world.

The personality of this prince of the Aztecs is pleasing. He has the appearance of a man even younger than he claims to be—25 years—and wears his dark brown hair long on his shoulders. He is clean shaven and has a dark olive complexion, clean cut features and a bright and laughing eye. His attire is a plain business suit. He speaks French, Spanish, English and other languages fluently, claiming to have command of nine languages.

"I was sent to the United States to be educated," said the prince, "in 1887, and for the period of the private tuition I had received at home, I was allowed to enter the collegiate course of Leland Stanford university from which institution I was graduated in the class of 1898, with the degree of bachelor of arts and doctor of medicine. There was an interim in the course in 1896, during which time I was in the Malay archipelago and studied Oriental medicine.

"My fortune in the valley of Mexico where my people dwell is about $4,000,000. I have had to work up with nothing since my exile, however, and have done pretty well. I am under contract now for an European tour as a violinist under the management of Al Hirsche, of New York. I have been forwarded a written invitation to play before King Edward on the occasion of my visit to England. The salary I am to receive is said to musical people of my acquaintance to be princely. I do not consider it such, but I am perforce a hustler and am glad that the people like my talent with the violin—a talent that is common with my people. I play classic music and improvisations—blend the written notes of the masters with the weird music of my people.

"My object in stopping in Kansas City is to meet E. P. Young, a mining engineer and capitalist, of Pueblo, Col., who is in charge of numerous mining investments of mine, among them being some zinc property near Joplin. I expect to meet him here in a day or two.

"The story of the Aztecs is well enough known to need little explanation," said the prince, "save in the modern part of it. It is generally considered that the Aztecs are an extinct people. They have been confounded with the Yaquis by some. As a matter of fact there are about 40,000 of the Aztecs in Mexico at this time. They inhabit a mountain fastness of great fertility and considerable extent. This section is hedged in on all sides by precipitous mountains save one narrow pass, which is the only means of ingress or egress. This pass is guarded by huge boulders poised so that they may be rolled down on an approaching foe with almost certain destruction. A small force can repel any invading army—they have done so up to this time—but sometimes I feel that it is only a matter of time when my people will be forced to recognize the authority of the Mexican government, a thing they have never done and a government which they hate with the intensity of a kindly nature turned to bitterness.

"I am the last of the Montezuma line. My father the Tzin, meaning the divine ruler of the people, died about six months ago. Since that time my uncle, an old man without issue, has been reigning in my absence for me. My people are negotiating with the Mexican government at the time for my return. have little hope of their success.

"My birthplace was Tenochtitlin, the holy city of the Aztecs to this day. There their sun worship is carried on. There burns the holy fire of Gatomatzin—never extinguished—it has burned for 3000 years. It was lighted by Tzin, of Gatoma, the great and powerful priest of the Aztecs. There the old Aztec Indians go to their house tops every morning to watch the sun rise, expecting the turn of Montezuma."

10 Story Book For June.

Ten Story Book has succeeded in doing something no other magazine has heretofore accomplished. It publishes in the June number an original detective story written by the world renowned detective William A. Pinkerton himself. The feature is distinctive and the story, entitled "$60,000 in Gold, or the Fatal Hand," shows Mr. Pinkerton to have the dramatic instinct in a high degree. Naturally familiar with startling situations and thrilling climaxes, it has been apparently no trouble for him to weave a plot of powerful interest. Other extremely clever skits in this issue of this popular little magazine are those of Dorothy Dix and Zoe Anderson Norris. The former dishes up a dramatic episode that breathes the aimosphere of Bohemia. "Her Paris Glove," by Zoe Anderson Norris, so well known in popular literature nowadays, is full of exquisite pathos. Charles Eugene Banks writes a good story of a social problem nature. The masterpiece is Samuel Lover's famous humorous story, "The Gridiron."

POLICY KING'S DAUGHTER

Gaining Newport Residence to Sue For Divorce.

Newport, R. I., May 13.—Mrs. Robert Lees Armit, formerly Evelyn Braintree Adams, daughter of Al Adams, the policy king, now in Sing Sing, is one of the most interesting young women in Newport. Aside from the beauty of her gowns, which daily attract the attention of the women of the fashionable colony, she is interesting, because it is declared that her stay in Newport is for the purpose of obtaining a residence here in order to apply for a divorce at the end of a year, the case probably coming up at the September term of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Mrs. Armit came here last fall and rented the Warren cottage. She has a fine house, "Maplewood Park," at Cornell. Until last winter she spent the cold part of the year at Guanajuato, Mexico. Her husband is a member of the El Paso (Tex.) club and the Cheyenne Mountain country club of Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Armit goes into society very little and when not on a pedestrian trip, takes a canter across the country on a high-spirited horse.

The failure of Mrs. Armit's life as a young society matron is one of the shadows of the tragedy of Al Adams' life. A year ago she married Mr. Armit, a wealthy mine owner. Apparently they were devoted, and not until the recent conviction of the policy king did the rumors set abroad that the sunshine of Mrs. Armit's career had given place to clouds.

CURRENCY REFORM

Advocated By Prominent Bankers at Meeting In Texas.

Lyman Gage Favors Asset Currency—Forgan Urges Elasticity.

Sherman Tex., May 13.—The Texas Bankers' association met here yesterday and listened to the reading of a number of letters from prominent bankers in other states.

One of the letters was from ex-Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage, who discussed the question, "Is the Money Supply of the United States Sufficient?"

"I answer the question, he said, by expressing the very grave doubt whether it be adequate in volume, and a clear conviction that it is not economical in character. The provision for supply ought to have reference to recurring needs, responding in volume when occasions for use of currency are the greatest and retiring naturally as the requirements grow less exacting.

He argued for credit or asset currency, saying that he was well aware that deep prejudice exists against either, "but an honorable history of such a currency for a generation in several states, and a history of several generations abroad, fully justify the belief that with some reasonable and just guards around it, we can gain the advantage of an adequate currency without any risk of disaster, or the loss of a single dollar.

He asserted that the following proposition could be successfully supported:

1. Such a currency is required in the interest of the whole country.

2. The protection of the note holder against depreciation or loss may be made entirely adequate.

3. There need be no dangerous credit expansion through banknote issues of reasonable limitation be imposed as to volume, and a proper system of central redemption provided.

4. Such a currency would go far toward arresting the annually recurring anxiety occasioned by the impairment of bank reserves, called into temporary use, as they are, to serve as a medium of circulation in the movements of crop harvesting.

5. Would it tend to steady the rates of interest in the central cities, and prevent the violent and costly perturbations between "money as a drug and money impossible to borrow," and thus save the individual investors the great losses now so frequently experienced by reason of fluctuations in the money market.

6. It would be in the interest especially of the agricultural classes, affording them as it would an adequate supply of a safe circulating medium of exchange and payment, on terms more favorable than they could otherwise enjoy.

Another letter was from James B. Forgan, of Chicago, who discussed the same question. He said in part:

"The supply of money periodically oscillates between over-abundance and inadequacy, in accordance with the demand for it, which varies with the seasons. The supply being arbitrarily fixed in quantity bears no relation to the varying demands of commerce, and there is not even an attempt in our monetary system to adjust the supply to the demand.

Our monetary system is not the sole cause of these alternating fluctuations, but it lends itself to them and is auxiliary to other causes. Our national banking system and the government's treasury system also aid and abet them and the three together are responsible for them. If these three systems, so closely allied, were all adopted and adjusted to the needs of commerce, they should be, their relation to commerce would be to develop it on a sound basis by establishing steady markets. Their influence would be to prevent rather than to cause such oscillations as now take place between easy and tight money, speculation and stagnation. Inflation and contraction for some years it has been apparent, both from statistics and from financial conditions, that the circulating medium of the country has not been increased in proportionate ratio to the expansion of bank capital and deposits, the development of commerce and the increase of population. Notwithstanding the efforts of the secretary of the treasury to keep the different kinds of government money circulating and to encourage national banks to increase their circulation, it is evident that the supply has become inadequate to the requirements of commerce during the season when the maximum amount of it is wanted.

To add to the money now in circulation more of the same kind until the supply shall equal the maximum requirements of commerce, without providing means for its contraction when these requirements are at their minimum, would only perpetuate the evils of our present system. What we require is a more elastic currency.

I believe that the privilege of issuing a limited amount of asset currency may be safely granted to national banks under proper regulations. Mr. Fowler's bill now before congress is based on correct principles, but is deficient in its details. What it needs is to have a committee of bankers elaborate out of it the details of a practical plan.

Ex-Comptroller of the Treasury Charles G. Dawes, of Chicago, in a letter which also was read, urged that in the passage of any provision for elasticity in the currency the following principles should be kept firmly in mind:

1—There should be no radical experiments made and we should risk in no degree whatever the absolute safety and solidity of our present bank note currency, in order to secure additional fluidity.

2—If we can safely inject an element of elasticity into our bank currency we should see to it that we are not furnishing a currency which can be used as a basis of current business and speculation in times like the present, thus adding to the perils of panic instead of mitigating them.

3—We cannot secure elasticity in any assay currency issued by the national banks of the United States to be so limited in the amount of its issue as to be undoubtedly safe without the imposition of a high restrictive tax of not less than 4 per cent, and probably 5 per cent, thus providing for its circulation only in times of the high interest rates which accompany enforced contraction of banking and business credits in panics and crop moving periods.

CANVAS MEN STRIKE.

Washington, May 13.—One hundred and fifty canvass men and laborers with Barnum and Bailey's circus went on strike last night and the show was delayed two hours in getting away from the city. The men who did not stop work said that an agreement had been reached among themselves for the entire crew of canvass men and helpers to strike at Baltimore unless their demands are granted. The strikers ask for an increase of $5 per month in wages. One man, who continued at work was assaulted.

MRS. STRAUSS OWNS OPERAS.

New York, May 13.—The legal controversy between Mrs. Adele Strauss, the widow of Johann Strauss, the composer, who died in Vienna in June, 1899, and Heinrich Conreid, who will next year manage grand opera in New York over the rights of the Strauss operas for production in the United States, England, Canada and Australia, was decided yesterday through the entering of a decree by Judge Lacombe, with the consent of counsel, in which Mrs. Strauss was adjudged the owner of the operas and all rights of production.

SUES FOR PARDON

Mrs. Luella Earl Asks Her Release From Federal Prison.

Has Burning Desire to Work In the Lord's Vineyard.

Guthrie, Okla., May 13.—Mrs. Luella Earl, wife of Rev. Daniel Earl, of Montreal, Canada, writes to Federal Judge Clayton, at South McAlester, asking a pardon and her release from the federal prison at Fort Smith, Ark. Her story is a peculiar one, considering she is a woman of great refinement and culture and a member of an aristocratic family of the dominion.

Mrs. Earl has been in the Fort Smith jail but two days, when repentance set in strong, and she wrote Judge Clayton, asking pardon. She desires her freedom in order that she may work in the moral vineyard. She says the harvest is ripe and the laborers are few. She would hasten to gather a few sheaves for the Master. She says she would fain be about the Lord's work, pointing men and women to higher lives. She is willing to forsake the luxurious appointments of Uncle Sam's bastile at Fort Smith if Judge Clayton will only say the word.

Mrs. Earl, it is claimed, is the wife of this prominent Canadian minister. Their son, 8 years old, was in bad health, and having a brother in Oklahoma, the minister thought it a good idea to send the boy to him for the lad's health, accompanied by the mother. She came to Oklahoma, and was conquered, falling in love, evidently, with a traveling holiness preacher, Dr. John Morgan, who pulled teeth in the day time and preached at night, traveling by wagon in the country round.

The Canadian husband was apprised that his wife had left in this said wagon to travel with the holiness preacher, and had an officer placed on the trail. They were arrested near Antlers, I. T., placed in jail and, following their trial at that place, were recently sentenced, she to eight months in the federal prison at Fort Smith, and Dr. Morgan to the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for two years, both charged with adultery.

In her letter to Judge Clayton she is reported as admitting that the circumstances were pretty dark against her at the trial. She reproaches herself that she was not more cautious, although she still insists, as she did when on the stand, that she was innocent of any immoral conduct. She even thinks there was nothing strange in the fact that she kissed Dr. Morgan good-by when they parted, she for Fort Smith and he for Fort Leavenworth.

When on the stand she admitted that she had left Oklahoma City with Dr. Morgan within ten days after she had first met him; that when out on the road in the wagon and in small town hotels, accommodations were shy, that she wrote to her Montreal husband that she was traveling with a "Rev. White" and wife, "delightful people," and for the husband not to worry, as the little one's health was improving, and she was making $10 a week in entertainments as singer and elocutionist, besides doing so "much for the Lord."

Mrs. Earl further admitted that she had taught her little boy to call the tooth doctor "uncle," and that she herself had misrepresented matters to other people by calling the doctor "brother." She strenuously denied all the time, however, that there had ever been anything imprudent in her actions. She held out that she was working in the Lord's vineyard, and her language was very scriptural.

It is said that Judge Clayton believes there are enough resident folks looking after the Lord's vineyard in the central judicial district of the Indian Territory without turning the woman out until she serves her time.

READJUSTMENT IS PROPOSED

For the Newly Organized United States Shipbuilding Company.

New York, May 13.—"A plan of readjustment of the United States Shipbuilding company has been submitted to some of the large bond and shareholders," says the Evening Post. "It was reported today that it provides for the retirement of the $10,000,000 of collateral trust 5 per cent bonds, which are largely held by C. M. Schwab; the $20,000,000 of preferred stock and $25,000,000 of common stock to be replaced by a uniform issue of new common stock. It is understood that Mr. Schwab is in a measure responsible for the terms offered. The bonds which he holds were given in part payment for the Bethlehem Steel company, and have voting power. The terms were said today to provide for the exchange of all the securities mentioned for new common stock, on the following tentative basis:

"Collateral trust bonds to receive 100 to 110 in new stock. Present preferred stock to receive new common at the rate of 15 to 20 per cent of present holdings. Present common to receive new common at the rate of 2 to 5 per cent. Arrangements will probably also be made to obtain fresh working capital."

NO MORE RURAL ROUTES

Will Be Established During Present Fiscal Year.

Washington, May 13.—Postmaster General Payne announced yesterday that there would be no more establishments of rural free postal delivery until July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year. This is one of the results of the investigation of postoffice affairs and discovery that the present rate of increase in the number of routes there would be a deficiency of $20,000 in the rural free delivery service by the end of this fiscal year.

Instructions have been given to Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow to curtail expenses by discontinuing the daily establishment of routes, and it is thought the threatened deficiency may be averted. It is not intended, however, that the establishment of routes shall be suspended, and field work, therefore, will be continued. Postmaster General Payne says that the estimated full amount of routes to be established will reach 38,000, and at the present rate of increase this number would be established in two years.

PRESIDENT OF THE KINKEHAHA CLUB.

Gentlemen:—I suffered with Eczema on the hands and face for over a year. It was not only annoying and painful, but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets. I tried at least a dozen soaps and salves, and became very much discouraged, until I read in the papers of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S., and determined to give it a month's trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as soft and smooth as an infant's. This was a year ago, and I have never had any trouble since.

MISS GENEVA BRIGGS.

ECZEMA

The Blood Aflame with an Itching Humor that sets the Skin on Fire.

Eczema, the most common and terrible of all skin troubles, begins sometimes with a slight redness of the skin, which gradually spreads, and as the inflammation and itching increase, the entire system is thrown into a restless, feverish condition. Soon little watery blisters or pimples break out, from which a clear liquid or yellow fluid is discharged, which forms thick crusts and sores, or falls off in fine particles or scales, leaving the skin raw and tender, or hard and dry like parchment. Eczema attacks most frequently the legs and arms, back and chest, face and hands, and is a disease that comes and goes in the earlier stages, but is a perpetual torment and constant annoyance when chronic. At times the itching and stinging is so great that the sufferer is driven almost to distraction, and tortured beyond endurance scratches and rubs till the skin is broken and bleeds; but this only aggravates and spreads the disease. The humors and poisons that produce the itching eruption, roughness and redness of the skin, must be rooted out before there is complete relief from the terrors of Eczema. Nothing applied externally does any permanent good, for whenever the blood is overheated, or the skin is reacting during Spring and Summer, the disease breaks out again. You can't rely upon washes, soaps and salves, or such things as are applied to the surface, for they do not reach the seat of the trouble, which is internal and deeply implanted in the system; the blood is aflame with the itching, burning humors, which are carried by the circulation to the surface and are being constantly forced out through the glands and pores of the skin, and you can never heal the sores or stop the aggravating eruptions with external applications.

To neutralize the acids in the blood and expel the humors and poisons is the only way to get permanently rid of this torturing skin trouble, and no remedy known does this so quickly and thoroughly as S. S. S. It purifies the blood and restores it to health, and the outbreak of the poison through the skin ceases, and the sores and eruption gradually disappear. S. S. S. builds up the thin acid blood, makes it rich and strong, and restores to it all the elements of nutrition, and drives from the circulation all impurities; and under the tonic effect of S. S. S. the general system is invigorated and toned up, and you not only get rid of your old skin trouble, but the health is benefited in every way. S. S. S. being a strictly vegetable medicine, acts gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as do Arsenic, Potash and other minerals which are usually prescribed in skin diseases.

SSS Eczema cannot be cured by anything applied to the surface of the body; the blood must be purified and the cause removed, and in no other way can this deep-seated skin disease be reached. If you have Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Nettle Rash, or any form of Eczema, you will find S. S. S. does its work well and thoroughly, and relieves the itching and burning, soreness and pain, and soon produces a lasting cure.

KING AND QUEEN

Held Court and Levee at Edinburgh, Scotland.

Edinburgh, Scotland, May 13.—The city of Edinburgh was in holiday attire yesterday and immense crowds of people warmly greeted King Edward and Queen Alexandra as they proceeded from Dalkeith castle to Holyrood palace, where they held a court and levee, the first of such functions to be held in the historic palace for eighty years. On their arrival at the palace the king and queen received a number of public addresses. Presentations to their majesties followed.

AFTER MISER'S MONEY.

Contest Over the Hill Estate Has Begun.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 13.—Litigation over the fortune left by the old miser, Charles Hill, or Salem Charles, who died here in May, 1902, leaving $142,000 cash in a safe deposit box, was begun yesterday in the probate court. Mrs. Gertrude Driggs is the petitioner for probate of a will purporting to have been signed by Charles Hill, at Dayton, in 1898, leaving his property to her daughter, Gertrude Driggs. Attorneys for Salem Charles and other members of the Charles family, of Boston, of which the dead miser was apparently conclusively proven a member, appeared as contestants of the petition. Among other claimants to the fortune, of whom about 900 appeared after the existence of the estate was made public, Mrs. Abbie Hill, an alleged widow of the deceased, was represented by counsel. Judge Wilbur ruled that the present contest would be confined to the Driggs' and Charles' interests.

CATARRH CURED BY DRY AIR
Hyomei Medicates the Air You Breathe, Kills the Germs and Cures the Disease.

Hyomei cures catarrh thoroughly and permanently, because it reaches the smallest air cells in the head, throat and lungs, kills the germs causing the disease, destroys the cause, and makes permanent cures which can be effected in no other way. Breathe it for a few minutes four times a day and benefit will be seen at once. Continue this treatment for a few weeks and Hyomei will have cured you.

The Hyomei in the inhaler furnished with the outfit dries and sterilizes the air you breathe. It is a local and direct treatment for eradicating all catarrh germs in the mucous membrane and tissues and in this way cures catarrh in any part of the system. Used in connection with Hyomei Balm it has been successful in curing the worst and most deep-seated cases of catarrhal deafness.

A. W. Clark, of Everett, Mass., writes: "I have spent a fortune on different treatments for catarrh and could not hear across the table. After using Hyomei and Hyomei Balm for eight days, I can hear as well as ever."

Stronger than any claims that can be made in an advertisement, is the fact that S. F. Boyce will give his personal guarantee with every Hyomei outfit he sells to refund the money if the purchaser can say that Hyomei has not given satisfaction.

BUILDING HOMES

Building Last Year Cost Over Million and a Half.

It Mostly Represents the Construction of New Homes.

New buildings in Duluth since May 1, 1902, cost $1,691,980.

Despite this substantial increase population and business are increasing so rapidly that even this enormous investment in flats, dwellings and commercial houses is scarcely noticeable.

Men conversant with the building situation predict that between now and next May another million and a half will be expended in new buildings and say that even then the demand for dwellings will not be met.

The sum of $1,691,980 represents a new normal growth record in the building history of Minnesota cities, not excepting St. Paul and Minneapolis. The three leading cities of the state have had building spurts that amounted to more, but these figures represent simply a quiet, normal and scarcely noticeable growth in population and trade.

The previous record for Duluth was $1,006,685, made in 1891. The figures in both instances are taken from the building license books of the city assessor's office and while considered conservative are the most reliable and practically the only authentic building record.

In classification of new buildings the records show that flats and residences have increased at an enormous rate during the past year.

Combination hotel and store buildings are also prominent in the past year's operations, but there were very few general commercial buildings and scarcely any industrial plants erected, showing that the new building record was made in an effort to simply people with homes.

BABY RAFFLED OFF

At a Salvation Army Meeting at Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., May 13.—The Lord won the Salvation Army baby at the raffle held at the close of the state convention of the Salvation Army. The event had been advertised extensively, and the drawing took place before a large crowd at Y. M. C. A. hall.

Many tickets were sold which admitted the bearer to the meeting hall and gave a chance on the baby, but it was stipulated that the person drawing the lucky ticket need not take the baby unless he wanted to and the parents of the child were satisfied. Three hundred tickets were placed in a churn, and Col. Marshall of East St. Louis conducted the drawing.

Ten numbers with names were taken from the churn, and then one was selected from this lot. The Lord was the winner, and the baby, who is the 2-months-old son of Maj. and Mrs. Smith, of Peoria, recently of Chicago, was thereupon formally dedicated to the Lord and for his service. The Salvationists sung hallelujah songs and indulged in a season of rejoicing.

AT WEST DULUTH

Dr. Robert Forbes returned last evening from a two weeks' tour of his circuit.

The news of his appointment as corresponding secretary of the board of extension of the Methodist church was telegraphed to him as soon as it was made public.

Dr. Forbes will leave Saturday for Minneapolis, where he will spend Sunday, leaving there Monday for Philadelphia. He has already entered into the duties of his new office.

He will retain his membership in the Duluth conference. His family will remain in Duluth for the present and will continue to reside on Fifty-sixth avenue west until Dr. Forbes has completed arrangements for removal to Philadelphia.

Dr. Forbes declared himself much pleased with the honor which had been conferred upon him. "While the office came unsolicited on my part," said he today, "it was not a complete surprise to me, as I was aware of the fact that some of my friends who were in attendance at the convention were planning to present my name.

"I shall be sorry to leave Duluth and Minnesota, where I have made a large number of friends, but by retaining my membership in this conference, which I shall be enabled to do, I shall keep in touch more or less with this district and not be compelled to break entirely the old ties which bind me to the people of Duluth.

"My work will also bring me into connection with the Duluth district, as the duties of the corresponding secretary cover the entire United States."

NEIGHBORHOOD ROW.

Mrs. Charles Johnson Charged With Assault.

Mrs. Charles Johnson appeared before Justice Stone last evening to answer to a charge of assault brought by John Hallne.

It was claimed by the complaining witness that the defendant occupied the upper half of the house which he leases. He served notice on her to leave. According to his statement she became enraged and descended to have it out with her landlord. The session was a stormy one. Details of the fight by rounds are not available, but Mrs. Johnson showed up strong at the finish, while Hallne was decidedly "groggy." The marquis of Queensberry rules were not to the liking of the complaining witness, and he transferred the scene of the quarrel to the justice court.

Mrs. Johnson pleaded not guilty and the trial will take place tomorrow afternoon.

William Rosin, a young West Duluth lad, was arraigned on a charge of entering a boathouse on May 3 and removing a number of boat fixtures. He is claimed by the police to be the second of a gang of youngsters which has been committing a number of minor offenses to be brought up for punishment. Bernard Doyle, the first, was fined yesterday.

Warrants are out for six others, and they will probably be present tomorrow afternoon, when Rosin comes up for trial.

The bride wore a gown of white silk mulle and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The decorations consisted of carnations and ferns. The wedding was a quiet one, only a few intimate friends of the young couple being present.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served, at which Mrs. W. F. Markus acted as hostess, assisted by Mrs. French and Miss Emma Markus.

Mr. and Mrs. Simcox are at the McKay hotel, where they will remain for a few days before leaving for their home in St. Paul.

ACCIDENTS TO NAVAL GUNS

Department to Make Full Inquiry Into the Subject.

Washington, May 13.—In rapid succession accidents involving loss of life, and directly traceable to the weapons in use, have occurred in the United States navy. Workman were killed and injured in Iroma island while unloading eight-inch shells, the crew of the eight-inch turret gun of the battleship Massachusetts was annihilated by premature explosion of an explosive shell, and three men were killed and four wounded by the destruction of a twelve-inch gun on the battleship Iowa. Fortunately, not attended with such terrible consequences, a thirteen-inch gun on the battleship Kearsarge and a thirteen-inch gun on the battleship Indiana became injured through premature explosion of shells and had to be replaced.

These several occurrences have naturally aroused the anxiety of the authorities, says the Post, and have begun a most searching investigation, and the more the probe is moved about the greater becomes the certainty that so far as the equipment itself is concerned the ordinance of the navy is as reasonably safe as may be expected. The guns, with the exception of that on the Iowa, subjected to accidents have not been broken, merely scarred and gouged by the terrific effect of the premature explosion of shells inside their bores. The Iowa's twelve-inch gun is one of the twelve oldest guns of that caliber now in service, four of them being on this battleship, four on the monitor Puritan, two on the monitor Monterey, and two on the second-class battleship Texas.

The gun on the Iowa which caused such damage had been fired at least thirty-five rounds more than any other of the same date of construction, so that the authorities are satisfied that the others are in no danger of causing a similar catastrophe. At the same time they will be sharply watched, and upon the slightest evidence of strain they will probably be taken out of the ship.

The life of a gun has never been definitely ascertained, and this is a point which many naval experts think worthy of special study by the navy department. Before installation in vessels the gun is tested at the Indian Head proving grounds, five rounds at high pressure being fired. Sometimes a gun is retained at the proving grounds for use in firing shells representing a group of projectiles submitted for acceptance or for the trial of new fangled inventions, one of which caused the destruction of a twelve-inch gun several years ago. Subsequently the gun is issued to the service. Before it gave way the Iowa's gun had been fired 125 times, but no signs of stress had been reported. The fact that the barrel of the gun broke off about twenty feet from the muzzle is an indication, however, that there it was weakest, and an examination of the plans shows that at this point the gun had not the reinforcement given to the part in its rear.

Y. W. C. A. ROOMS

Formal Opening and House Warming to Take Place Friday.

Fine Program to Be Given—Lunch Room's Great Success.

Friday evening the long-looked for and expected house warming of the Young Women's Christian association will be held at the charming rooms in the Bradley building, at the corner of First avenue west and Superior street. The rooms have roused all kinds of enthusiasm among the young women, and are certainly beautiful and artistic to a degree.

An informal musical program will be given by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra and a number of vocal solos will be sung. Members of the board will receive with Miss Kemper, the secretary, and dainty refreshments will be served.

The lunch room of the association has been an enormous success. The average attendance is 120 daily. The first Saturday the room opened, without much advertising, seventy-five people were fed, and one week from that 257. The largest number fed at one meal has been 162, and the number since the opening day has never fallen below 100. These figures speak for themselves, and the success the association has made of its work is wonderful.

The workers and those interested in the work feel that they have been indeed fortunate in the securing of so efficient a secretary as Miss Kemper has proved to be, with her capable management of the work during the trying time of these last few months.

Dancing at Lester Park tomorrow evening.

KILLED BY WORRY

Mother of Deloss Walker, Who Disappeared, Has Died.

Went to Chicago For Work Only to Meet Misfortune.

Chicago, May 13.—Deloss Walker, discouraged by his struggles to gain a livelihood in Chicago, wrote to the girl in Giltner, Neb., to whom he was engaged on April 6, and the next day left the house where he had been living. Since then no trace of him has been found. Broken by the news of her son's disappearance, his mother died on April 16. Now his sisters have asked the Chicago police to search for the missing boy, who, they fear, has met with foul play or ended his own life.

The story is that of a young country boy striving to win fortune in a big city. Deloss Walker came to Chicago seven months ago from Giltner. Before he left a young girl in the Nebraska town promised to marry him when he made a home for her in Chicago. The boy secured employment and found a boarding place at 471 Washington boulevard. He worked there, but lacked experience and soon lost his place. Again he secured work, this time in a furniture store on the west side. The position did not pay well, and while Walker was searching for more remunerative work he was told he was no longer needed.

In December the discouraged boy wrote to his sister, Mrs. Cora Neptune at Aurora, Neb. Then his letters become more cheerful and he wrote to his mother, who was visiting her daughter, Mrs. F. E. Smith wife of Rev. F. E. Smith at Vancouver, B. C., that he was doing well there and that he had excellent prospects. More ill luck came, however, and Walker began to fall behind in his board bill and soon left his boarding place at 471 Washington boulevard, leaving behind most of his clothing and other possessions.

Just before Christmas he receive a letter from his baby nephew—a letter laboriously printed in big, awkward capital letters. The boy said: "Dear Uncle: I want Santa Claus to bring me a big drum." Then Walker lost heart and told one of his companions that he had a notion to hold some one up and get money enough to send the baby that drum.

In February Walker went to board with J. Engesett at 533 North Western avenue. J. Engesett noticed that the boy acted queerly. He paid his bill regularly, kept good hours, but seemed to be uneasy all the time. He told Engesett that he was working in a down-town store and that he had worked in the Northwestern railway offices and as a lile clerk with the Western Union Telegraph company.

At length, April 3, Walker told Engesett that he was out of work. April 16 he wrote the girl to whom he was engaged asking her to release him, as he was a failure. The next day he disappeared.

Engesett notified the relatives of the missing boy. The mother wrote, praying for him to find her boy. She was at Vancouver. But she made plans to hurry back and search for her son. April 16, while talking of him, she dropped dead. Cloud, the new junior secretary.

Engesett then took up the task of finding the boy. He inquired at the downtown store and was told that no such person had ever worked there. He went to the Northwestern railway and was told that they never had a Deloss Walker on their pay roll. The Western Union made the same declaration. Engesett notified the police, but so far no clew has been found.

The girl to whom the missing boy was engaged has written to Engesett, which is waiting at the Engesett house. She urges him to try again and tells him she will wait.

WHAT HAPPENED

To Lady and Full Pot of Paint.

New York, May 13.—All unconscious of what fate had in store for her, Mrs. Catherine Mead of 326 East Fifty-fifth street went for a walk yesterday morning. In Second avenue, between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth streets, she stopped to gaze into a jeweler's window. Frank Zella, a young but honest painter, was at work on a swing ladder above her head. His paint was red. His foot slipped.

Splash! and a large gob of paint lit on Mrs. Mead's hat, hair, new lace collarette, and new spring jacket, says the World.

"Oo-oo-oo!" she cried, shuddering and sobbing as the crimson stream soaked and spread out on her shoulders.

"Who hurted you lady? Will I get you an ambulance," said Policeman Byron, as he seized her arm and drove the crowd away. The young doctor who presently arrived from Flower hospital took one look at Mrs. Mead and prescribed:

Spts ammonia 2iiij
Agua pura.....quant. suff.

"The patient needs a scouring shop, not a hospital," he explained, as he climbed back into the ambulance. The crowd laughed. Byron grew angry, and arrested the painter. The crowd followed after the policeman, the painter, and the unhappy, encarnadined Mrs. Mead.

"Now, then, your name," said Magistrate Zeller, as the painter was hauled before the bar of the Yorkville police court.

"Frank Zella, your honor," replied the painter. "I am full of apologies toward this lady, and—"

"Yes, and I'm full of paint," exclaimed Mrs. Mead. "Who's going to pay for all my ruined Easter things?"

"Me!" cried Zella eagerly.

"Discharged, ordered the magistrate. "And if he doesn't pay you, madame, sue him civilly."

MASSACRE OF RUSSIAN JEWS

Forty Killed, 171 Wounded and $100,000 Loss Inflicted.

Chicago, May 13.—In a letter from M. Ostrofsy, a correspondent of the Jewish Press and Progress, a Yiddish newspaper published at 429 South Union street, the writer gives an account of the recent massacre of the Jews in Kishineff, Besserabia, Russia. The riot started on April 19 and continued three days. During that time forty Jews were killed and of the 171 wounded in the hospitals many were supposed to be fatally injured. More than 10,000 Jewish families lost property during the affray, their loss being estimated at nearly $100,000. Immediately after the first outbreak those of the Jews who had the means fled for safety to Odessa and Kieff. All of the "Botzia Medrashim," or Jewish temples, in the city were destroyed. The principal place of worship, the Aaron Meled Shul, in Ismalova street, was the center of attack, and twenty bibles written on ancient scrools were torn to pieces and the fragments trampled in the mud.

At the time the letter was written quiet was said to prevail in the city. Ten thousand soldiers had been ordered to the town by the Czar, who were martial law was to be established. The doors and windows of all houses that had been damaged in the riots have been sealed with government seals.

Kishineff is a city of 200,000 people, 75,000 of whom are Jews. The rioting was the culmination, it is charged by the correspondent, of a series of persecutions to which the Jews have been subjected in the province for many years. Just before Easter the son of a rich Russian farmer was found murdered, with hundreds of wounds on his body. An anti-Jewish newspaper declared that the boy had been killed by the Jews, who wanted to use his blood in their Easter rites. The government sent spies into the province, and the fact was established that the boy had been killed by a relative who feared that the wealth of the parent would be left entirely to the son. Notwithstanding this discovery, which was at once made public, the paper urged that the Jews be driven out of the province, it is asserted, and the riots were the result.

GREAT WAR CHEST

Kept By Germany In Tower of Julius.

London, May 13.—A dispatch from Berlin to the Chronicle says that Spandau castle, near Berlin, is to be pulled down, with the exception of the tower of Julius which is to remain, as hitherto, the Gilmer. No. The family made every effort to notify the missing youth, but if he has ever heard of his mother's death he has given no sign.

man empire. Of the £200,000,000 exacted from France in 1871, £6,000,000 in gold was put aside in the fortress vaults to be kept in readiness for the expenses of the next German war. There it still remains untouched, save for its annual inspection and weighing. As a modern instance of the parable of the man who buried his talent in the earth, this German hoarding of £6,000,000 is unique. At only 3½ per cent compound interest money doubles itself in twenty years, so that the original £6,000,000 would have grown into nearly $17,000,000 in these thirty years. The doomed castle is also notable as one of the prisons of Baron Trenck.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANTS.

Freehold, N. J., May 13.—In the suit for $25,000 damages brought by Charles Herbert against former State Senator Terhune and others, whom the plaintiff accused of heading a vigilance committee, which strung him up in an effort to make him confess to incendiarism, the jury has brought in a verdict for the defendants. No one denied the hanging, but denied guilty knowledge.

FISH WHICH DRINK ALCOHOL

Experiments That Show Some Startling and Laughable Results.

Paris, May 13.—Of course a fish, in spite of damaging and libelous comparisons, does not drink alcoholic beverages to excess. A French scientist, Prof. Archant, has, however, forced unwelcome alcohol into gold fish for experiment, says Figaro. The fish who really "drinks like a fish" swims merrily about his globe for awhile, then drops to the bottom, lies on his side, and looks silly.

Prof. Archant has tried alcohol upon other creatures. A dog's stomach, for instance, will not retain pure alcohol. It is necessary to give him a 10 per cent mixture, about the strength of ordinary claret. Even this has to be piped straight into his stomach or he would veto the arrangement.

Released, the dog frisks about as if happy. Later he becomes sleepy, maudlin, and reproachful. He thinks of all his past sins and seems ashamed. Presently he tries to walk about and finds his legs ill balanced. Not until after a long sleep does he recover.

Other animals differ somewhat in their program. The rabbit wastes no time, but goes to sleep at once. The kangaroo wants to fight. The guinea pig goes into convulsions.

The doctor, of course, tries his experiments for the purpose of finding exactly how alcohol acts. Analyzing the blood of his "specimens" at various stages, he announces that if you examine the blood ten hours after taking alcohol you will find traces of it, and if you examine it again twenty hours after it has reached the stomach analysis will still reveal the presence of alcohol. So that those who are given to the frequent consumption of liquors must accumulate a quantity of alcohol in the system which may have disastrous consequences.

RAN A "SHOESTRING."

Won In Five Races Out of Seven.

New York, May 13.—A bunch of curb brokers, transformed for a time into hot race track sports, went up to Morris Park on Saturday, and there of the dozen in the party eleven "lost their shirts" and one ran a "shoestring"—namely: $6—up to $1675. Edward McCormack is the broker whom fortune favored, and it is not the first time he has made a killing on the track. On the Brooklyn handicap day last year, he also sarted with $6, playing it across the board one, two, three on the first race and winning all three bets. He touched the bookies up after vigorous style, and out of seven races picked winners in five and caught a second in another race. Among the horses he bet on were two 60 to 1 shots and one a 100 to 1 shot, and when he left for home his original $6 had swelled to $7500.

His success on Saturday, while not quite so remarkable, will, in view of last year's record, make him hereafter the most sought after man in the Broad street curb market on race-track days. In the string he played on Saturday he won in five races out of seven. In the first race he bet on Durazzo, placing $6 across the board, the odds being 30 to 1 first, 10 to 1 second, and 5 to 1 third. With $2 up each way he cashed in $90 in winnings. He used his winnings in betting on each succeeding. In the fourth race, the Toboggan handicap, he bet on Ilyria across the board at 60 to 1, 20 to 1 and 8 to 1. Ilyria came in second, so he cashed on two of his bets. He lost on the fifth, but won on the sixth and seventh.

CLEVER VERSE

May Lead to Discharge of a Prisoner.

New York, May 13.—John Donnelly on March 31 was sentenced to six months on Blackwell's island by Magistrate Flammer on a charge of vagrancy. Magistrate Flammer was then sitting in the Yorkville court. Yesterday, says the Tribune, while sitting in the Harlem court Magistrate Flammer received a letter from Donnelly asking that he be discharged, saying that he was intoxicated at the time of his commitment, was not a vagabond, and wished to support his aged mother. At the close of the letter were the following verses:

"There is mercy in each ray of light
That mortal eyes e'er saw;
There is mercy in the God above,
And, I hope, in courts of law.
There is mercy in each creeping thing,
since the world it first began;
There's mercy in Judge Flammer to discharge me like a man.

Magistrate Flammer liked the verses and turned the case over to a probationary officer, saying that if it was found a mistake had been made Donelly would be discharged.

DRAGGING MARKET

Wheat Rules Dull All Morning and Closes Slightly Lower.

Crop News All Favorable —Flax Is Quiet and Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 13.—The wheat market today was a very dull affair and there were small declines except in the May option on New York, which was strong. The seaboard reported 25 loads of wheat worked for export, but in the local market there was no foreign or eastern demand. Cables were lower. Liverpool closing unchanged to ½d lower. Paris ⅜c to 1½c lower and Antwerp unchanged. The weather both in the United Kingdom and continent was favorable. The complaints as to crop damage in this country were not numerous enough to cause any apprehension. Minneapolis reported that more than half of this wheat receipts thus far this week have been winter wheat.

Primary receipts of wheat were 215,000 bushels; last year, 548,000 bushels. Shipments, 471,000 bushels; last year, 410,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 277,000 bushels.

Trading in wheat was very dull and the range very narrow. July opened ⅛c up at 77⅝c bid and sold off to 77⅜-½c at 9:52. At 5:57 it sold at 77½c and then fell to 77⅜c at 10:20. It rose again off still from there at 11:30, selling at 77¾c, and then rallied slightly, closing at 77⅝c. This was a decline of ⅜c. May declined ¼c. In Chicago the May option closed ⅛c lower, and July ⅛c lower. In Minneapolis the May option fell ⅜-¼c and July ⅛c. New York May advanced ⅝c and July ⅛c off.

Cash sales were very light and prices were unchanged at May price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2.

Flax was quiet and slightly firmer, July selling ⅛c up to $1.16. May was unchanged.

There was a decline of ½c in oats to arrive and on track.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Extreme Dullness Characterized Trading In Wheat.

Chicago, May 13.—Extreme dullness characterized trading in wheat and prices held steady during the early part of the day, July opening a shade higher at 72¼c, on firm cables and small receipts. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 91 cars which, with local receipts of 29 cars, none of contract, grade made total receipts for the three points of 90 cars, against 118 cars last week and 146 cars a year ago.

Later on commission house selling the market became easier, July selling off to 71⅝@72, after touching 72¾@⅞. The close was steady with July ⅛ lower at 72⅝@⅝c.

Small receipts and firm cables caused a steady opening in corn, July being unchanged to ⅛c higher at 45⅜ to 45¾c, but there was little change in prices the first hour, the trading being quiet and featureless. Local receipts were 178 cars with eleven of contract grade.

The market held steady throughout the session. July closing a shade lower at 45⅛@45¼c.

The sentiment in oats was again bullish on crop prospects but opening prices steady with July unchanged at 32⅜c. Trading was light but the market was firm on small offerings. Local receipts were 88 cars.

High prices of hogs caused firmness in provisions at the start, Sept. pork being 2½ higher at $16.70, September lard 5c higher at $9.65 and ribs up 5c at $9.25.

The only feature was a fair demand for lard from brokers supposed to be for the account of packers.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Another extremely dull day. There was nothing in the tidings. Some export business is reported at the seaboard, but estimates are conflicting. Western markets are dull in a cash way. There is not enough complaints on crop damage to stimulate speculative confidence. The local trade is entirely of a scalping nature and outside business very dull. The shorts in May wheat are gradually getting covered we think. The market is still without tendency. Estimated cars, 35.

Corn—The market was firm early, but only steady with a small volume of trade. Fair receipts and a fair shipping demand. The continued showery weather throughout the West prevents any great selling pressure and induced some buying, but the conditions are not considered acute enough to stimulate the speculative feeling to any extent. Nebraska is complaining of too much rain. No feature to the speculative trade. Estimated cars, 235.

Oats—The market is moderately active and firm. Crop reports continue rather unfavorable and the crop is reported late making a poor start. There is fair local buying of July and September oats and the country is trading moderately on this side also. Cash demand continues poor. Estimated cars, 125.

Harris, Gates & Co.: Wheat—Judging from the Paris cables, the condition of their wheat crop must be considered as somewhat better. Weather in this country seems exceedingly favorable. The export demand is moderate. It looks at present as though 70 cents is all September wheat was worth. The stock of contract wheat here is just about the same as on the first of the month.

Iowa state crop bulletin: This has been the most favorable week of season for field work, temperatures normal and rain fall light. Conditions favorable.

St. Louis says: The following letter is from Moscow, Kentucky—"The past winter and spring has proved a hard one on our wheat crop. It seemed to have too much rain through the winter and when the rain ceased it went into drouth and with the aid of rust, fly and chinch bug our crop is poor. South of the Ohio we can't possibly make a half crop, the worst outlook ever had. Heads short and many fields eaten up with rust and fly. We will not be in the trade."

OFFICE OF THE

George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

27 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

We have in our Iron Queen group of mines a well-defined vein proved three thousand feet in length and with a probable length of more than two miles, proved five feet in width at the minimum and widening out in places to forty feet, and at least two thousand feet in depth, with the probabilities in favor of its going below five thousand feet.

Taking the minimum measurements and multiplying the three thousand feet in length by two thousand feet in depth and five feet in width, we get as the contents of the vein 20,000,000 cubic feet of ore, which will run ten cubic feet to the ton, giving us 3,000,000 tons.

There is a net profit in this of at least $10 a ton over all expenses of mining and milling.

3,000,000 tons at $10 a ton yield $30,000,000 in profits.

This is from only one group of our properties. In the Cliff and Brookshire groups I believe the ore bodies to be even larger richer and more valuable, but it takes longer to get at them, and as they are several other groups almost equally promising.

I have had too much practical experience in mining to indulge in visions. I would rather underestimate than overestimate results. When the United Verde stock was first offered for sale I was asked to estimate upon the probable production of the property, and my estimates came short of the reality. The same is true of my estimates of the Greene Consolidated, with which I am connected. The people who bought the United Verde upon my recommendation have made three thousand per cent upon their investment in ten years. The people who bought Greene Consolidated—also upon my recommendation—have made five hundred per cent in two years. I believe that the stock of the GEORGE A. TREADWELL COMPANY at present prices is a better investment than the United Verde or Green Consolidated ever was.

GEORGE A. TREADWELL, President.

A RALLY IN STOCKS

Followed Relaxation of the Pressure Started on Tuesday.

Market Eased Off Later on Threatened Northern Strike.

New York, May 13.—Some heavy blocks of individual stocks changed hands at the opening, but the price changes were trivial throughout and mixed between gains and losses, first sales of Pennsylvania were of 3000 shares, of Missouri Pacific 2800 shares and of Atchison 1600 shares, each at a gain of ⅛. Tennessee Coal fell ⅝ and the United States Steel stocks opened down a small fraction.

Support was lacking for the United States Steel stocks and the trunk lines and professional operator resumed yesterday's late vigorous selling. Leading stocks generally yielded substantial fractions, and the decline reached 2¼ in Metropolitan Securities and 1 to 1½ in New York Central, Frisco, Illinois Central and Louisville & Nashville as well as a number of minor stocks. Colorado Fuel exceptionally advanced 1¼. The active list was a trifle better at 11 o'clock.

The selling pressure shifted to new points in the second hour, causing declines of 1 to 2 points in St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Wabash, Kansas & Texas preferred, Sugar, General Electric, Metropolitan, Gas, Tennessee Coal, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Locomotive and Continental Tobacco preferred. Metropolitan was forced down 3¼, and rallied 1¾. The reported weakness of the iron market, and fears of further gold exports were the apparent causes of the selling. Substantial recoveries were made before noon. St. Paul nearly wiped out its loss. National of Mexico preferred rose ¾ over last night and Colorado Fuel 2⅜. The market became quiet at the rally. Bonds were irregular at noon.

The recovery in the market made greater headway when Baltimore & Ohio and National of Mexico gained a point. The earlier losses in other leading stocks were about made up, but the demand was small and not much interest was manifested in the market.

The general list became heavy again when large blocks of Rock Island were unloaded, driving it down a point. Prices elsewhere did not suffer, but there was no inclination to buy at the concessions. Colorado Fuel continued its rise and touched 71 a gain of 4. Hocking Coal declined 1.

Prices were inclined to harden on the demand to cover by the shorts. But renewed selling of Rock Island down to 42⅞ unsettled the tone of the market. Minneapolis and St. Louis preferred declined 3. Pere Marquette 1⅜ and New Haven. Enamelling preferred and Manhattan Beach a point each. The closing was steady and lifeless.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Are you aware that the average price level has been sneaking slowly and gradually upward since April 14? Some stocks have not moved, but many issues are actually down 8 to 15 points. It is a slow and gradual advance without the wild antics of a year ago. Conditions seem to be shaping themselves as well as can be expected. There will be plenty of money to go around this fall. The probability of a good wheat crop with reserve supplies both here and abroad less than for years and with poor crop prospects in other countries is a matter which has not yet received the attention it deserves. It makes the world's wheat situation much the same as that of five years ago. The weakness of Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific tends to unsettle the market. It is pretty hard to know which are the best stocks to buy. One man's guess is about as good as another's. A traders' market with slowly rising trend is indicated. Purchases will be safe unless the average price level gets below Monday's.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: The market opened irregular with the liquidation which began yesterday still showing some signs of continuance this morning. Lapsley & Co. reported a few specialties which seemed to have been selected by the bears as points of attack. Good investment buying was in evidence on this decline which absorbed all the offerings. These recessions should be taken advantage of to accumulate a line of the good stocks.

• • •

Lapsley & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: A valued bear client sends us the following: "Your views are crude and made from idle gossip of dead ones, whose ideas are formed by the four walls of the stock exchange and who cannot see beyond. The wise one has his hand on the pulse of the country and can see the handwriting on the wall. Conditions are bad; the barometer is the steel shares."

• • •

Town Topics: Speculative selling and possibly some liquidation are to be expected today on account of the unfavorable rumors regarding an impending decline in the iron and steel trade. It may be said right here, however, that iron prices are not in a healthy condition on the high level and a reaction would not only increase importation but would increase the export of iron and steel products from the United States. Therefore shading of prices to a legitimate level is to be welcome rather than taken as an indication of a decline in business for what may be lost by domestic consumption will be made up by foreign demand. The heaviness of Pennsylvania is without doubt attributable to the selling of the stock against the new issue and is in the nature of absorption of undigested issues. The late decline yesterday may be taken as a bear raid by the two factors above mentioned and while prices are likely to be shaken a little today we do not expect to see the recession extended much further and unhesitatingly recommend the purchase of Missouri Pacific, Wabash preferred, Baltimore and Ohio and the Eries on any sign of weakness. We get information which leads to the belief that there will be very heavy foreign buying in this market in the near future. In fact we are led to believe that the foreigners, London in particular, will start a moderate bull market here by buying a large block of Americans, according to the story that comes to our attention. It is likely that a big syndicate of foreign bankers will be formed to carry on the campaign. The matter has already been discussed in view of the wonderful over-subscription of the Transvaal loan which shows that there is more than one billion dollars of idle money in Europe seeking investment.

• • •

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The pressure which was in evidence at the close last night continued this morning in the first hour, but relaxed and prices rallied. The rumor which was circulated at the close last night of a decline in the price of steel billets was denied this morning although steel stocks showed evidences of weakness. Colorado Fuel & Iron was the feature, advancing 4 points from the opening figures in the morning on rumors that the Gould and Rockefeller interests had bought stock for control. During the day the market became easier because of belief that the threatened strike on the Great Northern would extend to the roads in the Northern Securities group. Canadians were active on the advance of the stock in London. The market closed with a firm undertone.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: "The recent advance in Amalgamated is directly due to the strength of the metal market. Lewisohn Bros. have bought 50,000 shares this week. The leading producers report that they find a ready market for their copper at 15 cents, despite the fact that sales on the New York Metal Exchange are reported below that figure."

Waldorf to Coe Commision Co.:—Speculative sentiment though somewhat dampened by the heaviness of Pennsylvania continues bullish. Brokers who represent leading financial interests say the market has thoroughly liquidated. That stocks no longer come out on the raids and that the real holders of the largest lines are men who have bought them for a pull knowing very well that future earnings will be maintained and even increased by higher freight rates. Furthermore these capitalists are aware that by reason of the enormous sums spent for improvements the most important railroads instead of cutting dividends when traffic shrinks, will cut expenses. But the best posted railway officials see no sign of a falling off in business, the big crop and increased wages which add immensely to the purchasing power of the country pointing the other way. This confidence is particularly in Gould, Rockefeller circles and followers of these interests talk very bullish especially on the granger, Missouri Pacific and Wabash.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: There is very little change in prices and none in conditions. Market is extremely dull, with small professional trade and no outside business. The gossip of the day has been devoid of interest. The indications are that neither buying of Pennsylvania has been treasury stock. The statement of the Northern Securities company and its present condition are being unfavorably discussed. Nothing new on the Great Northern strike. We see no indications of improvement in the conditions of the market, and still think stocks should be sold on the rallies.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was irregular and showed evidence of bear manipulation all day. A good many rumors were circulated but so far as could be learned they had no basis, in fact, and except in a few special stocks, prices did not suffer much. Coppers were featureless. They sold off slightly in the morning, but met good buying and recovered. It still seems to be a traders' market and if prices run off a little more we think it stocks a purchase for a turn.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 13.—Tremendous excitement pervaded the cotton market this morning as a result of a sensational advance in Liverpool which came about 10 to 16 points higher than had been expected. The local market started 18 to 27 points higher on the near months and 4 to 14 on the late months under a rush of shorts to cover. The decline of yesterday had attracted sales and these sellers bought actively this morning. During the first few minutes prices were advanced a trifle further on supposititons but were almost immediately weakened by a wave of selling for profits. This selling was encouraged by the indifference of New Orleans, favorable weather and fair receipts. The advance at Liverpool was attributed by cables to demand in the absence of selling and the strength of the spot situation. It was also thought that the operations of the local bull clique had been transferred to that market.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 25 points higher; middling uplands, 11.55; middling gulf, 11.80; sales, 1300 bales. Cotton futures closed firm; May, 11.30; June, 11.03; July, 10.88; August, 10.33; September, 9.44; October, 8.96; November, 8.85; December, 8.85; January, 8.85.

Canadians Making Further Bid For Shipping Enlargement.

Dry Dock Subsidy Will Benefit Capt. McDougall's Company.

The rapid increase in the value and tonnage of Canadian shipping during the past few months and the extensive plans that have been laid for further expenditures, is causing no little comment among marine papers.

The increase is said to be due partly to the abatement of tolls on the Welland canal, which has been so widely discussed, and partly to the general wave of prosperity which is sweeping over the Dominion to the north.

The Dominion government has followed up the first step in the encouragement of shipping interests by raising the subsidy on dry dock construction to 3 per cent on the cost of the work. Extensions and improvements to the dry docks at Toronto and on Georgian bay are being planned and there is an agitation for a dry dock on lake Superior either at Fort William or Sault Ste. Marie.

An order has been passed by the Dominion government for the construction of a new dock at Quebec, 500 feet long and costing $200,000.

An article in the last Marine Review discusses the probability of the headquarters for grain shipping shifting from Duluth to Fort William and Port Arthur and quotes a prominent Buffalo shipper as saying:

"We are going to see, and not very far away either, the day when Duluth as a grain shipping port will be so far eclipsed by Fort William that it will not be classed with it. I say this in spite of the fact that I am largely interested in Duluth and have no interests in Fort William. The tendency is all in that direction. Canada has seen it and is furthering it by building a great elevator system at Fort William."

Hamilton capitalists who brought over the steamers Strathcona and Donnaconna from England are bringing over a third large lake carrier, the Wexford.

The Inland Lakes Transportation company is bringing over three large lake carriers from England which will be put into commission on the upper lakes in July.

Two new transportation companies have been formed in Canada during the past two or three weeks, the Dominion Transportation & Towing company and the Canadian Towing & Transportation company.

A CANADIAN SUBSIDY.

The Collingwood Shipbuilding company, of Toronto, in which Capt. Alexander Dougall, of this city, is a stockholder, is interested in the action of the Dominion government in raising the subsidy on dry dock construction to 3 per cent on the cost of the work. The company

DRAMATIC WAR

Affairs at Metropolitan Seem to Be Badly Strained.

The Ferris Company and Wilburs Have Co-Determinate Contracts.

Affairs at the Metropolitan theater were at a highly sensational and intensely melodramatic stage at noon today.

"Those papers" are in the possession of Richard Ferris, and the directors expect to decide on their action this afternoon.

There was a meeting of the directors of the Metropolitan Theater company at the office of H. T. Abbott, 405 Lonsdale building, this morning.

There were present Directors Charles T. Fitzsimmons, A. Fitger, F. W. Densmore, Lane MacGregor and Attorney H. B. Fryberger. Manager John F. Condon of the Metropolitan theater was there and so was Richard Ferris, proprietor of the Ferris comedians.

After a session lasting all morning no decision was arrived at and another session was called for this afternoon.

The discussion at the meeting brought out some developments of interest to the large and personally interested clientele of the theater.

From the talk that ensued it was shown that John Condon had been sent to New York some time ago to do some booking for the house and that he, unknown early and being unaware of the contract now alleged to exist, engaging the Ferris company until Sept. 1, made a contract with the Wilbur Opera company for the season from June 1 to Sept. 1.

After considering the bookings in the East, Mr. Condon returned, and when he got to Duluth it was announced that he had succeeded W. H. Rainey as manager of the house. Mr. Rainey having received his notice about that time.

Pink sailing was the day dream of the owners of the house, and the "black speck, no larger than a man's hand" on the horizon, did not attract their attention. But it was there, and grew and grew, until a formal notice was sent, several days ago, to the office of Richard Ferris, at Minneapolis, informing him that he must close his company and withdraw in two weeks, according to the terms of their existing contract.

"Nay, nay, Pauline," wired Mr. Ferris. "The contract says no such thing."

"Ah, it did, I sent it, but your company has amended it and made the season until Sept. 1, without a two-weeks' clause. I'll be there and talk it over. Hold."

A hurried search was made and the contracts are claimed to be in the shape stated. The story of how they came to be that way is also an open book.

Some weeks ago the directors talked over the situation, and Mr. Abbott was made the spokesman. He conferred with Mr. Ferris and after some discussion of the matter, made a verbal agreement that Mr. Ferris keep the company here until Sept. 1.

The conference was held in the Spalding hotel, it is claimed, and after it Mr. Ferris went to the theater and hunted out Manager Rainey and told him what had happened.

When asked to sign a contract, as manager, to that effect, Mr. Rainey demurred, and said he would have to consult the directors. Accordingly he did, and finding that the agreement existed and he was empowered to sign, affixed his name to the amendment, making the season to Sept. 1. Mr. Ferris also signed the amendment.

But when the directors decided to change the management, one of the grievances was that the Ferris end of the contract was making too much money in proportion to that received by the house.

It is understood that the Ferris company is receiving the long end of a 65-35 percentage division.

This grievance cropped out this morning when one of the directors asserted that the house management was not making money out of their investment.

"That is the fault of your management," exclaimed Mr. Ferris, jumping to his feet. "At least partly. I have had losing weeks myself, and, if you wish, will produce my books for you to see. If the house is properly taken care of, it will make money. I will make this proposition to you. I will transfer properties and you may have thier company. If you will give me the house at the present division of receipts."

"But we don't know anything about that end of the business," said one of the directors.

"Well, that offer is open," replied Mr. Ferris. "I want to be fair and right, and you can do that if you wish. I'll take chances of making money at the house's end of it."

The question will probably be taken up for discussion at the meeting this afternoon.

Mr. Ferris also offered to reduce the percentage, under certain conditions.

"If you let me cut out the specialties," he said, "you may cut off 10 per cent off my receipts. I don't want the specialties, anyway, and spend exactly the 10 per cent extra that I receive for them."

If Mr. Ferris holds the contract as described, he probably is in what is called the golden seat. He avers that he will sue for damages, and base his claims for actual amounts on the business of the past, and the proportionate increase in receipts each week, consistent with the graduation up, up to this time.

What the Wilbur Opera company will do, if its contract is not fulfilled, is another question. As far as can be learned, the Wilbur company has not been communicated with. The organization is in the East and is expected to be here about June 1, or in time to open the Monday following June 1.

Members of the company have been making plans to come, and several of the hotels are in receipt of letters from singers inquiring for rates and accommodations.

Mme. Schumann-Heink.

Immense Audience Will Greet The Great Singer.

Madame Schumann-Heink will be greeted at the Lyceum this evening by an audience such as a singer of her standing deserves. It gives promise of possibly breaking the record established a short time ago by Anna Held.

Mme. Schumann-Heink sang in Minneapolis two nights ago and the musicians of that city went into raptures over her. The Journal said:

"Any attempt to review the recital given by the world's great contralto, Mme. Schumana-Heink, at the First Baptist church last evening, can be nothing but another tribute to her worth. It was not alone the magnificent voice that captivated the audience, but the dominant womanliness and the hearty good will. One could not but feel she was the woman as well as the artist.

"After the recital many prominent musicians and music lovers found an opportunity to meet the prima donna. Her delight was evident when any one who spoke German was presented, but she talked willingly in English with others, telling of her trip from Texas. When asked if she had rested, she answered smiling, 'Oh yes, I had sleep.' Certainly no fatigue manifested itself in her voice, and although the program included numbers requiring the widest diversity of interpretation, she essayed each with marvelous success. Her wonderful tonal effects were noticeable throughout."

Shipping Equipment.

The Richards-Lundeen company, which has the contract for 125 miles of new road for the Soo line in the western part of the state this summer, has already begun to ship large quantities of road building equipment to convenient points on the proposed new road. HAS A BUSY DAY

San Franciscoans Keep the President on the Move.

Visits Presidio and Many Other Points of Interest.

San Francisco, May 13.—President Roosevelt arose early this morning and from the windows in the Palace hotel saw the sun break from a threatened bank of fog before the hour marked for the first event on the program prepared for the day. At 9 a. m. he was in his carriage, accompanied by Mayor Schmitz, and a few moments later, escorted by a squadron of cavalry and members of the executive committee, proceeded to Native Sons' hall, on Mason street. As on yesterday, the streets were thronged with people, and the president's approach was the signal for hearty cheers. At the hall a hearty California welcome was given the nation's chief executive by the assembled sons and daughters of the golden West, aided by a big delegation of pioneers. Some of these old-timers came to the state before the late of Roosevelt's birth. The president's reception was not marked by much formality, and he was evidently impressed by the sincerity of his greeting. He was presented with a souvenir of solid gold, which he accepted with a few words of thanks.

Meanwhile the school children of the city had assembled by thousands on the broad sidewalks of Van Ness avenue. Each boy carried an American flag and they lined the thoroughfare for many blocks. Shortly after 10 o'clock the president reached the avenue and was driven slowly through the files of children, who cheered wildly and waved their hands as they noted his approving smile. The president then proceeded to the Presidio military reservation, facing the Golden Gate, where he reviewed the United States troops stationed at this point. The soldiers were under command of Maj. Gen. MacArthur, and their appearance, as well as the military evolutions skillfully performed for his inspection, elicited high praise from the president. From the Presidio through Golden Gate park to the Cliff house on the blu, at the southern side of the entrance of San Francisco harbor, the presidential party was taken. Here lunch was served, after which the president returned through the park to the Baker street entrance, where he broke ground for a monument to the late President McKinley, to be erected by the citizens of San Francisco. Veterans of the Mexican, civil and Spanish wars were here assembled and were especially referred to in the president's speech. This evening the president will be escorted by a squadron of cavalry to the Mechanics' pavilion, where he is to deliver an address. On the way he will review the pupils of the evening schools, who will be lined along Market street.

MONSTER ANCHORS.

An order has lately been received at the Charlestown navy yard directing the equipment department to manufacture sixteen anchors to weigh 17,000 pounds each, and these will be the largest ever put on any warship or merchant steamer afloat or building, writes the Boston correspondent of the New York Herald. The order states that the anchors are to be used on board the recently authorized battleships Tennessee, Washington, Connecticut and Louisiana. As soon as the work is begun a large number of men will have to be employed to operate the forges and hammers and as helpers. At present about 150 men are engaged in the manufacture of anchors and chains in the old shops, but within a short time the new shops will be completed and the new machinery installed, thereby trebling the capacity of the plant.

Each of the four new battleships will be given four of the great anchors and four chains, or cables, as they are termed in the navy. These chains will be very heavy, although not quite equal to those carried by the largest of the ocean liners. The wire of which the chains are to be made will measure 3 3-16 inches in diameter.

Every chain used on a United States warship comes from the yards at Charlestown, and before they are sent out, each is thoroughly tested. For instance, the chains for the great 17,000-pound anchors must withstand a breaking strain of at least 404,000 pounds. Out of every 90 feet of chain at least one link is broken in the testing machine. The test never fails to show that the links are stronger by at least 25,000 pounds than the requirements demand, and sometimes they exceed it by more than 30,000 or 35,000 pounds.

Besides the order for the 17,000-pound anchors, the equipment department also has on hand orders for fifteen more to weigh 16,500 pounds, as well as scores of smaller sizes weighing from 8000 of smaller sizes weighing from 8000 of thirty pounds. There ranging from 30 to 120 are for the launches and small boats, those from 300 to 1000 for torpedo boats, and those from 1000 to 5000 for gunboats. The larger sizes go to the protected cruisers, armored cruisers and battleships of different classes.

At the lower end of the navy yard reservation there is a large vacant lot which is known as the "anchor park." Very few of the numerous visitors to the yard ever see this collection of antique and modern appliances for anchoring ships. But the exhibit is well worth viewing. Among the 300 specimens displayed are representatives of every type ever used in the navy, with possibly the exception of the earliest variety of frigate anchors. Some of them are nearly 100 years old, and scores of different patterns are shown. In the collection are many "freak" anchors, of which only a single specimen exists. These were invented by someone who had enough influence to get the navy department to authorize the trial of a sample on some ship. Few ever proved of any practical value, and many of them were sent here to be stored. Thirty anchors arrived at the park from San Francisco recently.

PASSENGERS FLEE IN NIGHT CLOTHES

Gas Explosion Causes Fire on a Sleeping Car.

Sleepy Occupants Barely Escape With Lives.

New Haven, May 14.—Twenty passengers, including sixteen men and four women, had to flee in their night clothing early today from a burning sleeping car at the Union station. The car was near the rear end of the New York, New Haven & Hartford train, which left New York at 11 o'clock last night for Boston. When the train reached here at 1 a. m. the sleeper was connected with a pipe which supplies the cars, with gas, and the gas supply was turned on. Immediately afterward a slight explosion was heard, flames burst out and the car filled with smoke. The passengers dazed with sleep and half blinded by the smoke made a rush for the doors. A woman was knocked down and suffered a slight injury to her back and right arm, but said she was not seriously hurt. An old gentleman, who had difficulty in getting out of his berth close to the point where the fire started, was nearly suffocated, but was finally assisted from the car, and later recovered. The blaze was finally extinguished and a hunt was made for the passengers' valuables. Among those who said they had lost money was A. Freschlan, of Chicago; B. D. Caplan, of New York, said he left about $30,000 in money and securities in the car. After the search a wallet containing the missing securities was found, and Mr. Caplan then said he had recovered everything except some money, which was burned up in his clothes. The hand bags and clothing of most of the passengers were water soaked. The women passengers were taken to a neighboring hotel and the men were provided with overalls and shoes.

WOMAN WHO SENT POISONED WHISKY HAS BEEN ARRESTED

She Is Charged With Murder on Account of Death of Express Company Employe Who Drank of the Liquor From Broken Bottle.

Cincinnati, May 14.—William Daly and Louis Burbank, Adams Express company employes, who were poisoned last night along with three others who drank poisoned whisky from a bottle addressed to Mrs. Kate Nobbe, of this city, and which became broken before delivery, are in the hospital today in a quite serious condition. Benjamin Ficker, another one, died last night upon reaching the hospital. Two others are still suffering though not expected to die. Word was received today that in response to a telegraphic request made by the acting chief of police of Cincinnati to the chief of police at Memphis, Mrs. Lizzie McCormick, of Memphis, has been arrested on the charge of murder. This was caused by the identification by Mrs. Nobbe of the handwriting on the address card on the package containing the poisoned whisky. She also stated that Mrs. McCormick had become intensely jealous of her in connection with Edwin Pell, of Memphis, who is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Nobbe. Mrs. McCormick is his housekeeper. Mrs. Nobbe says she has received insulting letters, obscene pictures and articles by express from Memphis from Mrs. McCormick, showing intense feeling. Mrs. Nobbe has been separated from her husband for some time, and is employed at the Hotel Honing. She lives with her aunt and two children in rooms in the West End.

Memphis, May 14.—Early this morning Mrs. Lucy McCormick, whom Mrs. Kate Nobbe, of Cincinnati, alleges sent her a poisoned package at Cincinnati, was located in Hampton Place and brought to police headquarters. She was accompanied to the station by a man named Pell, proprietor of a saloon in Beal street, and who is said to have formerly lived in Cincinnati.

Mrs. McCormick denied all knowledge of a package of whisky and stated that she had returned to Mrs. Nobbe's home a few days ago a package containing a doll and which she afterwards said contained candy.

Officials of the express company forwarding the package have not been seen.

MAN WHO LURED GIRL TO HOTEL CONFRONTED BY DESERTED WIFE

She Says He Is Harold C. Mills, Who Married Her Last October and Left Her In January—She Thinks Him a Bigamist.

Chicago, May 14.—The Tribune today says: A deserted wife last night confronted Harold C. Reed, who is accused by Miss Laura Stickler of luring her to the Newport hotel, where she fell from the third story in an attempt to escape.

"He is Harold C. Mills, said the wife. "We were married Oct. 26 last. I suspect that he is a bigamist, and I want him tried on that charge."

Harold C. Mills was the president of the Guarantee Home Security company, and he disappeared on New Year's day. Detectives representing 1000 stockholders searched for him without success. He left Chicago, he said, to negotiate a loan in Buffalo. Since then his whereabouts had been unknown until Mrs. Mills appeared last night at the Harrison street police station, where he is a prisoner.

Mrs. Mills says she has received letters which indicate that the man had been married in Detroit, Pittsburg and St. Louis. He came to Chicago from St. Louis, where he was engaged in the picture business.

Reed or Mills represented himself, his wife said, as being a son of Horace Mills, a millionaire lumber merchant of Buffalo. He also said that he was related to the Jewetts of that city.

FRIARS HAVE A ROW IN BRAZIL

New York, May 14.—The conflict caused by the refusal of the abbot of San Benitos convent to allow entrance of foreign friars, who came to assist at a meeting of the order, has resulted in a serious dispute, cables the Herald's representative at Rio Janeiro, Brazil. At a meeting of friars held in the capital it was resolved, with the archbishop's support, to excommunicate the abbot of San Benitos. The friars elected as his successor Father Domingo Traffiguracno. The federal judge ordered the abbot to leave San Benitos. Believing that force might be needed to oust the abbot, Father Traffiguracno went to the convent with the chief of police and a squadron of cavalry. Father Juan Mercedes, the excommunicated abbot, promptly admitted the new abbot and asknowledged his title to succeed him. It was thought this had ended the trouble, but a meeting was held later at which the followers of Father Mercedes protested against the presence of the foreign friars in the convent. Becoming excited, a mob was formed and marched to the convent, cheering the deposed abbot and forced the foreign friars to leave and seek an asylum in the archbishop's house. Troops were called out. They entered San Benitos with fixed bayonets and drove out Father Mercedes' friends. The foreign friars returned later, accompanied by the chief of police and again took possession.

TO COMBINE AGAINST LABOR UNIONS

New York, May 14.—A national federation of employers, it is expected, will be one of the consequences of the movement begun by employers of labor in the building trades ot organize for protective and aggressive purposes against the labor unions. Telegrams and letters received from Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other cities state that the movement in this city is being watched with the keenest interest, and that if it could be shown that unity of action by employers could be made successful, organizations similar to that in this city would be formed in every large center of population.

EDUCATION BILL

Will Be Opposed By London's City Temple Pastor.

Thousands Cheer His Announcement of "Passive Resistance."

London, May 14.—There was a remarkable scene in the City temple at the midday service today when the pastor, Rev. R. J. Campbell, the successor of the late Dr. Parker, announced his adhesion to the "passive resistance" movement against the new education bill. When the Rev. Mr. Campbell, who may be regarded as the head of the non-conformists in this country and as voicing the determination of the non-conformists, said he would tender payment of the portion of the rates which was not devoted to sectarian purposes, and added that the collector would have to seize his hall clock, and other chattels for the balance, the audience, numbering about 3000 persons, stood up and cheered lustily for several minutes. The pastor added that he had heard that Colonial Secretary Chamberlain was likely to advocate the imprisonment of those who participated in the "passive resistance" movement, but he believed that if Mr. Chamberlain imprisoned him his days as a ministerial secretary would be numbered for nonconformity represented half the religious life of England."

INSURANCE LAWS

Considered at the Meeting of the Railroad Conductors.

All Grand Officers of Order Can Be Re-Elected.

Pittsburg, May 14.—When the Order of Railroad Conductors resumed its business session today the amendments to the insurance law were taken up again for second reading. There is a general desire on the part of members of the order to make their insurance reserve fund unlimited, as there is at present outstanding $50,000,000 worth of insurance.

The proposition to increase the salaries of the grand officers also came up for discussion again, and it is said was unanimously favored. It has practically been settled that all of the present grand officers will be re-elected if they desire the offices. There is no opposition in the field, and it is the desire of almost every conductor that the present incumbents continue to serve.

The entire session of the ladies' auxiliary was taken up today listening to reports and recommendations of the committees appointed yesterday. Nothing of any geenral importance was coming of any geenral importance was considered. Few changes have been recommended in their laws, and they do not expect anything very important to turn up at the convention.

Foulkes, of New York, a graduate of the Massachusetts insitute of technology, '98, has been awarded the Rotch traveling scholship as the result of the competition held in this city. The scholarship grants $1000 annually for two years to be expended in foreign travel and study.

The successful competitor was born in Monmouth, Ore., in 1875. He had previously competed for the prize. A short time ago he won the gold medal in the Beaux Arts competition in New York.

THE PRESIDENT ASSISTS IN DEDICATION OF MONUMENT

Magnificent Shaft Erected at San Francisco In Commemoration of the Victory of the American Navy at Manila—President Makes Speech.

San Francisco, May 14.—Under a balmy sky and on the greensward of Union square this morning, President Roosevelt participated in the dedication of the magnificent monument erected in commemoration of the victory of the American navy at Manila. The monument consists of a high shaft of white California granite, surmounted by a bronze figure of victory, holding in one outstretched hand a wreath and in the other a trident.

The president was escorted from the hotel to the square by all of the marines of the warships in the harbor. On the stand from which he addressed the assembled crowds were the officers of the warships in San Francisco bay and vicinity and the officers of the cruiser Grafton, the flagship of the British Pacific fleet.

In a few words Chairman Phelan presented the monument to the city, and it was as briefly accepted by Mayor Schmitz, on behalf of the municipality.

President Roosevelt said San Francisco should glory in commemorating the navy's victory at Manila, as it had opened the Pacific ocean to American commerce, and more than any other event had contributed to give the United States a high place among the naval powers. He dwelt on the necessity of preparing ships, armament and men for the navy. Naval battles are fought in advance and the Americans won at Manila because they had made ready for the strife. The necessity of improving the navy was first made apparent in 1882, and all the warships we now have were built since that time. Since the last war the naval strength of the United States has rapidly been increasing and under the wise provisions of the the last congress has particularly advanced.

He urged practical work at sea, particularly in marksmanship, saying: "Remember that the shots that count in war are the ones that hit."

The president was then driven to the United States transport dock, whence the party proceeded to Berkeley to take part in the commencement exercises at the university of California. Later President Roosevelt went to Oakland, where the citizens had arranged to give him a cordial greeting. At 2:30 the party will go aboard the torpedo boat Jones and proceed to Vallejo to lay the corner stone of the Y. M. C. A. auxiliary club house, to be erected for the benefit of seamen. They will then inspect Mare island navy yard, after which they will return to San Francisco.

Immediately after the banquet at the Union League club tonight the president will leave for Yosemite.

WAR AGAINST DEPARTMENT STORES

Milwaukee, May 14.—A commercial war, which it is said will extend throughout the country, has been started by the grocers of this city against manufacturers who allow their goods to be sold or demonstrated in department stores. The Retail Grocers' association of Milwaukee, a member of the National association, has passed resolutions not to handle products of manufacture that are placed in department stores. Henry W. Schwab, president of the Milwaukee Retail Grocers' association, says the action is the beginning of an open warfare against department stores of the country that enter into competition with the retail grocers by conducting grocery departments. He predicts that the action of Milwaukee grocers will be followed by every one of the forty-one states in which the National association has branches.

THREE EVILS FOR WOMEN TO SHUN

Chicago, May 14.—"Cocktails, man and flattery are the three evils that the professional woman must shun just as completely as the ambitious man must turn his back against 'wine, woman and song.' She is susceptible to them all and each is a barrier to success." This declaration has been made by Miss Grace Noble, who is to manage a New York play house next year, at a meeting of the Hull House Woman's club.

Miss Noble declared that society women are victims of the cocktail as often as professional women. "But," she declared, "the society woman has not a career to ruin. She may rest at home and recuperate while the professional woman has to continue with her work, no matter how unfit her mind is for it."

Miss Noble declared that success to the professional woman entailed greater privation, longer study and more suffering and disappointment than to the professional man.

OUTLOOK FOR PEACE IS GROWING BRIGHTER

A GENERAL STRIKE LIKELY AT DENVER

Citizens Committee Refuses Proposition of Arbitration.

Sixteen Thousand Men May Quit Work In Twenty-Four Hours.

Denver, May 14.—There is no change in the strike situation this morning. Pending the reply of the Citizens' Alliance general committee to the arbitration proposals of the joint executive committee of organized labor, no more men will be called out. The number of union men now on strike is 2490, the majority being butchers and meat cutters, cooks and waiters and bakers. Thousands of people are very much inconvenienced by the closing of restaurants, bakeries and butcher shops. If the arbitration agreement is not affected today a general strike, involving 15,000 to 16,000 union men, will probably follow. The trouble originated in the refusal of the employers, who organized the Citizens' alliance, to sign contracts with the unions. The general committee of the alliance met at 10 o'clock today to act upon the arbitration proposition submitted by the committee of the unions, which is as follows:

"That arbitration committees of five be chosen from the employers and the employes directly concerned, these committees to chose an eleventh member, and the findings of such arbitration committee be final in all cases."

The Citizens' alliance committee decided to adhere to its original proposition for the creation of one general arbitration board, to which all disputes shall be referred. The proposals of the labor unions to refer each difference to a committee of the employers and employes directly interested for arbitration was rejected and a resolution was adopted declaring that plan to be "unreasonable, unnecessary and unduly cumbersome."

Unless the labor committee recedes from the position heretofore taken a general strike will be ordered within twenty-four hours.

Pana, Ill., May 14.—The miners' strike here has virtually been settled. An agreement has been reached, only the affixing of actual signatures remaining. A thousand miners are affected.

Pittsburg, May 14.—The engineers and brakemen employed on the shifting engines at the Jones & Laughlin's plant have made a demand for shorter hours and threaten to go on strike tomorrow unless it is granted.

There are twenty-two shifting engines with six men to a crew. The men work ten hours daily for $2.65. They want to work eight hours during the summer for the same pay. A committee will meet the officers of the plant at the offices of the company this afternoon and see if an arrangement can be reached without a strike. About 135 men will be affected.

Erie, Pa., May 14.—The molders' strike has been settled and the men returned to work today after being out only two days. The men claim that practically everything they asked has been given them. The principal contention was that a minimum day's pay shall be $2.80. This is a rise of 15 cents.

Ironton, O., May 14.—Another strike by the section crews on the Detroit Southern extension work has occurred. The men are being paid $1 a day and board. They demand an increase of 25 cents.

New York, May 14.—The subway contractors began today to employ every man who asked for work in the subway in place of the strikers. In a short time a big force had been employed. Police guarded the whole length of the subway.

INFERNAL MACHINE FOUND ON STEAMER WAS MADE IN CHICAGO

Landlady at Boarding House Saw One of the Boarders Working Secretly on Machinery That Had Many Wheels to It.

Chicago, May 14.—Advices were received late last night from the police in New York that it was thought that the infernal machine, which was taken to the Cunard docks and placed on board the steamer Umbria, was made in Chicago by a man named G. Russell, living at 287 Washington boulevard.

The house at that number is kept by Mrs. Ehlan. She said last night that a man apparently about 30 years of age, who gave his name as G. Russell, had lived in her house for three weeks prior to April 25 on which day he left, saying that he intended to go East. The woman said that during his stay in her house he was engaged in some mysterious work, and kept his door always locked. She said, to know that it had something to do with clocks, and that he was always arranging some machinery that had a number of wheels in it.

Mrs. Ehlan said last night that she knew nothing more than what she had learned while he boarded with her. She did not know where he came from, nor where he went, except that he said, when he left, that he was going East.

New York, May 14.—Sailing lists of half a dozen Trans-Atlantic lines have been found by detectives in the room of G. Rosseau, who, it is alleged, was the sender of the infernal machine at the Cunard company's docks recently.

This fact has given rise to a theory that Rosseau sailed for Europe Saturday, immediately after mailing the warning letter to the police commissioner. The sailing lists found in Rosseau's room were all folded in a way to suggest that Saturday's sealings had been studied. No railroad time tables were found in the room and the boarders in the house who knew Rosseau best are strongly of the opinion that he is now in mid-ocean, on route for some foreign port. They think it possible that he sailed on the Umbria.

On cabled instructions from the police here each of the steamers which sailed east-bound Saturday will be searched on arrival for the dynamiter.

FOREST FIRES BREAK OUT WITH RENEWED VIOLENCE

Flames Are Within a Short Distance of Hotels In the Adirondacks and Are Still Spreading Fast—Great Damage Already Done.

Plattsburg, N. Y., May 14.—Forest fires which have been burning intermittently for several days, have broken out with renewed vigor around Colby pond near Saranac Lake, Paul Smith's on St. Regis lake and Aye's hotel on Lake Duane, in the Adirondacks.

A telegram from Paul Smith's states that the woods for ten miles, in every direction, seem to be on fire. The fire has approached within three miles of the hotel and is spreading fast. At Lake Duane, William J. Ayers, proprietor of the Ayers hotel, who has been fighting the flames with a large force of men for four days, has lost control of the flames and wired to Malone and Chasm Falls for aid. The fires have reached within half a mile of the hotel. It is reported that great damage has been done by forest fires on William Rockefeller's forest reserve. In many places in the Adirondacks no rain or snow has fallen since April 16, almost unprecedented for this time of the year.

Between Merrillaville and Onchieta, fire destroyed the Postal Telegraph company's line for three miles.

Greensburg, Pa., May 14.—The breaking out anew of the forest fires on Chestnut ridge has caused the greatest consternation among the people. Last night a mountain home owned by Booth & Flynn, near Blairsville intersection, was destroyed. Telegraph and telephone poles crossing the ridge at Blairsville intersection, were burned and the wires rendered useless. At Lake Hollow, near New Florence, the big mill for the manufacture of pins for poles, was burned. The Evans Lumber company loss several thousand dollars' worth of pin posts today. Booth & Flynn lost several cars of cross ties. The fire is raging in the vicinity of Ridge View park. People of Millwood and Derry are now engaged in fighting the flames.

Cresson, Pa., May 14.—The towns of Blansburg and Lloydsville, in Northern Cambria county, have been threatened with forest fires for seevral days. The sky is black with smoke. East of these places the mountain for fifty square miles had been swept clean of every tree. An additional 2000 acres between Belis Runa dn Bear Loop Run, has been desolated.

Great Northern Trainmen Have Long Conference With Officials.

Strong Hopes That Amicable Agreement Will Be Reached.

Meetings Strictly Secret With No Intimation of Propositions.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today the general committee and grand officers of the Great Northern trainmen were in conference with General Manager F. E. Ward in his office, trying to arrange a settlement of their differences.

Although the men have made every preparation for a strike, there are hopes now of an amicable agreement being reached.

Today's conference was looked on as possibly the first step in the settlement of the trouble between the company and its men. Nothing has yet been made public as to the proposition submitted by General Manager Ward last night.

After two hours' conference the committee and General Manager Ward adjourned for lunch and will resume their negotiations later in the day. The meeting was strictly secret and nothing was given out about the nature of the propositions considered. However, it was regarded as a good omen that the conference would be resumed after dinner, and the general opinion was favorable to a peaceful outcome of the negotiations.

Five minutes after the general conference of General Manager Ward and the committeemen had adjourned for dinner, D. F. Miller, chairman of the joint committee of the two brotherhoods; W. J. Wooley, of the trainmen, and A. H. Britton and R. K. Landis, of the two organizations, returned to Mr. Ward's office, where another conference was held.

The general impression is that a basis for action has been reached and that only the details remain to be worked out.

NORTHWESTERN SETTLES.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was reported unofficially that the Chicago & Northwestern system had settled with its trainmen, granting the same terms that have been conceded by most of the trans-continenta lines. The freight men receive an increase of 15 per cent and the passenger men an increase of 12 per cent. Double-headers are to be abolished, unless on the Dakota Central division, on which single engines are unequal to the demands, and double-headers are necessary. Messrs. Garretson and Newman say that they had heard of the action, but not yet officially.

At the general offices of the Omaha road it was stated that a report that an agreement had been signed had been received, but no official information to that effect had reached the general officers. It was also reported that the Milwaukee trainmen had reached a similar agreement with the management of their road, and that the papers are to be signed tomorrow.

The Great Western's telegraph operators and agents came to an understanding with the road at a late hour last night, and the men's grievance committee has departed. This adjustment of rules and rates of pay has been short, as the whole negotiation has occupied only ten days.

GALA DAY AT HOMESTEAD

On Occasion of Dedication of Schwab School.

Pittsburg, May 14.—Homestead has assumed gala day attire in preparation for the dedication of the Charles M. Schwab manual training school, which takes place Saturday. A parade over the principal streets of the town is to be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in which 2000 are expected to take part. At the conclusion of the parade the dedication of the school will take place.

HOLLS FORMALLY DECLINES.

New York, May 14.—Frederick W. Holls, who was tendered the position of umpire to act in the settlement of the claims of Germany and Italy against Venezuela, has declined the appointment owing to the pressure of private business.

GORMAN GOING TO EUROPE.

New York, May 14.—United States Senator Gorman of Maryland will sail for Europe on Saturday by the steamer Minnehaha.

MINERS GOING SOUTH.

Pottsville, Pa., May 14.—Many of the mine workers who since the recent strike have not secured employment are leaving for the soft coal regions. Two carloads of English-speaking miners from New Philadelphia and Hahanoy City left today for Belington, W. Va., where employment awaits them. Another train load will leave in a few days for the bituminous coal regions of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

JOCKEY SERIOUSLY HURT.

New York, May 14.—Jockey Barry, who was thrown from Seminole in the Knickerbocker hurdle handicap at Morris park yesterday, is reported today to be in a critical condition.

IT IS UP TO PEOPLE

Whether School District No. 6 Is to Be Divided.

People Have Not Yet Objected, Though They Might.

Will the people of school district No. 6, in the town of Midway, consent to have the six sections from the town of Solway which are annexed to the district cut off and annexed to the Solway district?

This is a question which the county commissioners have not yet determined. The petition of the residents of Solway township requesting the change came up for action at the last meeting of the board and there was no opposition to the proposed division from the Midway people but the county commissioners feared that the matter was not fully understood by the people of district No. 6, and action was deferred until the next meeting of the board.

Commissioner Kauppi, who was instrumental in getting the postponement of the matter by the board, says that he has not yet heard anything from his constituency in Midway and that so far as he is concerned it is up to them to come forward with any objections that they may have, for the petition will surely be granted at the next meeting of the commissioners if there is no opposition.

The town of Midway, which is more closely populated than Solway, had three schools while Solway has two schools. The Midway district includes but 27½ sections while Solway now has 32 sections. If the six sections which logically belong to the Solway district are cut off from the Midway district it will be left with but 21½ sections for the support of three schools while Solway would have 38 sections for the support of two schools.

It has been claimed that in case the six sections proposed are cut off the Midway district, the settlers living along the St. Louis river road which runs on the county line between St. Louis county and Carlton county, might be compelled to send their children to school in the Solway district. The nearest schoolhouse is in the northwest corner of section 6 in Midway township, while to reach the Solway school by road the pupils would have to go around partly by the Maple Grove road, which would mean about nine miles. A road could be built through northward from the St. Louis road that would shorten the distance, but there is little prospect that the county would consent to build the road, at least this year. This situation would likely call for the construction of a new school house convenient to the settlers on the St. Louis road, but there is nothing thus far to show that the rest of the taxpayers in the township of Solway care to assume this added expense with the acquisition of new school district territory.

It is also argued that the loss of the six sections would be a hardship to District No. 6 in Midway for the reason that Midway is now so hedged in by the city limits, Proctorknott independent district and Carlton county that there is no possibility of its reaching out for additional territry later when the population becomes ever larger, while Solway has plenty of room to expand northward where there is still a large thinly settled territory which might be brought into the school district.

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY.

Copies of Eugene G. Hay's Report Are Received.

The board of trade of Duluth has received a number of copies of the report of Eugene G. Hay, of Minneapolis, on the subject of reciprocity with Canada, made by him to the advisory board of the Minnesota branch of the National Reciprocity league. It deals with the present attitude of the United States and Canada upon the proposition and the prospects for the accomplishment of the desired change in the commercial relations between the two countries.

Mr. Hay was selected by the advisory board of the Minnesota branch of the league to make this report and devoted several weeks to the study of the matter, appearing at Washington and Ottawa, acquiring information upon the subject and learning its political status.

The report is for general circulation and for the purpose of bringing the matter before the people of Minnesota particularly, that they may realize its importance. Portions of the report were published in The Herald at the time Mr. Hay submitted it, but a reading of the entire document is necessary to fully appreciate the situation as set forth by Mr. Hay and the extent of his investigations.

Schumann-Heink Enthuses Over Duluth Vocal Talent.

Mme. Schumann-Heink was a visitor at the Bradbury School of Music this morning, and at her request Mr. Griffith and several of his pupils, including Miss Jane Everington, Edgar Prophet and John Martin sang. She was very enthusiastic over the voices, and greatly surprised to find so many good vocalists here. She complimented the management of the School for having assembled such an excellent faculty and predicts a bright future for the School, as there is "so viel ausgezeichnetes talent," to use her own words.

MRS. DORN NONSUITED.

Judge Holds She Settled the Marriage Promise.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 14.—The Dorn-Gormley breach of promise case was thrown out of court yesterday by Judge O'Neil granting the defendant's motion for a nonsuit. Mrs. Josie Dorn's new testimony that Gormley had promised to marry her whether or not the ceremony could be performed under the laws of the Catholic church did not suffice to sunstain the action. The nonsuit, however, was on the grounds that she had settled with Gormley and that the attorney's lien was not in proper form.

THE HYDE FORTY

The Oliver Iron Mining Company Is Exploring It.

Washing Plant For Arcturus Mine Not Yet Arrived.

The Oliver Iron Mining company has begun explorations on the famous Hyde forty.

One diamond drill is working and another is to be put on in a short time.

The working drill is set to the north, and is located about 300 feet south of the south line of the property now being explored by the Section Thirty company.

The Hyde forty, which has been in litigation about as long as the famous section 30 property now being explored, has never been made the subject of drilling tests.

Test pits have been sunk in various parts of the Hyde lands, and there are scores of them open at present.

The surface indications on the Hyde forty are considered by mining men far more favorable in appearance than the indications on the so-called section 30 proper.

The lands were formerly in possession of Thomas Hyde, who at one time refused an offer of $200,000 for them, or even more, it has been said.

But the property was taken from him through litigation, and he left the property, upon which he had lived, while making some test pit explorations and fighting for the title of the grounds.

The public has always believed the forty to contain rich deposits of ore, but nothing was known beyond the surmise based on the surface indications. No drilling has ever been done on the property, so fas as is generally known, and the drill which is now on the ground was put in quietly.

It is understood that the second drill will be placed on the forty within a few days.

The Hyde forty is south and west of the irregular shaped tract being explored by the Section Thirty company, and the drill is working at a dip from the foot of a ledge, exactly toward a point that will intersect the drill hole being sunk by the Section Thirty company toward the south, if they are sunk far enough.

MACHINERY NOT HERE.

Washing Plant For Arcturus Ore Is Coming.

"All of the machinery connected with the experimental washing plant at the Arcturus mine," said Guy A. Eaton this morning, "has not been transported to the mine location as yet, or at least we have not been informed if it has.

"The expert in charge of the Georgia plant, where a cargo of the ore was shipped and washed till it shone like polished metal, was up here two or three weeks ago and returned to get his machinery in shape to ship up here.

"There may be some of the portions of it here, but I am sure the whole plant has not arrived as yet. The test made with the carload of ore has convinced us that the system is a practical and desirable one for the ore, as it disposes of everything that looks like sand in the ore."

Mr. Eaton says the extension of the Great Northern road to the Diamond mine will pass through the Arcturus property on its way to the Diamond.

TRAFFIC CONTRACTS.

Great Northern Gets More Ore to Haul.

An agreement has been entered into between the Missabe Land company, the Great Northern Railway company, the Pitt Mining company and the Crete Mining company, whereby the Eastern Minnesota road will, for the seasons of 1903 and 1904, handle the ore output of the Albany mine from its location to the docks at Allouez bay. The railway company is to build sufficient spur track from its main line to meet the tracks which the mining company will construct on its property in sections 2 and 11-57-21, and will furnish the necessary rolling equipment, the mining company to put the ore on the cars at the underground mine, and in case of a surface mine on the property to furnish its own locomotive to handle cars for loading.

The Eastern Minnesota company is to haul the ore to the docks at a rate not to exceed 80 cents, and it is especially agreed that in case same other railway company constructs a line to the Albany mine, within a radius of five miles of the center of section 32-58-20, or to the Eveleth, Virginia or Hibbing groups, and gives a rate below that operative with the Eastern company, the latter is to meet the new rate and open its docks on Lake Superior to the ore shippers. The mining company is to have option over which road it shall send its ores.

The Crete Mining company agrees that the entire output of the Albany mine and of the other property described shall be hauled over the Eastern Minnesota road to the docks, subject to the above named restriction relative to another railway line to the docks.

The Missabe Land company executed a mining lease, Nov. 1, 1901, to the Pitt Mining company, sovering the south half of the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 2, and the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 11-57-21, the lease to be binding on sub-lessees or grantees.

A traffic contract dated April 7, 1902, was entered into between the Missabe Land company and the Eastern Railway of Minnesota and the Pitt Mining company. May 1, 1902, the Pitt Mining company became the assignee of the interests of the Eastern Minnesota Railway company, including the rights of the traffic contract previously made.

A modification and transfer of the lease from the Missabe Land company to the Crete Mining company being desired by both parties, the Crete Mining company was willing to enter into a contract with the Eastern company for the handling of all the ore from the Albany mine in the west half of the southwest quarter of section 32-20-58 forf the seasons of 1903 and 1904.

In connection with the above indenture filed with the register of deeds this morning, was an assignment by the Pitt Mining company to the Crete Mining company, for valuable considerations, of all right and title to the mining lands described, together with all right and title to the traffic contract with the Eastern Minnesota road.

TOOK NAME OF FRIEND

Merrill Transformed Himself Into Grayson When Latter Died.

New York, May 14.—Moody Merrill, who was arrested here yesterday on a charge of grand larceny, had, according to the police, entertained in Boston Charles J. Grayson, the mining engineer, who was promoting New Mexican mining properties. Grayson died while Merrill's guest, and when the latter decided to go to New Mexico and take up mining he assumed Grayson's name.

In New York Merrill was also known as Grayson. He made his headquarters at the banking house of W. N. Coler & Co. W. N. Coler, Jr., said today: "It now seems to me we have been dealing with Col. Grayson at least fifteen years. Now, if the story in the newspapers about his disappearance from Boston ten years ago is correct, it would seem to bear out the statement that he assumed not only the name, but the business of a dead friend.

"We found Col. Grayson a man to trust and I will always trust him. He has handled thousands of dollars for us, which he could have stolen if he were inclined.

"Col. Grayson is one of the leading financiers of the Southwest."

Mr. Coler added that he would help the man if he could, for he believed a mistake had been made.

SOMETHING SUSPICIOUS

Connected With Passengers of the Vera Cruz III.

Washington, May 14.—Capt. Slamm of the revenue cutter Boutwell, which went to the relief of the passengers and crew of the Vera Cruz III, which stranded on the 12th inst. on Dry Point shoal, North Carolina, has made a preliminary report to Capt. Shoemaker, chief of the revenue cutter service. Capt. Slamm says that on his trip to the wreck he found that the master of the Vera Cruz had left his personal effects in the keeping of a friend and passenger to go to Wilmington, N. C., to secure funds with which to pay for the transportation of the passengers to New Bedford, the destination of his vessel. All of the ship's papers, including the passenger list, were turned over to the collector of customs at Newberne, whither the passengers and crew were taken. The vessel, Capt. Slamm says, was practically abandoned by her crew. As near as could be learned, the passenger list of the Vera Cruz called for 240 persons, while the keeper of the life-saving station is reported to have landed 391, exclusive of the bark's crew. This fact, together with the circumstances of the vessel being short of water in a dangerous harbor, where she grounded, the captain says, appears suspicious. The vessel is embedded in the sand and will probably be abandoned. Thirty-five barrels of whale oil comprise her cargo.

FORMIDABLE APPEARANCE

Presented By Fleet of German Warships at Brest.

Brest, May 14—The German squadron, commanded by Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, arrived off this port today at the same time that the French Northern squadron entered. This was the first visit of German warships to French waters in years. The appearance of Prince Henry's fleet caused much commotion and comment. The German ships fired a salute of eleven guns, which was returned by the land batteries, and the French flagship Massena. The German squadron presented a formidable appearance, being made up of seven battleships and six cruisers. The commander of the German flagship, the Adrafite, boarded the Massena and paid a formal visit to Admiral De Courthile and the latter returned the visit on board the Adrafine. Later the commander of the Adraine visited the port officials and the German mail was taken ashore.

AT WEST DULUTH

Humane Agent Withrow was in Justice Stone's court yesterday as the complaining witness against Mrs. Jessie Hamlin.

Mrs. Hamlin's 8-year-old boy had been accused of setting fire to a barn belonging to Richard English, and Mr. Withrow, in company with Mr. English, went to the home of Mrs. Hamlin to persuade her to keep a better watch over the lad and to warn her that he would get into serious trouble unless she did so.

Mrs. Hamlin replied in terms more vigorous than polite and it is claimed that the appellations applied to the visitors were far from complimentary.

Mr. Withrow swore out a warrant for her arrest and she was arraigned before Justice Stone on a charge of using indecent language. She was found guilty and was fined $5 and costs. She asked that she be allowed until evening to pay her fine. This was granted.

Last evening her husband appeared in the court room and said that he had decided not to pay the fine because he thought it was unjust. The justice suggested that the demands of the law must be complied with, but Hamlin couldn't see it that way. Mrs. Hamlin will be re-arrested today and confined in the county jail unless the fine is paid.

WILL GO MONDAY.

West Duluth Party to Leave For Oregon.

The party of West Duluth men which is being organized by N. Gilman to go to California and take up timber and stone claims is preparing to depart on Monday.

A meeting will be held tonight to make the final arrangements and the number who have definitely decided to go will then be known. It is thought to be twenty-five or twenty-six.

The point which the party has in view is in the neighborhood of Eureka, Cal. They will leave Monday afternoon over the Northern Pacific for San Francisco. From there they will take passage by steamer to Eureka and then proceed by trail to the land which Mr. Gilman has in view.

It is the plan to take their claims as near together as possible, and to sell in a block, dividing the proceeds. The party expects to be absent about two weeks.

Mr. Gilman has visited the country which he has in view and it is claimed that the party will secure some very valuable timber land.

The members of the party are nearly all West Duluth men and include some of the most prominent business men in this part of the city.

BUILDING ASSOCIATION.

Marshall-Wells Company's Employes Organize One.

Officers and employes of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company have gone in together on a deal that will probably result in enabling most of them to own their own homes within a reasonable length of time.

They have organized the Provident Savings and Loan association, with A. H. Comstock as president, Harry Annis as vice president, Charles S. Parsons as treasurer, and Charles M. Rice as secretary. The association is capitalized at $300,000, the shares are at par $100 each, and the company can do business when 100 shares have been subscribed. A system of easy payments makes it possible for employes to subscribe for and buy as many shares as they wish. Dividends will be paid twice a year, to be applied as payments on account of stock. Any member may borrow such sums of money as may be approved by the board of directors, or on his stock to the amount of its withdrawal value.

RAIN HURTS LAND SALES

Difficulty In Getting to the Land Hinders Trading.

Dealers in farm lands say they have a kick coming on the wet weather of the past few weeks.

"Why, in order to sell land we have to furnish rubber boots, boats, rafts and balloons," said a dealer in farm lands this morning, "and at that the lands do not look good enough under the circumstances to prove very tempting.

"It has rained so blamed much the past few weeks that most of our lands are afloat, and if we dared take a prospective settler out to look at them the chances are he would take the first train home after he had taken a peep at them. It is possible to explain that such conditions are abnormal, of course, and the prospective buyer nods and nods and looks wise, but he cannot help failing to work up enthusiasm over lands that are so drenched and sorry-looking.

"Consequence is, land sales are a little quiet just now, but just wait until it clears off permanently and dries up, and we will show some of these fellows the best-looking farm lands there are, and we will sell them, too. The movement of settlers into this section has by no means ceased, but is steady and progressive."

PROTEST IN VAIN.

Chicago, May 14.—A strong protest was presented at the meeting of the Central Passenger association yesterday against running Sunday excursions out of Cleveland. It came from the Cleveland Sunday union, and was based upon the contentions that Sunday excursions are demoralizing. The reply of the association was that Sunday excursions gave poor people a chance to have a day's outing, which could be afforded them in no other way, and that so long as the public appreciated and demanded the excursions they would be run.

Guests Will Be Elaborately Regaled Physically and Mentally.

A report that Governor Samuel R. Van Sant would not be here to attend the second annual reunion of the Maccabees tonight, and would therefore miss a chance to speak there, was dispelled today by the receipt of a telegram from him to George R. LARGE REWARD

Given to Girl Who Found Necklace Worth $25,000.

New York, May 14.—Fifty-seven pearls of rare beauty, forming a $25,000 necklace, which Mrs. Colgate Hoyt, of 25 Park avenue, lost on April 2, have been returned to her. The necklace was found by Miss Harriet Schade, a 17-year-old girl employed in a Twenty-third street department store, who left the gems lying around the house several weeks, wondering if they were of any value. Finally she became curious enough to go to a jewelery store to ask. She was astonished when she learned the truth. A reward of $100 at first was offered for the return of the necklace, but when Mrs. Hoyt became ill through brooding over her loss, the reward was increased to $500. When Miss Schade returned the necklace she was rewarded with five $100 bills. Miss Schade, who lives at 239 East Thirty-ninth street, found the necklace when she was out to lunch.

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Hyomei Cures This Common and Disagreeable Disease.

Hyomei cures catarrh by the simple method of breathing it into the air passages and lungs. It kills the germs of catarrhal poison, heals and soothes the irritated mucous membrane, enters the blood with the oxygen and kills the germs present there, effectually driving this disease from the system. If you have any of the following symptoms, catarrhal germs are at work somewhere in the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or tissues of the lungs.

offensive breath
dryness of the nose pain across the eyes pain in back of the head pain in front of the head tendency to take cold burning pain in the throat hawking to clear the throat pain in the chest a cough stitch in side losing of flesh variable appetite
low spirited at times raising of frothy mucous expectorating yellow matter difficulty in breathing frequent sneezing
huskiness of voice discharge from the nose stoppage of the nose at night aching of the body
droppings in the throat mouth open while sleeping tickling back of the palate formation of crusts in the nose dryness of the throat in the morning loss of strength
spasms of coughing cough short and hacking cough worse nights and mornings loss in vital force
a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest

Hyomei will cure the disease, destroy activity of all germ life in the respiratory organs, enrich and purify the blood with additional ozone, and after a few days' use of this treatment the majority of these symptoms will have disappeared. In a few weeks the cure will be complete.

Catarrh or catarrhal colds cannot exist when Hyomei is used. This is a strong statement, but S. F. Boyce emphasizes it by agreeing to refund your money if Hyomei does not cure.

IT WILL BE HERE

The Interstate Commerce Commission Coming Next Tuesday.

Will Hear Complaint on Shingle Rates—Perhaps Others.

The Interstate commerce commission will be in Duluth next Tuesday, May 19, and it will have a hearing on a complaint of railroad rates on the Duluth-Chicago roads made by the Duluth Shingle company, which has a plant on Garfield avenue.

This is the first visit of the commission to this city as a body. Its hearing will be held in the federal building. The members of the commission are Martin A. Knapp, of New York, chairman; Judson C. Clements, of Georgia; James D. Yeoman, of Iowa; Charles A. Prouty, of Vermont; Joseph W. Fifer, of Illinois; Edward A. Moseley, of Massachusetts, is secretary, and Martin S. Decker is assistant secretary.

The Duluth Shingle company complains of discrimination on rates against its product. The complaint is based on the fact that between Duluth and Chicago the rate on lumber is only 10 cents per 100 and on shingles it is 13 cents a 100. C. Nelmeyer, manager for the company, claims that shingles should be carried for the same rate as lumber, which has been the rule up to Jan. 15 of this year. He says that there is no difference in the rates on lumber and shingles between Duluth and Omaha and Kansas City.

The railroads claim that the difference is warranted by the difference in cost of handling. The same difference prevails between the Twin Cities and Chicago.

Officials of several of the large railroad systems which do not have a direct connection into Duluth, but which maintain offices here, will attend the session, and it is intimated that there will be more than the shingle trouble looked into. The flour rate situation will probably be investigated informally. The freight men of exalted station on all the roads running into Duluth will be called in for testimony, and outside officials will come to give testimony as to rates and matters of technical railroad knowledge.

HIS MIND A BLANK.

Returned After the Searchers Had Become Tired.

Athens, Ohio, May 14.—A remarkable case of mental aberration occurred at Albany, Athens county. J. J. Woods left his home mysteriously and a few hours later was missed by his family. The alarm was given and a party of fifty neighbors searched for him. By noon 400 people of the neighborhood had joined in the search and shortly before midnight they gave up the hunt, failing to find any trace of him.

While the members of the searching party were discussing his possible whereabouts they were dumbfounded to see Woods quietly return to his home as if nothing had occurred. When questioned Woods's mind was a total blank. He could give no account of himself. His family believed he had wandered to some isolated spot and committed suicide, and how he managed to escape from the hundreds of searchers is a mystery.

Woods is 70 years of age and owns a 200-acre farm.

GIANT REELED

When Court Was About to Sentence Him.

Springfield, Ohio, May 14.—A dramatic scene was enacted in common pleas court while Judge Mower was in the act of sentencing William R. Harris, colored, of Cincinnati, a former hotel chef, who was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of George Farrell, a colored musician. He was asked if he had anything to say. Harris said:

"I don't know, judge. The man took my wife and he broke up my home. It all seems like a dream to me. All I have to say—"

As he uttered the last word he reeled and would have fallen had not Sheriff Routzahn caught him. Harris was unconscious for an hour. Physicians were called, and for some time they thought he would succumb to heart trouble. When he recovered he was sentenced for life in the penitentiary.

The murderer weighs 390 pounds and is over six feet tall.

PAPA'S PACE TOO SPEEDY

Man Who Fell Behind Tells the Story In Court.

Chicago, May 14.—"I couldn't stand the pace; it was too fast for me."

Samuel Sonnenberg, once a tailor, later a petted son-in-law, and now plaintiff in a $50,000 damage suit against his father-in-law, Arnold Freshman, took his stand in Judge Kavanagh's court and gave his version of his trouble with Freshman.

According to Sonnenberg, his physical inability to be a "good fellow" brought him to disfavor with his parent by marriage.

Papa-in-law wanted him to smoke cigarets.

He did, once or twice, but they made him sick.

Papa-in-law also wanted him to drink champagne.

He did, but, Oh, the head next day!

In brief, Sonnenberg said, he found that he could not mix business and dissipation, and because of this he was called a "lobster" and a "dead one." Finally, Sonnenberg avers, he was arrested on an unjust charge, and hence his suit.

Sonnenberg told the court that before he married Miss Cecelia Freshman he was a tailor. After their marriage, he said, his wife's father told him that tailoring was not "good enough business for his son-in-law," and said he wished him to become interested in the Audebert wall paper mills, of which Freshman is president.

Sonnenberg was to be secretary with a salary of $1800 a year, and he snapped up the position. But then came "the pace"—the popping corks and the curling smoke. He rebelled and there arose a disposition to get rid of him.

In the fall of 1901 Freshman and his wife took a trip to Europe, and before starting Sonnenberg was given $500 to take to the bank. He was to deposit $400 in his wife's name and bring home $100 in gold. Instead of depositing the money, he says, he gave it to his wife, and on this account he was arrested.

The prosecution, he alleges, was malicious. His wife, too, is said to have left him.

IT IS TO BE WAR

Ferris Comedians to Be Ejected From Metropolitan May 31.

Dick Ferris Announces Before Curtain That He Will Fight.

The situation at the Metropolitan theater has reached an acute stage.

"Dick" Ferris, who is furnishing the Ferris comedians at the house announced to the audience last night that he would stay till ejected.

Manager J. T. Condon says that if the Ferris comedians are not out of the theater at midnight of May 31, said ejectment will take place.

Mr. Ferris says he has a contract and agreement under which his company should remain at the house for three months longer.

Manager Condon says the contract is worthless, but that one of binding qualities with the Wilbur Opera company exists which will bring that opera company here June 1.

Manager Condon enters the arena confident, in fine fettle and with a smile on his face.

Manager Ferris steps to the ring in fine form, smiling and confident, and takes his corner.

The negotiation stage of the scrap at the Metropolitan closed last evening, after Manager Condon had waited two hours to get a long-distance telephone connection with the manager of the Wilbur Opera company at Saginaw, Mich.

There was a short conversation, in which the manager was told of the situation here, and asked to use his own judgment in the matter. He replied:

"I'll be there, Molly, dear; I'll be there;" and unless the trains stop running and the lake dries up, Mr. Condon says he will surely be into town with the company marching along with him.

After this part of the performance Mr. Condon, who had, at a conference of the directors of the theater at a late hour yesterday afternoon, been given the whole matter to close up in the way his judgment dictated, went to Mr. Ferris at the theater and told him that the deed had been done and that the Wilbur Opera company was coming and would perform in the theater on June 1. Mr. Ferris and his comedians in attitudes of contrariness notwithstanding.

Mr. Ferris said he would be there at the time, and declared his intention of making a public announcement, which he did when the performance closed.

"I have an announcement to make," said Mr. Ferris, as he stepped before the curtain amid applause, "and that is regarding the trouble which has become common gossip regarding the theater management and myself. The facts are these:

"When our company first came to Duluth it was for a four weeks' engagement, and we purposed leaving after that engagement. We were so successful, and the people of Duluth appeared so pleased with the company, that we made arrangements to continue, and later signed a contract to stay until Sept. 1.

"Now it seems that the management of this house has contracted with another organization to step in here June 1, has done so without consulting me or my contract, and the first I heard of the decision was gossip. The theater management has given me notice to leave May 31, but when May 31 comes they will find me here, and find that it may be harder to move me than has been anticipated.

"I want to thank the people of Duluth and this audience for the manner in which they have received the Ferris company, and know on our part we have always made our greatest efforts to please. I have been making plans for the strengthening of this company on the basis of the extended contract, which I could not have done had we been going to close.

"I have a new leading lady contracted for the summer, who is to arrive next week. Mr. Forbes has refused a position at Columbus because he preferred Duluth for the summer, and several more of the actors have desired to stay here with me in preference to taking other places.

"I, myself, have gone into expensive outlays for new plays and heavy scenery, which were secured through the fact that I could use them in Duluth, thereby giving a large production here for the same prices as we are doing at Omaha and Minneapolis.

"I want to tell you that I will never lay down and take the worst of it without a murmur. If my company has to leave this theater some pressure stronger than a verbal invitation will be necessary to start the movement. I am a kind of a scrappy individual myself, and can make a fight for what I believe to be my rights. I hope the company will stay without any further trouble, but if it doesn't stay there will be trouble."

Mr. Ferris is a fighter. He has just won a long drawn out suit in which Charles Frohman was a party, claiming infringement through the production by Mr. Ferris of "A Fatal Card."

Mr. Ferris now says that whenever his contract is violated he will go into the courts. Whether injunctional proceedings will be resorted to, or simply a suit for damages in that case, he cannot announce until he consults his attorneys.

Mr. Condon says the attorneys for the theater management pronounced the contract now held by Mr. Ferris to be null and void, and not worth the paper it is written upon.

The contentions will probably be aired in the courts before the matter is settled finally.

FROM LAST TO FIRST

People used to take plain cod liver oil for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles after other remedies had failed.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern idea of cod liver oil—the first instead of the last resort when such ailments appear.

The taste of the oil is not apparent and the oil itself is partly digested—makes it easy for the stomach. Scott's Emulsion is a quick, reliable help at all ages.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

THE STAGE.

Tonight at the Metropolitan the Ferris comedians will present the beautiful 4-act American society comedy-drama, "His Society Wife." This bill is specially adapted for stock productions and will be given complete in every detail. It has abundant heart interest, laughable comedy and clever plot. The specialties will be entirely new this half of the week. For next week the Ferris company will offer Miss Grace Hayward in "Granstark" and Dick Ferris in "The Man From Mexico," which will be two of the strongest bills of their engagement. These two plays hold the record of attendance at the Lyceum theater, Minneapolis, where Mr. Ferris runs his stock company in that city.

Characters taken from life and placed in fancied scenes which smack of reality and are spiced with abundant sensation, appear in that mirror of modern life, "The Fatal Wedding," which comes to the Lyceum theater for two nights, on Thursday and Friday. Its coming presentation in this city will undoubtedly be a repetition of past successes. The play is replete with stirring situations, startling climaxes and through it all ripples a vein of most wholesome comedy.

* * *

There are said to be more laughs to the minute in "Are You A Mason?" which comes to the Lyceum next Saturday, matinee and night, than in any comedy that has been seen on the stage in a long time. Wherever presented its success as a mirth-producer has been quick and emphatic. The major portion of the fun is created by two pseudo Masons, John C. Rice and Thomas A. Wise; and there will be no straight faces in the audience after these two comedians get to work deceiving the others, and themselves most of all.

AN ..SSYRIAN FEUD.

Lively Trouble Developes In That Colony.

Assultious Assyrians seeking to establish the Kentucky fued code in Duluth have each put up $50 cash as a guarantee not to interfere with the heart-action of any person before tomorrow.

It was a very Kentucky-like event. Yesterday it cost Joseph Toby $5 for an unsuccessful physical demonstration against William Abalan, from whom he was trying to collect $1.25.

After paying the fine Toby hunted up his brother Frederick and concocted a fued. They remembered that Abalan had a brother-in-law living down in the West End, and it is claimed they took a revolver and proceeded to the brother-in-law's house to do a little shooting.

This particular brother-in-law was not home when they called, but his wife was and being ill she was greatly frightened when the Tobeys stuck their heads and gun through a window and announced their intention to shoot her husband.

She told friends of the occurrence and this morning the marked brother-in-law of Abalan lost no time in swearing out a warrant for the arrest of the Tobeys.

Joseph Toby took a strong dislike to Associate City Attorney Holmes when he saw him in the municipal court room and accused the attorney of prosecuting him from motives other than justice. This brought forth some sharp conversation from Mr. Holmes and a fierce Assyrian duel from the two prisoners.

Judge Windom finally required both Assyrians to put up $50 bail to keep the peace until their trial tomorrow afternoon.

AMERICAN CABLE CODE.

Effort to Straighten Tangle In Cable Service.

Washington, May 14.—Efforts will be made at the interantional conference on May 18 to secure favorable consideration of the American code for cablegrams. Some years ago a conference agreed upon an official code, and the cable companies decided that other cipher words than those contained in this code would not be transmitted over their lines. This country did not participate in the conference, and declined to adhere to the cipher code.

The government codes and those of not in the cipher adopted, and for this reason the United States has been discriminated against and American code messages have been permitted to go through largely by courtesy. During the Chinese troubles, difficulty was experienced, which was due almost entirely to the discrimination of the cabinet and the telegraph lines. American messages were laid aside to make way for those coming from countries recognizing the vocabulary.

This year the United States was asked to send a delegate to the conference, and Gen. A. W. Greely, chief of the army signal corps, was elected by the secretary of war to represent this government. He has had large experience in telegraph matters, and it was through his personal influence that the United States finally was enabled to secure fair treatment by the foreign cable companies. He will sail for London from New York today. He has no vote in the conference, but will do all he can to persuade the members of the conference to accept the American code messages, notwithstanding their non-conformity to the established vocabulary.

It adds spice to dreary life, encourages the human heart, lifts one out of despair, breathes new life and confidence. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. S. F. BOYCE.

INCREASED RESPECT

For Law Is Necessary By Both Labor and Capital.

Social Economy Discussed at Meeting of Science Association.

Boston, May 14.—The general meetings of 1903 of the American Social Science association began here today. The program covers a session Saturday morning, and the discussions scheduled are in the departments of "social economy" today, of "health" and of "jurisprudence" tomorrow, and of "education and art" Saturday. The speakers assigned are persons of prominence in various branches of professional and scientific questions in the United States. The principal speakers today were George H. Anderson and Lewis D. Brandis, leading members of the Suffolk county (Mass.) bar, and Professor Eugene Wambaugh, of the Harvard law school.

Mr. Anderson spoke on "Some Responsibilities of Capitalistic Organization." He said in part: "In considering some of the responsibilities of capitalistic organization, it is not to be overlooked that the career of the labor organizations has not been marked by any such love of wisdom, justice and fair dealing as to evoke our moral enthusiasm. Nor have the labor organizations any moral standing to denounce trusts, for their movement is as distinctly a combination or trust as is the capitalistic movement. The two movements are like in motive and object.

"In the conflict as it is now carried on between these two opposing forces, it is obvious that there are at least two main desiderata:

"One—That the parties to the contest should become so nearly equal in real and apparent power that each may come to respect the other, to the end that an equilibrium approximating justice may result. The organization of labor is an absolute condition precedent under present conditions to any sound social and industrial progress. To oppose that organization, to attempt to prevent by legislation or to denounce it in terms recently used at the Manufacturers' association at New Orleans, is both futile and foolish.

"The second desiderata is that there would be an increased respect for law and for justice on the part of both labor and capital. The final appeal must be to justice.

"In weighing the power of the two contending forces nothing is more foolish and misleading than a comparison of wages which interest and dividend rates, for the purpose of determining the share received by capital and the share received by labor in the joint production of both."

It declared that it did not follow that the remedy is to be found in such legislation as the Sherman act. It was a law far more likely to be abused than used. Under our law permitting the private ownership, not only of the surface of the land, but of all the mineralsand metals beneath the surface, the coal and iron supply of the country would soon be entirely under monopoly control. The condition of the ownership and control of the anthracite coal supply, he contended, was just cause for revolutionary sentiments and activities.

The main objection to trust combinations was in their enormous overcapitalization and in the use that is made of that over-capitalization. In the last generation, he declared, the legislation of the country had been mainly controlled by capital and in not a few of the states the sale of legislation was a regular business. In conclusion Mr. Anderson said: "It is one of the present responsibilities of capitalistic organization to undo the evil it has wrought—to teach the voters that the powers of the ballot box and of the legislative hall are to be held and exercised beneath the trust for the benefit of the community as a whole. If capital fails to recognize the necessity of just laws, respected and obeyed, it may expect little mercy at the hands of its adversaries when they discover their real power. If socialism comes, the main responsibility will rest upon the capitalistic organizations."

REMARKABLE NERVE SHOWN

By Miss Haven Who Faced Death Behind Runaway Horses.

New York, May 14.—Clinging to the east rail of a new, great, heavy coach, which had just been in a collision at Ninety-second street with a Columbus avenue car, and from which her brother, George G. Haven, Jr., a banker, and two guards had been violently thrown, Miss Marian A. Haven had a thrilling ride behind a pair of runaway bays. These horses, gathering themselves after the impact, dashed through Ninety-second street toward Central Park West, in the wake of the leaders, which had broken away from the coach and leaped over a four-foot wall into the park.

One of the leaders was so badly injured that he was killed. The other created consternation by running about among the women and children in the park until captured. The wheel horses followed after their leaders. When they were about to spring for the stone wall skirting the park, and while Miss Haven calmly held on to the top of the coach, a northbound street car crashed into the coach, jamming it against a tree and preventing an accident which 100 persons were expecting to see.

Pale, but self-possessed, Miss Haven stepped from the partially overturned coach and looked approvingly at the motorman of the car, who, badly frightened, was attempting to make explanations and apologies.

"You arrived just in time," she said pleasantly.

CUP OF WIDOW'S SORROWS

Filled By the Suicide of Her Daughter.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 14.—The suicide of her 13-year-old daughter Iona is the latest chapter in the tragedy of Mrs. Ruth Mason's life.

Eight years ago her husband died, leaving Mrs. Mason with six children—three boys and three girls. Misfortune has followed misfortune.

Two weeks ago Monday Mrs. Mason was knocked in front of a car by a bicyclist.

Monday her little daughter drank the carbolic acid kept in the house for use on her mother's injured arm. It was just after breakfast. Elsie, 15, was washing dishes. Ruth, 10, was helping her. Iona approached them with a comb in her hand.

"Will you comb my hair now, Elsie?" she asked.

"When I get through with the dishes," Elsie replied.

"Comb it now, won't you?" Iona persisted.

"When I get through here," answered her sister again.

Iona said nothing more, and walked away. Her sister did not see her again until a few minutes afterward, when she came running in with her mother.

Mrs. Mason had gone across the street to a neighbor's. Iona had come running to her, crying: "Come home, mamma; oh, come home with me."

When they got inside the house Iona told her mother she had swallowed carbolic acid. The girl died in an ambulance on the way to the hospital.

JUMPED FROM WINDOW.

Chicago, May 14.—Miss Laura Sickler, a stenographer, was found unconscious upon the stone pavement of an alley in the rear of the Hotel Newport on Monroe street early yesterday morning. She was taken to the hospital and her condition is serious. According to her story told to the police, she was taken to the hotel by a broker who threatened her with a revolver. Whereupon she jumped out of the third story window. The broker has been arrested, and claims he does not know why the young woman made the leap.

SCHOOL IS SPLIT

By Clever Parody of "Mr. Dooley" Ridiculing Teachers.

Girls and Faculty at War Over Author's Suspension.

Washington, May 14.—Because she held her teachers to gentle ridicule in a clever parody on "Mr. Dooley," Miss Katherine Martin, the granddaughter of Mrs. Emily M. Colton, one of the best known women in Washington society, was suspended from the National Cathedral schools for Girls. The indignation of her schoolmates, among whom is Ethel Roosevelt, the president's daughter, is so great that deep discontent broods over this smart institution, and Bishop Satterlee, of the Episcopal diocese of Washington, who is president of the board of trustees, is reconsidering Miss Martin's case.

Half a hundred of the most prominent families in Washington are excited aver the incident because their daughters attend the school. Admiral Dewey, Wayne MacVeagh, Bishop Mackay-Smith, and John A. Kasson are among the trustees.

Miss Mary Bartlett Whiton, a graduate of Smith college, who is one of the principals, was entertaining some Washington people at dinner at the school last Thursday evening, when one of the teachers on the faculty hurriedly entered and informed her that she had discovered that Miss Martin, who is about 17 years old, was the author of a parody on "Mr. Dooley," in which the names of unpopular members of the faculty, including Miss Whiton's, was brought in, to the great delight of most of the pupils of the school, of whom there are 150, all girls.

Miss Whiton did not think it was the least bit funny, and she immediately called up Bishop Satterlee by telephone and described to him the enormity of Miss Martin's offense. The bishop directed that Miss Martin be suspended; some people declare he said expelled.

Miss Martin was given thirty minutes in which to leave the school building, and then she had to sit on the front steps waiting for a conveyance to take her to her grandmother's home in Connecticut avenue, several miles away. Miss Wright, the teacher of English and athletics in the school, however, interceded in Miss Martin's behalf and she was escorted home properly, after being provided with street boots, which she had not before had the time to obtain.

The next day the case was presented to Bishop Satterlee in such a new light that he began to reconsider it, but in the meantime the other girls in the school became almost riotous. More than one of them told her teacher: "If Katherine Martin was expelled for making fun of the teachers, a lot more of us ought to go, too, for we all have done so, only we haven't been found out." They said also that one of the girls had carried tales about Miss Martin's disastrous parody.

All of Friday the girls vigorously expressed their displeasure and by night the relations became so tense that the faculty decided that an excursion of the school to the naval academy at Annapolis, planned for Saturday, should be abandoned to prevent any trouble developing. All of the girls whose homes were no further away than Baltimore were sent home over Sunday. Ethel Roosevelt was sent to the White House and did not return until Monday. The sympathies of the families of most of the girls are against the teachers and there may be changes in the faculty.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Jamestown Man Says Meat Trust Would Ruin Him.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—A case which will be tried in court is attracting much interest. It is that of W. Baldwin vs. Ernest Blackmore to secure possession of a building on Fifth avenue south, in which Blackmore is conducting a meat market. Blackmore asserts he is entitled to the store, as he rented it with the understanding that he would have it until Aug. 1. The interesting part of the suit is the contention of the defendant that a trust exists among the meat dealers of the city and that the move to have him ousted is made for the purpose of crippling his business. He asserts that repeated attempts have been made to have him go into the combination, but he refused and war was declared upon him. He charges that an iceman was approached and offered a large sum of money if he would refuse to sell Blackmore ice during the summer.

Harry Morris, an employe of the Alert, while engaged in delivering papers last evening, was shot in the leg by some person unknown. The bullet narrowly missed an artery and the wound is a bad one.

Washburn—The steamer Expansion, Capt. Basey of St. Louis in command, made its first trip to Mannhaven on Sunday. This is the finest and largest steamer on the upper Missouri.

The grading for the roadbed on the Washburn extension began last week. A special train from Bismarck brought up the heavy timbers for the bridges.

Four Northern Pacific officials came from Minneapolis and filed on claims near Fort Stevenson. They are pleased with the country.

Eight new residences and four store buildings are being erected. Several persons are planning to build the coming summer.

Velva—The largest consignment of cattle that ever went over the Soo were unloaded here for the purpose of feeding and rest. They were consigned in bond, and were from the mountains of Old Mexico. The drouth in that country caused a scarcity of feed, and removal was necessary.

They will be crossbred with cattle of the north and while it will be somewhat experimental, the company feels assured that a fair grade can be secured from the somewhat scrawny and long-horned animals that are being shipped.

If this experiment is successful many more are to follow, and Canada may look for the greatest cattle market in the world by reason of its unlimited ranges.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—The First National bank at Alexandria has commenced the erection of a new building and has succeeded in interesting the government to provide a room for a postoffice. A part of the building has been accepted for the postoffice and will have an entirely new equipment.

Artesian well drilling in the vicinity of Plankington is becoming an industry. At present there are four outfits at work near the town singing wells for farmers just as fast as the work can be done. That county has already a goodly supply of wells and these new ones will empty their waste water into Platte creek, and convert it into a fairly good sized river.

Wessington Springs—A carpenter's union with eighteen members has been organized for the purpose of keeping up wages.

The city lots owned by the county were sold at auction today. The prices ranged from 100 to 200 per cent higher than six months ago.

Pierre—Attorneys from Aberdeen and Faulkton appeared for a new trial for Joseph Coleman, who was found guilty in Faulk county about a year ago of murdering his brother. The motion was denied and the attorneys declare their intention of appealing.

Wagner—Some of those who have been striving to purchase land from the Yankton Indians have received word that their deeds have been approved in Washington. One Indian received $1000 for a tract of land, another $1850 and a third $2050.

Yankton—J. C. Shellenberger has been chosen superintendent of schools for this city. For six years he taught at Litchfield, Ill., but resigned his position to finish his studies at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Plankinton.—Twenty-five boys and girls from North Dakota, who have been confined at the reform school here, were transferred to the new reformatory for North Dakota at Mandan.

S. K. Swan, of Wisconsin has been appointed by Superintendent S. E. Young of the state reform school to the position of assistant superintendent.

CHURCH NOT GAINING.

Not More Than Keeping Pace With Population.

Boston, May 14.—At the 118th annual convention of the Episcopal church in the diocese of Massachusetts here yesterday, Bishop William Lawrence in his address said:

"So far as statistics can show, it is doubtful if the church is more than keeping pace with the population. The ministry is apparently increasing in numbers or power. A great proportion of the intelligent men and leaders of our communities have no active interest in the church. There is a great mass of fine character and of Christian temper outside the church. Infidelity, sincere and insincere, is all about us.

"More that that, the interest in commercial, material, social and intellectual life is gaining a stronger hold on the people. The tests of life among many are in social and financial success. Sport and amusement have made great inroads on our Sunday congregations. Below all these influences are the low standards of the grosser immoralities. The power of strong drink has its clutch upon our cities, their people and government; gambling is unsettling habits of industry; many forms of temptation are undermining the characters of hosts of youth. All these influences are potent enemies of Christian faith."

In view of such conditions the bishop deprecated the discussion now going on in diocesan conventions of the question whether the name of the church should be changed, and concluded thus:

"The truth is, my brethren, that there is one thing that we all in this church do need—bishop, clergy and laity—and that is a more personal revision of our responsibility to God and a closer abiding in His presence."

OUTPUT IS LARGE

Statistics From Blast Furnaces Show a Tremendous Production.

Stocks on Hand Show Quite a Decline In April.

New York, May 14.—Reviewing the iron and steel markets, the Iron Age says: Our monthly blast furnace statistics show that production is going on at a tremendous rate, and that the May production should reach 1,700,000 gross tons.

The surprising and most significant fact, however, is that the stocks reported, which do not include the steel works using their own pig, show a decline from 170,775 tons on April 1 to 162,742 tons on May 1. It may be interesting to note that of the total production in April of 1,008,831 tons of anthracite and coke 905,235 tons were produced by the steel works.

These figures are eloquent proof of the fact that considerable consumption of pig iron is taking not alone our own enormous production, but also the current importations.

Yet, consumers are holding off, particularly in the foundry trade and their attitude seems justified to some extent by the facts. Prices had gone to an unnatural figure, from which they have been and are still receding. Last year leading interests in the South made a frantic but ineffective effort to hold down the market, but the basis of $12.50 for No. 2 foundry iron at Birmingham now, some of them are struggling to hold values at $17.50 when outside interests are selling down to $15.50.

Another element is that a large part of the new capacity which has entered the market is that of the steel companies which will cut down their outside purchases. This puts pressure on the Bessemer furnaces of the Central West, which may be expected to turn to the foundry trade for relief.

On the other hand, the sellers may point with confidence to the tremendous consumption on the part of the foundries and to the fact that in spite of large commitments for castings, the founders have not covered.

Reports have been circulated in Wall street concerning a sudden break in billets in Pittsburg. There is no truth in them. There is still scarcity of steel in the Pittsburg market. As a matter of fact, the steel market in Pittsburg has become a very restricted and unimportant affair. The great mills either roll their own steel or have sliding scale contracts with the great steel works, which gives them the metal at much lower prices than those quoted in the market. The Eastern market, with its large number of independent rolling mills, which must buy steel, is more important. These are supplied by the domestic steel works or by importers of foreign steel, who are still receiving inquiries. The price in the tidewater market has been $28 to $28.50 for both foreign and domestic for some weeks, with a fair amount of tonnage being placed.

"HOD" TAYLOR

May Retire From the Treasury Department.

Washington, May 14.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Horace A. Taylor, of Wisconsin, will retire fro moffice immediately and take a long rest, if he follows the advice of his physician. There is no disposition on the part of Secretary Shaw to force Mr. aylor to retire, and, if the former does so, it will be a voluntary act. For some months the health of the assistant secretary has not been good, and recently he has been able to perform his official duties at intervals only. He has suffered several attacks of grippe, and, believing he had fully recovered his health, he resumed his duties once or twice, only to find that he was unequal to the task. He was at his office one day last week, but was forced to return home because of the development of stomach trouble and a complication of diseases. His physician then recommended a prolonged rest. If he acts upon this advice, he almost certainly will resign, as the treasury department is handicapped by a vacancy caused by the retirement of Assistant Secretary Alles. During the absence of Secretary Shaw, the entire work of the department fell upon the shoulders of Acting Secretary Armstrong.

If Mr. Taylor resigns, Secretary Shaw will be able to choose his successor at an early day. He will decide within a few days whether or not he will hand his resignation to Mr. Shaw.

MERRY CHASE FOR HUSBAND

South Dakota Divorce Colonies Visited by Angry Wife.

Canton, S. D., May 14.—The divorce colonies are being visited by a hand-some and well dressed woman who comes all the way from Paris for a truant husband. This woman is the wife of M. Isaac Kauter, well known in Paterson, N. J., where they were engaged in business for many years. Mrs. Kauter carries with her the photograph of her husband, which she exhibits in the hope of finding a clue to his whereabouts. She has placed a liberal reward upon his head and engaged the services of a Pinkerton detective.

Having visited Yankton and Sioux Falls, Mme. Kauter came to Canton. Failing to locate her husband here she gave way to an exhibition which lead bystanders to understand that when she and her husband meet again, if they ever do, there will be something doing.

The couple were married fifteen years ago in Paris, the woman says, and afterward moved to Paterson. Two years ago her husband became infatuated with a young society belle. The wife was sent to Paris on a visit, while he wended his way to South Dakota, seeking a divorce in order to wed the object of his admiration.

The other woman in the case has been located at a popular boarding house in Yankton, and it is believed that the husband is in hiding either in that city or in Sioux Falls, and that he is kept informed by paid confederates.

INJUNCTION IS ASKED.

Restraining Towne From Carrying Out Business Deal.

New York, May 14.—A motion has been made before Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman for an injunction to restrain Charles A. Towne, former United States senator for Minnesota and now president of Charles A. Towne & Co., of Wall street, from disposing of or in any way interfering with the stock and property of the Standard Acetylene Lighting company, which was incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, and capitalized at $5,000,000.

Charles R. Bond and others who have an interest in certain patents on acetylene machines, which form the basis of the company's possessions, are the plaintiffs. They allege that Towne & Co. agreed to finance the Standard company on receiving $300,000 worth of stock. After some negotiations they were told, they say, that it would be advisable to transfer all their property rights, stock and interest in the company pending its incorporation to Charles K. Minor as trustee. The property included patents, entered all over the world, and a private Pullman car, which was fitted up with the standard lights for exhibition and other purposes.

NEW DEPOT

Will Cover Ground Occupied By Hundred Residences.

New York, May 14.—Tenants of more than 100 residences and apartment houses in the streets adjacent to the New York Central railroad yards have been notified to vacate the premises they occupy before June 12, when the work on the new $20,000,000 terminal is to be begun.

Formal notices were prepared last week, and lessees of property from Forty-fifth to Fifty-first street, and extending from the present car tracks on the east to Lexington avenue and on the west to Madison avenue, were served.

The property needed for the improvement has all been acquired by the Central, with the exception of one 25-foot lot, and the tenants received indefinite leases on thirty days' notice.

One church and more than fifty brown stone dwellings are among the buildings which will be raezd.

After being out three hours the jury awarded O'Neil $3000 damages, he having sued for $15,000. The bottle exploded while O'Neill was trying to open it while employed as a bartender by James.

W. E. Stewart, commercial agent for the Milwaukee railway, has been tendered by W. M. Lowry, general passenger agent of the Northern Steamship company, the agency of the line for this port. It is believed he will accept.

Menominee—Thomas Vroman was brought before Justice Vandenberg and placed under $1000 bonds to appear for examination on May 25. He did not furnish the bonds and was taken back to jail. Vroman was captured in Idaho and brought to this city to answer to the charge of entering into a conspiracy with George Tobey, who is now out on $500, for the purpose of defrauding the firm of Raber & Watson, cedar dealers of this city and Chicago, out of $1096.55.

Louis Setumsky, a Poplar Point fisherman brought to town today a sturgeon which weighed 130 pounds and was six feet long. It had been caught in a gill net. This is the largest sturgeon caught here for some time.

The teamsters employed by the Kilby Manufacturing company, which is building the big factory for the Menominee Bayer Sugar company, went out on a strike today, demanding an increase from $2.50 to $3 for themselves and team.

Ishpeming—Charles Ole, while in a fit of temporary insanity, wandered away from the Burnum boarding house, where he lodged, and became lost in a swamp near the Salisbury. The man had been noticed strutting about the streets in an aimless manner. He was hatless and very lightly clad and in his bare feet. His unusual appearance attracted attention and the marshal was notified and started out to look for the fellow. He was finally located in the swamp, half frozen and in an utterly bewildered condition. It is thought that his reason had been temporarily impaired by an illness from which he suffered for some time. He is now in the hospital in a precarious condition on account of the exposure.

A horse met with a startling experience while passing along Main street near the fountain. The ground crumbled away beneath its feet and both of the animal's hind legs went down very suddenly into an old wooden sewer that was abandoned years ago. The beast struggled frantically and with the help of some bystanders was released from its unpleasant position and set upon its feet. Aside from a number of scratches and some very severe bruises it did not appear to be seriously injured and soon was able to go upon its way. The cover of the sewer had rotted away, leaving only a thin crust of gravel that formed the surface of the street. It will probably be necessary to dig up a large portion of the street and remove the old planks in order to repair the damage thoroughly.

Marshal Fandrem arrived home from Chicago unaccompanied by the eloping couple he expected to bring back with him. The erring wife was repentent, and when Mr. Fandrem arrived at Chicago she and her husband had been reconciled. Digorge, the man who had captured the woman's affections, had been included in the husband's forgiveness, and according to last accounts peace and harmony existed among the whole trio. A great number of friends and acquaintances of the parties concerned in the affair, including the larger part of the Italian population of the city, were at the depot expecting to be highly entertained by witnessing the arrival of Digorge and his fair companion in the marshal's care. There was not a little disappointment when the latter appeared alone.

MAY HAVE BEEN POISONED.

New York, May 14.—T. D. Mackay, aged 35, an actor and member of a "Princess Chic" company, who had just returned from the road, died today after having taken some powders recommended as a remedy for illness. The ambulance surgeon who reached the hotel as Mackay was dying said it looked like poisoning. The coroner will hold an autopsy.

MATCHLESS ARTIST

Mme. Schumann-Heink, the Great Contralto, Charms Duluthians.

Great Ovation Is Tendered the Singer—A Brilliant Program.

The greatest living contralto, Madame Schumann-Heink, was greeted at the Lyceum last evening by an audience befitting her rank and by a manifestation of appreciation that, enthusiastic as it was, was none too demonstrative, for such genius can be given no reward too great. To those who had never heard her before she was a revelation, and those who had heard her only in operatic roles found new delight in the matchless versatility so conspicuously emphasized by the widely varying numbers of her concert program. No singer has more completely captivated the Duluthians, and the only person that approached the triumph which was hers was one, who though a man, sharply reminded one of her in voice, method, personality and temperament, the great German tenor, Anton Schott, who sang here eight or ten years ago at the old Temple.

A great singer, in the full sense of the term great, never achieves eminence because of a single or a few qualities that stand out pre-eminently. Vocal quality, perfection of technique, artistic temperament, dramatic force, are often found separately in different singers, but in the tyipe of artist such as Madame Schumann-Heink they are combined, and with such a nicety of blending that each serves the other. And so one is thrilled with the tremendous tonal effect, marvels at the wonderful control of breath and the ease and facility of execution and the repose and lack of effort that characterizes every phase of her work, from the low, almost masculine tones, to the most powerful dramatic intensity with which she can play on the emotions. In every number she is in complete accord with the sentiment of the song and the enunciation of the words is flawless. Fortunate, indeed, were those who could understand the German, in which her numbers were sung.

The program was a remarkably varied one. An oratorio selection, a recitative and aria from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," was the opening number and the only one she sang in English. Schubert was represented by two numbers, "Wohin," a delightfully delicate and beautiful thing, and "Die Allmacht," majestic and awe inspiring, its opening words,

"Great is Jehovah, the Lord
The heaven and earth utter witness of His might"— telling in themselves what the grandeur of the number is. The great number of the program was "Frauenliebe un Leben," a song cycle, by Schumann, a story of the love of woman. It is in eight parts and runs the gamut of human emotion, telling of the awakening of love, its growth, the confession, the giving of the ring, the marriage, the coming of motherhood with its joy, and the final sorrow and desolation brought by the death of the loved one. Several times was the singer interrupted by applause and most gloriously was it sung.

"The Sappische Ode," by Brahms, brought out the wonderful depth of her tones, reminding one irresistibly of a great pipe organ. Becker's "Fruhlingslied" and a bolero by Arditi concluded the program, the latter exciting quite as much enthusiasm as any of the numbers, for it exhibited the matchless flexibility and beautiful control of her voice. The ease and brilliancy of her trill was a revelation.

Mme. Schumann-Heink graciously gave several encores. Conspicuous among them was the drinking song from "Lucrezia Borgia," by Donizetti. When the final number was sung the audience was not satisfied and insisted upon another, and she gave a delicious German lullaby, picturing the child put to bed, the dawn of the next day and the mother's playfulness with the little one.

Miss Josephine Hartmann played the accompaniments and well did she merit the testimonial which Mme. Schumann-Heink gave to her work by bringing her before the audience. She also appeared twice in solos, playing a Chopin ballad and "Feuer Zauber," from "Die Walkure."

To Morris B. Griffith t' e people of Duluth owe a debt of gratitude, for it was through his enthusiasm and energy that they were enabled to hear this famous artist. It was no small undertaking, and right triumphantly did he carry it through. He has some other musical enterprises in view, and the success achieved in this one ought to give him the support necessary for anything he may attempt.

The audience was one of the finest ever gathered in the Lyceum. The house was practically sold out except for the upper gallery, and the society and musical people of Duluth were all there.

END WAS SUDDEN.

S. E. Middleton of Duluth Dies at St. Paul.

S. E. Middleton, formerly a well-known business man of St. Paul, but more recently of Duluth, and who was assistant secretary of the treasury under President Lincoln, died suddenly at St. Paul yesterday, presumably of heart disease. His body is being held there awaiting instructions from Richard W. Middleton, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the only son of the deceased.

Mr. Middleton, was 61 years of age and went to St. Paul in 1886 from Washington, D. C., where he was prominent. He entered the real estate business and some ten years later removed to West Superior, where he became business manager of the Superior Leader. Later he severed his connection with that paper and has been engaged in business in Duluth.

Mr. Middleton went to St. Paul a few days ago partly to recuperate his health and partly to look for a new business opening. He was stopping with Mrs. Griswold at 185 Pleasant avenue, where he had frequently stayed on previous visits to St. Paul. He complained yesterday afternoon of feeling unwell and started out for a walk, saying he would return in about an hour. He came back, however, within five minutes and retired to his room. Mrs. Griswold shortly afterward heard a heavy fall and upon investigation discovered Mr. Middleton lying dead upon the floor. The coroner investigated the case and said the indications were that death was caused by heart disease.

SENT WRONG PHOTO.

Young Army Officer Makes Embarrassing Mistake.

Washington, May 14.—A young army officer of a decidedly sentimental turn of mind made a curious mistake a few days ago. Under the army regulations all officers of the army are required to furnish the adjutant general with photographs of themselves for filing with their records. The officer in question undertook to comply with this requirement, but he must have been thinking of someone else at the time, for instead of sending his own photograph to the war department he sent that of a beautiful young lady, containing only her first name and a brief term of endearment. The Times says the officials are in quite a quandry in the matter, as they have no means of identifying either the original of the photograph or the name of the sender. That young man may learn of his mistake when he looks for the photograph of his sweetheart.

DIRTY VACANT LOTS.

The beginning of a campaign by the health commissioner against the owners of dirty vacant lots in the city is announced. This is a good move and it should produce beneficial results, if vigorously prosecuted. It is to be hoped that it will not be a spasmodic effort, but will be continued until all the offensively dirty lots throughout the city are thoroughly cleaned. Throughout the business section there are vacant lots that are covered with ashes, garbage, rags, pieces of paper or shoes and rubbers and tin cans and dirt of all descriptions, and an accumulation of decaying vegetable matter that emits most disagreeable smells. In the residence districts there are many backyards and vacant lots in a similar condition, presenting a disgracefully dirty appearance and dangerous to the public health. In the past it has been the custom of the health inspectors to notify those responsible to clean up the dirt and filth, but they have seldom returned to see if their orders were carried out, or if they did they made no effort to enforce their orders. The Herald trusts that the present campaign will be better conducted, and that the health commissioner will insist on his orders being carried out to the letter.

The new ordinance gives the health commissioner full power to handle this matter in an efficient manner. If those in charge of the property where the dirt and filth exists fail to obey the cleaning order, they can be arrested and fined or imprisoned, and the cleaning can be done under the direction of the board of health and the expense can be collected from the owner, agent, lessee or occupant of the property. Perhaps a few arrests and the infliction of fines would have a good effect, not only in punishing those guilty of maintaining the nuisance, but in impressing upon others the fact that the health authorities are thoroughly in earnest and determined to enforce the provisions of the ordinance.

SMOKELESS POWDER UNSAFE.

From orders just issued it seems evident that the navy department has become somewhat alarmed by the recent demonstrations of smokeless powder, with which our war vessels are now equipped. The recent accident on the battleship Iowa, when the end of a big gun was blown off, was practically traced to defective powder and the experts have been at work on that theory since. Their investigations seem to have culminated in an order issued Monday to the officials at the Brooklyn navy yard ordering the different vessels in commission stationed there to at once unload all the ammunition remaining in the magazines. It was further stated that details would be sent on by letter. Officials on board the Kearsarge, the Iowa, the Indiana and the Alabama, as well as the navy yard officials, did not know of any particular reason why the department should order this hasty transferral and each officer questioned had a different explanation. It is well known that smokeless powder old or defective endangers the safety of the vessel. It was for this reason that $10,000 worth of smokeless powder ammunition was thrown overboard from the battleship Olympia off the gulf of Honduras last March. At the time the Olympia was supplied with this ammunition the North Atlantic fleet took on board a fresh supply of the same kind, and there was a rumor current in naval circles at that time that a large part of this was defective. A few months later at one of the ammunition tests on board the Olympia, which, in accordance with the navy regulations, are made every three months, some of it appeared defective, and, as usual in such cases, Capt. Lyons, commanding the vessel, appointed a board of survey to look into the matter. The tests they applied seemed to prove that there was something wrong with the ammunition in question and it was ordered thrown overboard. Since that time a board of powder experts have been looking into the matter. A few days ago the investigation was still under way, but it may be that a report submitted by this board is responsible for the order received at the navy yard. If this should prove true and the ammunition on board the vessels declared unfit for use, it means a loss of nearly $500,000 to the government. The value of the ammunition taken on board the North Atlantic fleet before last winter's maneuvers in the Caribbean amounted to considerably more than that sum.

If it has been found that this kind of powder is dangerous, it is far better that it should be sacrificed rather than to risk the lives of all on board the ships. At the same time it would seem to sound the death knell to smokeless powder. If it cannot be made to withstand aging it is far better that the old black powder should be used. The government cannot afford to place its fighting men in danger in time of peace.

Despite the solemn promises made by Russia, no one seems to place any faith in them. Russian diplomacy and bad faith seem to be synonymous.

The individual deposits of the American people in the banks amount to more than $3,000,000,000, which is greatly to their credit.

THE WEATHER BUREAU.

The average person has but little idea of the work of the weather bureau of the United States. They are inclined to limit its functions to the daily predictions of rainy or fair weather and to condemn it to the hot region, when the weather does not agree with the forecast. As a matter of fact the weather bureau is an outgrowth of the necessities of commerce, particularly the shipping interests. People on land are not particularly endangered by the weather; it is the mariner who should be warned. In the Atlantic and gulf ports alone there are floating over $30,000,000 worth of vessels of different kinds every day of the year. For their convenience and protection, at every port, whether on the Atlantic, the Pacific or the Great lakes, there is either a full meteorological observatory or a storm-warning display man who attends to the lighting of danger signals in the night-time, or to the display of danger flags in the daytime and to the distribution of storm warning messages among the vessel masters.

Professor Moore, the head of the weather bureau, says in a little pamphlet issued for the guidance of the people, that a wonderful picture of atmospheric conditions is presented twice daily to the trained eye of the forecaster. It embraces an area extending from the north coast of South America over Mexico, the islands of the West Indies and the Bahamas, northward to the uppermost confines of Canadian habitation. It is a panoramic picture of the exact air conditions over this broad area that is twice daily presented to the eye—hot waves or rain storms are shown wherever present in this broad area. Their development since last report is noted and from the knowledge thus gained their future course and intensity is quite successfully forecast. Every twelve hours the kaleidoscope changes and a new graphic picture is shown. Nowhere else in the world can meteorologists find such an opportunity to study atmospheric changes. The system of distribution of the information thus secured, is so perfect that the chief of the weather bureau, or the forecaster on duty at the central office, can dictate a storm warning and feel certain that inside of one hour a copy of the warning will be in the hands of every vessel master in every port of material size in the United States. As a matter of fact the storm warnings usually go only to a limited portion of the coast at one time. While the daily predictions of rain or snow, by which, as previously stated, the public measures the value of the weather service, are subject to a considerable element of error, namely, about one failure in five predictions, the marine warnings of the service have been so well made that in over six years no protracted storm has reached any point of the United States without the danger warning being displayed well in advance.

A similar valuable service is rendered by the system of flood warnings that is in operation along the large river courses. It is that the bureau can foretell a flood from three to five days in advance of the height of the navigable rivers. During the last winter the bureau warned the people of New Orleans from seven to fifteen days in advance of the actual high water. Many of the people laughed at the prediction and many others treated it indifferently. The result demonstrated that the water was but seven inches lower than the weather bureau predicted—and then it was a foot and a half higher than it ever was before. As a result of the warning the levees in some places were raised and in this way many thousands of dollars' worth of proprty was saved.

It is true that the predictions of the weather bureau are not always correct. Human judgment is fallible, but the work of the bureau has proved of great benefit to many and has amply proved its efficiency.

THE BAY STATE'S EXAMPLE.

An instructive contrast is furnished by some figures in the Railroad Gazette. The state of Massachusetts has a policy of control of public service corporations which insures protection to the community without injuring any legitimate special interest. On the other hand, in Connecticut and Rhode Island financiering is practically unregulated. The results are seen in this table of electric railroad capitalization in the three states since 1893:

Year.	Capitalization per Mile. Massachusetts.	Connecticut.	Rhode Island.
1893	$50,397	.....	$44,757
1894	52,293	.....	52,207
1895	49,120	$59,167	37,797
1896	46,373	59,159	72,694
1897	44,053	56,095	72,342
1898	44,958	54,863	67,678
1899	45,040	59,269	59,676
1900	44,272	59,062	84,645
1901	45,767	81,897	74,294
1902	46,261	83,151	78,963

Although having a capitalization per mile little more than half, Massachusetts has a system of urban and interurban railway equipped and with a better roadbed than those of Connecticut and Rhode Island. In Massachusetts the corporations confine themselves to the public service, for which they are chartered, and keep out of politics. In Connecticut and Rhode Island their activity in politics is pernicious and debasing. In Massachusetts they submit to reasonable regulation in operating their properties. In the other states they carry things with a high hand. Finally in Massachusetts the evil power of monopoly is absent, since the companies cannot levy tribute upon the people to pay dividends on wind and water, and investors are protected against the subtle wiles of speculators.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

General Manager H. A. Tuttle, of the North American Telegraph company, told a thrilling tale of a bear hunt he indulged in several years ago.

There had been some talk about the immense herds of bears and wolves that have been seen, captured, or killed, within the city limits of Duluth in the past winter.

All of this caused Mr. Tuttle to remark that he was not a professional bear hunter, though he had taken a chance on one or two occasions in his life.

Some of the others, who were of the group in the Spalding lobby last evening, told some tales of the terrible experiences with wild animals, hair-raising escapades and hair-breadth escapes.

"It must have been five or six years ago," said Mr. Tuttle that a friend of mine and myself were over near the northeastern frontier of the state of Wisconsin on business, and while we were there some woodsmen came in with a bear cub.

"They said there were some more of them, but they did not relish a tussle with the mother, so they hurried away with the small prize.

"They described the location very minutely, and we decided that it would be a novel experience and rather interesting to go bear hunting for once, even if we did take chances of running into an infuriated and bereaved mother bear. We judged we could get the other cub.

"I remember the day very well. It was cold and rainy; just wet enough to keep a man soaked through oilskins, and cold enough to keep him shivering in his flannels.

"We learned that they had caught the cub near the carcass of a calf, which was killed and had been gnawed a great deal, and that was to be our point of ambuscade.

"We walked to the place, a dozen miles from the town; I forget the name of the village—and were partially exhausted when we reached the spot. There was the carcass, and around for a hundred feet in either direction there wasn't a symptom of a tree, or anything but grass. It was raining drearily and steadily, as we took our positions on the ground and lay there waiting for the game to get within range. We both lay looking in one direction, and had forgotten all about an attack from the rear.

"We lay in that position all the afternoon and until it was almost dark. In the dusk of the evening, as the wet, chilly night closed down; just at a period when a little thing would scare a man half to death anyway, something happened."

Mr. Tuttle's listeners bent their heads forward and pulled the circle closer to get every word.

"Yes, sir, just about that time we got tired and went back to town."

There was a groan hardly audible, and the circle broke up.

John Rayn, traveling freight agent of the Rock Island, who is at the Spalding hotel, says that there is not any certainty regarding the intention of the Rock Island railway to open an office here for freight business. He says, however, that there has been talk of it and serious consideration of the proposition, and that quarters have been casually looked over with a view of taking some sooner or later.

On a Cash Basis Only.

Philadelphia Ledger: A very eminent physician had cured a little child of a dangerous illness. The grateful mother turned her steps toward the house of her son's saviors.

"Doctor," she said, "there are some services which cannot be repaid. I really don't know how to express my gratitude. I thought you would, perhaps, be so kind as to accept this purse, embroidered by my own hands."

"Madam," replied the doctor, coldly, "medicine is no trivial affair, and our visits are only to be rewarded in money. Small presents serve to sustain friendships; but they do not sustain our families."

"But doctor," said the lady alarmed and wounded, "speak—tell me the fee."

"Two hundred dollars, madam."

The lady opened the embroidered purse, took out five bank notes of $100 each, gave two to the doctor, put the remaining three back in the purse, bowed coldly and departed.

Precise.

Tit-Bits: An old and very popular country squire was succeeded in due course by a young and somewhat bumptious nephew. One of the first acts of the young squire was to address a meeting of the villagers, who were told that to get along with him they must invariably be "polite, punctual and precise." The latter part of the injunction, seems to have been taken to heart, for within a week the young squire, having been left by his field while hunting came upon a small boy in a bylane.

"Ah, my boy," began the squire, "have you seen anything of the hounds lately?"

"Yis, squire."

"Where?"

"Half a moile oop t' road, squire."

"When?"

"Larst Toosday week, squire!"

And it was the squire who forgot to be polite.

"Send By Inclosed Girl."

"Dear Dochter, ples gif bearer five sense worse of Auntie Toxyn for garlo baby's throat and oblege."

"My little baby has eat up its father's parish plaster. Send an anecdote quick as possible by the inclosed girl."

"I haf a hot time in my insides and wich I wodd like it to be extinguished. What is good for to extinguish it? The inclosed money is the price of the extinguisher. Hurry pleas."

Changed His Mind.

New York Times: Opie Read, author of "The Starbucks," tells of an old fellow from the country who one day gave his seat to a girl in a crowded street car. As he arose and sat down, he remarked:

"I may not wear as good clothes as some folks, but I notice thet I have a heap more politeness."

The girl, who was with a companion, began to converse audibly with her companion about her "mash," and commented unfavorably on his lack of style. The old man overheard her and finally said:

"I beg your pardon, miss, but I believe I left my pocketbook on the seat."

The girl arose, and as soon as she did, the old fellow sat down in the vacant seat. As he settled himself comfortably, he remarked:

"I may have more politeness than some other folks, but I have noticed thet I haven't nigh as much sense."

SLOW JIM

By Belle Maniates.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Jim Harder was not enjoying life at present. Three men had come down from the city for a fortnight's sojourn on the Harder fruit farm. They were wide-awake, up to date chaps, and they had won their easy-going way into the hearts of the Harder household, except Jim. Even Pa Harder relaxed his grim features at their jokes, while Ma Harder simply revelled in the delight of their merry company.

But Jim instinctively resented their presence and their condescending familiarity. He felt awkward and ill at ease and was grudging of response to their addresses. His attitude aroused all their teasing propensities, and they made him the butt of many a joke, dubbing him "Slow Jim" and "Easy Mark."

Their chaffing, however, was the least of Jim's troubles. The real heartache lay in the fact that Lucy Buskirk had gone to the city for a visit. He had always known and loved Lucy. A fashionable school and fashionable friends had not turned her heart from him. She had asked him to come to the city and return with her, but that would mean at least $15, and Pa Harder was not generous. Then, too, he was ashamed of his "Sunday clothes." He had always felt countrified in them, but since he had observed the attire of their summer boarders, the garments were simply impossible,, and he clung to his working garb.

This morning, while moodily musing on his lot, the three tormentors passed him. They were in tourists' costumes, and informed him they were going down the river on a fishing excursion, and would not return until the day after tomorrow.

"Mother," he announced, "I am going after Lucy. I am going on the next train."

"I am glad you are, Jim; but have you money enough?"

"I have enough to pay my fare one way. I'll manage the rest somehow."

"It's a shame Jim, as hard as you work that you only get your clothes and keep. Pa is so near. But I have some money he don't know about. You go into the buttry, and in a tea cup on the top shelf you'll find some money. You take it."

He didn't go to his own little bedroom when he reached the house, but to the spacious room occupied by Lewis Brooks. From head to foot he arrayed himself in Lewis Brooks' clothes. This accomplished, he surveyed himself with great approval from his shining shoes, well-brushed clothes, immaculate linen, modish tie to his stiff derby.

He packed a dress suit case with sufficient supplies for a night and day in the city, and then took the road through the woods to town. He had enough money to pay his fare one way. He determined that way should be the return ticket. What she had donated would probably cover his expenses in the city. To work his way to Lucy would require some work of wits and nerve.

He reached the little town just in time to board the through express. When the conductor came on his collecting tour Jim was busily searching through Lewis Brooks' papers, letters and cigars distributed in his pockets.

"I travel on a pass," he said to the ticket taker, "but I fear I have lost it. I supposed it was in with these papers, but I can't find it."

The conductor shrewdly sized up his new passenger. He was a good-looking, clean-shaven youth, faultlessly attired and of honest face.

"What's your name?"

"Lewis Brooks. I am a reporter on the Times," he replied holding out for inspection one of his letters so addressed.

"How far were you going?" asked the conductor, doubtfully.

"Clear through."

"Didn't you know the city editor of your paper was aboard?"

"No! Didn't expect him back until tomorrow. Which car is he on?" asked Jim, mentally cursing his luck.

"He is on the first Pullman. Come back to the car with me, and if he identifies you, it's all right."

Jim followed without hesitation, resolved to bluff it out; besides, every second on this "flyer" was taking him nearer Lucy.

On through car after car they passed, until the conductor paused before a section in which sat a distinguished-looking man.

"Why, hallo!" called Jim, affecting the easy tones of Brooks. "Thought you weren't coming until tomorrow."

The man addressed looked confused for a moment; then he said:

"Oh, they telegraphed me to come today. I thought you might be on this train, and was just going through to find you."

"I see it's all right," said the conductor. "He told me he was on your paper and had lost his pass. I wanted you to identify him," and handing Jim a check, he passed on.

"I'm sure I don't know how to thank you," said Jim. "Of course, you know I am beating my way, and it was awfully good in you not to give me away."

"Don't mention it," said the man, while an amused smile stole over his features.

"Now, whatever possesed him to do me a good turn?" thought Jim, as he passed on to the smoking compartment to enjoy one of Lewis Brooks' cigars.

He had telegraphed Lucy of his coming, and she and her friend were at the station to meet him. Lucy awaited his coming with some little anxiety as to his appearance. Not on her own account for she was a staunch, sensible little body and would have welcomed Jim even were he attired in his overalls and blue shirt, but she didn't want her friend to underestimate him.

But when Jim, so a la mode came towards them, she gave a glad, little cry, and her friend, welcoming him, wondered what manner of farmers they had out in Tribleton.

She insisted on his accepting her hospitality that night, and the next day. Someway in stepping into Lewis Brooks' shoes he had stepped into that individual's ease of manner, for after all, there is no incentive to good deportment like irreproachable clothes.

The next day was a red letter one. Late in the afternoon, Jim and Lucy took a train to Tribleton. When Jim arrived at the farmhouse, everyone was in bed. He went into Lewis Brooks' room and restored his clothes to their original place, except the linen, which he deposited in the already well-filled laundry bag.

The following afternoon the fishermen returned from their jaunt.

"Missed us, Jim?" asked Brooks.

"What have you been up to?"

"The city," was the laconic response. Brooks and his companions stared.

"Where did you put up?" asked one of them.

"I stayed with friends."

"Oh, out on the boulevard, I presume," said Brooks, with a wink to the others.

"Yes, on the boulevard. At the Van Norman's."

Brooks looked incredulous.

"Jim's young lady friend," explained Ma Harder, "met Miss Van Norman at school, and has been visiting her. They asked Jim to stop there, too."

This was a poser for the boarders. Lewis tried to picture Jim in his store clothes at the Van Norman mansion.

When the city men returned to the city, they met a mutual friend who, after some preliminary conversation, remarked:

"I must tell you an incident that happened the day I returned. Just out of a little station—Tribleton, I think—the conductor came to me, followed by a good-looking fellow, who greeted me as if I were an old friend, and said he thought I was not to return until the next day.

"I told him that I was a day early, and observed that I was just coming to look him up, at that the conductor said it was all right; that the youth had represented himself as a reporter on the Times; that he had lost his pass and so he had brought him to me for identification.

"When the conductor had passed on the chap thanked me warmly for helping him beat his way and went back to his car."

"Who was he and why should the conductor bring him to you for identification?" asked Lewis.

"Why, I had borrowed your city editor's pass, and when the young fellow came up and pretended to know me, I had to lay low and see what was coming. I concluded he was some young fellow on the Times, all right, and that he would give me the laugh when the conductor had gone. When he told me he was beating his way and thanked me I did not let on I was traveling under false colors myself."

Brooks pondered a moment.

"How was the fellow dressed?"

"Very much as you are, I remember thinking that the Times crowd must patronize the same tailor."

One brother trains for Harvard's crew,
And cannot eat our dinner.

"Then Johnny joined the baseball nine,
He all the time plays matches,
And wears a cage upon his face
While every ball he catches.

"Yes, we are really seven, sir,
But our years won't be many;
I, too, will grow up strenuous,
And then we won't be any."

Sanitarium Authorized at Last Session of the Legislature.

Incipient Pulmonary Tuberculosis Is to Be Treated There.

The governor yesterday appointed the advisory commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives, and within a short time that institution will be a working factor in the state. Its work will be watched with great interest by a large number of people, who have had an idea that such a hospital in the northern part of this state would be a great boon to humanity, and that more cures of the dread disease would be reported from it than from any other place. These people believe that there is healing in the breath of the pine woods, and that this section is the place above all others for the cure of tuberculosis.

The sanitorium is to be located near Walker, Cass county, and it is to be governed by the advisory commission, under the board of control. The board of control is to purchase a site with the approval of the advisory board, and to erect thereon such buildings as the money provided, $25,000, will permit.

When the buildings are completed and in such shape that the board of control thinks they are ready for use, the governor is to issue a proclamation establishing the sanatorium. The place is to be under the board of control.

The advisory board is to appoint in each county of the state not less than one nor more than three reputable physicians who are to examine on the presentation of orders from the superintendent of the sanatorium all persons applying for admission and treatment and determine whether they are suffering from incipient pulmonary tuberculosis, and report to the superintendent. Only persons suffering from incipient pulmonary tuberculosis shall be received as patients.

The examining physicians must have been in the regular practice of their profession for at least five years, including a year in a general hospital, and in all counties where more than one examining physician is appointed they shall be of different schools of practice. They are to get $3 for each patient examined.

The board of control is to appoint a superintendent, who is to be a practicing physician, who is to appoint such employes as are necessary.

Where inmates are able to pay their own charges they are to pay them, or if they have kindred able to pay, they must pay. Persons unable to pay may be sent by the county board in which they live, the charges to be paid by the county. Inmates must be residents of the state for at least a year prior to their admission.

IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

Vegetation Doing Better In South Dakota.

An improvement in vegetation in South Dakota last week is reported in the weekly report of the climate and crop service, which says:

"Much more seasonable temperature than prevailed last week, with beneficial rains over the greater portion of the state, caused marked improvement in the condition of all vegetation from what prevailed at the close of the preceding week, except that some fields of oats and barley were to some extent reduced in stand, in scattered localities, small grains have generally recovered well from the effects of the frosts of the last days of April, and there was practically no permanent injury to the wheat crop. The permanent injury to fruits was mostly confined to the small varieties, and was less than anticipated, and tree fruits are now generally blossoming. In Bay county there is some report of reseeding of oats being necessary. Although growth has been comparatively slow, wheat, oats, barley, spelts, and spring sown rye have made healthy root and are looking well. Winter rye is in promising condition.

"Rains have retarded field work in the Black Hills region, but the sowing of small grains, except flax and millet, is practically completed. In the northern counties there is still a little oats and barley to be sown, and in some northern counties more rain would be very beneficial.

"Preparation of ground for corn, flax, and millet has progressed favorably. Corn planting has begun in the middle and southern counties, and flax and millet seeding was also in progress, but were interrupted by rains.

"As a result of the frosts of the last days of April, the replanting of much early garden stuff became necessary.

"Grass has improved considerably, and though still more backward than usual, is affording fairly good pasturage, especially on the ranges west of the Missouri river.

"Potato planting has progressed favorably, and it appears that the early planted sustained no permanent injury from the cold weather of the preceding week.

"Reports indicate that live stock on the ranges is in improved condition."

CRIMINAL MATTERS.

Another Indicted Individual Arraigned.

Matt Allatalla, of Chisholm, who was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, appeared before Judge Dibell, in district court, yesterday afternoon, and the time for his pleading was set for today. The information against Allatalla is that he threatened to use the weapon to shoot Kassel Sumckler, because of an alleged grievance.

Trio Pallomaki, who previously pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault in the second degree, changed his plea to guilty yesterday afternoon. Pallomoki, who lives at McKinley, is charged with cutting up the face of Andrew Norstrom during an altercation, April 15.

A. L. PRESTON MANAGER.

Will Have Charge of the Coming Carnival.

At a meeting of the Duluth Carnival and Amusement club last evening, Albert L. Preston, former secretary of the Commercial club, was elected manager of the concern. Mr. Preston will open an office in the Manhattan building and the preliminary work for the midsummer carnival will begin at once. It is claimed that the proposed site for the carnival, near the Armory, did not meet with the approval of all the members and another location will be considered. The committee on grounds is considering a site on property owned by the Northern Pacific company, adjoining London road, between Twelfth and Fourteenth avenues east.

The carnival colors are to be red, yellow and purple. The entertainment is a benevolent affair, the proceeds to go for charitable purposes.

OFFICES CONSOLIDATED.

All Postoffices at Superior Are to Become One.

The postoffice department has decided to consolidate the postoffices at West Superior, Superior, South Superior, Allouez and Itasca, under the name of Superior, Wis., and Kirby Thomas, the present postmaster at West Superior, will be reappointed postmaster of the consolidated offices. Information to that effect has been received by Congressman Jenkins of Wisconsin from Postmaster General Payne.

The consolidation is a move that the people of West Superior and its outlying suburbs have been wanting for a long time. It will be attended by several important changes looking toward the betterment of the postal service. Six carriers are to be named to supply the new territory that will have free delivery of mail, but the system will not be extended to Allouez and Itasca at the present time, as the houses are not numbered or sidewalks provided, as required by the department regulations.

The consolidation will become effective July 1, and the free delivery service will begin July 2. The offices at Superior and South Superior are to become sub-stations.

ASKS RESIGNATION.

Superior People Incensed at District Attorney Crownhart.

The Hundred Thousand club, of West Superior, seeks revenge against District Attorney Charles Crownhart, of Douglas county, for the part he took in lobbying against the proposed Wisconsin wheat inspection law before the legislature of that state. Last evening a meeting of the club was held and a lengthy resolution was adopted having for its object a request that the district attorney tender his resignation from the office he now holds. Mr. Crownhart was retained by the railroad interests in the fight against the proposed law, and the stand he took was unsatisfactory to the citizens connected with the club.

Was Bates & McDonald.

The firm of Bates & McDonald, of this city, according to one of the Twin City papers, is the lumbering concern that was fined $3300 by the state auditor for operating on state lands. The information was lodged by W. S. Deadon, one of the state cruisers. The lumber company claimed that the alleged trespass was unintentional, and that its employes cut the timber by mistake. The company paid its fine promptly, without demur.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

Not Yet Determined.

Ex-Governor Scofield has not yet decided whether he will rebuild his sawmil which burned down in West Superior Sunday morning. He is now busy getting the insurance adjusted, and says he will not know definitely what course he will pursue for several days. The understanding is that in event the mill should he rebuilt, the company will endeavor to get some of the logs sawed at other mills.

KILLED BY A CAR

Anthony Doyle Collides With One and Result Is Fatal.

Man Had Been Drinking and Was Evidently Confused.

Anthony Doyle was struck by a Woodland car last evening about 9 o'clock and died on the way to St. Luke's hospital.

Several eye witnesses have informed the authorities that Mr. Doyle was intoxicated and walked toward the approaching car.

Motorman John W. Hicken says he cannot tell how the accident occurred unless the unfortunate man was walking to meet the car.

"We were not running fast," says Mr. Hicken, "and our car was at Eighth avenue west going east when I saw a man about twelve feet away and apparently crossing the track. I shut off the power and applied the brakes, but we hit the man. It seemed to me that he was coming toward us instead of trying to cross or get out of the way."

Edward Barnhart, the last man to talk with Doyle, says that he happened to look out on the street just as he was about to enter the Western hotel and saw a man struck and knocked down by a car. He did not know it was Doyle until he went to the spot and recognized his friend. He said Doyle had been drinking some but was not intoxicated to the extent of not being able to care for himself.

Although many people that gathered around knew Doyle well, none could be found that knew much of his life, or whether or not he had a family.

From the nature of the man's injuries it was evident that he had rolled under the safety fender. The bones of the skull were fractured, and that is given as the primary cause of death.

When the injured man was picked up his respiration was very low and it was practically a race between Stewart's ambulance and death out to St. Lukes. Death won, the man dying just a few moments before the ambulance reached its destination.

Coroner Boyer is making a thorough investigation of the fatal accident, and says that if there is any reason to suppose that Doyle's death was due to negligence on the part of Motorman Hicken an inquest will be held. However, up to noon today an inquest had not been determined on, and the general trend of evidence in the case was to hold whisky responsible for the death—it being testified by several that Mr. Doyle walked toward the approaching car in an apparently drunken condition, instead of trying to get out of its way.

Committed to Fergus Falls.

Samuel Severson was examined for insanity before Probate Judge Middlecoff yesterday afternoon and an order was issued committing him to the state asylum at Fergus Falls. Severson has been in bad health for some time, and has developed a mania for theft. When he appeared for examination, Severson had several watches and chains which he acknowledged that he had stolen, as well as the shoes he wore. Besides the jewelry he had about $900 which he had saved from his earnings. Severson is a longshoreman and resides on Garfield avenue.

GOVERNOR GENERAL

Of Canada Was the Guest of City of Detroit.

Deeroit, Mich., May 14.—For two hours last evening Lord Minto, governor general of Canada, Lady Minto and Lady Eileen Elliott, their daughter, acompanied by Maj. Maude and Capt. Graham, the governor general's aides-de-camp, were the guests of the city of Detroit. Thousands of people enthusiastically cheered the governor general and his party as they drove through the streets from the ferry landing to the Russell house, where a reception was held, at the close of which the distinguished visitors were tendered a luncheon.

Lord Minto and his party, who arrived in Windsor yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, crossed the river in Col. F. J. Decker's yacht at 6 o'clock.

Mayor Maybury and a reception committee from Detroit met them as they stepped aboard at Windsor. The yacht landed the party at the foot of Woodward avenue, which had been roped off by the police for half a mile. Four companies of the First United States infantry, which have just returned from the Philippines, under the command of Capt. George H. Bell, seven companies of the First regiment, Michigan National Guard, and two divisions of the Michigan naval reserves, were lined up on Woodward avenue to act as the governor general's escort on his drive through the downtown section of the city. The party immediately entered carriages and amid cheers of thousands of American citizens, the drive was begun. Hundreds of American and British flags decorated the buildings along the route traversed by Lord Minto, who was visibly pleased by the splendid reception given him.

MRS. MOLINEUX NOT YET FREE

Her Six Months' Term of Residence Just Expired.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 14.—An idea appears to prevail that the six months required by Mrs. Roland B. Molineux to establish a legal residence in this state expired Tuesday. According to records here she did not reach Sioux Falls until Nov. 14 last, and therefore her six months did not expire until today. Under the South Dakota statutes she is now a full-fledged citizen and able to institute her suit for divorce.

Those concerned refuse to divulge just what will be done. Whether she will immediately commence her suit or wait for several weeks. There is every indication that extraordinary efforts will be made to keep the papers from the public until after the final hearing.

As the chief attorney for Mrs. Molineux is noted for his disinclination to talk to newspaper men, it is safe to predict that every effort will be made to keep the particulars of her divorce secret from becoming public after a decree is granted.

Mrs. Molineux's residence in Sioux Falls has been devoid of interest. She has lived very quietly and has made no intimate friends with any of the other members of the colony. Her only recreation has been to take long walks daily.

HIGH COAL AND LUMBER RATES

Other States Have Lower Schedule Than Minnesota Has.

St. Paul, May 14.—At the hearing yesterday by the railroad and warehouse commission, the attorney general presented comparative tables showing the rates on coal and lumber in Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, which shows the Minnesota rates to be apparently unreasonable, and, on the whole, very much higher than in the neighboring states.

One of these tables is a comparison of lumber rates from Ashland, Wis., over the Chicago & Northwestern to points in Wisconsin, with rates from St. Paul to points in Minnesota of equal distance, over the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road.

This table shows the following facts:

SENATOR QUAY IS TO RETIRE

Myron T. Herrick Talked of For the Vice-Presidency.

Washington, May 14.—Former Secretary Long of the navy department, who is in town, says Cleveland cannot be nominated by the Democratic party and if nominated would be defeated, the people being against a third term, to say nothing of Cleveland's unpopularity with the Western branch of his party.

A report from Pittsburg, apparently on good authority, says that Quay will not be a candidate for re-election to the senate on account of his age and bodily infirmities. He will be 70 years old next September.

Washington, with what many people think is good authority, is talking of Myron T. Herrick, of Cleveland, as a candidate for vice president next year, on the Republican ticket with Roosevelt. The Washington Post prints the story in part as follows:

"The statement that Herrick will probably be the vice presidential nominee is not inspired by a desire to pay him a pretty compliment which has no particular significance. On the contrary it is based upon something much more substantial. One can say upon most excellent authority that the Cleveland banker, who is to be nominated for governor by the Republicans of the Buckeye state next month, is being seriously discussed in presidential cabinet circles in connection with the second place on the national ticket in 1904. The authority for this assertion is one of the leading members of Roosevelt's cabinet, a man who was invited into the president's official family not only because of his peculiar fitness for the office he now holds, but also on account of his political sagacity and acumen."

AGAINST HER MOUTH

Her Husband Put His to Kill Her.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 14.—At the hearing of the divorce case of Mrs. Julia C. Hiller against Frank Hiller the complainant said that her husband abused her shamefully and refused to support her. She said he put his mouth against hers, not for osculatory purposes, but to prevent her from breathing and to kill her.

The testimony showed Hiller's abuse of his wife aroused the ire of his landlord, who gave Hiller a sound thrashing, since when he has disappeared. Mrs. Hiller got her divorce.

STARTLING CHARGE

Woman Said to Have Hastened Husband's Death By Drugs.

Alleged to Have Four Living Husbands Not Divorced.

Muncie, Ind., May 14.—In a citation calling upon Mrs. Estelle Colt, of Muncie, to appear before the district court of Harrison county, Texas, that was served upon Mrs. Colt by Sheriff Swain, it is alleged that Mrs. Colt married James T. Colt a short time ago in Marshall, Texas, when, at the time, she had four living husbands from whom she had never been divorced.

It is further alleged that Mrs. Colt married Colt for the purpose of obtaining his money, and that she gave him liquor, morphine and other drugs so that he would die more quickly and leave her his estate; that while he was in an intoxicated condition she caused him to make a will leaving her all his property, cutting out his heirs, of whom there are about twenty-five and who are now contesting the will.

The property in question was sold for about $12,000 and Mrs. Colt is now in possession of the money. She still owns 51,000 acres of land in Texas north of Beaumont.

The following are the charges as officially set forth in the citation:

"That said will was void because the said Estelle E. Colt, so named therein as wife of the said James T. Colt, was not the wife of Colt but an adventuress and interloper, who had previously to the execution of said will married Colt on July 3, 1900, by the use of artifice, fraud and conspiracy, representing herself to Colt to be a single woman named Estelle Spaulding, and married Colt under the name of Estelle Spaulding, when she had the following living husbands from whom she had never been divorced, Gus Nash, — Irey, — Spaulding and — Loftus, and that Estelle did marry Colt for the sole purpose of defrauding him out of his property.

"And that Estelle after said marriage, by undue influence and by administering drugs, whisky and morphine to said Colt, gained an ascendency over the will and mind of Colt, and thereby induced Colt to execute the will in her favor. That said will is void because James T. Colt was at the time of its execution drunk.

"That the will is void as a bequest to Estelle Colt, the pretended wife of James T. Colt, because Estelle, with the evil design and intent to murder the said Colt, administered to Colt drugs for the purpose of killing Colt so that she could quickly take his property under his will."

Mrs. Colt is a well-known woman of this city and is the daughter of the late Mrs. Luther, the noted Spiritualist.

She does not deny having had five husbands, but claims that they in turn either died or were divorced. She says the charges of her having poisoned Colt are maliciously false.

Mrs. Colt has employed local attorneys to fight her case if the will is contested. As yet no charges of contemplated criminal prosecution have been filed.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER.

Two Strange Cases In an Indiana Town.

Kokomo, Ind., May 14.—The people and the authorities of Hemlock, near here, are puzzled by the strange case of Louis Yeager, aged 23, who was found dead Monday morning within a mile of the spot where his closest friend was found dead in his buggy two weeks ago almost to the hour. A bullet wound in his side and a hole in his temple caused death. Yeager spent Sunday evening with Emma Finley, a mile east of Hemlock. She says that when he left he was in his usual merry mood. They had not quarreled.

The impression prevails that the robbing of the Rhodes store, in Oakford, the killing of young Francis Ellis two weeks ago, the sandbagging of George Ingles, the killing of young Yeager, all in the same neighborhood, within a few weeks, is traceable to a gang of ruffians in Hemlock. Yeager's life was attempted Friday night while returning from Hemlock on a bicycle. He told his father, and also Miss Finley, only a day or two ago, that the young men of Hemlock were opposed to the young men of Oakford and Center coming into that neighborhood to call on the young ladies, and that they had organized to "do them up." This would indicate that Ellis and Yeager had been foully murdered. The officers are sifting the case, and some startling developments are looked for at any hour. There is great excitement in the Taylor township neighborhood over the matter, and summary justice will be meted out if the guilty persons should they be apprehended.

Sheriff Stalbro and Coroner Harrison returned from Oakford, the scene of the tragedy. The officers found little on which to base their suicide theory, and there are evidences of foul play. Yeager left the home of Miss Myrtle at midnight, and nothing more was seen of him until his horse brought him home in the buggy dead.

YOUNG LADIES

Will Raise Funds to Build Tuberculosis Hospital.

New York, May 14.—Fifty young women attached to Holy Trinity German Catholic church, Brooklyn, will start to raise funds for the erection of a $250,000 hospital for the specific treatment of tuberculosis.

"We have been waiting so long for the men to make a move," explained Miss Genevieve Wertheus, secretary of the Aid society, as the young women have decided to call themselves, "that we are quite disgusted. Men cannot get money anyhow, so I suppose we will have to get it for them. We have the ground, and now we propose to obtain the funds."

The new hospital is to be an adjunct of St. Catherine's general hospital, and the management has already engaged two noted German physicians to treat tuberculosis. They are Dr. Fritz Leebens and Dr. Herman Maierbach, both of the Berlin scientific school of medicine. Those doctors are said to have made some valuable experiments in the treatment of tuberculosis and certain pulmonary diseases.

DIED FROM RARE TROUBLE.

Cleveland, May 14.—An autopsy performed on the body of Iona Mason, the 12-year-old girl, who it was supposed had committed suicide Monday by drinking carbolic acid, showed that her death was due to a ruptured heart, a cause, according to the coroner, rare enough to be remarkable.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

MERCY IS SHOWN

W. D. Ellsworth Fined $7163.83 and Sentenced For Fifteen Months.

Term of Imprisonment Far Below the Maximum Amount.

W. D. Ellsworth, who pleaded guilty before the United States district court to embezzling $7163.83 of the postal funds of the city of Eveleth, was sentenced yesterday afternoon by Judge Lochren to fifteen months in the state prison at Stillwater and to pay a fine of $7163.83.

Accompanied by his attorney, Charles O. Baldwin, Ellsworth came into the court room shortly before 5 o'clock in custody of a United States marshal. When asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed he made no reply, but his attorney entered a short plea for leniency, pleading the previous good character of the prisoner, his efforts to make good the losses of the government and the bondsmen, and the sympathy and good will which was still felt for him not only by his fellow-townsmen, but by his bondsmen themselves.

Before passing sentence Judge Lochren spoke briefly to the prisoner. He said it was pitiful that a man should allow his inclinations for intoxicants and gambling to induce him to betray his trust and bring such suffering on himself and his friends.

He then read the statutes covering the offense, which provide for a term of imprisonment not exceeding ten years and not less than six months, and the payment of a fine equal to the amount embezzled. He said he would be as lenient as the circumstances would allow, and imposed sentence.

Mrs. Ellsworth was present in the court room when sentence was imposed, and the loyal and comforting words spoken to her unfortunate husband in parting were very touching.

The prisoner will be taken to Stillwater tomorrow and will commence serving his sentence at once.

As to the payment of the fine, under the United States laws, if the prisoner is without money he can take the poor debtor's oath and serve thirty days longer, receiving his release at the end of that additional period.

THE STUDENTS' ENTERTAINMENT

Athletic Exhibition at High School Attracting Much Interest.

Great interest in the athletic carnival which will be given in the high school assembly hall for the benefit of the athletic association tomorrow evening is felt among the students and their friends.

Most of the program will consist of athletic exercises by the students of the high school. Some of the grade schools of the city will also contribute evolutions.

Music will be interspersed among the athletic numbers for variety.

A large number of students have been preparing for the affair during the last few weeks. Many of the evolutions through which they will be put have never been seen in Duluth.

All of the exercises are truly athletic and not merely calesthenic. The stage in the high school assembly hall is prepared for the affair and it will be cleared for the affair.

Members of the high school will take part in the following numbers: high jumping, neck waltzing, parallel bar and long horse exercises, table vaulting, rope pulling, five pyramids and ladder pyramids. Students from the Emerson school will be seen in wand exercises. The Jefferson will be represented by club swinging. "Venetian Maron" will be given by the Washington and illuminated club swinging by the Irving.

The Mendelssohn trio consisting of Miss Elsie Thiel, violin; Virginia Wheutts, 'cello, and Eva Wheutts, piano, will give a number and Miss Abbott will sing a solo.

Hitherto somewhat similar exercises have attracted great crowds to the high school and it is hoped that the entertainment will lift the high school athletic association, which has been in debt for some months, out of its difficulties.

ENORMOUS STURGEON

Caught Off the Coast of Virginia.

Philadelphia, May 14.—Enough sturgeon steaks arrived in this city a few days ago to feed a battalion of soldiers, and they were all in one big fish, the largest ever seen in this city. It was on exhibition in F. P. Larkin's fish market in Delaware avenue, foot of Dock street.

Minus its head and entrails, the sturgeon weighs 950 pounds. When dressed it is estimated that there will be 500 pounds of edible meat.

The sturgeon was caught in the Atlantic ocean, a few miles off the Virginia coast. As the net was drawn to the surface the fishermen thought it was a whale.

It required the efforts of half a dozen men to land the fish in the boat. The sturgeon measured twelve feet from head to tail. It was sixty-seven inches in circumference.

It is estimated that the fish was 25 or 30 years old. It was a buck and the meat was tender.

So important was the catch considered that the Academy of Natural Sciences was notified and a fish specialist from that institution will make an examination of it.

Uncle Reuben's Opinion.

"They may say what they please, but listen—hear me: I've taken all kinds of laxatives, purgatives and cathartics, but when it comes to one that is easy and pleasant to take, mild and gentle in its action, and that makes one want an extra slice of bacon for breakfast, just give me Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and you may have all the laxative syrups, dyspepsia medicines and pills, little or big, there is in this country. Them Tablets surely do make you feel joyful." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

PARKER AND CLEVELAND

Latter Opposed by South and by the Populists.

Washington, May 14.—Representative John Wesley Gaines, of Tennessee, has just returned from a visit to New York, and brings back opinions which he heard expressed in that city in regard to the next presidential campaign.

Mr. Gaines is an earnest advocate of the nomination of Judge Parker, of New York, as the Democratic candidate for president. Mr. Gaines reports that while in New York he talked with a very prominent Western Democrat, a man who has been one of the most successful politicians in the country.

This Western man, whose identity Mr. Gaines preferred not to reveal, has always been and is still a warm friend of ex-President Cleveland, but he expressed the opinion that if Mr. Cleveland were nominated he would cause a split in the Democratic party.

In Indiana and Illinois the candidacy of Mr. Cleveland, according to Mr. Gaines' Western authority, would drive off the Populists, who are very much needed by the Democrats in those states.

To the popular demonstrations that attended the appearance of Mr. Cleveland at St. Louis and in the journey to and from that city, Mr. Gaines attaches little importance and no especial significance.

This is the way Mr. Gaines exploits Judge Parker by way of contrast with Mr. Cleveland:

"Judge Parker is a good farmer, and a farmer who lives on his farmer and cultivates it; a good lawyer, a good citizen and a great judge. It has come his way to pass judicial opinion on questions of semi-political nature and of great popular interest, namely, trusts, monopolies, unlawful combines and corporations and the right of the people to control them, and he has passed upon them from the standpoint of right and justice, quoting often the Declaration of Independence.

"He is a conservative man, the friend of David B. Hill, Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan and John G. Carlisle. He has always voted for the Democratic nominee and has supported the ticket actively. He has been a successful party chairman, and has been elected in New York when other Democrats were defeated.

"Cleveland, on the other hand, put Republicans in his cabinet and allied himself with the Republicans to get his currency bill through congress. It is my opinion that he could not carry a single Southern delegation in the nominating convention. Not one man of the Tennessee delegation would vote for him, nor do I think any other Southern member of congress.

"All the prominent Southern men I know of practically are for Parker, and those who are not avowedly supporting him are not opposed to him, but have a preference for Senator Gorman as an experienced politician and a successful leader. But Gorman's position on the tariff has always been criticised, whether rightfully or wrongfully I cannot say, but the people have the idea that he is a protectionist, and that would hurt him as a Democratic candidate."

NEWPORT SOCIETY

Stirred Up By the Kemp Divorce Case.

Newport, R. I., May 14.—The divorce suit brought by Mrs. Isabelle Kemp, one of the best known women in society, against her husband, Arthur T. Kemp, who is prominent in club and yachting circles in New York and Newport, where he and Mrs. Kemp have been summer residents for nearly ten years, has been set down for a hearing later in the month. The decree, if granted, would be fully operative in six months from the date of hearing.

It is reported that Mr. Kemp will not make any opposition to Mrs. Kemp's suit. It is said Mrs. Kemp will make no opposition to Mr. Kemp seeing, as often as he wishes, their only child, a girl, who was born here and who will be 3 years old on July 3.

Society has for a long while been aware that Mr. and Mrs. Kemp have not been living together, and that their differences were of such a serious nature that an effort by relatives to reconcile them failed.

It was whispered early in March, when Mrs. Kemp came here with her mother, Mrs. Frederic Neilson, and her younger sister, now Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, that she would obtain a residence here and petition for a divorce in due time. This was expected to take two years, but Mr. Kemp became a citizen of Newport several years ago and this gave his wife the legal domicile of which she avails herself in the present proceedings.

Mrs. Kemp is the older daughter of Mrs. Neilson. Mr. Kemp is a son of the late George Kemp, a manufacturer, from whom he inherited a large estate. Their wedding, which took place in New York five years ago, was a notable event.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp separated here in the autumn of 1901. Mrs. Kemp was taken ill soon afterward and went South, later entering a sanitarium near New York. She is now fully recovered.

Though Mr. and Mrs. Kemp have fallen out, members of his wife's family seem not unfriendly toward him, for he was invited to attend the recent wedding of Miss Neilson and Mr. Vanderbilt, and sent the bride a valuable gift. He has chartered the schooner yacht Sea Fox, and will spend the summer cruising, with headquarters at Newport.

Arthur T. Kemp has been living in the Knickerbocker club, New York city, since he and his wife separated, but he has not been there for about a week. His engagement to Mrs. Frederic Neilson's daughter, who was known in society by her pet name, "Baby Belle Neilson," in January, 1897, caused a stir. The wedding followed on April 29, 1897.

A child, christened Mary Isabella, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Kemp in July, 1900. Mrs. Kemp's health has been precarious for more than a year. She was reported seriously ill in February, 1902, and was taken to Fortress Monroe, where she seemed to improve. She became quite ill again last winter and for several weeks remained in a private ward in Roosevelt hospital. She and her mother then went to Newport, but Mrs. Neilson returned and has been staying in her home, 100 Fifth avenue.

Showing The Way

This Public Statement of a Duluth Citizen Will Be Remembered.

Many a reader of this in Duluth has gone through the self-same experience, in part, and will be glad to be shown the way to get rid of the constant aches and pains of a bad back. Profit by a Duluth citizen's experience.

Mr. M. Tretheway, of 609 Sixty-third avenue west, says: "Though a very old man counting by years, my general health, with the exception of kidney complaint, has always been good. Persistently I tried to help myself by using ordinary household remedies, as well as buying sure cures for kidney complaints, but until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at W. A. Abbett's drug store and took them, I never received anything but the most unsatisfactory benefit. The action of Doan's Kidney Pills upon the secretions was very marked and, as I continued the treatment, the backaches lowly disappeared. I do not like to say that I am radically cured, but it does not require a great stretch of the imagination to reason as follows: If Doan's Kidney Pills were so prompt in bringing assistance at a time when I sorely needed it, if any recurrence takes place they can be appealed to with every chance of again affording relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the United States.

EPITHELIOMA

Covering One Side of the Face and Reaching to the Eye Speedily Cured by Cuticura.

"CUTICURA ACTED LIKE A CHARM."

Here is another of those remarkable cures of torturing, disfiguring skin humours daily made by Cuticura Resolvent, assisted by Cuticura Ointment and Soap, after physicians, hospitals and all else had failed.

"I feel it my duty to try to help those suffering from skin diseases. My case was a very bad one, covering all of one side of my face and had reached my eye. I had two or three doctors prescribe without any relief. They said my disease was Epithelioma. I was then advised to go to one of our hospitals which I did, taking their treatment for some time. I had given up all hope when my husband asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies. My face being in such a very bad state, I used the Cuticura Soap with luke-warm water and a small silk sponge and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. I took one teaspoonful of the Resolvent four times a day. They acted like a charm, and in one week's time my face was cured entirely and has remained so. I certainly can recommend the Cuticura Remedies as infallible.

EXPENSIVE FADS

Of Roosevelt Have Cost the Country Nearly a Million.

A Strenuous President is Said to Come Very High.

New York, May 14.—A Washington special to the World says: Here is what a strenuous president costs:

Restoration of the White House including a $2000 private tennis court and the beautifying of the private grounds on an elaborate scale	$475,445 00
Small 6-room, 1-story building for the president's executive offices	69,196 00
Increase in running expenses of White House	25,000 00
New furniture and fittings for Mayflower (the president's yacht)	100,000 00
Cost of keeping the Mayflower in commission two month last year	15,105 00
Repairs and refitting the Mayflower last year	33,297 33
Estimated cost of repairs and refitting the Mayflower this year	30,000 00
Total	$744,043 33

President Roosevelt went into the White House in September, 1901, since which time the cost of keeping up the establishment has increased enormously, to say nothing of the $500,000 paid for repairing and refurnishing the building and the $65,000 spent on a presidential office building that members of congress say looks like a stable.

Large sums of government funds have been expended on the Mayflower, that the president may have one of the most handsomely appointed private yachts in the world at his beck and call. That is one of Mr. Roosevelt's most expensive luxuries, next in rank to his newly furnished official home. Minor president luxuries are beautiful roof gardens above the east and west terraces, made cool and inviting by costly imported bay and boxwood trees, and a private lawn tennis court.

There is an unexpected balance of a few thousand dollars in the fund of $475,445 set aside for "restoring" the White House, and a grand rush is on to spend it before the end of the fiscal year on June 29. If it is not spent by that time it must go back to the treasury.

As there was little chance to spend another dollar on the White House or the office building, four imported green bay trees to set off the private entrance to the White House were bought for $500 each, and the terrace on each side was lined with smaller trees of cheaper variety, but still costly.

Still there was money left, and a lattice work inclosure was built at the southeast corner of the executive mansion to conceal the Roosevelt family washing from the vulgar gaze. But that cost comparatively only a trifle.

Then the president thought that a private lawn tennis court would be a nice thing. Tennis is usually too mild a form of exercise for Mr. Roosevelt, and Mrs. Roosevelt does not care much for it, but it would be excellent for the children. So a force of men were put to work on a tennis court south of the office building, and while they were at it they were told to build a double one. They have now been at work on it about a month, and are determined to have it finished before the end of the fiscal year. They have put down sand, taken out stones, ashes and dirt until those who have become weary in watching the job almost concluded that the men were working for the exercise alone.

Experiments without end have been tried, and the cost of the court when it is finally completed will not be less than $2000. But it will be a fine one in the world. As the president and his family will go to Oyster Bay for the summer either just before or soon after the court is finished it probably will not see much if any, service this year. It will be all ready, however, for next summer.

But still there will be money left, and plans have been laid to devote the balance to beautifying the private grounds south of the White House. Great beds of high-priced flowers of many kinds will be set out, and that part of the White House grounds enjoyed only by the Roosevelt family and their guests will bloom with the luxuriance of the tropics.

The president pays for the food and wine when he entertains. Everything else is furnished by the government, including the flowers and service. Most of the flowers for the White House functions formerly came from the conservatories that were removed to make place for the executive office building. Now when the president gives a dinner or a luncheon he selects the flowers from the conservatories connected with the department of agriculture and the botanical gardens. The improvements in the White House raised the expenses to such an extent that Col. Bingham was forced to ask for $65,000 from congress for the upkeep of the White House, instead of $35,000 that kept "that mansion going ever since Mrs. the president."

When Mr. Roosevelt travels by rail the finest special train is at his disposal. His arrangements with the railroad companies are private. When he or any member of his family wants to go to sea the handsomest ship in the navy is waiting. Presidents Cleveland and McKinley were satisfied with the Dolphin, or the Sylph, a little yacht. Mr. Roosevelt has the Mayflower, in comparison with which the Dolphin and the Sylph look like cheap tugs.

The Mayflower is officially classed as a cruiser. She is almost as large as the Boston or the Cincinnati. In the assignment of ships she appears "on special service." She is ready at the disposal of the president at all times, and was fitted up at enormous expense for his enjoyment. The King of Italy or the Emperor of Germany does not travel in more imposing style or greater luxury than does Mr. Roosevelt when he is aboard his private yacht, for the Mayflower is nothing less than that.

The Mayflower was built by Mrs. Ogden Goelet, and when nearly completed was bought by the government for $430,000, at the time war was declared with Spain. The improvements and alterations that have been made in her since then, added to the cost of keeping her in commission so that she would be ready to answer the president's call, amount to almost as much as her original cost.

From stem to stern the Mayflower is fitted out in the gorgeous style. She has solid mahogany bath tubs that cost $2000 each, and the new furniture and fittings cost $120,000. The dining room is a large and magnificent hall. Surrounding it are seven roomy staterooms, five of which are guest chambers. All of their glory is hidden from the public. Not even a photograph of any of the rooms used by the president and his friends can be secured.

Emil Muller, of New York, who was the official photographer of the navy, took some views of the interior of the ship after her last refitting. He supposed that the Mayflower, being a government vessel, was no different from any other ship of the navy, and he intended to distribute the pictures in the usual way for the admiration of the people who paid for her. The navy department heard of what he had done before any of the pictures got out, and he was forced to destroy the plates and burn all the prints. His permit to go aboard naval ships was also revoked for his temerity. Since then no one with a camera has been able to board the ship.

The magnificence of the Mayflower begins at the ship's side. Her gangway cost as much as a small yacht. The repairs to the ship for the year ending June 30, 1902, cost $33,297.33, and it cost the government $15,105 to keep her in commission for two months. She has been overhauled and repainted since then to keep her in perfect condition.

GAINING IN POWER

Is the Wave of Prosperity as it Sweeps Westward.

The Ancient Theories of Financiers No Longer Apply.

Cincinnati, May 14.—A staff correspondent of the Enquirer, who has been making a tour of the West, sends the following from Chicago: In closing my series of letters from the South and West I am pleased to note that conditions exist in these sections that guarantee a marvelous expansion of trade, and a tremendous growth of population within a comparatively short period of time.

Those persons who, amazed at a degree of prosperity that seems almost too great to continue, and who for that very reason have expected and predicted its culmination during the past two years, will have to amend their judgments and postpone the fulfillment of their prophecies to a much later period of time. Instead of reaching the point of breaking, the wave is gaining in power with every season; is spreading over continents and mounting in volume at the same time. The financiers of the world are dealing with conditions that they are unaccustomed to, and their ancient theories based upon past and gone conditions no longer answer their purpose, and they will have to adopt correct thoughts upon "new" finance before they will be able to judge soundly and estimate accurately of further values and later investments.

By financiers I mean those who really do study the world's circling currents of trade and money as well as keep posted upon home or local conditions. I have no reference to the gentlemen who get their information filtered through the offices of the "stock pack-ling" banks and trust companies of New York City and who pose as financiers in the smaller cities and towns retailing stuff that is dumped out at wholesale to them (as it is through the corridors of the Waldorf-Astoria) by the agents of the men who manipulate the prices, often without the slightest reference to actual conditions. Many men of ability in financial affairs were doubtful of prosperity five years ago, though it really had not come; two years ago they thought the world of trade was on thin ice and liable to break through at any moment. They did not then, some of them fall yet, to note the true import of the rising tide of money that causes that activity and provides for the carrying on of great development. In the years from 1892 to 1898 how the journals were filled with that miserable subterfuge of the New York bankers "want of confidence."

Every disaster in a commercial line was characterized by that phrase, coined by them to obviate the statement that was literally and absolutely true, viz., that they and the people were "short of cash." The West told the East in 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896 and 1897 that it was shortness of cash, not "want of confidence," that was the trouble with the country. The events of the past five years have demonstrated this fully, and the entire country now knows the West was right on that point. In the future the people of the United States should remember that whenever the New York banker or the New York financier complains of "want of confidence" he is short of cash and needs looking after immediately. Whenever there is sufficient money to transact business there is no lack in confidence, as far as trade and commerce are concerned, and this rule applies individually as well as nationally, and nationally as it does individually.

The outlook of the wheat crop of this country from the Rio Grande to the Canadian line is better than ever before existed, and so far gives promise to break all records in production. The weather has been ideal and in the dangerous dry regions there is sufficient of stored moisture to see it through to perfection. Nothing could be finer than this wheat prospect throughout the entire West. The corn is being planted in the greater portion of the area and the soil is in excellent condition for the seed. Conditions so far on corn are favorable, but, of course, it is too early to tell of prospects of production. Grass has done very well indeed, and the mountains and uplands received late snows that will prevent the later drought to any great degree and virtually insures sufficient moisture for crops of all kinds.

The widespread of favorable conditions in the "event" of this year in the Southwest, for if the farmers had made the rains and the snowfalls to suit the coming and the past seasons, they could not have made them more propitious. The Rio Grande, usually dry at this season, has good volume of water, the largest of any year since 1897. Cattle are looking fine upon all the ranges and have rapidly increased in number during the past three years, as the people have been able to retain herds instead of selling them off to slaughter. The immense corn crop of last year has aided largely in maintaining large food supplies of the country, not only in grain, but in available flesh products. So much for agriculture in this immense domain, and now for mining, which is next in importance, not only in this section, but to the world at large. Suffice it to say that from the Arctic ocean to the isthmus and from the Mississippi river to the Pacific ocean there exists unceasing and ever-increasing development, extension and production of all classes of minerals.

In no camp can an idle man be found and nowhere have I discovered doubt, disappointment or discontent. Mine owners seem to be doing well and every one knows the miners are doing better than ever before. No trouble to secure employment, and wages average higher than in any other year. I know it is difficult to impress upon persons not familiar with the mining regions of the West how important these facts are to the entire country, but they can not be too highly estimated.

They show the existing prosperity of millions who are directly interested as workers and investors, and the continuance of these mining conditions means other millions to the manufacturer, mechanics and artisans of the East and the Middle West.

The opening of a mine and the erection of a mill and plant means the establishment of homes and very often the beginning of a town. It is a nucleus of humanity that quickly draws around it the activities of modern life. Hundreds of these nuclei are being established each year, and no one can tell how many Buttes, Virginia Cities and Cripple Creeks have commenced to exist in 1901-'02-'03.

One fact is a certainty, hundreds of these camps are increasing steadily in population and in production of minerals and many of them are undoubtedly to become of importance as communities.

The great growth in production from soil and from the mines has stimulated the demand for railroad facilities.

Each of the great transcontinental systems is vieing with the others to bind to itself with rail of steel as much territory as it can dominate or take up. The Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe, the Union Pacific, the Great Northern, with their various allies, such as the Burlington, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Rock Island, the Missouri Pacific and many others are all constructing, surpassing in activity anything ever known in railroad annals.

In addition to those alluded to there is Senator Clark's Salt Lake City & Los Angeles railroad being rushed to completion with all the force possible. Here is a trunk line in itself, being over 1000 miles in length. Then there is the line Banker David Moffatt, of Denver, is building from Denver to Salt Lake many hundred miles long; again the Stillwell lien to Mexico through the Southwest more than 1000 miles from beginning to terminus on the Pacific, with surveyors upon a line of the same system running through Texas to Tampico upon the Gulf of Mexico, another 700 miles of a stretch that is to be made a highway for Fullmans, passengers and freight.

The railroad construction west of the Mississippi during the present and the next year will aggregate twice as much as the entire United States laid down in any year of the past decade. Such is the demand for laborers that all parts of the country are being searched for men to work upon these various lines. In Chicago the most flattering inducements and promotions are being offered, with very little results. The truth is that there are no men idle in the country. The activity in all sections is such that the arrival of even 10,000 to 15,000 emigrants per day in New York produces no surplus labor of either sex. The railroad hand now seems to be as scarce in Utah and Texas as the servant girl is in New York, Pittsburg or Cincinnati. The entire population of the West is busy and prosperous, and the manufacturers and workmen of the East and Middle West will be kept still busier than they are now to supply the trans-Mississippi demand.

MAYWHEAT WEAK

That Option Shows Marked Weakness In Nearly All Markets.

July Price Closes Higher —Flax Is Quiet and Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 14.—The feature of the wheat markets today was the general weakness of the May option as compared with July, although this was not as apparent in the Duluth market as in others. In Chicago May was off 1½c at one time when July was only off ⅝c. The close in the market was ¼c lower for May and ⅝c under for July. In Minneapolis May closed ⅝@¾c lower and July unchanged. New York had a decline of ½c while the July was ½c higher. Duluth preserved a better relation, the May closing without change and July only a shade higher. Markets generally were rather dull, although in the Duluth Market it was somewhat better than it has been recently.

Cables were fairly steady, Liverpool closing unchanged to ¼d higher, Paris 1 to 1½ higher, Antwerp ⅝c lower and Buda Pest ⅛c lower. The weather generally in foreign lands was favorable, but France reported serious damage to crops in portions of that country and that caused the strength at Paris.

There was a fair export demand, New York reporting 17 loads worked for shipment and Chicago 200,000 bus on No. 1 northern. Duluth shippers worked about five loads.

Primary receipts of wheat were 316,000 bus, last year 172,000 bus. Shipments 200,000 bus last year 156,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 306,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 112 cars, and at Chicago 35, a total of 147 cars, against 123 last week and 128 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ¼d lower. July corn in Chicago closed ⅝@⅝c lower and July oats a shade lower. Primary receipts of corn were 744,000 bus, last year 142,000 bus. Shipments 475,000 bus, last year 193,000 bus. Clearances were 209,000 bus.

July in the Duluth market opened ½c off at 75c and sold between that price and 75⅞c in the first half hour and then fell to 75c at 10:35. After that it sold at 77⅛c at 11, dropped again to 75c at 11:30 and then advanced to 75⅞c at 12:55 and closed at 75⅞@¾c. This was a shade higher than yesterday.

Cash sales were a very few cars. Prices continued unchanged at May price for No. 1 northern and 1¢c under for No. 2 northern.

Flax was fairly active and lower, July sold 1¢ down to $1.35½ and then closed at $1.45⅞. May closed ½c off at $1.14¾. September was ¼c lower and the later options unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 88c; No. 1 northern, 78c; No. 2 northern, 76c; May, No. 1 hard, 79½c; No. 1 northern, 78c; July 75⅞@¾c; September, 76½c. Flax in store $1.14¾ to arrive, $1.14¾; on track, $1.14¾; May, $1.14¾; July, $1.15⅜; September, $1.16¾, October, $1.16; November, $1.16. Oats to arrive 31c; on track, 31c; May, 33½c. Rye to arrive, 56c; on track, 56c; May, 58c. Barley, 37@51c.

Cars inspected, wheat, 12; last year, 6; oats, 8; rye, 2.

George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

27 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

We have in our Iron Queen group of mines a well-defined vein proved three thousand feet in length and with a probable length of more than two miles, proved five feet in width, we get as the minimum and widening out in places to forty feet, and at least two thousand feet in depth, with the probabilities in favor of its going below five thousand feet.

Taking the minimum measurements and multiplying the three thousand feet in length by two thousand feet in depth and five feet in width, we get as the contents of the vein 30,000,000 cubic feet of ore, which will run ten cubic feet to the ton, giving us 3,000,000 tons.

There is a net profit in this of at least $10 a ton over all expenses of mining and milling.

3,000,000 tons at $10 a ton yield $30,000,000 in profits.

This is from only one group of our properties. In the Cliff and Brookshire groups I believe the ore bodies to be even larger richer and more valuable, but it takes longer to get at them, and we have several other groups almost equally promising.

I have had too much practical experience in mining to indulge in visions. I would rather underestimate than overestimate results. When the United Verde stock was first offered for sale I was asked to estimate upon the probable production of the property, and my estimates came short of the reality. The same is true of my estimates of the Greene Consolidated, with which I was connected. The people who bought the United Verde upon my recommendation have made three thousand per cent upon their investment in ten years. The people who bought Greene Consolidated—also upon my recommendation—have made five hundred per cent in two years. I believe that the stock of the GEORGE A. TREADWELL COMPANY at present prices is a better investment than the United Verde or Green Consolidated ever was.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Trading In Wheat Quiet With Prices Steady.

Chicago, May 14.—Trading in wheat was again quiet and opening prices were steady on small receipts and fairly steady cables. July being a shade lower to a shade higher, at 72c to 73¼c. The most important feature in the trading during the first hour was the liquidation of May which caused a break in the price of that delivery from 78¾c at the opening to 76⅞c. July held about steady around 72@73c, after selling at 71⅝@72c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 112 cars, which with local receipts of 35 cars, 3 of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 147 cars, against 123 cars last week and 128 cars a year ago.

The decline in May was checked by fair buying by the leading long and later in the day on general commission house demand together with buying by shorts the market became strong, July advancing to 72¾c. The close was ⅝c higher at 72⅝@¾c. May closed at 78c.

Corn was dull and a trifle easier at the start, July opening a shade lower, at 45¾c. There was some selling by commission houses, but the demand was sufficient to prevent any decline and prices held steady. Local receipts were 236 cars, 11 of contract grade.

The market ruled weaker the latter part of the day, and July closed 1⅝@1¾c lower at 45c.

The sentiment in the oat pit was again somewhat bullish, but opening prices were steady, July being unchanged at 32⅝c. Trading was dull and featureless and prices showed little variations the early part of the day. Local receipts were 120 cars.

A weaker hog market together with selling by outside holders due to indications of a larger movement in hogs caused an easier opening in provisions and with trading almost at a standstill the market continued easy. September pork opened 7½c down at $16.60; September lard was off 2½ to 5c at $8.92½ to $8.95, with ribs down 2½ to 5c at $9.176 to $9.20.

Close: Wheat—May, 78c; July, 72¾@¾c; September, 70⅝c; December, 76⅞c. Corn—May, 45c; July, 45c; September, 41⅜c. Oats—May, 35¾c; July, 32¼@⅝c; September, 30¼c; December, 30½@⅝c. Pork—May, $18.80; July, $17.10; September, $16.60. Lard—May, $8.80; July, $8.87½; September, $8.92½. October, $8.77½. Ribs—May, $9.30; July, $9.35; September, $9.17½; October, $9.05. Rye—May, 56c; July, 50c. Timothy—May, $3.50. Barley—Cash, 42@56c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.45; S. W., $1.41; May, $1.41; July, $1.14½. Clover—May, $12.50. Cash wheat—2 red, 77½@78c; 3 red, 76@77c; 2 hard winter, 74@77c; 3 hard winter, 626@77c; 1 northern spring, 79½@80c; 2 northern spring, 78@80c; 3 spring, 72@79c. Corn—2, 45c; 3, 44½@¾c. Oats—2, 32c; 3, 31½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was active and tone decidedly strong. There was an improved inquiry for shipment in the southwest markets and the seaboard confirms a fair more business yesterday than had previously been reported. The tendency of crop advices is also unfavorable. Undoubtedly a good deal of the buying which caused the rally here at the close was covering of shorts, but the market at no time developed much selling pressure. Market has been in a rut for some time and begins to show signs of getting out of it by an upward turn. With the small stocks it would not take much bad crop news to cause a good advance. California is still complaining of lack of rain and some of the estimates are of 50 per cent damage. Estimated cars, 25.

Corn—Market here was steady. The cash position seems a fairly strong one both here and in the southwest markets. Speculative trade was small and features less. It is affected a good deal by weather conditions, which at the moment are rather more favorable. The cash position seems a strong one. Estimated cars, 135.

Oats—Market was very quiet and steady. The cash situation shows no improvement. Price Current says crop somewhat improved but much uneven and backward. Estimated cars, 85.

Chicago. An advance of 1¼ cent in the May wheat price at St. Louis, while all other markets was some lower, drew attention yesterday to the small St. Louis wheat stocks. The total is only 883,000 bushels and St. Louis yesterday wired this was all sold to go out. Two months ago St. Louis had 2,700,000 bus. of wheat.

• • •

French crop news: According to a report received by state department from Consul Tourgee at Bordeaux, cereals and forage plants throughout southwest France are seriously injured, clover is cut badly and hay crop will be short. The same is said to be true of wheat, rye and possibly oats.

• • •

San Francisco wires: "Everyone who is in a position to know seems to be of the same opinion about our wheat crop, that it will be a short one. There is no rain in sight and it is badly needed. We have clearing weather all over California. Our advance this morning confirms dry weather. The government figures on our crop are twenty points too high. Wheat in some places heading and only a foot high. In a few places where there was moisture during the winter, wheat is looking fairly well and will probably hold it own whether we get rain or not, but taking the state in general and at its best, crop will be short. Some claim will only get half, others three-quarters crop.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Pressure Was Renewed and Prices Went Down Rapidly.

General Selling of Long Stock By Discouraged Holders.

New York, May 14.—Of the small number of stocks traded in at the opening, the majority were unchanged from last night's prices. A rise of a point in C. & A. and a decline of ¾ in Rubber Goods pfd, were the only movements that reached as much as ½.

Heavy selling of Rock Island drove it down to 42⅜ but the general market did not yield much and rather inclined to a higher level in sympathy with a rise in the Gould stocks. Kansas & Texas pfd advanced 1¾. Wabash pfd 1, and other Gould stocks a good fraction. Colorado Fuel resumed its upward course and gained 1⅜. New Haven fell off 1, Iowa Central pfd 1½ and Westinghouse Electric 8½.

The hardening tendency of prices was interrupted by a break of 2⅝ in Colorado Fuel, with a rally to about last night's level. The advance reached 1⅝ in Reading & Lake Erie first pfd, a point in the common, second pfd and Metropolitan Street railway and 1⅜ in Northwestern. Pressure was renewed against the Rock Island stocks the pfd losing a point. Some other stocks fell back to the lowest. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Selling of the railroad standard stocks went on unchecked during the afternoon, a drop in St. Paul to below 160 aggravating the heaviness elsewhere. Offerings of most issues were scanty. Northwestern preferred sold 25 points below its previous sale. North American lost 3. American Express rose 2 and Pere Marquette 3. Metropolitan Securities advanced 1.

The failure to lift prices induced a general spilling out of long stock by discouraged holders, which made the lowest prices of the day. St. Paul led the decline with a fall of 1⅜ below last night. Reading, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie second preferred, Northwestern, E. & T. H., T. St. L. & W., Copper, Bag, U. S. Rubber, Tennessee Coal and Paper scored net declines of 1 to 1⅝. General Electric 2, New York Central & St. Louis 2⅝, and Delaware & Hudson 2½. The closing was dull and weak.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Chicago to Coe Commission Co.: There is a report here that the Colorado Fuel & Iron company will engage in the manufacture of steel farm wagons on a large scale. A large plant fully equipped for the purpose is now running at the company's immense works in Pueblo. The steel wagon is said to have already become very popular with western farmers and a demand is constantly growing that insures a great future. Lumber formerly used in making of farm wagons is rapidly growing scarce and the builders of wooden vehicles are substituting inferior quality of material which lasts but a short time exposed to the elements in the majority of farm wagons.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Professional traders made a determined effort to break the market yesterday morning and succeeded in catching a fair number of stop losses. Weak-margined holders made haste to let go and many went short. Sentiment seems about equally divided as to whether a bull or bear market is ahead. Probably there will be neither for some time. Three points down and three points up is about the outlook as traders market pure and simple. To begin buying when weak and average down is probably the best way to play, though there is not much encouragement to do anything. As stocks have had their three-point decline the next move ought to be a three-point rise. However, I feel too disgusted with the market to advise anything.

• • •

New York to Coe Commission Co.: We figure that the securities of the United States Steel corporation are now selling at less than their property value; that is, the aggregate selling price of the stocks and bonds is less than the probable value of the plants and the ore lands. The value of the steel company's property may be figured at $1,305,000,000.

• • •

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Because stocks are no longer dislodged by attacks and because of evidence indicating their absorption by powerful buyers there is increased confidence in the market outlook, furthermore developments as regards earnings and the pool situation in the past twenty-four hours are invested with the most favorable significance. In his San Francisco speech President Roosevelt placed himself squarely on record in favor of currency legislation and again tariff agitation and the conclusion of experienced observers is that an extra session of congress will be called in time to lessen greatly if not to avert entirely the danger of tight money in the fall. As to earnings Baltimore & Ohio, net increase of $435,000 for April, and New York Central net gain of $466,000 for the quarter ended March 30, are considered strong arguments in favor of good railroad stocks at present prices. The former showing is a bull card on Pennsylvania which road will, it is understood, report for the same period one of the best statements it has ever issued, conservative observers feel that the above factor must tell sooner or later as against such fluctuations as weakness in the stocks, the great speculative dullness and the labor troubles.

• • •

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: We have been informed that Metropolitan Securities are being daily absorbed by strong interests on any decline, without any effort to advance the price. At present we think this issue should be watched and we should not be surprised to see a sharp reaction in this stock and Metropolitan before long.

Coe Commision Co: The market opened dull and steady practically unchanged with the exception of Colorado Fuel & Iron, which advanced sharply, but was met with free liquidation, which forced prices a fraction below last night's closing. The balance of the market rules steady and dull with a very narrow range. Think these recessions should be taken advantage of to buy stocks, especially the Steel stocks and the Grangers.

Town Topics: The market is oversold, in our opinion, and the shorts will endeavor to cover by making various specialties weak from time to time. Good stocks are distinctly purchases on from 1 to 3 points, but it will be wise for traders, in view of the professional nature of the market, to take fair returns. Good stocks are scarce, having been reduced in supply by investment purchases. There was a large block of Pennsylvania bought for investment yesterday all from bearish floor traders. Pennsylvania is said to be now earning 14 per cent on its entire capitalization, including the new issues. The buying of U. S. Steel from the shorts by Pittsburg is significant in view of the talk of a decline in the Iron and Steel business. St. Paul received good support yesterday and there are tips to buy it. The quick absorption of the new Mexican Loan and New York city bonds shows the improving condition of the bond market. There was excellent buying in B. & O. yesterday whose quick recovery shows the advisability of purchasing it on weak spots.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is again dull and heavy. One New York correspondent says trouble is "No buyers," another says "the labor situation is the disturbing element." We think they are both right. One gives the cause and the other the result. They are both what we have been saying for a long time past. The outside is not in the market and they are not likely to come under existing conditions. Without help from the general public, the load is too big for the professional trade and prices must go to a point where the help will come. Still think stocks should be sold on all rallies.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: A bear raid in the New York market was the only explanation of the weakness of the general market today. Within a day or two these bears will probably be bulls again and working for a rally upon which to sell. It is a tracers market and nothing more. Copper sold down sharply in London at the opening and made only a partial recovery at the close. This opened the way for bear operations by Amalgamated and other coppers sold down in sympathy. We think coppers will soon be better.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 14.—Wild excitement and new high prices again marked the opening of the cotton market this morning. First quotations were at an advance of 11@14 points on active months with May selling up to 11.38, July to 10.56 and August to 10.03, under a continued scramble of shorts to fulfill their contracts. The Liverpool advance in futures was perhaps a shade under expectations, but the latter cables reflected a steadily advancing tendency while the advance to 6.10 bid for spot cotton and the sale of 20,000 bales proved an even more powerful factor. After the call here there was a tremendous scramble among which carried prices 3@4 points off from the best but shorts continued covering with unabated hunger and the market still showed great strength and nervousness.

All manner of rumors were circulated during the early advance which carried May to 11.41, July to 10.59 and August to 10.07. It was said that the bull clique had been caught heavily short of the summer months and were dropping their May profits in their efforts to cover. It appeared that in the rush of yesterday the shorts had pretty thoroughly covered and another result of the advance was to attract actual cotton and this was said to be heading toward New York from all points including Europe with shipments from Liverpool and Bremen reported. The final effect of the enormous volume of covering recently consummated naturally eased the situation some and while still very feverish the market at noon was less active with prices not unchanged to 4 points higher on the near months and 3 to 4 points lower on the distant months.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 5 points higher. Mid ups 11.60; mid gulf 11.85. Sales 5800 bales. Cotton futures closed very steady. May 11.39; June 10.97; July 10.56; August 10.07; September 9.94; October, 8.96; November 8.86; December 8.85; January 8.86.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Milwaukee Is Also to Have a Wireless Telegraph Station.

Belief That Duluth Will Soon Be Given a Station.

Milwaukee is to have a wireless telegraph station for receiving and sending messages between that city and the various lake ports.

At lower lake ports, Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo, considerable experimental work has been done with wireless telegraphy and the tests are said to have proved satisfactory. A station at Chicago is also in course of construction.

At Milwaukee, the first steps have already been taken and a tall mast has been erected immediately north of Lake park. As soon as the Chicago and Milwaukee stations have been completed the first experiments of the system on Lake Michigan will be made. It is expected that messages will be sent between the two cities within two or three weeks. The Chicago station is at the foot of Oak street.

The work at Chicago and Milwaukee has been conducted with much secrecy and as speedily as possible. Numerous inquiries as to the use of the great poles were made, but the answer given was that they were to be used as flagpoles.

The work is being done by the American De Forest Wireless Telegraphy company. This company installed a system for the Armour Packing company, which is said to be working in a very satisfactory manner.

It is believed that the plan of the company is to install a great system of wireless telegraph stations connecting all the lake ports. The larger ports on Lake Erie already have their stations, Chicago and Milwaukee on Lake Michigan are now being furnished and it is believed that Duluth will come next in order, as the chief Lake Superior port. Some of the stations on the lower lakes are equipped with mechanisms of sufficient power to reach Duluth.

When the large lake ports are equipped with the wireless stations it is the plan of the company to equip the different ships on the lakes with the instruments. With stations on each lake the vessels would then never be beyond communication with some lake port, thus vastly reducing the chances of accident and largely increasing the possibilities of a rescue should accidents occur. Already one vessel on the lower lakes is being fitted out with the mechanism and others are said to be preparing to follow.

"The wireless system is peculiarly adapted to use on the great lakes," said a local vessel agent today. "On the ocean where it has been in general use for some time past, the distances are greater and vess

FINE TEAM CERTAIN

Baseball Management Secures Fast Infield, After Some Exertion.

Men Are In Practice and Fast Getting Into Trim.

Baseball enthusiasts are wearing the smile that will not come off today.

President Bryan and Manager Van Praagh have made good in their promise to get Duluth a winning team despite discouraging conditions.

This afternoon they paid a fancy price for the release of Van Dine, the crack third baseman of the Des Moines team. They also closed with Whalen, a second baseman and the captain of last year's Crookston team which won second place in the Northern league race.

These two men will practically complete the infield, as Kennelly, now playing a remarkable game at first base for Rockford in the Three-I league, is due to report here in a few days.

Mueller, the former university of Wisconsin pitcher, will be here tomorrow, and it is probable that Volz, now with the St. Paul team, will report for duty at Stillwater on Sunday.

The men now here have put in a hard day's practice at Oneota park and are rapidly getting together on team work. Most of the men are in good condition, having played elsewhere during the early spring practice period.

Van Dine, the new third baseman, is said to be an exceptionally fast infielder and a good batter. He will be in Sunday's game at Stillwater and it is possible that he will report here Saturday morning.

* * *

Actual work on the grand stand and fence at the new baseball ground began this morning. The grounds will be ready for use on Memorial day and will be the scene of the lacrosse match between Duluth and St. Paul on that date.

* * *

Grand Forks took the second game from North Dakta university by a score of 13 to 0.

* * *

The Edgerwood, N. D., team gave Fargo a close run in a practice game. The league men won by a score of 3 to 2, but the amateurs had them 1 to 0 for the first seven innings.

* * *

There was considerable betting about town today as to what the Duluth high school will do to Superior's league team on Saturday. One bet was placed that the high school team would win, the odds being 1 to 2 and there was a bet of even money that Superior would not score more than six runs.

DAMAGE CASES BEFORE COURT

Actions Involving Personal Injuries and Property Damages.

Two personal injury cases and a damage action against the city are on trial in district court today.

The action of Ole Noid against the Red Cliff Lumber company to recover damages in the amount of $5000 for injuries alleged to have been received while he was employed by the company, is on trial in Judge Dibell's room. The plaintiff claims he was pushing a train car loaded with lumber in the company's yards when one of the timbers fell off, pushing the car back, striking him and injuring his knee.

The personal injury action of Brisson against the Minnesota Land and Construction company, in which the plaintiff asks damages in the amount of $36,000 for the loss of a foot, is still on trial in Judge Cant's room. The defense is introducing its evidence and does not expect to finish before tomorrow afternoon.

In Judge Ensign's room the plaintiff is still putting in testimony in the action of L. T. Wille against the city of Duluth to recover damages in the amount of $5000 for damage which the Garfield avenue viaduct is alleged to have caused to certain property with a fifty-foot frontage on the avenue at its junction with West Michigan street. The plaintiff sought this morning to introduce testimony as to the cost of remodeling and extending his building in order that it may have as advantageous location on the avenue as it is alleged to have had previous to the construction of the viaduct.

FINDS IT WAS AN ACCIDENT

Coroner Boyer's Investigation of Doyle's Death Convinces Him.

After a day of tireless investigation Coroner Boyer has decided that the death of Anthony Doyle last evening, was an unavoidable accident and that Motorman J. W. Hickon was exercising due care in the operation of his car when the accident occurred.

The coroner's investigation brought out several new features in regard to this accident. He found that Doyle was not intoxicated to any great extent, but that he crossed directly in front of two cars one going west and the other going east. The east-bound car struck him and it is now thought that he was so occupied in avoiding the west-bound car that he did not notice the approach of the other.

Mr. Doyle had intended going to Superior and crossed to the north side of Superior street at Eighth avenue west for the purpose of taking an Interstate car. He missed the Interstate and was crossing back when he was struck by the Woodland car and killed.

Coroner Boyer found that when he stepped on the track the east-bound Woodland car was not more than ten feet away and that instead of being knocked under the fender, Doyle was thrown up in the air and in coming down his head struck the head-light of the car with such force that the light was broken. The body then rolled off and under the car fender.

Motorman Hicken stopped his car within its length, it is said, and the coroner says that instead of finding any evidence against him he found that the car was stopped with commendable quickness.

The dead man was a woodsman during the past winter though he had worked as a railroad man in Ashland and Washburn.

A doctor named Reinhardt in Ashland is said to have amputated two of his fingers some years ago, and through this physician the authorities hope to be able to locate Mr. Doyle's relatives.

ANOTHER FINE IS IMPOSED

A. B. Smith, a saloonkeeper of Hibbing, who was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of permitting gambling devices, including a roulette wheel, to operate on his premises, appeared by attorney in district court this afternoon and entered a plea of guilty. The defendant is sick and unable to appear personally. He was fined $50 or given the alternative of six months in the county jail. The fine was paid. This is the third of the gambling cases that County Attorney McClintock has been prosecuting this term of court, the total receipts from the defendants now being $900.

TWO HUNDRED

Dead or Wounded From the Valparaiso Riots.

New York, May 14.—No less than 200 are dead or wounded as a result of the rioting in the streets here, says a Valparaiso correspondent of the Herald. It is impossible at present to ascertain the exact number of casualties. Isolated reports of firearms are still heard in all quarters of the city. A censorship has been established over all telegraphic lines.

El Heraldo, the only paper that was issued yesterday, severely criticises the authorities, whom it holds responsible for the outrages. All foreigners here are safe.

ZINC PLANT BURNED.

Salt Lake, May 14.—The zinc plant of the Utah Metals company, located at Park City, the only plant for the treatment of zinc bearing ores in the West, was almost totally destroyed by fire today. The loss is about $125,000, partially covered by insurance.

BUFFINGTON CONVICTED.

Ellsworth, Kas., May 14.—George M. Buffington was convicted today for the second time of the murder of Ode Miller in this city, a verdict of murder in the second degree having been returned.

INTO THE DITCH

Baltimore & Ohio Passenger Train Wrecked In Ohio.

Another Train Jumped Track At Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Columbus, O., May 14.—A B. & O. passenger train, due here at 11 a. m., went into the ditch one and a half miles north of Bloomingburg at 10:45 a. m. Engineer John May of Newark was instantly killed. The fireman's body is under the engine. Three coaches were badly wrecked. So far as known no passengers were hurt. Spreading rails caused the wreck.

The fireman was J. H. Layton, of Newark. The B. & O. management sent a relief train from here at 12:15 p. m., calling on the Pennsylvania also for aid. There are reports here that many passengers have been injured.

Hot Springs, Ark., May 14.—While running at ordinary speed an eastbound passenger train on the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf railroad jumped the track in the suburbs shortly after noon today, wrecking the entire train and demolishing an iron bridge.

The dead:

FIREMAN RILEY, Hot Springs.

The fatally injured: Engineer Ryan, Hot Springs; Conductor Weyr, Hot Springs; —Newton, Hot Springs.

Seventeen persons were less seriously injured.

CALENDAR IS DISAPPEARING

But One Civil Case Remaining to Come Before Federal Court.

The case of Charles H. Williams against the Northern Pacific railroad was compromised yesterday. The plaintiff will receive $2600 of the $10,000 for which he was suing.

It was claimed by the plaintiff that while in the employ of the road he was riding in a coach belonging to the company from Motley to West Superior. The train in which he was riding collided with a locomotive and he was thrown to the floor, receiving injuries which resulted in permanent injury to his eyesight.

Judgment for the sum of $1600 was entered for the plaintiff. Each side will bear its own costs.

The case of the Edward Hines Lumber company against A. W. and W. B. Comstock, which was continued from last evening, came up again this morning. The testimony of a number of lumber inspectors regarding the price of certain grades of lumber was taken this morning. It is likely that the taking of the testimony will be completed this afternoon and the case go to the jury.

The settlement of the Williams case and the completion of the Hines case will leave but one case remaining on the calendar, that of Elmer Kible against the Stevenson Iron Mining company.

The federal grand jury has been in session throughout the morning. There are a larger number of cases than usual to come before the grand jury this year, the majority of them being illegal liquor selling cases.

Up to the present time these are the only cases which have been heard. Out of the large number which have been of the large number which have been brought in about seven, and it is likely that there will be a grist of them for the district court to decide.

The grand jury is sitting again this afternoon, and it is likely that there will be sufficient business to come before it to keep it in session tomorrow and perhaps the remainder of the week.

ADMITS HIS IDENTITY.

Harold Reed Says He Is Harold Mills.

Chicago, May 14.—Harold C. Reed, under arrest on charges of abduction and assault, made by Laura Stickler, who leaped from a hotel window to escape him, has admitted his identity as Harold C. Mills, once president of the Guaranty Home Security company. He also admitted that he was the husband of the woman whom he yesterday declared he did not know and who immediately after his arraignment today on the above charges, caused his arrest for wife abandonment. The hearing of both cases was continued until May 21.

ORDERED TO PAY RENTAL.

Chicago, May 14.—Judge Grosscup has ordered the receivers of the Union Traction company to pay the rental to the West Chicago Street Railway company tomorrow, directing them to borrow the money on their receiver's certificates or on notes. The order was in response to a formal application by the receivers for permission to borrow the money. The amount due the West Chicago company is $157,385.

CURIOUS THINGS

Come From Coffee Drinking.

A lady in New York City suffered an accident to her leg and a running sore followed that medical science tried to cure for many years, but unknown to her, the coffee she drank daily kept the blood in a condition that would not let the sore heal. "Three years ago," says this lady, "I was advised to drink Postum and give up coffee, of which I was very fond. To say that I am thankful now for having done this is putting it very mildly, for as soon as I made the shift from coffee to Postum my leg began to heal and in a few weeks was quite well.

"It has never troubled me since and I think it marvelous. Neither have I suffered from the bilious headaches which used to afflict me. I can give you the names of many of my friends who are as firm friends of Postum as I." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

This is a case where Postum made red blood in a hurry. This lady thought it marvelous because her trouble of years' standing was cured in a few weeks through giving up coffee and using Postum in its place. Nothing marvelous about it, only the simplest scientific reasons that it will pay anyone to look into.

Good healthy red blood will cure most any disease. Coffee in many people destroys the red corpuscles and produces white or watery blood. A definite change is made by leaving off coffee entirely and using Postum. You can prove this by trial.

SHE MAY HAVE BEEN CHOKED

Agatha Reichlin's Exhumed Body Shows Discoloration on Neck.

Lorain, Ohio, May 14.—The remains of Agatha Reichlin were exhumed at the Catholic cemetery, one mile north of Elyria today, in order to settle the question raised as to whether the young woman had been choked as well as struck with a stone on the head. The body was found to be well preserved. Discolorations were found on the right wrist and upon the neck and a dark blue tinge beneath the right eye. After a conference the physicians decided to make openings in the neck and beneath the eye, to discover if possible whether these marks were caused by choking or blows before death or by the action of impeded blood drainage thereafter. At the conclusion of the examination Coroner French said that the marks found were the same he had seen at the postmortem, but that at this time it was impossible to say how they had been caused.

Sailed Without a Rudder.

One of Br...ain's battleships just recently accomplished the remarkable feat of sailing over 2500 miles without a rudder, and which reflects the greatest credit on her officers. The record of cures back of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters certainly reflects great credit on the ability of this medicine to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders, even after other remedies have failed. During its fifty years' experience it has never been known to fail in cases of dizziness, loss of appetite, insomnia, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles, or malaria, fever and ague. In view of such a convincing record we feel justified in urging you to try it at once. We know you will be satisfied with the result. The genuine must have our Private Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Chicago, May 14.—The Rev. Moses G. Knight, one of the oldest and best known Presbyterian ministers in the United States, died yesterday on a Monon train as it was drawing into the Chicago depot. Rev. Mr. Knight had been suffering from Bright's disease. The decedent was born in 1819 in Christian county, Ky. During the civil war he distributed tracts and preached to the soldiers of both armies. He was a zealous member of the American Tract society. The remains will be taken to Louisville, Ky., where interment will take place in the family lot.

Salem, Ore., May 14.—Joseph Bashaw, who is, as near as can be figured out, at least 114 years old, was found dead in bed last night. He was probably the oldest man in Oregon. He was a Frenchman by birth and served under Napoleon. He drove an ox team to Oregon in 1847 and was then a gray-haired man.

Saratoga, N. Y., May 14.—Mrs. George S. Batcheller, of Saratoga, wife of Judge Batcheller of the International Tribunal of Egypt, died at Alexandria, Egypt, today.

Milwaukee, May 14.—Louis Bleyer, a well-known newspaper man, died today after an illness of several months, aged 66 years. He was the first man to establish a marine department in a newspaper on the lakes. It was through his exhaustive reports of the loss of life and property on the lakes that Professor J. A. Lapham took up the movement in behalf of a weather signal bureau and successfully carried the matter through congress. Mr. Bleyer was at one time special correspondent of the old Chicago Times. Of late years he conducted the marine department of the Evening Wisconsin.

Mineral Point, Wis., May 14.—Montgomery Smith, a well-known laywer, is dead, aged 69 years. During President Cleveland's administrations Mr. Smith negotiated treaties with the Ute and Chippewa Indians.

Manila, May 14.—Mabini, the former minister of foreign affairs of the Filipino government, died of cholera at midnight. He was attacked with the disease on Tuesday last.

Since his return from Guam, Mabini had lived in seclusion. Captured correspondence of the Rizal province insurgents showed he had been in communication with them, but the letters were not of a seditious nature. The Filipinos and Americans generally regret the death of Mabini, but there will be no demonstration at his burial on account of the nature of his disease.

Pueblo, Colo., May 14.—Fred W. White, Jr., aged 30 years, business manager of the Pueblo Star-Journal, died this morning of typhoid fever. He was the oldest son of F. W. White, a well-known newspaper man of Denver.

TEAMSTERS ASSAULTED

Omaha, May 14.—Six assaults were made by teamsters during the forenoon today. One driver named Flinn was badly beaten while in the other cases drivers were forced from their wagons and three loads of coal were dumped into the street. Police dispersed the crowds, but no arrests were made, the assailants escaping. Labor leaders say the guilty persons are not members of the union. The laundries did not open today and will not do so until next Monday. The large hotels have private laundries and are not inconvenienced, but the smaller hotels and those restaurants which have reopened were handicapped for clean linen.

At labor headquarters it was given out that nothing would be done until the conference committee meets with the governor again. It is believed a compromise will be reached between strikers and employers.

POLICE ELECT OFFICERS.

New Orleans, May 14.—The following officers were elected by the police chiefs today: President—Richard S. Sylvester, Washington, D. C; vice president, Frank J. Cassady, Elmira, N. Y.; secretary,
